OTTAWA, Ont., March 13. (Canadian Press).—Full honors of the corps to which he brough valorous distinction during the Great War will be paid at Toronto Saturday to Lieut. Col. William G. Barker, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., victim of an aeroplane crash here Wednesday.

The body of the ace who brought down 52 enemy planes in combats over war torn Europe during the three years he served overseas with the Royal Canadian Air Force from 1915 to 1918, was carried by train from here last night to the Ontario capital where he maintained a permanent residence. The body was accompanied by an official of the Fairchild Aviation Corporation of Canada, of which Col. Barker was himself president. It was a new Fairchild bi-plane the daring flyer took up over the Rockliffe aerodrome here yesterday "for a flip" that suddenly seemed to hang dizzily in mid air after a steep climb and then plung headlong to earth. The famed pilot was dead when eye witnesses of the accident reached the tangled wreckage.

Many Airmen to Attend

A large corps of senior officers of Air Service headquarters, Department of National Defence, including officers of the R.C.F.A., of which Col. Barker was once Acting Director, will attend the obsequies. It was decided to accord full military honors after the wishes of the Colonel's relatives had been ascertained by officials of the Defence Department.

Cause of the fatal accident has not been determined. An official board of inquiry, comprised of three members of the Government Civil Aviation Branch, has been named to investigate the crash and attempt to determine its cause. The aircraft is a complete wreck, damaged beyond reconstruction in its crash from a low altitude into the slush ice along the shore of the Ottawa river, and the probe is bound to be a difficult and lengthy procedure.

Resting in a dark oaken casket, the remains were brought from the private funeral parlor, where an inquest was opened yesterday afternoon, and placed aboard the 11 o'clock train for Toronto. After viewing the body the coroner adjourned the inquest until Wednesday next.

Friends Pay Homage

A sorrowing little group of men, prominent in the aero-world, who had been associated with Col. Barker in his many aeronautical enterprises, gathered at the station to pay homage to the departed hero. Among them were J. A. Wilson, Controller of Civil Aviation, Department of National Defence; Colonel R. H. Mulock, General Manager of International Airways Co., Canada, Limited; Lieut. Col. R. F. Parkinson, D.S.O., former Officer Commanding the Governor General's Foot Guards; Captain D. C. Shaw, test pilot of the Fairchild Company, and Flight Lieutenant N. C. O. Forbes, representing the Royal Canadian Air Force.

OPERATORS FOR THE ADVANCE MAINTAIN STRONG UPPER HAND

ACTIVITY IN OIL.

(By Stanley W. Prenosil, Associated Press Financial Editor)

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 13.—Expectations of a cut in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate after the close of to-day's market provided the background for a brisk advance in prices in to-day's stock market. Flurries of selling swept through the market at intervals because of the disappointing nature of some of the recent trade news, but offerings were well absorbed, and operators for the advance succeeded in maintaining the upper hand.

Revival of speculative activity and strength in the oil shares, a dozen of which moved into new high ground for the year, featured the day's proceedings.

Houston was marked up nearly 5 points to a new top at 86 .. Skelly climbed more than 2 points to a new high at 23 .. and Standard Oil of New Jersey, General Asphalt and Indian Refining sold 2 points or more above yesterday's final quotations. Barnsdall, Sinclair, Standard Oil of New York, Atlantic Refining, Pure Oil and Independent Oil and Gas were among the stocks to attain new 1930 peaks.

CLAIMS ON WAY TO SETTLEMENT.

According to the latest advices, the claim of Canadian Car and Foundry Company against the German Government for war damages on the way to an early settlement, and in quarters close to the company, there is a confident feeling that a decision favorable to the company will be rendered by the claims board at Washington. Officials of Canadian Car are now at the Capitol where the board is scheduled to commence sittings on the 15th of this month.

It is stated that as a result of investigations made within the past several months, the company's case has been greatly strengthened. New evidence is understood to have been unearthed to substantiate some of the strong points in the case against Germany. An important new witness has also been located and if the Commission desires to hear him it is understood he will be available. As a result, the confidence expressed by the management at the annual meeting of a favorable outcome has been increased in recent weeks.

The award of the claim, which is estimated to amount to several millions, has special interest for Canadian Car shareholders. It is the general opinion that it would be distributed to holders of the common stock, in the form of compensation for the period during which no dividend was paid on the junior issue.

EXPERIENCE ACTIVE YEAR.

The fiscal year of Photo Engravers & Electrotypers Ltd., closed at the end of February and the annual statement is expected to appear in April.

While net profits will be a matter of surmise until the annual statement appears, the Financial News Bureau is informed that sales for the year showed an increase over the previous year and that monthly increases persisted into the final quaeter. If write-offs are not out of proportion, therefore, the amount brought down to profit and loss should show a fair gain.

Sales for the year ended February 28th, 1929, aggregated $830,592, compared with $358,873 for the six months period to August 31, 1927. A consistent increase has been shown in the past four or five years, the total in 1925 being $555,133; in 1926, $594,998; 1927, $826,045.

Gross profits in the year ended February 28, 1929, amounted to $319,789, after depreciation, representing in a substantial gain over previous records, while the amount available for the common stock, after all charges, was $94,607, equal to $3.16 per share. This compares with dividends of $2.00 per share per annum. Net working capital at the end of last year was $148,011, and the ratio of current assets to current liabilities was almost 5 to 1.

The shares are selling at around 26, at which the yield is 7.8%.

RADICAL CHANGES ARE PLANNED BY PETERBOROUGH GOLF CLUB

Work on New Eighteen-hole Course is Near Completion.

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED.

Radical changes to be completed this year will bring Peterborough's golf course in line with some of the finest courses in Ontario, and an outstanding season is confidently looked forward to.

At the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club Limited, held in the Chamber of Commerce council room last evening, with W. C. Ackerman presiding, it was reported that after making adequate provision for depreciation on property and outstanding accounts, last year's operations closed with a substantial profit.

Last year's officers were re-elected by acclamation, with the board of directors as follows: W. C. Ackerman, B. D. Hall, H. A. Morrow, G. A. Wood, and George A. Macdonald.

The history of golfing in this city extends back for many years, having been first introduced here when Peterborough was a town. The game was first played at Burnham's Point in the year 1901. A club was formed in 1905 and was sold out to the Limited Company on February 14th, 1929. The present membership is 340, made up of 136 ladies, 134 men, 50 juniors and 20 non-residents. The total ordinary revenue from all sources last season exceeded $10,000 and after paying all expenses the year closed with a substantial credit balance. Close on 1,000 tourists used the course last year and this number it is fully expected will be considerably increased along with the added facilities which will be offered this year.

18-Hole Course

The work of extending the course from nine holes to eighteen will be completed early this season, already 75 per cent. of the work is finished, having been commenced in September last to the specifications prepared by Stanley and Thompson, well-known golf architects of Toronto and put into effect by The Trans-Canada Cement Company Limited of Toronto. The addition of another nine holes has meant the purchase of another 70 acres of land which was secured from the Rogers' farm and a portion of the Scollard farm.

The course now extends along the banks of the Trent Valley Canal for a distance of almost one mile and is in the heart of some of the most delightful scenery in this district.

Notwithstanding everything, however, the paper expressed confidence that "the conference was not likely to separate in despair without accomplishing anything. Its main objects may prove unattainable for the present, but it has reached valuable agreements on a number of points and these results cannot be allowed to lapse."

The Daily Mail said the Conference was fast approaching a crisis and that the prospects for a successful issue were gloomy.

SPRING COMES TO MAINE

PORTLAND, Me., March 13. (CP) Wintry winds may lash the Maine coast again but to all seafaring folks here the true harbinger of spring has arrived. On the morning of Feb. 24 the beam trawler Gale put into Portland Harbor with a cargo of 150,000 pounds of fish. She was the first beam trawler of the season to arrive at this port and her catch sets a record for 1930.

From this time out, the fish canning season is on and the Gale will be followed by many big trawlers of the Massachusetts fishing fleet.

DIVIDEND DISBURSEMENTS WILL RUN INTO MILLIONS

Payments Aggregating $25,000,000 Will Be By Upwards of 75 Companies.

UNLUCKY 13TH ON MARKET.

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 13. (Special to Examiner.)—To-day and Friday will see practically fifty securities added to the stock list quoted ex-dividend on the Toronto Stock Exchange in preparation for over the month-end dividends disbursements. March brings to a conclusion the first quarter of the new year and interest and dividend disbursements by Canadian governments, municipalities and corporations will run into millions of dollars. On the first day of the month, payments to shareholders by upwards of 75 companies will be made, aggregating $25,000,000 to which can be added many millions in bond and debenture interest. One or two of the older dividend paying stocks will disappear from the list at this time as directors found it advisable to defer payment but the loss here will be more than made up by the larger number who are making initial disbursements to their stockholders. The distribution of such a large amount of money has created a demand for high grade securities for reinvestment and in 1930 the bulk of this is finding its way into the bond market rather than the stock market. Bonds are in good demand with new offerings meeting a good reception and dealers bidding keenly.

Early trading on the stock markets to date gave promise the 13th would pass without creating the havoc the same day wrought on one or two occasions in 1929. The reaction, which set in Wednesday was checked at the opening to-day and stocks were no longer pressed for sale, although the list failed to make substantial recovery. Those interested in the market in 1929 learned to look out for the 13th. Friday, September 13th witnessed a drop in prices that is believed by many to have been the forerunner of the series of crashes that culminated in the collapse of security prices on November 13th, and brought to an end the bull market that had reigned for three or four years. Then came Friday, December 13th, when the recovery from the extreme lowest of the previous month was halted and to superstitious traders the 13th has since proven a trying day, particularly when it happens to fall on a Friday.

In a letter accompanying a dividend cheques Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, speaks of an increase in the number of shareholders from 71,000 to over 240,000 in the first fifteen months, and Mr. Sloan refers to the sale of 400,000 new and used cars in 1929 as a tremendous achievement and in concluding says: "We enter the new year with a most outstanding line of cars. Never before have I been as well satisfied with our competitive position and I am confident that if you, as a stockholder, will acquaint yourself with the current offerings, you can conscientiously recommend General Motors Products to your friends and acquaintances on the basis of merit. This, after all, is the only sound foundation upon which sales can be promoted."

Much interest has been centred in Ford of Canada lately in view of the fact that the financial statement for 1929 is believed practically completed and will be made available to shareholders within the next few weeks. The recent strength of the stock market wise and rise on Toronto Stock Exchange this morning to a new high price for 1930 has served to intensify interest and productions are being made regarding earnings per share. Despite the unfavorable situation in Western Canada last year, profits are said to be sufficient to warrant directors declaring a dividend on the stock. A dividend on the basis of $3 annually has been mentioned but more conservative quarters regard this as too high. The buying of the company's stock this week can be traced in substantial amounts to the continent and especially Amsterdam, where the shares were listed last year. Publication of a favorable statement by the German company turned attention to shares of Ford of Canada, but majority of business locally has been for arbitrating between Toronto and New York.

Winnipeg Grain Gains Fail to Hold on Market

WINNIPWG, Man., March 13.—(By the Canadian Press)—Opening advances of more than a cent from rock-bottom wheat prices on the Winnipeg grain market failed to hold to-day. Forecast of rain in the south-west United States, where Kansas crops are thirsting for moisture, occasioned loss of early gains May wheat was 1-8 cent down from yesterday's close, while the other two futures were unchanged.

COMPELLED TO ABANDON GRAIN SHIPMENT PLAN

Attitude on Part of "Coal People" in Canada Makes Action Necessary.

BRITISH PROPOSAL.

Old, Organized Grain Trade in Canada "Doomed" in Opinion of A. J. McPhail.

REGINA, Sask., March 13 (Canadian Press).—The attitude taken by "coal people" in Canada forced the abandonment of a British Government proposal which might have aided wheat shipments from Canada to Britain. This light on the conversations between Canadian wheat pool officials and Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Lord Privy Seal and Minister of Unemployment in the British Government, was contained in an address to-day by A. J. McPhail, president of the Canadian Wheat Pool.

"We were prepared to recommend, for serious consideration of our board, a certain proposal made by Mr. Thomas that I think would possibly have facilitated the desired developments," stated Mr. McPhail in speaking to a meeting of the Regina Board of Trade. "However, due to the very strong attitude taken by coal people on this side of the water, the whole idea, I think, has been dropped for the time being at least."

Mr. McPhail offered no further details of the "certain proposal," presumably considering as he has intimated heretofore, that reports of the conversations must come from British Government officials. It is recalled, however, that it was reported while the pool men were in Britain that suggestions had been made for shipments of British coal to Canada in tramp steamers, to be filled on their return trips with cargoes of Canadian wheat.

The old organized grain trade is "doomed," in Canada and elsewhere, in the opinion of Mr. McPhail.

and the United States. He competed in the colors of the Argonaut Rowing Club of Toronto. His triumphs include a number of victories over the best scullers in the United States at Philadelphia in the American Henley, triumphs in Canadian events at St. Catharines and elsewhere.

In 1927 at Detroit he set a new world's record in winning the senior quarter-mile dash in the singles event of the National Amateur Rowing Association. His time was 1 minute 12-5 seconds.

He has also held several Canadian championships.

Another Record Holder.

Martha Norelius, New York City, first came into fame at the Paris Olympics in 1924. She has been smashing world records ever since, and has on occasions lowered as many as eight world marks at one meet.

She brought the United States its first Olympic swimming championship at Amsterdam, Holland, in 1928, when she set a mark for the 400-meter event at 5.42 4-5.

In July, 1929, she turned professional, and after winning the Wrigley event in Toronto, swam chiefly at exhibition meets.

EVIDENCE CLOSED $20,000 ACTION COBOURG COURT

pavement. As previously brought out the two wheels were thirty inches apart.

Mr. Agar continued the questioning and Vansickle said he believed the cultivator had been hurled about five feet by the automobile.

Witness said that the team of horses would tend to obscure Thompson's view of approaching traffic. The seat of the cultivator is lower than the shoulder of the horses, "but there are three feet between the horses that gives him a view of the road ahead. In turning into the lane, Mr. Vansickle said, the right hand horse would obstruct for a moment or two Thompson's view of the road.

Robert Duffin, a neighbor of Thompson's, was attracted to the place of the accident by people gathering there. To him the marks on the pavement indicated that Thompson had made a "sharp turn."

The Damage to the Car

Harold Boundy, another neighbor, replaced the flat tire on the Grant car. The marks of the collision on the car were on the right hand side in front, the right tire was flat, the bumper and fender were crushed in against the flattened tire. The right light was broken off and the right corner of the sun shade was bent.

Proud of His Son

William Thompson, father of the late Clifford Thompson, said of his son: "I never knew him to do a thing I was ashamed of. He was devoted to his work. He loved farming and wouldn't hear of anything else. He was the farmer, not I. The main reason I came here from Newfoundland was on my boy's account."

Mr. Thompson said the price of the farm was $14,000, and he had spent $3,400 for stock and implements. He had a mortgage of $9,400 on the property. They had rented an adjoining 100 acres. Their revenues were more than $3,000 a year, and net income about $2,000.

Mr. Thompson said he would not be able to carry on. The death of his son had upset everything.

Expectation of Life

Ernest Gill, Toronto actuary, stated that the joint expectation of life for a man and wife of 31 is 25 3-10 years. For man alone it would be 29½ years. The loss to a wife of 31 years by the death of her husband who earned $100 a month would amount to $16,000 in twenty-five year.

Traffic Officer Halleck of Cobourg asserted that a car going 35 or 40 miles an hour and having four-wheel brakes would not skid unless the wheels locked. The brakes in Mrs. Grant's car were in good order.

Mrs. Grant Called.

Mrs. Grant was called next. On the front seat with her was her cousin, Miss Constance Grant. Her two sons and daughter were on the back seat.

Mrs. Grant said she had driven the car for a year prior to the accident.

Relating the incidents of her trip from Kingston on August 15 last, defendant said she was driving west of Cobourg at about 35 miles an hour.

"I first noticed the horses and cultivator after they had crossed the centre line of the road in turning. My car was about three car lengths away from the horses when I noticed that. I realized at once an accident was inevitable. I threw on the foot brake as hard as I could, put out the clutch, and turned the car to the left. I hoped I could get around the rear of the cultivator. If I had gone on straight I would have run right into the horses.

"What part of the cultivator did you come in contact with?" Mr. Agar asked.

"I thought I hit the rear end of the cultivator. The extreme right hand side of my car hit it."

"How far did your car continue after hitting the cultivator?"

"About a car length on the south side of the road. I then drove over to the north side of the road out of the way of traffic."

"Did you see what happened to Mr. Thompson?"—I did not.

Mr. Phelan took up the cross-examination of Mrs. Grant. She said her cousin had driven from Kingston to Colborne.

"Did you think of the farm entrances that are rather numerous along there?"—No, I didn't have that in my mind.

"You never saw this team of horses until almost on top of them?"

"No. They didn't make any impression on me."

"No, I suppose I didn't see them."

"And when you did, a situation of dangerous emergency rose up in front of you? You never saw it developing until you were right on it?"

Asked what explanation she could offer for failing to see them, Mrs. Grant said she could not offer one.

Reiterates Statement.

"When I saw the horses first they had crossed the centre line of the road," Mrs. Grant stated in answer to Mr. Phelan's question.

"Did you have in mind there was a five-foot shoulder?"—I didn't realize how good it was at the time.

The driver of the horses during the brief interval of her observation, made no effort to check or accelerate their pace, Mrs. Grant said.

The right side of the sun shield was bent, but defendant could not say what had struck it. There was 10 feet on south side of the road free of traffic, but Mrs. Grant said she could not make the turn out quickly enough. She admitted that the emergency was so sudden she did not sound the horn. Mrs. Grant also said that she was breaking the traffic law if she was travelling at more than 35 miles an hour. And her estimate of the car's speed was from 35 to 40 miles an hour.

Mr. Agar—Was there anything in the actions of Mr. Thompson driving the team that indicated he was aware of your approach?

Mrs. Grant—No, sir.

Defendant admitted that she caught a momentary glimpse of Mr. Thompson. The horses were then sligh to the left of the car.

Mr. Phelan—Why didn't you turn to the right of them?

Because they were walking toward me.

Three Car Lengths Away

Constance Grant of Halifax, N.S., cousin of the defendant, swore that she had looked at the speedometer of the car a short time before the collision. It then registered 32 miles. Her estimate of the speed at the moment of the accident was 35 miles an hour.

"I noticed the horses ahead of us on the south side of the road. When their heads crossed the centre line of the road they were about three car lengths away. I saw Mrs. Grant put on the brake and turn to the south side. The car stopped in a length on the south side of the road. Mrs. Grant then moved on 240 feet to the north side."

Miss Grant said to Mr. Phelan that the car might have been going from 35 to 40 miles an hour.

Expert Opinion

Clarence Hastings, automotive engineer, testified that even an alert persons allows half a second to pass from the time of his first perception of traffic danger until he takes action. In that circumstance, if the car's speed was 35 miles per hour and the brakes were efficient the car should be stopped in 70 to 75 feet after the brakes were applied. In Mrs. Grant's case there would be the 70 feet plus 26 feet the car would travel in half a second, at 35 miles an hour.

Mr. Hastings said it would have been impossible for her to stop in 90 feet. At 25 miles an hour a car could be stopped in three seconds or 47 feet.

To Mr. Phelan, witness said that in six seconds (a time mentioned by Mr. Armour) the car would travel 360 feet at 35 miles an hour and without any diminution of its speed.

Such a car could be stopped easily in 200 feet and might be stopped in 125 feet or less.

INQUIRY WILL BE HELD INTO DEATH OF COL. BARKER

this and his machine fell out of control.

"On recovery, he found himself being again attacked heavily by a large formation, and singling out one machine he deliberately charged and drove it down in flames. During this flight his left elbow was shattered, and he again fainted, and on regaining consciousness he found himself again being attacked, but notwithstanding that he was now severely wounded in both legs and his left arm shattered, he dived on the nearest machine and shot it down in flames.

Crashed on Landing.

"Being greatly exhausted he dived out of the fight to regain our lines, but was met by another formation, which attacked and endeavored to cut him off, but after a hard fight he succeeded in breaking up this formation, and reached our lines where he crashed on landing.

"This combat, in which Major Barker destroyed four enemy machines (three of them in flames) brought his total successes up to fifty enemy machines destroyed, and is a notable example of the exceptional bravery and disregard of danger which this very gallant officer has always displayed throughout his distinguished career."

Completely Overcome.

LONDON, March 13.—When Lieut.-Colonel W. A. Bishop, V.C., Canada's premier wartime ace, was told by the Canadian Press last night of the death of Lieut.-Col. W. G. Barker, V.C., who was killed in an air crash at Ottawa, he was completely overcome.

"It is a most terrible shock to me," said Colonel Bishop. "He was one of my dearest friends, and one of the finest men I have ever met. There has been no bigger man in the air business, either during the war or since. I really cannot express what I feel."

Through Colonel Bishop's grief for his comrade-in-arms left him almost speechless there are many here, their connection with aviation going back to the war period, who remember Barker and his exploits vividly, and spoke of them to-day. Six months after the war ended, Colonel Barker, who had just before disabled an arm, took the Prince of Wales on a flight over London, though few of the thousands who saw them knew the identity of the pilot or his passenger.

Flying with his disabled arm strapped to his breast, the airman carried his Royal companion into as many air hazards as any one, perhaps, had up to that time, experienced in peace time. At one point, the machine fell 500 feet in a series of jerking turns. The engine was shut off, but the shriek of the wind on the struts was clearly heard by the watchers.

Over the aerodrome Barker again "flattened out" and the machine landed light as a feather. The Prince's face, on alighting was a study. "I have enjoyed it immensely," he was heard to say to an officer. "But what a sensation it is when you go over backward!" There were many at the time who did not approve of the Royal heir taking so many risks.

Often Took up the Prince.

There is no harm in stating now that Colonel Barker told your correspondent how he had often taken the Prince up during the seven months when His Highness was with the Canadian forces, one one occasion, at least, travelling over the German lines.

"The Prince enjoyed it all," declared the Colonel. "He took it as an every-day occurrence."

The exploits of Colonel Barker during the war are chronicled in many pages of the London Gazette. The gallant airman, when you met him on leave in London, was, in one sense, often an exasperating character. He was always glad to meet you, even if you were a newsman, but the most patient efforts usually failed to get him to talk about his exploits. He could not be induced to say there was anything to talk about.

"It's all down in the Gazette," he would say, and he would speak of something else.

TRIBUTE FROM U. S. ACE

NEW YORK, March 13.—Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, leading United States ace during the Great War, made the following comment yesterday on the tragic death at Ottawa of Colonel W. G. Barker.

"Colonel Barker was one of the most daring and courageous pilots developed during the Great War. In fact, he often risked his life and good judgment for the protection of his fellow-pilots, who were less efficient, by attacking, at great odds, without thought of his own welfare. Colonel Barker's success during his limited months of service over the Western front speaks for itself. The science of aviation and the citizens of Canada have lost a great soldier and patriot."

system would work a hardship on a great many persons who travel about the province. It would apply only to those who abused the purchase privileges.

Efforts were being made, it was stated, to educate the people of Ontario into drinking light wines and beers, rather than spirits of higher alcoholic strength. The price of some wines had been reduced in price from 25 to 18 per cent.

Druggist Must Keep Check.

The Commission, in expressing the opinion that the use of rubbing alcohol and other substitutes was responsible for a large percentage of the drunkeness in some sections, said that all druggists selling it, were compelled to keep a register. This would enable an easier check-up to be made.

Ontario paid the Federal Government slightly over $15,500,000 in customs duties, excise rates, malt duties and gallonage in 1928. The report continued: "The net profits of the province, while large, are relatively small compared to the Dominion revenues (estimated at $58,430,955) received from the liquor traffic. The proportion is the more marked when it is realized that all the disabilities resulting from the traffic are visited upon the provinces and not the Dominion. The short-circuiting of liquors supposed to be exported and other abuses of the traffic requiring much police activity and expense are burdens borne by the provinces. The difficult question of sale rendering possible these large Dominion revenues, if looked after entirely by the provinces, should the question of a proper division of allocation be ever considered, it is manifest that the ratio of the present division of the profits of the traffic should be entirely reversed and the general proportion received by the province."

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO PRODUCE.

Toronto, March 13. — Egg prices seemed to have definitely stopped their downward trend yesterday on the local produce market, and prices to both country shippers and retailers remained unchanged from Tuesday's prices. Country shippers were still quoted 28c for extras, 26c for firsts, and 22c for seconds and retailers were asked 36c to 37c for extras in cartons, 34c to 35c for extras loose; 32c for firsts, loose, and 28c to 29c for seconds loose. Chicago eggs have ceased to play a prominent part on the local market and dealers seemed unconcerned about the spot market in that city. Ontario supplies have been plentiful in Toronto and consumption was reported as slightly better and likely to improve as the retailer lowers his prices.

Butter.

It was the same old story on the butter market here. Prices were unchanged and the demand was poor, as far as the brokers were concerned. The quotation is shippers is 33 3-4 to 34¼c for No. 1 creamery pasteurized and 33¼c to 33½c for 38-scoring seconds, and 32 3.4c to 33c for 37-scoring seconds. Churning cream prices were also firm.

Potatoes.

Potatoes took a drop yesterday on the local market, 5 cents on Ontarios, 10c on New Brunswck's and from 10c to 15c on Prince Edward Island's. Wholesalers quoted for Ontario No. 1, in bags, $1.60; in bulk, $1.50. New Brunswick's in bags, $1.65; in bulk, $1.55. Prince Edward Island Mountains, $1.85; cobblers, $1.60. No reason could be given for the weakening of the Maritime markets. There were very few Ontario potatoes arriving in the city. Farmers are evidently waiting for a better market. Consumption was also reported as being poor.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, March 13. — Wheat prices struggled up before the close from the lowest marks in more than six years, recorded during yesterday's session on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. After a session where early trading was heavy, later to wane, quotations were down 1¼c to 1c for the day.

During the morning, No. 1 Northern sold for 98½c per bushel and the May future was within 1¼c of the dollar mark.

The statement by Chairman Alexander Legge of the United States Farm Board, that congestion would continue two months and that acreage reduction was needed to remedy the present situation, was coupled with Broomhall's reduction of estimated world requirements by 62,000,000 bushels to only 696,000,000 bushels. Liverpool was very weak and overnight business and demand were negligible.

Cash wheat trading was slow and little business was done. In sympathy with wheat, coarse grains went down.

Cash prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.01⅝; No. 1 Northern, $1.01⅝; No. 2 Northern, 98c; No. 3 Northern, 94¾c; No. 4, 90¾c; No. 5, 83⅞c No. 6, 63⅞c; feed, 52⅛c; track, 62⅞c; screenings, $5.90 per ton.

Oats—No. 2 C.W., 50½c; No. 3 C.W., 41¾c; extra No. 1 feed, 41¾c; No. 1 feed, 39⅞c; No. 2 feed, 37¾c; rejected, 34c; track, 45¼c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 13.—World wide turmoil in grain markets yesterday left each Chicago delivery of every cereal but May wheat last night at the lowest closing prices reached this season. The sole exception as to May wheat was due to big buying ascribed to agencies that are sponsored by the United States Government Farm Board. Complete demoralization of the wheat trade at Liverpool was reported, with prices there down 6⅛ cents a bushel, while maximum breaks in wheat prices at Chicago yesterday, 4⅝ cents a bushel, carried values here down to 11⅝ cents under quotation current last week.

Reduction of world's estimated import needs of wheat to nearly 300,000,000 bushels less than was actually shipped last year, whereas the United States and Canada both have a huge surplus, formed an outstanding feature yesterday, and despite late rallies the wheat market here closed feverish, 1 to 2⅝ cents a bushel lower than Tuesday's finish. Corn closed 1⅝c to 2¼c down; oats, ⅝c to 1⅝c off, and provisions showing 7 to 22 cents drop.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, March 12. —Butter, eggs and potatoes turned softer on the local produce market here yesterday, while cheese and dressed poultry remained steady.

Fresh eggs to retailers were reduced from 1c to 2c a dozen by wholesale houses. Milder weather which has opened up the country roads and stimulated production was given as the cause of the decrease. Prices now range from 38c for fresh specials to 30c a dozen for fresh seconds.

Potatoes were 5c a bag lower, and some dealers offered them at 10c below yesterday's price. New Brunswick Green Mountains were quoted at $1.45 and Quebecs at $1.35 per 90 pounds in bulk in carlots, ex-track, here.

Cheese was steady at 18½c to 18¾c a pound for Easterns and 19c to 19¼c for Westerns.

Bran and shorts were reduced $2 a ton on the local wholesale markets yesterday, corresponding to the similar decrease in middlings made Tuesday. Other prices were unchanged.

HOW TO MAKE THOSE STIFF CREAKY JOINTS YOUNG AGAIN

Sandy walks slowly up the stairs—his knee joints creak—"getting along in years," he sighs, "and that last attack of rheumatism didn't do them any good—these auld knee joints need oiling up."

Millions of men and women are like Sandy—their creaky joints need oiling—need something to make them work with the smoothness of youth—how to oil them need no longer be a problem.

Right here in Canada to-day there is being made and sold thru druggistores a soothing, penetrating emollient called Joint-Ease that is made for just one purpose—to bring comfort to stiff, inflamed, creaky, ailing joints.

Just rub Joint-Ease to-night on that troublesome joint and swiftly it goes thru skin and flesh right down to the tendons and ligaments of the joints—right where all the pain and distress starts.

Joint-Ease works swiftly—its job is to limber up stiff, creaky joints, reduce the swelling and subdue the inflammation and it does the job quickly, thoroughly and well.

Ask McDermid & Jury, McDermid Drug Co., E. L. Payne, Bond's Drug Store, or any druggist anywhere for a generous tube of Joint-Ease—the price is 60 cents and bear this in mind—Joint-Ease is guaranteed—when Joint-Ease gets in, joint agony gets out—quick or money back.

SPRINGVILLE, March 13.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Mrs. C. T. White was held on Sunday, March 9, at the family residence in North Monaghan. The funeral services at the home and graveside were conducted by Rev. S. H. Moyer, pastor of Springville United church, of which the deceased was a faithful member. The large funeral gathering told of the high esteem in which she was held by her many friends. Her sudden death caused by a paralytic stroke was a great shock to her family and all who knew her. She was of an active nature and appeared to be in the best of health until the day of her death. Her loss will be keenly felt in the church and community.

Mrs. White prior to her marriage was Barbara Edith Henderson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Henderson of Cavan. She was born in Cavan township, February 28, 1875. She was one of a family of three. One sister, Mrs. Ed. Fallis of Millbrook, predeceased her twenty years ago. Thomas McGuire Sprains His Ankle While on His Way to Work.

Your Teeth aren't Really Clean if you only Polish the Surfaces

ECONOMICAL

The 25c. tube of Colgate's contains more toothpaste than any other nationally advertised brand priced at a quarter.

HALF-CLEAN teeth invite decay. Why not have the extra protection of Colgate's, whose penetrating foam enters and cleanses the tiny pits and fissures where decay may start?

Some toothpastes merely perform the single duty of polishing the outer surfaces of the teeth.

Colgate's does that, of course ...and something else besides! When brushed, it breaks into a sparkling, bubbling foam which has a truly remarkable property. This active foam penetrates into the tiny pits and fissures of the teeth and gums, softening the impurities which become lodged in these hard-to-reach places and washing them away in a surging antiseptic bath.

Thus Colgate's cleans... giving your teeth double protection against the impurities which cause decay. Scientific tests prove that Colgate's has the highest penetrating power of any leading dentifrices... hence, Colgate's ability to clean teeth best.

Superiority and economy have made Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream the world's favorite dentifrice—used by more people, recommended by more dentists.

WARNING! Don't attempt to "doctor" your mouth with a dentifrice. A toothpaste cannot possibly cure pyorrhea, correct acid mouth, firm the gums. Its one and only function is to clean. Self medication is always dangerous... if you have any fears for the health of your teeth or gums, see your dentist at once!

COUNCIL TO STAGE HYDRO CAMPAIGN

(Examiner Correspondence)

HASTINGS, March 12.—Mr. S. P. Fuller of the Hydro Electric Commission is in town this week being called here by the council to help explain to the power users the rates as well as making out their contracts.

Reeve Dr. W. E. Wilson has placed two members of his council on each side of the river to call on each householder and explain thoroughly how the contracts are worked. The impression seems to have gathered around the village that the contract is something very much different from the rates that were supplied during the time the vote was taken on the by-law. In this contract the householder merely signs up for the use of power for one year at $3.33 per month with a deduction of 33c for prompt payment.

Councillors Fowlds and Doxsee are calling on the residents south of the bridge and Doxsee and Plant north of the bridge.

It is to be hoped every citizen will sign up at once as much valuable time is being wasted, when the lines could be under construction.

TWIN-IGNITION MEANS—
Greater Power, Greater Smoothness, Extraordinary Economy

BECAUSE two different motor cars are alike in price, it does not follow that they are also alike in quality, value or performance. ¶ There is always a best, and if you are looking for it, drive a Nash Twin-Ignition Eight or Six. They are the only cars in their price field which offer the superiority of Twin-Ignition performance. ¶ Twin-Ignition (two spark plugs, two simultaneous sparks, per cylinder, instead of one) produces smoother, more thorough combustion and consequently a smoother, more vigorous flow of power. You can feel the difference. You will know immediately what you have been missing, driving a car with single ignition. ¶ Other "400" features of superior performance and value are Bijur centralized chassis lubrication; lifetime-lubricated springs, encased in steel spring covers; built-in, automatic radiator shutters; and Duplate non-shatterable plate glass in all windows, doors and windshields (no extra cost in the Twin-Ignition Eight—optional at slight extra cost in the Twin-Ignition Six and Single Six)

HAT FOR MILADY SHOWS CHANGE; WIDE BRIM BACK

Gainsborough Silhouette Revives—Jewellery Must Harmonize With Gown.

GLOVES ARE LONGER

Both Afternoon and Evening Footwear Have Higher Heels.

After many, many seasons of the small close-fitting hat, we are going to have a few changes this year. What is described as going the limit in brims and colors is the idea for this summer, and individual preference in headgear maybe exercised once again, without fear of offending Fashion's dictates. The attempt to look pretty and appealing, rather than just smart and modish, is being made once more, in line with the new feminine vogue for picturesque treatment of wearing apparel.

One of the interesting notes is the revival of the Gainsborough Silhouette, not quite so wide as in former years, but an adaptation of the slanting, picturesque and flattering line, to be worn with the organdies and flowered chiffons of afternoon. In the close-fitting hat that still retains a large measure of popularity, there is a little upward slant slant over one eye that shortens the line and gives the impression of an "off the face" effect.

Spring Styles.

For spring, the silhouette that is being stressed is the short front hat with a back brim and long side backs, one longer than the other, with the opposite eyeline raised to give the slanted look to the front. Bows are very good for hats, to follow the vogue for bows on frocks. They are developed in velvet ribbon of medium width and narrow ribbons are also employed to a large extent, sometimes with three or four little bows posed along the side of the crown, or perhaps just one flat bow finishing the crown base at the back or the turn of the brim at the front.

Navy blue, linen blue, rose red and yellow red, as well as many light and bright greens, are good for spring millinery, that is stressing also the importance of straw as a fabric groundwork for the hat. Rough straw that resembles tweed, and fine, lacy, transparent straw for afternoon wear—these are the favorites. Baku and shiny panamalaque, both resembling panama weaves, are much liked for general use.

Jewellery Harmonizes.

Accessories are going in for the ornamental, picturesque note also. In costume jewellery, for instance, the color is expected to harmonize with the color of the gown, and antique settings are returning to favor, with a cameo quality that is in line with the romantic tendency of the mode. Long strings of brightly colored beads that harmonize with the light, bright colors for spring wear, are used for sports outfits.

Gloves are longer and are to be worn pulled up high over the cuff of the suit or frock. They all have decidedly longer wrists and have bow treatments or novel cuffs to soften the tailored effect.

The handbag for morning or sports wear matches the costume in color and in material. Hats and handbags, for instance, are being shown for purchase together. The spring bag is comfortably large and is trimmed with wood, crystal or metal. Antelope and pin seal are favored materials, while lame ornamented with rhinestones is good for evening wear.

Necklines are much closer to the throat than in previous years. The little demure, schoolgirl collar is much liked, there are scarf bows tied close to the hollow of the neck in front; lingerie frills and lingerie tabs, and there is a great liking on black frocks for the bateau, or boat, neckline, not very wide, and finished by a turnover of white satin.

In underwear, there are new nightgowns with Peter Pan collars; step-ins with circular flares; petticoat-bloomer combinations and uplift bandeaux that combine with the styles of outer clothes.

High Heels on Shoes.

Shoes show a tendency toward higher heels for daytime and evening, the former demanding 2½ inches in height and the latter 2¾ inches. The cutout and opera pump are most in demand and most of the models introduce some sort of trimming in an off shade. In sports wear, for instance, fabric shoes of white may be trimmed with blue, green, red or yellow to match the color of the ensemble, while green promises to be very popular with beige and green costumes. Brown is good for tweed and sports outfits, also shoes with brown and beige combinations.

For evening, favor continues to be showered on crepe, moire and brocade versions of the pump and narrow strap slipper.

LINES PRINT

A little frock for southern golfing days is made of tan, red and a tiny bit of orange printed linen. There are cap sleeves, no collar, and a pleated flounce around the bottom of the skirt.

SHORT SKIRTS ARE DEFENDED

CUTS DOWN EXPENSES

LONDON, March 13. (U.P.)—Classifying long skirts as the bringer of the "curse of class distinction," Mrs. Corbett Ashby, President of the National Women's Liberal Federation, recently said in an address that it was not the desire of women who have tasted the joys of short skirts to go back to the long ones.

"At the present time," Mrs. Ashby said, "you cannot tell if the smart creation walking down the street in front of you has cost $100 or $15. But that is not true when long skirts are the fashion."

Another objection to long skirts comes from the young men-about-London, who realize that when they take their ladies to dances the longer the skirts the longer the taxicab bills. They cannot very well ask girls whose skirts touch the ground to walk to the dance, particularly in wet weather.

LOCOMOTIVE MODEL BEING DISPLAYED

Exact Replica of Engine Now in Use on Canadian National Lines.

A working model of the 6100 type C.N.R. locomotive now in use on the system is being displayed in the C.N.R. City ticket office window on George street.

It is an exact replica in miniature of the type of engine it represents and was built in Winnipeg from plans and specifications used in the original construction of its giant relative. It is built on a scale of one inch to a foot and the boiler is tested to 150 pounds pressure. The model weighs 600 pounds and is erected on a solid oak base.

While on display here it is being operated by electricity but can be run under steam. The 6100 class of engine can be operated 500 miles without changing and can be used in either passenger or freight service. The locomotive has the 4-8-4 wheel arangement.

The model is now being circulated for display throughout Canada and was brought here from Montreal to be exhibited for two weeks.

PRESENT TO COFFEE KING.

SAO PAULO, Brazil, March 13. — Don Francisco San Roman, Uruguay's Coffee King and a great friend of Brazil, has received a present from a coffee-growing friend of his in the state of Sao Paulo, of an 18-carat gold ring. This ring bears the evolution of the coffee bean, in precious stones, from the flower, designed in gold, then the green berry, represented by an emerald, then the red ripened one in ruby, to the final toasted bean, cleverly imitated by onyx. It is the work of a skilful goldsmith of Monte Video.

GREAT POETS' WORST WORKS ARE PRINTED

"GOOD BAD VERSE"

Book Contains Specimens of Wordsworth, Coleridge and Southey.

(By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, England. — "Bad Verse from Good Poets." D. B. Wyndham Lewis, the well known satirist might have chosen this for a title of the entertaining anthology which he has has compiled with Charles Lee, and which is just published here by Dent. The anthology which appears under the title, "The Stuffed Owl," opens with selections from Cowley, and concludes with Tennyson. Mr. Lewis gives specimens of Wordsworth, of Coleridge, and Southey, of Mrs. Hemans, and of half a hundred others, all at their worst.

He is careful to explain that bad verse has its canons, like good verse. "There is bad Bad Verse, and good Bad Verse. It has been the constant preoccupation of the compilers to inclue in this book chiefly good bad verse," and the authors claim credit for their production that it is sunny and optimistic, reveals the follies of our predecessors, and proves by implication what splendid fellows we are now.

The introductory notes to the poets under review are not the least entertaining feature of the book. "The nobly sonorous Muse of Lord Tennuson, when called upon officially to celebrate such a public event as the International Exhibition, the opening of a new railway, or the illness of an aunt by marriage once removed of the Royal Family, uttered no complaint, but stoically tucked up her sleeves and got on with the job. She occassionally gave expression of her own accord to another deep-rooted British trait. She would be a terrible snob." In proof whereof is quoted Tennyson's lines on the Lord of Burleigh, "which awake echoes of Putney rather than of Parnassus."

Of Edgar Allen Poe the authors say: "The instrument which could evoke such dooms was perfectly capable of producing notes from its upper register like the music of a tin whistle, the prattling of a Haynes Bayly, or the bleating of a Wordsworth.

The book "carries on" all through in the same lively strain. Some of the most entrancing verses appear as "Hors-D'Oeuvres."

From a hymnodist unknown:

"Earth from afar has heard Thy fame,
"And worms have learned to lisp Thy name."

From a housemaid poet:

"Oh Moon, when I gaze on thy beautiful face,
"Careering along thro' the boundaries of space,
"The thought has often come into my mind,
"If I ever shall see thy glorious behind."

SHEER SILK HOSE BEING FAVORED

Junior Girls Go in for Repetition of Mothers' Frocks.

TWEED COATS TO FORE

(By Jeanette)

Gossamer sheer stockings are much liked, many of them adorned with clocks. Dyed hose to match the color of the ensemble are the correct note. For evening wear, only the lightest pastel tints are permissible. In daytime outfits, often the colors of the trimmings are repeated in the shoes worn and where prints are worn, the hose are dyed to match the predominating shade. Deep suntan shades in stockings accompany the beige and dark brown footwear.

Junior girls are going in for a repetition of the frocks of their mothers and sisters. So their frocks have higher waistlines and flared skirts. The jacket dress, made with an abbreviated jacket, pleated skirt and blouse of white with frilled collar, is much in favor. Their dresses have the little cap sleeves and capes of the older types, and their little hats are copies of the off the face models worn by their seniors.

They are going in for prints also, while blue, green, beige, red and yellow tones are used in solid colors for their miniature frocks.

Coats of tweed are much favored for the younger set, and dresses in voiles, printed dimity, striped batiste, handkerchief linen and striped and figured silks.

Variations of the spring modes, in their bright new colors and picturesque modes, may be seen in the Peterborough stores, which are stocked with the various goods demanded by Miladi in her desire to be up to the minute in costuming and appointments.

If you analyzed whole bottled milk just as it came from the cow, you would find it contained water, protein, fat and other solids. St. Charles Milk is the very same cow's milk, except that most of the water has been removed. When milk is evaporated in this way it keeps perfectly in a sealed tin. Also it is creamier, doubly-rich, hence, better for every milk use.

TEMPTING GRIDDLE CAKES

1 cup Borden's St. Charles Milk; 1 cup water; 2 tblspns. melted butter; 2 tblspns. sugar; 1 egg, well beaten; 1½ cups white flour; 1 tspn. salt; 4 tspns. baking powder. Combine the milk and water, add the shortening, sugar, and the egg, and beat in the dry ingredients which have been sifted together. Beat thoroughly and try as usual on a slightly oiled griddle, or on an unoiled aluminum or soapstone griddle. If very thin cakes are desired, add two more tblspns. of St. Charles Milk and water.

DELICIOUS WHITE SAUCE RECIPE

¾ cup Borden's St. Charles Milk; ¾ cup water; 1½ tblspns. butter; 1½ tblspns. flour; ⅛ scant half tspn. salt; high seasoning of pepper or paprika.

Melt the butter in a small saucepan, stir in the pepper and salt mixed with the flour and stir until well blended, away from the heat. Then gradually stir in the milk and water mixed, preferably using a wire whisk, and taking care that all of the liquid is thickened before a further amount is added. Let boil a moment or two, then add the vegetable and let stand over hot water for ten minutes to become thoroughly heated. Serve with asparagus, string beans, peas, brussels sprouts or potatoes.

STEAMED SALMON WITH WHITE SAUCE

Wipe off the salmon with a damp cloth; lay it on a well-oiled plate, dust lightly with salt and pepper, and steam for thirty minutes. Then carefully remove the skin, transfer the fish to the center of a medium-sized platter, surround with white sauce and garnish with the egg cut in sixths, and the parsley.

C. P. R. PRESIDENT SEES NO CAUSE FOR PESSIMISM

Nothing Has Happened That Would Indicate Uncertainty in Future.

E. W. BEATTY'S ADDRESS.

At Annual Meeting of Good Roads Association in Toronto.

TORONTO, Mar. 13.—Mr. E. W. Beatty, addressing the Good Roads Association banquet, held recently, took occasion to point out the value of good roads in the encouragement of tourist traffic which, he said, on a conservative estimate, left annually in Canada of from 250 to 300 million dollars. It should be remembered that a man who lived in the United States and owned a motor and who possessed the time and money for a vacation had the whole of North America to choose from. The extension of good roads in his own country had been notable and he would go where he knew ease, speed and comfort in travel were open to him and his family; therefore, Canadian progress towards more hard surfaced mileage in highways should be definite and speedy. Mr. Beatty congratulated the good roads association on the good work it had done, and more particularly on its progression in the education of the public against hazardous and reckless driving which in the past had resulted in many crossing accidents.

The railways of Canada, he said, could point with some satisfaction to their own achievement in the matter of reduction of fatalities. The company with which he was associated, considered it not the least of its accomplishments that in a few years it had reduced fatal injuries to passengers carried from one in 500,000 to one in 3,400,000. While this had been achieved by the education of employees, the adoption of safety first principles, a striving for efficiency and the provision of better facilities and equipment, there was still a serious list of avoidable tragedies where motors and trains came into collision. With the assistance of legislatures the motor leagues and similar organizations, the idea was permeating that reckless chances should not be taken. It was a slow process because every year added hundreds and thousands of new drivers who had to learn the lesson of what was their duty to themselves and to other ons the highway.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

Mr. Beatty then dealt with the economic situation in Canada. "As you know, he said, "the railways reflect in a very accurate way the business situation of the country. Analysis of their carryings shows in what businesses there is activity and where there is trade depression. Their earnings in the aggregate only indicate the total business of the country. These earnings during the latter part of 1929 dropped and the downward trend has continued during 1930. We are, however, in the position of being able to put our finger accurately on the cause of these decreases they being due to the unusual conditions surrounding the marketing of our wheat.

A private corporation, with credit to protect, must have regard to economy in its operations when business is slack. If it fails to follow the sound business principle that expenses must be in proportion to earnings, it fails in efficiency and invites troubles. The capital expenditures of approximately fifty million dollars recently announced by the directors of the Canadian Pacific represents a policy based upon two considerations: first, their faith in the country and, second, their conviction that the expenditure is wise and will improve the position of the property and increase its earning power—not increase it perhaps this year, but in subsequent years when the effect of the expenditure for extensions, betterments and improvements is felt. While, naturally, we may have the greatest confidence in our own judgment in respect of these expenditures, we still must keep before us the fact that we are not justified in spending in the conduct of our operations, money which we do not earn, that the balance must be maintained between revenues and disbursements if we are to maintain our net earnings and protect our credit.

There is nothing in the present situation which should cause discouragement. New conditions are apt to be temporarily disquieting, but nothing that has transpired, or is at present happening, should cause apprehension, as the future of this country is not menaced nor is there anything sinister in the present economic or financial situation. It would be a very unthinking optimist who could expect that there should be absolute uniformity in human or national affairs. Our satisfaction rests in the fact that the country's progress has been steadily forward and that nothing has happened which can give rise even to the suspicion that its future progress is uncertain.

HOPE TO UNCOVER FRANKLIN'S FATE

Department of Interior Secures Valuable Papers and Maps.

LOST OVER 75 YEARS

OTTAWA, Ont., Mar. 13. (By the Canadian Press)—For over three-quarters of a century the fate of Sir John Franklin, and of the 128 officers and men of his expedition, has been wrapped in mystery. Events of the past few months have given rise to the hope that additional light may be shed upon the details of that heroic adventure, by the aid of documents and sketches which Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, has acquired for the use of the Department after an investigation by O. S. Finnie, Director of the North West Territories and Yukon Branch.

Sir John Franklin's expedition sailed into the Arctic in 1845 in the two ships, Erebus and Terror. The ships were seen by a whaler near the entrance to Lancaster sound on July 26 in that year and from that time neither the ships nor any members of their crews were seen again by white men. In 1854 Dr. John Rae, an officer of the Hudson's Bay Company, found a band of Eskimos who said they had seen white men travelling southward along the shore of King William Island and that these men had all died. In 1859 Captain Leopold M'Clintock found in a cairn at Victory point, near the northwest angle of King William Island, a printed Admiralty form on the margin of which was written, over the signatures of Captains Crozier and Fitzjames, the commanders of the two ships, a few terse but very expressive sentences. These conveyed the information that Sir John Franklin had died on June 11, 1847, that eight other officers and 15 men had died, that the ships had been abandoned, and that the remainder of the expedition, 105 persons in all, would start the following morning (April 26, 1848) for Back river on the mainland. Although many other expeditions have sought for Franklin this is the only record that has been found of the ill-fated party.

It has always been held by authorities on exploration that important records of the expedition must have been deposited by the survivors before the effort to reach civilization by way of Back river was begun, and that the most proable place was in the grave of the leader. The Department of the Interior would not at this late date, be justified in equipping and sending out an expedition to search for the grave of Sir John Franklin but with the development of Canada's northland, departmental officers concerned with the care of the native population, are continually patrolling through that portion of the Arctic and it would be an inexpensive matter for them to devote a little time to searching for records which would be of the greatest value to Canada and to the Empire. Therefore, when a short time ago, Hon. Charles Stewart was appraised that documents were in existence which purported to give the location of Franklin's grave, he directed that the matter be carefully investigated, and as a result the papers and maps have been purchased for the Department.

The papers consist of a lengthy manuscript accompanied by maps prepared, many years ago, from the statements of a member of the expedition headed by the United States explorer, Charles F. Hall. The expedition spent the period from 1864 to 1869 in the north engaged in the search for Franklin. According to the statement Hall's expedition broke up in disorder owing to internal troubles and on that account this valuable information was lost to the head of the expedition.

WEDDING SCENES OFTEN AMUSING

Legal Rights of Minister Left for Attorney-General's Department to Decide.

LAST MINUTE DECISION

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 13. (By the Canadian Press)—"Let him speak now, or forever hold his peace!" The officiating minister generally waits perfunctorily for an answer to his request, but rarely indeed, in the experience of a local minister has it been answered. This matter of objections raised to marriages was brought up by Rev. D. T. McClintock at a meeting of the Toronto West Presbytery of the United Church. An objection had been made by a man to a certain marriage and the minister had dismissed the objection as not being valid, whereupon the man had threatened to interfere at the wedding. As a result of this the presbytery passed unanimously a motion asking the secretary to write to the Attorney-Generals department asking for a definite ruling on the legal rights of a minister in connection with a marriage ceremony.

Rev. Hiram Hull in an interview on the subject, remarked that a case might arise where parties, one of whom was under age, had secured a marriage license and at the wedding the mother of the girl might produce a birth certificate proving that she was under age. "I have refused to marry people, on occasion", said Mr. Hull.

A Vancouver writer tells of some "experiences" collected from parsons on the subject of queer behavior at weddings. On one case the bridegroom astonished the congregation by exclaiming at every answer he gave to the minister, "Amen, Praise the Lord. I will."

At a country wedding the banquet was held at a farmhouse, five miles from the church. The best man had been learning speeches from a book on social etiquette, and tried to recite from this book. He embarked upon the speech—and got stuck in the middle. He simply could not get the next word. Amid dead silence he crossed the room, looked up the speech again in the book of etiquette ,returned to his place, and sailed ahead from the very word which he had eluded.

A deaf man caused an awkward situation for one preacher till he discovered that the man had his responses typed out already. When the time came he read them out in good order—but he could not have had the slightest knowledge of what he was responding to.

A bride-elect changed her mind just before the last three questions were asked at her wedding at Prince George. To the writer she remarked afterwards about the situation.

"Just as the judge came to the final questions, I realized the seriousness of marrying a man nearly 30 years older than myself. Besides, I had only met him three times and did not know him well enough to marry him. When the judge said, "Do you promise to love, honor and cherish'? I cried out, "I won't! I won't!' I then turned and ran out of the building with all the crowd after me. I jumped into a taxicab and went home."

AGE IMPROVES DOUGLAS FIR

200 TESTS TAKEN

EUGENE, Oregon, March 13.—Douglas fir timbers gain in strength after 55 years of service, according to E.H. McAlister, Professor of Mechanics at the University of Oregon.

Professor McAlister has just completed an investigation of the timbers taken from the Hayden Bridge, a structure erected near Eugene in 1874, and has found them to be in an excellent state of preservation. The Hayden Bridge was of the old covered type, and it is the professor's conclusion that Douglas fir can be preserved in sound structural condition for at least half a century by the simple expedient of keeping it covered from the weather and providing a free circulation of air.

More than 200 tests on machines which exert from 30,000 to 200,000 pounds pressure were made on the old timbers. For basis of comparison, similar tests were made on both green and seasoned pieces of the same size. The average strength was found to be in excess of the average strength of new timber in green condition, while in most cases it was well above the average for unused timber that had been air-dried for two or three years.

Professor McAlister's report stated that the tests proved conclusively that age does not exaggerate the influence of knots or other defects in the wood, and that tests on small clear pieces proved that the quality of the wood fibre does not deteriorate with age.

One of the surprise features of the experiments was the high strength in compression parallel to the grain. This was found to be slightly more than double the corresponding strength of the new air-dried timber, and about 2.4 times that of new green timber. Out of twelve old beams tested not one failed first in compression and only five of the 54 small beams broke after sustaining very high stress.

In the tests of other new bridge stringers made by the United States Forest Service, approximately three-fourths of the whole number failed in compression.

"If soap irritates your skin you are using the wrong kind"

says EMILE MASSÉ

whose beauty shop, in Paris, is known throughout the continent

"Every complexion needs soap and water. But some soaps are harmful. They injure the texture of the skin. They contain too much free alkali . . . caustic soda . . . similar irritants. That is why I advise all my clients: 'Never use any soap except Palmolive.'"

E. Massé
16 Rue Daunou, Paris

Here is the celebrated Massé, himself, superintending a facial treatment given by one of the assistants in his salon.

Palmolive is pure. It is made of palm and olive oils, known for generations as nature's greatest beautifiers. Since the days of the lovely Cleopatra, nothing has ever supplanted these beauty oils.

"THE beauty specialist cannot work on an irritated skin," says Emile Massé, of Paris. "Every woman should aid her beauty expert by using Palmolive. Its vegetable oil content is safe, soothing, non-irritating." Monsieur Massé, famous Parisian beauty specialist, explains—in these words—why 19,800 of his celebrated colleagues recommend Palmolive Soap. They want their clients to use a soap that definitely helps the expert in keeping complexions lovely. And Palmolive is their universal choice.

Why the skin needs soap and water

The pores must be thoroughly yet gently cleansed twice every day, to keep the skin from looking drawn, muddy, coarse, uncared for.

Palm and olive oils, as combined in Palmolive Soap, provide a penetrating, healing cleanliness that is the very foundation of facial beauty. Since the days of Cleopatra, these two famous cosmetic oils have been used as beautifiers. Nothing has ever supplanted them. "This soap," says Massé, "combines deep cleansing with the well-known cosmetic effects of palm and olive oils."

Palmolive's color is the natural color of olive and palm oils. The natural odor of these oils makes unnecessary the addition of heavy perfumes. It contains no other fats . . . just nature's own cosmetic oils.

Consult your beauty expert

Visit your beauty expert regularly, to be well groomed in every beauty detail. And cooperate with your expert by using Palmolive Soap daily in this simple treatment advocated by more than 19,800 famous beauticians:

Massage a smooth lather of Palmolive gently into the skin for about 2 minutes. Then rinse it off with warm water, graduating to cold. That's all. But be sure you do it regularly night and morning — as Monsieur Massé and the other famous experts advise.

P. S.—And use Palmolive for the bath, too. It costs no more than ordinary soaps, you know.

19,813 of the world's best known experts specify Palmolive for all home facial treatments!

ENSEMBLE IDEA IS BIG FEATURE IN MEN'S CLOTHES

Whole Thought is to Combine Proper Styles With Right Colors.

STRIPES IN SHIRTS

Snap Brim Pearl Grey Hats Will Be Big Favorite This Spring.

Displays in the windows of the Peterborough stores carrying men's wear indicate that the ensemble idea in men's haberdashery will be pushed in this city during the spring and summer.

About two and a half years ago the ensemble idea in men's wear was inaugurated by leading manufacturers and retailers in most sections of the country. Today that idea has developed with amazing rapidity.

With the opening of the spring season this thought of combining the proper styles with the right color tones will be pushed stronger than ever. It is believed that this idea has taken a permanent hold on the public—at least it is emphatically believed in the tailor dress of the average man.

There is a certain conviction among manufacturers as well as retailers that shirts with light grounds will be favored extensively this spring. This, of course, will replace the medium and dark effects which prevailed for the last year or more.

The trend toward lighter grounds was noted last fall. This was found true in the sale of demi-toned suits, those being offered in the sales and [illegible] of the darker hues [illegible] were sold [illegible] during the regular season. [illegible] the younger business also showed a leaning toward lighter colors during the winter.

Prominent shirt concerns have been [illegible] their efforts in the production of striped patterns. Those features in the spring line are vertical, [illegible] demi-blooms, generally speaking, showing the cross-stripe [illegible].

[illegible] stripes run from hairlines to [illegible] of an inch, the latter being [illegible] popular in England. These are [illegible] from a quarter of an inch to [illegible] to two inches apart. Colors [illegible] are dominant are red, green, [illegible] and tan.

Figures in Neckwear

With the striped shirts as the vogue neckwear naturally will show figures. This is usually the trend. When stripes are used in neckwear, then figured effects are to be found in shirts.

Striped ties, of course, will get their best business during the early days of the spring season, but with the introduction of warmer weather figured effects will be in demand and as the summer approaches the old fashioned polka dot will come into its own.

Then there is the question of what the Peterborough man will wear in the way of hats this spring and summer.

In the race for popularity it appears as if the snap brim pearl gray hat will register with the majority of men this spring.

Of course, there will be many other shades and shapes, but these will be in the minority. The welt edge hat will have its strong following, while another class of dressers will regard the Homburg as one of the best styles.

It is said by a leading maker that at least sixty per cent of the sales will be for the snap brim model. This hat has a three dimension brim, short in front, wider at the cides and still a bit wider at the back.

In this hat you will note that the brim curls sharply at the rear and holds the contour of the hat when snapped down in front.

Welt Edge Hat

To insure a maximum of service the welt edge hat is offered with a triple row of stitching on its welted brim. In the Homburg the crown is tapered and the brim is finished with a very narrow binding. Another innovation is a rather high crown and narrow curled edge.

In other colors besides gray tan, which once had quite a play, will take a back seat. Browns will be a bit stronger, however, but these will have a reddish cast. Buff and mustard tints will be in lesser demand.

According to clothing manufacturers the blue-gray tones promise to forge in the front. To get the ensemble idea across a hat color, which does not match these powder blues, but harmonize well with them, has been introduced.

The brim which does not change its contour, especially in snap brim models, has long been sought by the average man and he will get it this season. In other words the new snap will stay put when once worn. This is due to the designing of the shape which has become permanent.

STYLES CHANGE FOR YOUNG MEN

Square Shoulders and Slim Waist Highlights for This Spring.

NARROWER TROUSERS

If Mr. Man isn't of the athletic type in physique clothes must be provided for him this spring and summer to give him the athletic appearance, it has been learned by Peterborough clothiers in laying in their 1930 stocks to cater to the whims of the local well-dressed young man. This was the decree laid down by the International Association of Clothing Designers at a meeting held in Chicago recently.

Accordingly, in choosing their lines of men's suits, Peterborough clothiers have looked for shoulders in their suits of broad, square appearance and slim waist and hip lines. They are also taking the advice of the Designers who says that the athletic suggestion is enhanced by a shortening of the coat which tends to promote an appearance of breadth. From the breadth of the shoulders there will be a gradual tapering of the silhouette, ending at the shoe, which means that there will be a gradual decrease in the sizes of the bottom of the trousers, the Designers claimed.

The report of the Designers' findings indicates that the two-button single-breasted peak will find increasing favor.

"In all probability the leader in the style parade for spring and summer of this year will be the two button, single-breasted model, featuring the peak lapels. Closely following will be the same model with the notch lapel.

"In sports clothes the designers have had almost a free hand. In fact the variety will range all the way from the plan loose type to the plaited or belted type. If plaited the belt will be stitched down, whereas if the back is plain the belt should be loose.

"In topcoats the single-breasted, three-button model promises to have the greatest call. The shoulders will be slightly squared with the open notch lapel and straight easy lines in the back.

"The raglan topcoat, either plain or belted is suggested for motor wear. This style presents a maximum of freedom and also an opportunity to use rough textures in shades that do not soil easily.

"As for color, grays will come to the front stronger than ever in suit models. This shade also has been a popular spring color due to the fact that it offers a most pleasant change from the sombre tones worn during the fall and winter season."

BOYS' SUITS ARE IN LIGHT SHADES

Garments Offered in Two or Three-Button Models—Single-Breast Style Favored.

TWEEDS HEAD PRICE LIST

In boys' suits Peterborough mothers are looking for fabrics that will stand the gaff of wear and hold their shapes. Local merchants say that they have stocked their stores this spring with just this kind of suits. Suits for real boys to enjoy themselves in and yet remain presentable.

Imported tweeds are the answer. If you do not care to pay the top price that such material will demand you will get the same effect in the Canadian imitations of these sturdy fabrics. Most of these suits are offered in two or three-button models, with the former leading the van.

Most of the color tones will run in the lighter shades, with grays and tan in the foreground. There will also be shown some of the darker colors, with browns predominating, copying closely the shade of men's suits.

The double-breasted model will not be as strong, but it will still prove a suit in much demand.

Other fabrics, besides tweed, being shown are worsteds, cheviots and cassimeres in subdued patterns or in mixtures.

Extra Trousers.

In most instances—for the sake of economy — mothers will buy their youngster two-trouser suits. Some of these are offered with two pairs of knickers or one pair of knickers and one of long trousers. Topcoats for the older boys will show the three-button, box back effects. These are shown in a large variety of fabrics, with tweeds being featured.

And when days are warm and no outer coat is needed you will find the little fellows on the streets, the playgrounds and everywhere attired in wash suits. For them the merchants offer numerous novelties in both the short sleeves and sleeveless suits with the low neck. The latter garment will be in the biggest demand.

BROWN SHOES THIS SPRING

Shades of Brown in Use This Season More Pleasing to Eye.

CUSTOM LAST STAYS

Men, if you want to be properly in style this Spring you must have brown shoes. Sixty per cent. or more shoes of this popular color are being shown in the larger stores. The national shoe style committee reported in January that the custom last and browns would be the feature for Spring.

But the browns presented this spring possess greater appeal than ever. In other years, colored footwear ranged from light orange or even lemon to the deep reddish brown used with cordovan leather. To-day the shades of brown are more pleasing and do not range so extensively. Furthermore, the present browns are easily cleaned and retain their lustre for a greater length of time.

Custom Last Is It.

The custom last, first brought to this country from England has been universally adopted. The Canadian makers have taken kindly to this last and so has the public. Through its use the average man gets the style he desires, at the same time also is given the coveted comfort, particularly from new shoes.

The jazz models are gone. Some toes are a bit more blunt than the present custom last, built for the man who considers foot comfort the first consideration.

Blacks, Also.

Black shoes, of course, will get their proper reception, being worn alternately with the brown footwear. The latter is expected for day wear and the former for night service.

Summer footwear is given its greatest breadth of designing treatment. The various color combinations which have been increasing from season to season, are presented in greater numbers than ever. Suede and calfskin combinations are shown in a variety of color tones. The suedes are shown in various shades of grays and tan, with the other leather trimmings to match.

For formal wear the lightweight Oxford or pump will continue in vogue. These are shown with plain toes in either medium or narrow lasts.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Y. P. L. at Campbellford Holds Regular Meeting.

MUSICAL NUMBERS

CAMPBELLFORD, March 13.—(Examiner Staff Correspondent).—A social evening was the feature of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Y.P.L. regular meeting held in the church hall Tuesday night with the president, Thomas Campbell in the chair.

The devotional exercises opened with a Psalm, a prayer by Rev. Dr. W. J. Mark and the scripture reading. The business session followed, with the roll call and reading of the minutes of the last meeting.

The topic was given by W. A. Newcort, who in a very able manner discoursed on the subject "Why and how win others to Christ", and outlined the reason for bringing our fellowmen to a state of Grace and the different methods of approach. The singing of a hymn concluded this portion of the program.

The musical entertainment commenced with a piano solo "Edelweiss Glide", and was very ably rendered by Grace Labrash. She replied to the applauds of the audience with the composition "Sweet Memories." A vocal duet by Messrs. J. W. Russell and John Patrick, "Life's Dream Is O'er" was well received W. A. Newcourt at the piano. The Misses Grace and Leah Blue rendered a guitar duet "On the Beach at Waikiki," which brought a hearty encore to which they responded with "Carolina Moon." "Moonbeams on the Lake" and "Dance of the Golden Rods" were the two piano solos presented by Master Wallace Rutherford, in the rendition of which he showed his ability as a coming pianist.

Refreshments were served by the social committee after which the National Anthem brought the evening to a close.

The meeting on March 17 will be under the direction of the Literary Committee and will be featured by a topic on "Our Lord's Teaching of Righteousness."

PLEATED SKIRTS SPORT CLOTHES

Paris Reports Add Confirmation to Current Styles.

FORMAL DRESSES LONG

NEW YORK, Mar. 13. (U.P.)—The usual agitation over the Paris openings is in the air. Cables have been humming with confirmation of skirt lengths, waistlines and all the other important details which seemed in danger of change. Suits were established as short, usually about 15 inches above ground, and jackets almost any length and waistlines restored to normal.

Evening and formal afternoon dresses were established as long and of conflicting silhouettes, including the Grecian, Directoire, Empire and princess, not to mention the bouffant-normal silhouette.

Sports clothes were declared indispensable and not materially different from last season, the pendulum swinging evenly between flared and pleated skirts. Sleeves were emphatically long or short, which seems to provide for all sleeve complexes. Brief sleeves vanished almost before they began being somewhat new, naturally came in for italics. Everything from wool to cotton appears in sports collections. Striped shirting materials, striped silks, small checks, pin dots and plaids are included. Prints quite naturally appear and as usual with plain fabrics or in twin designs. Prints for evening are dashing those for daywear prim.

Blue is given as the outstanding color range and this has added interest because of its current popularity not alone at Palm Beach but elsewhere.

Uncommon Sense
By John Blake

POSTPONE YOUR OLD AGE.

Perhaps you can't avoid old age, but you can at least postpone it.

Last week I visited a great hotel where a half dozen railroad executives and other big business men were holding a sort of informal conference.

I was surprised to learn from the secretary of one of them (his boss being one of the most widely known men in America) that the average age of the big magnates was over seventy.

I had seen them about the hotel and on the golf course. I had met some of them in the days when I was a reporter. That was fifteen or more years ago. None of them looked much older the other day than they did when I first saw them.

The reasons, I think, for this successful postponement of old age are two.

First they are deeply interested in their jobs, and, though they work hard at them they like the work.

Nothing you like is drudgery.

Second they have learned to take care of themselves. They eat moderately, drink moderately, if at all, spend much time in recreation such as playing golf, and keep out in the open air as much as possible.

A man with a first-class executive mind can work very rapidly when he does work.

His organizing ability enable him to put all details on the shoulders of others, which allows him to take time off to travel and hunt or fish, or follow any outdoor sport he may happen to be interested in.

I am sure that, more and more, old age is being postponed. The time may come when people will be husky and hearty till ninety or a hundred—perhaps even longer.

One thing is certain, however, about these men. They may have worked hard in their youth, but they took care of themselves.

They got all the sleep they needed, kept their bodies in good condition and neither ate nor drank too much.

Otherwise they would now be under the ground, and others would be in their places.

Old age can be and is being postponed. But the best time to start on the postponement is in the twenties or before, even though much can be done toward it after forty.

Inasmuch as reaching the "last stage of all" is highly unpleasant, it is well worth while to defer extreme old age as far as possible.

Parisian Foibles

The afternoon dress in black is always popular. In this model Mademoiselle Madeleine relieves the solid black with a beige girdle tied around the hips.

BLACK GAINS FAVOR FOR SPORTS WEAR.

Black becomes increasingly popular for sports and morning wear, but it must escape banality by some device, such as the cleverly designed scarf collar of this model, which as you see is cut in one piece with the front of the blouse. Black jersey is used for this costume, with inset pieces of beige in the lower part of the skirt. The basque suggestion, which is realized by carrying triangular pieces below the belt, is very smart just now.

EVEN HEMLINES FORMAL DRESS

PEPLUM FLOUNCES

NEW YORK, Mar. 13. (U.P.)—Recreating the atmosphere of elegance in costume such as has not been seen since before the war is the achievement credited to Paris couturiers by important fashion authorities returning from the French openings. Enthusiasm of an electric quality is reflected in their reports of finely elaborated dresses, suits and coats, described as bringing to flower the new trends which were merely in their budding stage as launched in August. Invariably, the word "beautiful" came into discussions, and the term is given added significance when Parisiennes, whose first desire is to look smart, rather than pretty, are described in costumes embellished with lingerie details, designed solely to flatter.

Practical details of these costumes are concerned with skirt lengths diversified and presenting four major divisions. Comment stresses evening dresses with even hemlines, ankle length, and omitting the trains advanced to some extent in the fall showings. Informal day time clothes are described as four or five inches below the knee, also even as to hemline. Sports dresses are still "short". Elaborated afternoon dresses offer a length several inches below that of the more practical daytime costumes, regarded as an influence of American origin, to give a 'normal' aspect to the exaggerated skirts which have been seen here during the past few months.

These costumes are considered essentially "dressmaker" fashions, requiring individual fitting, individual adaptation of design and the type of workmanship which, while it may not be visible, is absolutely needed to give the proper finish. To gain this end, capelets, boleros, circular tiers, peplum flounces and peats are all enlisted, in costumes with fitted bodies and full skirts of youthful, modern feeling.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

BAD TEETH CAUSING RHEUMATISM NOT A NEW DISCOVERY.

A patient was having so much trouble with his knee that he could hardly walk any distance. He was advised by his physician to have an X-ray film made of his teeth.

He was advised to have them both removed.

Immediately after they were extracted both of his shoulders began to ache, he lost his appetite, and his tongue became thickly coated. He felt so miserable that he returned to his doctor and said 'Well you've started something now; I feel awful.

The doctor leaned back in his chair and said 'Don't think me hard-hearted, but I am greatly pleased to see you in this condition, because it shows that we are on the right track. The teeth were in bad shape, as the condition of the roots and the odor therefrom showed. When they were extracted the tissue surrounding them was disturbed and a great deal of the poison got immediately into the blood, and that poison is what is affecting your shoulders, appetite and tongue. When that gets out of your system, as it will in the days, weeks, or months to come, you will feel your old self again.'

The patient was advised to use purgatives and take plenty of exercise.

As mentioned before, when bad teeth are removed it is like closing down a factory. No more goods (poisons) are manufactured, but there is considerable of the goods on the shelves that take some time to be removed from the system—from the blood, the glands, intestines and so forth.

Now this idea of bad teeth causing rheumatism and other pains only seems to date back twenty years, and yet Dr. Benjamin Rush, over one hundred years ago reported a case of 'rheumatism' of the hip joint following the extraction of infected teeth. His statement that decayed teeth are often the unsuspected cause of disease fell on deaf ears.

Dr. Geo. S. Young tells us that the following ailments have been definitely traced to infected teeth; inflammation of the joints, nerves, lining of the heart, of kidneys, and eyes; anaemia, distrirbances of the stomach, nervous exhaustion or chronic fatigue.

And there ware other ailments that likely owe their existence to bad teeth.

Don't take a chance. The X-ray tells the story. Get rid of your bad teeth before trouble starts.

RECORD VOYAGE OF IDA CLARK

160 MILES DAILY

HALIFAX, N.S., March 13.—Recalling a record voyage made by the Halifax-owned sealing schooner Ida M. Clark from Monte Video to Halifax in 1912, Captain Edgar F. Robbins, Master Mariner of Berwick, N.S., writes as follows:

"We left Monte Video on the afternoon of April 27th. From noon on May 11th, 10 days, the distance sailed was 1,957 miles, at an average of 196 miles per day.

"On May 15th we crossed the equator in long 37 west. From noon of the 16th until noon of the 25th, nine consecutive days, we sailed 2,031 miles at an average of 226 miles per day.

"We arrived at Halifax on the evening of June 2nd, 36 days from port to port, having crossed three calm belts and through the doldrums, and were 18 days from the equator to Halifax. The total distance by the shortest steamer route is 5,773 miles. Our daily average was 160.3 miles and our hourly average was 6 2-3 miles.

"This pasage is recorded in Frederick William Wallace's book, 'In the Wake of the Wind Ships' and is a hard one to beat."

The schooner William Aymer on a voyage made in 1888 from St. Jean, Antigua, towards St. Stephen, N.B., covered a distance of approximately 1,475 miles in 7 3-4 days, at an average of 190 miles per day.

BLOUSE ESPECIALLY OF NET COMES IN FOR PRAISE

NEW YORK, Mar. (U.P.)—Soft cotton blouses are allies to the slim silhouette and among them net is especially mentioned. Models, equally smart as tuck-ins or short overblouses are developed in fine ecru net edged with Alencon lace.

Net blouses may be worn under the most snugly fitting suit without marring the tailored effect; they are adequate in case the wearer wishes to remove her jackets; they are comfortable in warm climates, and their neutral coloring and simple styling make them wearable with almost any type of suit. They are dressy but not too dressy, or tailored without being severely so. In fact, their versatility as well as their possibilities are almost unlimited in a season when the suit occupies such an important position in the fashion scheme and when blouses are regarded with more and more favor.

Generous frilled collars and jabots or simple panel fronts of lace are equally well liked for these blouses which sponsor full cap sleeves, long plain sleeves, or kimono sleeves which barely cover the top of the shoulder.

One of the interests of the season centers about the appropriate blouse for the dozen or so varieties of tailleur with us this spring. Some blouses are exceedingly tailored, and are completed by mannish cravates. Others are as frivolous as bows and jabots of lace and other things can make them. The point to remember is, that one must necessarily stretch ones clothes budget to include an assortment in white and color.

Rev. R. C. Tate Addresses Meeting of Campbellford United Church Y.P.L.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 13.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence).—St. John's United church held its regular meeting on Monday evening in the hall with a large attendance present.

The meeting opened with prayer and the singing of two hymns after which followed the business session. In the place of Miss Nellie Haig, who has left for Toronto, Miss Florence Bibby was appointed convenor of the social committee.

The feature of the evening was a series of lantern slides on "Newfoundland", the Rev. R. C. Tate explaining the pictures as they were thrown on the screen. This proved a very interesting subject and held the attention of audience.

Other numbers on the program were a song by Miss Elsie Ranner and a reading by Mr. McGuire.

An invitation was extended to the Petherick Corners' League to unite with St. John's League on March 24.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Mrs. J. H. Dudgeon was hostess last evening at the parsonage when a very successful social evening was enjoyed by members and visitors of her class, The King's Own, of St. James' Sunday School to the number of twenty-five. A short session of business preceded the evening's entertainment, which consisted of music contests, and charades, under the direction of Mrs. Alvin Davis, the capable class president. The object of the gathering was to establish a closer acquaintanceship among the class members, as well as to outline a program of financial endeavor. During the evening a very pleasing duet, "Remember," was sung by Misses Dorothy Dudgeon and Jennie Smart. Delicious refreshments were served by the social committee, after which a sincere vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Dudgeon for lending her home for the occasion.

Mrs. A. D. McLeish of 171 Lock street was hostess on Tuesday afternoon at a very pleasant and successful St. Patrick tea held at her home under the auspices of the South end group of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. The decorations were appropriate to the season and quite original in effect. The table was lovely in a color scheme of pink and green. From an overhead electrolier four green streamers were attached to the four corners of the table, ending in a dainty figure representing a gay Irish coleen with green petticoats and hats. The table, with its silver service and cutwork embroideries, was centred by a basket of pink tulips and arranged with four green candles in silver holders, and cutout green shamrocks. At a side table, with Madeira linens, green baskets held home-made candies and home-made cooking was sold. In the living room, arranged with green plants and pink tulips, the guests were received by Mrs. McLeish and Mrs. H. Morgan. They were ushered into the tea room by Mrs. A. J. McLeish, while decorations were in charge of Mrs. J. Pirie. Tea was poured by Mrs. J. H. Savigny and Mrs. R. Waldie, assisted by Mesdames Wilson, Crowe, Mackness, Howden. Mrs. F. Finnie and Mrs. Jas. Milby were at the candy table and Mrs. J. Segar acted as secretary. A very enjoyable musical program included vocal solos by Mrs. Smith, piano selections by Miss Bonar and Mary Pirie and readings by Muriel Byers and Mabel Benor.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

WE HAVEN'T heard quite as much lately about women or I should say 'people' dieting, (for I know men are guilty of it just as much as women!)

* * * * * * *

The eighteen-day diet craze has died down. One doesn't hear as much talk at teas, etc., about how many pounds they have lost in the past month or week as the case may be.

* * * * * * *

Once we knew of women who did without sugar in order that they might reduce, but Dr. Donald A. Laird, Director of the Colgate University Psychological Laboratory, says that sugar is a great "pick-me-up".

* * * * * * *

It counteracts mental and physical fatigue and has been tested out on athletes! But what is more important to us—he stated that it can even be used by women as energy builder without disturbing fat tissues!!

* * * * * * *

Laird's recommendation in order to refresh the tired business man without sending him out of town for a rest is when asked at tea, "How many lumps please?" shall reply: "Three instead of the usual two I'm pretty tired today!"

* * * * * * *

The secret of recovering mental poise and physical energy according to Dr. Laird's experiments is to eat more sugar.

* * * * * * *

Of course, he doesn't mean that we should carry a lump or two in our pockets but that more sugar be taken in our tea or coffee.

* * * * * * *

Any of you who are sport fans will know of Knute Rockne, the Notre Dame football coach. We read that he feeds sugar to his team before an important game!

* * * * * * *

For months now Dr. Laird has been working on Colgate students. He takes 12 healthy undergraduates and gives them each a glass of water. Six of the glasses have sugar dissolved in the water. The students then go through a series of tests.

* * * * * * *

They stand with their knees together and their arms outstretched and the sway of their bodies is measured on a machine called an ataxigraph. Then they are made to climb three flights of stairs and back again to see how the fatigue affected them.

* * * * * * *

We find that the six students who had the sugar were 9.4 per cent more steady; those who had no sugar wobbled 13.1 per cent. more than they did before!

* * * * * * *

In almost every case of mental and physical tests it was found that sugar helped the subjects recover mental and motor control after exercise.

* * * * * * *

With the use of more sugar women will instead of building up fat build up energy. But he stipulates that they must eat their sugar at the beginning of each meal for then it dulls the appetite and makes the fattening foods that are to follow unattractive!

DOUBLE SOCKETS

When using an electric toaster, percolator or other electric equipment at the table, double sockets are time savers, for no lights must be removed before equipment can be connected.

PAINT STAINS

If your windows are paint stained, the easiest way to remove the stains is to shave them off with razor blades.

BE REASONABLE.

Boys and girls are really very patient with us on the whole. The great host of children try to do as nearly right as they know how. When they are asked to do something instructed, how to do it, they do their best. It is natural that they think they have conformed to the set standard because the idea they had in mind was the correct one. The performance fell short only because of the inadequate power of the nerves and muscles in question. In short, the children lack experience and practice and so cannot reach perfection in a short time. Certainly not at the first trial. Give them time, praise them for their efforts. Point out their deficiencies in friendly helpful fashion and they will redouble their efforts. Be sweetly reasonable.

Don't grow impatient because a child messes up a job. Of course you told him how to do it. You told him again and again and he heard you. He even answered you. He made assurance doubly sure and repeated your directions clearly. Then he made mistake after mistake. That is due to his lack of experience, lack of practice in the right way. Give him a chance to learn by repetition, by continued repetition and he will do as well as you could wish.

Now and then a child oppressed by the kindly vigilance of his mother appeals to me. This happens so seldom that I know the case must be pressing indeed to force the child to write to me for help. A boy did so recently asking plaintively if I thought twenty minutes too much for him to devote to dressing in the morning: washing, combing hair, washing teeth, spraying nose, cleaning nails, and the like. Was twenty minutes too much?

Of course not. The boy who can dress in twenty minutes and groom himself as thoroughly as an adolescent boy should be groomed in the morning, is doing unusually well. It is necessary to use plenty of warm soap and water, to do thoroughly every little bit of work entailed in a complete morning toilet. That requires time and practice. Uncalled for haste upsets the boy's mind. It destroys his rhythm, consequently makes him uncomfortable, uneasy and uncertain. That will make him irritable and of course that spoils his work for the day. A bad start lowers the quality of the work.

It is necessary to teach children to work well within a time limit. Dawdling is a wasteful, annoying mischievous habit. But in trying to establish the right habit of promptness one must guard against the extreme. Too much pressure makes a child nervous, uncertain, and he losses poise.

Unless we can help a child to consistent steady, accurate work well within this time limit we might beter leave him alone. What we must strive to do is to discover his natural rhythm and train him to work in accordance with it. Not haste, not waste, but reasonable effort to use time well. Let us be reasonable in all things.

WOMEN OF 1930 TO BE SMART MUST DRESS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

Days Are Past When Stunning Sports Outfit Will Take Wearer Anywhere.

ALL DRESSES LONGER

(By Jeanette)

The lady has come into her own again. She disappeared for awhile and a mannish person that went in for cropped heads and bared knees and low-heeled shoes, took her place. Now she has emerged, like Rip Van Winkle and she is going in for luxurious, stretching exercises, instead of rough, snappy setting-up stunts, and for lace collars and demure little lace cuffs, for soft, gentle manners and clothes to match.

The new pose in femininity is demonstrated strikingly in sports clothes. These were formerly good for almost any time in the day. A stunning sports outfit would take its wearer anywhere. But times have changed. There is a place for everything and a dress also, in the new mode. The woman of 1930, to be quite smart and up-to-date, must be well dressed for every occasion.

In the morning, she goes in for clever frocks of knitted fabrics or tweeds, the latter made with the new swagger flares and fitted lines, and in heather mixture tones.

The suit is an important fashion item for spring wear. The ensemble of coat and dress is still smart, but the newer idea of a tailored jacket and skirt is the favorite. The tuck-in blouse and yoked skirt are smart and youthful-looking and the newer skirts have longer yokes and a decided flare. A new suit material which promises to be very popular this year has silk woven with the woollen threads and is usually a darker color flecked with a lighter tone. Soft, flannel-like woollen suits and those of nubbed tweeds, with or without fur trimming, are much liked, in black, blue or brown tones. Most of the jackets agree in having fitted waistlines, belts, up-in-the-front cut and capes. The short tailored jacket for morning, the three-quarter jacket suit for general wear, and the fur-trimmed suit for formal occasions—there you have it.

In the spring coats, one finds godets as well as full circular skirts and flounces placed low to accentuate the flaring hemline. On the dressy coats, much fur is used, in gallyak, dyed squirrel and broadtail.

Prints Still Good.

The vogue for prints that has marked fashions of several years past still continues to hold sway. For evening wear there are large, brilliant designs developed in chiffons, while small, dainty flower designs mark the afternoon gowns. There is a strong reminiscence of our grandmothers' days in these quaintly charming frocks with their capped sleeves, peplums and circular skirts edged with ruffles and bows. The new tones are soft and subdued in rose, blue, purple, green or brown, adorned with a bit of lace at neck and sleeves.

Dinner gowns go in for chiffons in black and pastel shades, made with the new deep U-neck, quaint little puffed sleeves and skirts of ankle length, or touching the floor in some parts of their uneven hem lines. Capes are staging a return to favor, many being detachable to allow of the transformation from an afternoon to a formal evening frock.

The new fashions manage to achieve an effect of subtle simplicity despite their elaborate details and picturesque lines. For sports wear, three inches below the knee is the correct length. For daytime, four to six inches is correct, and for afternoon special wear, six inches below the knee. Ankle length all around, with perhaps a dip in the back, is accepted for evening. The normal waistline is defined by a belt or shirring or tucking. Skirt fulness re-mains low and gored effects and pleats are prominent.

Many of the sports dresses have little cap sleeves while afternoon frocks go in for three-quarter or above-the-elbow sleeves. Many of the dresses have a capelet in some form, attached to the sleeves, a wide cape bertha or a detachable shoulder cape. The cape also appears often on coats and suits.

The bolero influence is apparent in suits, coats and gowns and as for colors, blue, in navy and linen shades, is very prominent, with gray as a natural sequence. There are several rich reds and all the browns from chocolate to yellow. Black and white combinations will be good for spring wear, and a variety of greens from a color like spring water to a dark leaf.

CHIC FOUNDATION

Beige lace, pale green silk elastic and matching brocade make a very smart, unboned, one-piece corset and brassiere, in evening backless style.

Regularity

IN the elimination of waste matter is the secret of a clear complexion and energetic mind. Not the regularity of the famed Southern train, always on time but a day late, but prompt evacuation, induced by the daily use of

NOTED NOBLEMAN DIES IN ENGLAND

Earl of Coventry Was Known as "the Father of the House of Lords."

GREAT SPORTSMAN.

WORCESTER, England, March 13 (C.P.)—The Earl of Coventry, the ninth of his line, died to-day at his home, Croome Court, at the age of 91, after a fortnight's illness. The aged earl frequently was known as "the father of the House of Lords." He was one of the most famous sportsmen of the country.

He was Lord Lieutenant of Worcestershire since 1891 and for several years was master of the Buck hounds. He owned many valuable historical paintings at Croome Court.

The Earl of Coventry was the most famous sporting nobleman of three reigns. He was a Peer when Queen Victoria had been but six years on her throne and his record of 87 years in the Peerage beats the previous record of Viscount Cullen, whose tenure of title was from 1716 to 1802.

He knew the Duke of Wellington when the victor of Waterloo still had a good spell of life ahead of him. He made an ideally happy marriage 65 years ago with a daughter of the second Earl of Craven, who still survives. This "Darby and Joan" of the Peerage touched the popular imagination and their diamond wedding was hailed almost as a national event.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

MIMICO, Ont., March 13. (C.P.) Walter Gregor, 27, clerk of a local grocery store, was committed for trial by Magistrate D. Davidson in Police court yesterday on a charge of manslaughter. The charge arose out of the accidental shooting of Edward King, railroad employe, in the store on the night of Feb. 27 last. A charge of pointing a revolver was withdrawn. Bail of $10,000 was renewed.

DATA ON DEPTHS BEING GATHERED

Tests Being Taken as Aid to Fish Production and Growth.

TAKEN IN ATLANTIC

BOSTON, March 13.—Experiments to determine the temperature and salinity of the Atlantic Ocean at varying depths are being carried on by scientists of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries aboard the steamer Albatross in their studies of hydro-dynamics as an aid to fish production and growth.

The Albatross steamed out of Woods Hole and about eight miles south of No Man's Land the first temperatures were taken in 20 fathoms of water. A small, iron railed platform was lowered over the weather rail and Edward W. Baily, junior biologist, prepared to lower the thermometers into the sea.

From a boat davit a steel cable led from the steam winch on the for'ard deck, through a snatch block to a heavily weighted loose end. Biologist Baily attached to this cable the heavy deep-sea reversing thermometers. The instrument bearing two thermometers measuring in centigrade degrees, consist of a brass frame into which the thermometers are fitted snugly so that they may not be broken from shifting. One side of the frame is hollow and fitted with automatic valves for the reception of sea water at whatever depth required. The winch is released and the weighted line disappears into the green water. The winchman watches a little recording block over which the line travels and when the dials on the block indicate the required number of fathoms or meters, have been reached, he throws a lever which stops the descent.

Next a "messenger" or brass weight is slipped over the cable and sent down through the water. It strikes the thermometer instrument, trips a lever, the thermometer instrument reverses and for a brief space of time remains registering the temperature at a given depth. The water receptacle opens and lets in about a pint of water, then the signal is given and the winch restarted, the thermometers with the temperature carefully recorded and with their sample of ocean water are lifted back to the ship.

Readings Carefully Taken

The instrument is carefully taken from the cable, readings made and carefully entered, with latitude and longitude, depth and other facts that are necessary to future study and comparison. The water in the little container is carefully drawn off away for future laboratory study. The salinity of the water is noted particularly as it is known that the Atlantic Ocean is much saltier in some places than in others. This study of the salinity and temperature of the water is a large part of the study of hydro dynamics, or, in plain English the reasons for certain drifts and currents moving in certain directions, and is a large part of the study of fish production and growth.

The next step in the experiments is the gathering of minute fish eggs and larvae, this being the immature fish recently hatched from the egg, yet not big enough to swim or to feed itself, and such tiny animal or plant life as may be found floating in the water.

A circular mouthed net is attached net on metal runners and about board. The mouth of this net is about one meter in diameter and it is about 20 feet from mouth to cod-end. It is made of Italian silk with meshes so fine as to be closer woven than a silk handkerchief. This is allowed to sink to the bottom and the ship is started up, moving not more than one mile an hour while the net tows astern.

At a given word the net is raised 10 feet and again drags, and then raised another ten feet and dragged, and so on until it is dragging along the surface. It is then ready to be hauled into the boat and its valuable contents, gathered from the different levels of the ocean, are placed in glass jars for microscopic studies in the laboratories later.

Sometimes, the Welsh net, a squared ne ton metal runners and about 15 feet long, is sent down. This snares fish a bit larger than those gathered by the circular net, yet not large enough for food size.

Last comes the otter trawl, a trawl net like those used on the big steam trawlers that ply out of the fish piers. It is smaller than the commercial variety but it has the same size meshes. This drags along the bottom and is capable of hauling up 1500 pounds of large fish for the larger fish must be studied as well as the eggs and larvae.

During the time it takes to carry out this program, a tiny net of extremely closely woven silk, trails out from the stern, right on the surface. This is for the catching of diatoms and microscopic plant life on the surface of the water.

With the experiments at 20 fathoms completed the Albatross steamed out to the next station in 30 fathoms of water and repeated the tests and from there to another station at 100 fathoms. The data from these depths is all carefully catalogued and the scientist of the Bureau prepare for an extensive laboratory study of the specimens gathered.

BUSINESS MEN TO BE ORDAINED

CANDIDATE SHORTAGE

LONDON, Mar. 13 (By Thomas T. Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondent)—St. Paul, we are led to believe followed his trade of tentmaker, the while he preached the word of God. A notable return towards this apostolic way of life will be witnessed at Christ Church, Spitalfields, in the East end of London on Sunday next when the Bishop of Stepney will ordain nine London business men, comprising civil servants, schoolmasters and clerks, all of whom have pursued their training for holy orders while following their customary avocations.

This is the first time such a departure has been made to any notable extent by the Church of England, and marks a most striking divergence from the methods of preparation for the Anglican ministery of a generation back. At least five years at a historic school, three years at Oxford or Cambridge universities and two years at a theological college used then to be the course for the majority of aspirants for holy orders, and in most instances the entire expense would fall upon the candidates' parents.

Nowadays the shortage of candidates for the ministry from that class of the community whence they were formerly most usually recruited, compels those in authority to look elsewhere for promising material. Many such authorities declare the material is readily available if only funds for training them are provided.

At this year's Lambeth Conference of Bishops of the Anglican communion throughout the world the question will be earnestly considered of admitting men who will follow their secular occupation to at least deacon's orders.

ANAESTHETIC FOUND NOT BLAME FOR DEATH

TORONTO, Ont., March 13 (C.P.)—An unusual and unsuspected pathological condition in her lungs, rendering them unable to absorb anaesthetics safely, was the main factor in the death of Mrs. Myrtle Rodgers, 40 who died on the operating table in a local hospital while an operation for removal of her appendix was being performed, was the verdict returned by a coroner's jury here investigating the woman's death and the anaesthetic situation in general.

The verdict rendered to Chief Coroner Dr. M. M. Crawford early this morning followed nearly two hours' deliberation by the jury which for two nights has probed the situation in an effort to allay public anxiety regarding the recent deaths of other citizens, while under anaesthetics.

"There is absolutely no grounds for fear," was one phrase of importance in the verdict, while another practically exonerated the anaesthetics from blame as the possible cause of death.

HEADS OF EAST CITY INDUSTRIES ADDRESS HOLY NAME SOCIETY

Open Meeting is Held in East City Community Hall, Tuesday Night.

HISTORY OF INDUSTRIES.

On Tuesday evening, March 11, a large audience assembled in Community Hall to listen to two interesting addresses delivered respectively by J. H. Vernor, superintendent of the Western Clock Company, and F. Stevenson, manager of the Ontario Marble Works. It was an open meeting, at which the ladies were the guests of the Holy Name Society.

Mr. Vernor prefaced his talk on the manufacture of clocks by referring to the various calendars which have been in use since the earliest ages for the computing of time. He pointed out that the Gregorian calendar, which is now followed by all English-speaking countries, keeps about as correct a record as human ingenuity could devise. He then traced the history of clocks from the rude timepiece, which also served as an alarm, invented by a Benedictine monk in the thirteenth century down to the Big Ben which now wakes us up in the mornings. He also explained the three sources of motor power which are used in the construction of clocks, viz., the weight, the pendulum, and the spring. In closing, the speaker made reference with pardonable pride to the output of the local plant. The address, which was interspersed with several humorous anecdotes, was listened to with much pleasure and profit.

Mr. Stevenson, who came here over a year ago to take charge of the marble works, made a very favorable impression. He has a rich, soft voice redolent of the Sunny South. Marble cutting and polishing, he claimed, was one of the oldest arts known to man, as evidenced by the marble tablets taken from the ruins of some of the ancient cities that flourished long before the advent of Christianity. Unlike other crafts, the process of fashioning marble has changed little in the last two hundred years. It is a slow process. Sometimes it takes six or seven days to make a single cut through a large block. While the greater part of the marble used in the local plant is quarried in this country, yet much of it comes from foreign lands. Marble in its original state as the quarry is a dull-colored, shapeless lump, but when put through the various processes, so vividly described by the speaker, it comes forth a thing of beauty such as may be seen in the local office of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company.

Ald. Daniel Holland introduced the speakers and also tendered to them the vote of thanks passed by the meeting. In doing so he took occasion to thank them for having established their plants in East City, thus maintaining in a measure that equilibrium so necessary to the healthy growth of a manufacturing centre.

During the evening the audience was treated to vocal solos by Miss Stella Brady and Mr. Joseph Clancy, the accompanists being Misses Margaret McCabe and Helen Clancy.

SURVIVORS OF CUSTER FIGHT FOUND IN WEST

OLD CHIEF LIVING.

Ancient Secret Societies Still Exist—Torture is Omitted.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Indian survivors of Custer's battle on the Little Big Horn have been found among a band of Wapeton Sioux in central Saskatchewan by an expedition from the Cambridge University Museum and the British Museum. The expedition, led by an American, Donald A. Cadzow, has returned to civilization after having travelled thousands of miles to study scattered tribes of Canadian Indians whose old native culture is fast vanishing. Mr. Cadzow was accompanied by Robert Rymell of England and John Rymill of South Australia.

The band containing the Custer fight survivors moved to Canada shortly after the battle, Mr. Cadzow said. The group fought its way northward to good hunting grounds on the north shore of the Saskatchewan River and there settled. The old chief, Four Stars, is still alive, and they call Americans "Che-mokimen" or "Long knives" after the name given long ago to American cavlary men who carried sabres.

In northeast Saskatchewan the expedition found an untamed tribe of Salteaux Indians, led by a blind old chief named Nippy, and independently hating everything that suggests the white man's America.

"These Indians live as their ancestors did a hundred years ago, hunting moose, deer and fish," Mr. Cadzow said. "Repeated efforts by the Government to keep these long haired pagans on a reservation have failed. They refuse to accept treaty money offered to them each year by the Indian Department, and missionaries sent to them by various faiths have given up all hope of converting them as it is impossible to work with a roving band of hunters who refuse even to talk with a white man."

Many of the ancient secret societies still flourish among the tribes, the expedition found. The Piegan Indians of Alberta hold their annual Sun-Dance, but the torture of warriors by placing sharpened sticks through the flesh of their breasts is omitted, because it is no longer necessary to make warriors.

"The weird throb of the tom-tom played by medicine men and herb doctors can still be heard on the reserves," Mr. Cadzow stated. "But it is only a matter of a few years before the white man's civilization will eliminate the last vestige of true Indian culture."

SPENT THREE WEEKS AT FLATT'S VILLAGE

F. M. Dela Fosse Returns Home From Bahama Islands.

Looking decidedly tanned after his three weeks' sojourn in the picturesque little settlement of Flatt's Village, just where the Atlantic Ocean and Harrington Sound meet in the Bahamas, F. M. De la Fosse, returned this week. He was accompanied on the trip by his wife and niece, Miss Ross, also on the outward voyage were Mr. and Mrs. Braund of this city.

Mr. De la Fosse speaks of a terribly rough passage on the two days' journey by boat from Halifax. It was so rough that many passengers sustained slight injuries and one man had a broken arm. The return water trip was less eventful and the steamer sailed into Halifax having been favored by beautiful weather.

Golf was Mr. De la Fosse's chief pastime whilst away and he could not have chosen a finer spot than the Frascati Hotel which boasts a wonderful nine-hole course. The hotel building stands out white and sparkling in the dazzling sun; is situated on a sheltered inlet, and provides a spot from which excellent views of both ocean and mainland can be seen.

Bermuda has no factories, billboards, street cars or motorcycles, and the general use of the automobile is prohibited. Riders and drivers follow the English custom of keeping to the left.

At all times of the year Bermuda possesses unique floral charm. Fields of stately Easter lilies, hedges of oleanders, and hibiscus, are the leaders.

The Bermudas are the world's most northerly coral islands, and are only 720 miles from Halifax. The climate is believed to be the most equable in the world, the average annual temperature being 70 degrees. The Spring average is 63 degrees to 72 degrees, Summer 75 degrees to 79, Autumn 65 to 72 degrees; Winter 63 to 69 degrees.

"Eczema broke out in a rash on my limb, below the knee. It was in a spot about as large as a half dollar and itched badly. When I scratched it water came from it and the eczema spread until nearly the whole side of my limb, below the knee, was covered. Later it became dry and scaled over, and the irritation kept me awake nights. I had it more or less for twenty years.

THE BEST COMEDY IN AMERICA

"Wait, Henry, you didn't kiss me goodby."
—N. Y. Medley.

A young college couple, who had just recently been married, had received lots of nice wedding presents after establishing their home in a suburb. One morning in the mail they received two theater tickets together with a note which read: "Guess who sent these."

At the duly appointed time, the young couple went to the theater, returning late in the evening. To their astonishment everything in the house of any value had been carried away. On a bare table in the dining room they found this note: "Now you know."

THE GRIEF OF A LOVE AFFAIR

IF you write the girl of your dreams a letter, it's too long. If you send her a postal card, it's too short and too conspicuous. If your letter is sentimental, you're too bold; if it isn't, she gets angry and ditches you. If you call her up too often, you're a pest; if you don't call her often enough, the affair is over. If you talk too long, she is bored; if you don't talk long enough, she is offended. If you send her flowers every day, you're a spendthrift; if you don't send her enough flowers, you're a cheapskate. If you try to kiss her, you're insulting: if you don't, you're insulting. If you try to be nice to her, she thinks you're too suave; if you don't, she thinks you're too crude. If you act naturally, she doesn't like it; if you don't, then you're affected. God help the stronger sex in an affair like this!

ROMANCE BETWEEN CARNERA AND 19 YEAR OLD MAIDEN MOOTED

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT.

LONDON, March 12.—(Associated Press Cable)—A story of a romance between Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight boxing giant, and Miss Emilia Tersini, winsome 19-year-old British subject, was told in The Daily News to-day. The paper said that the boxer would return to England this year to marry her and settle here.

Miss Tersini is described as of pale complexion with black dreamy eyes and black curly hair. She was born in England and lives with her Uncle Nani who keeps a restaurant in the west end of London.

Essence of Gentleness

"I first saw him last November," she told her interviewer, referring to the visit Carnera made to England for a bout with Young Stribling, Georgia fighter. "I think I loved him at once. I saw him, but we did not become engaged until three days before he went to Paris at the beginning of 1929.

"I loved him because he was so simple, and free from bluster and pose. He is the very essence of gentleness and courtesy. Although a giant, he can be as tender as a woman." Uncle Nani revealed then that Primo writes to Miss Emilia three times a week.

She said she did not think Carnera's return would be very remote, and added that they would be married at her uncle's house.

Has No Time

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 12.—Primo Carnera, huge Italian fighter, is all wrapped up in his boxing tour of the United States and has no time to be bothered with any matrimonial plans.

He let this be known to-day through his manager, Leon Cee, in denying reports from London that he (Carnera) intended to return to England to marry Miss Emilia Tersini, a British subject.

Carnera Knows Best

LONDON, March 12.—Miss Emilia Tersini smiled prettily and enigmatically this afternoon when told that Primo Carnera had denied they were engaged.

"Well, Mr. Carnera knows best," she said, "we are only friends anyway."

When asked directly, however, whether she really was engaged to Primo, the dark-eyed girl was explicit in the negative.

"No," she replied, "I am not, and will you tell people so?"

"So congratulations are not in order?" asked the interviewer.

"No," she said.

But with another smile she added: "Not yet."

WHIRLWIND MOTOR INVENTOR PREDICTS FOOLPROOF PLANES

By Paul H. King
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

ST. LOUIS, March 13.—(U.P.)—An airplane, "foolproof" and as easy to drive as an automobile, eventually will be a reality, Charles L. Lawrence, designer of the Wright Whirlwind motor, believes.

"You will steer these planes to the right or left with an automobile wheel, just as you would a car, and with no fear of making a false move," Lawrence commented.

"You will go up or down simply by pulling or pushing the wheel and the airplane will be in perfect control in every position and at any speed, even when descending."

"The stick which now maneuvers the plane will be done away with, also the necessity of using the feet on pedals," he said.

Lawrence, to whom President Coolidge presented the Collier Trophy for the greatest achievement in aviation during 1928, said he believed too much dependence upon the personal equation constitutes the largest fault of the present day plane.

Although he admitted the present day craft yet is imperfect, Lawrence emphasizes that the airplane, "when in competent hands, is a sound means of transportation."

Construction of the airplane motor and frame have been improved to such a degree that most accidents and crashes are due to bad judgment of the pilot," the motor expert believes.

Fire hazards of the present day plane will be eliminated, adding further to safety of flying, Lawrence explained.

"The hazards," he said, "will be eliminated by preventing other parts of the machine from becoming hot from exhaust and the use of a less volatile fuel."

"No matter how safe flying becomes, bad judgment of pilots will continue to cause accidents just as he does today with the automobile."

"As in golf and other games the chief hazard in learning to fly is a mental hazard, but those who hesitate today will find it hard to resist the planes of tomorrow," Lawrence concluded.

OLD, CONTRACTED LIMBS, JOINTS AND TENDONS

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy to help their condition.

Sufferers should ask for a small bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at any good druggists. It softens the cartilage, takes the soreness out of the ligaments and tendons, and eases the pain. The first application gives instant relief and comfort. Thousands have reduced large, ugly varicose veins and ulcers by simply applying Moone's Emerald Oil as directed. McDermid Drug Co. Ltd., Bond's Drug Store, McDermid & Jury, and all good druggists have it.

Miss K. Rudd, 1100 Victoria Drive, Vancouver, B.C., writes:—"About a year ago I was troubled with boils. They broke out on my arms, and no sooner was one healed than another would come to take its place. I suffered great pain with them, and tried different medicines and ointments, but they did me no good.

"I was advised to take and, my, what relief I got; soon my skin was as clear as before."

Comus, Cromwell and George Washington All Foundered at Foot of Same Cliffs.

HALIFAX, N. S., Mar. 13.—Although Sable Island for scores of years has been the Graveyard of the Atlantic in the vocabulary of mariners, many of the most tragic wrecks in western waters have left their story on less known landmarks.

Some of the descendants of those who suffered and died in the wreck of the transport Harpooner on the coast of Newfoundland a hundred and thirteen years ago, are familiar with the story of one of the worst disasters in the history of North Atlantic shipping, but details of the tragic deaths of more than two hundred men, women and children may be read for the first time by the general public of the present. It was on the night of November 10, 1816, that the transport, off her course and poking through fog, crashed against the rugged cliffs at St. Shotts, on the southeastern coast of Newfoundland, in the district of St. Mary's. This was neither the first nor last disaster at the scene, other ships having found their graves there, with the loss of many lives. In an account of the Harpooner's fate, published in the Acadian Recorder of Halifax towards the end of 1816, fear, pathos, and heroism combined to furnish a tale more vivid than fiction. A unique detail of the wreck was the fact that most of the survivors were indebted to a dog for their lives.

When the Harpooner, in command of Captain Joseph Bryant, left Quebec for England, she carried 385 passengers, as well as the ship's Company, principally the 4th Royal Veteran Battalion commanded by Captain Prime and Lieutenant Mylrea. Also on board were detachments of the Royal Artillery, Artillery Drivers 70th, 76fth, 99th, 103rd, and DeWatteville's and Glengarry Fencibles under command of Captain Willock, 103rd Regiment. Many of these soldiers had fought in the United States in the War of 1812, and a number were still suffering from wounds.

The weather was moderate as the Harpooner sailed down the St. Lawrence River and Gulf. No observation had been taken for several days, however, on account of fog, and the ship was believed to be much farther east than was really the case.

Proceeding at a speed of about five knots, she struck at St. Shotts at nine o'clock in the night. The Captain called all hands forward and had the vessel swung around with her stern to the shore. Due to the cliffs and surf, it was impossible to land without a line or boat. Then a heavy gale blew up. The large boats on the Harpooner were smashed to pieces soon after the ship struck, and the masts were cut away. Some of the crew were successful in lowering the stern boat and reaching shore, but they could not return through the heavy surf. The ship, lying on her beam ends, was submerged by wave after wave. A fire started from the cabin stove, but it was soon extinguished by the water.

The passengers and soldiers, collected on deck, clung to the weather side and other parts of the ship forming a solid mass. Efforts to get a line to shore that night were fruitless. As the dark hours passed, many persons perished from exposure and others were swept overboard one by one as they lost their holds. But the ordeal had not reached its climax, although at daylight contact was made with land by tying a rope to a dog which swam to shore. The fittest survived. Only the strongest could swing hand over hand to safety above the heads of the others.

At eleven o'clock that morning those on shore saw the ship began to break up. "Go forward!" they cried. The warning was useless. The vessel crumbled, its remaining passengers being washed into the waves, and the horror was indescribable as children clung to parents whose struggles were unavailing. Lieutenant Mylrea, aged 70, one of the oldest subalterns in His Majesty's service, lost his life after remaining on the wreck for nineteen hours. His daughter was drowned in his arms.

On the following day, after spending the night on the rocky shore, the survivors found a house a mile away occupied by a fisherman who could furnish no relief but food and shelter for a few.

Two military officers and Captain Bryant were successful in reaching Trepassey and sent back provisions. The men who carried this aid returned to Trepassey with the remaining survivors through a morass of sixteen miles. In their weakened state, the sufferers were almost overcome by the additional hardship.

St. Shotts has been the scene of numerous shipping disasters. His Majesty's ship Comus was wrecked there before the Harpooner, and in later years the Cromwell and George Washington, both steamers of the same line, were smashed against the cliffs and disappeared with all hands.

NEW MEMBERS IN BABY BAND

Interesting Program Provided at Regular Meeting of St. James' W.M.S.

MUSICAL NUMBERS.

A very interesting and helpful program was enjoyed on Tuesday afternoon at the regular monthly meeting of St. James' W.M.S.

Mrs. J. H. Dudgeon, the president, was in the chair, and the program was in charge of Mrs. W. D. Sargent and her group of assistants.

The opening hymn was a dedication and was followed by prayer offered by Mrs. E. L. Woodley. The scripture lesson was chosen from three parts: Joel 2:28-32; Acts 2, 36-39, and Acts 3:24-26, and read by Mrs. Ernest Deyell.

The president introduced the business of the day, and while a large number of details were discussed, they were quickly and efficiently carried out.

Reports were given by the secretary and the treasurer. The Baby Band Superintendent, Mrs. Copson, gave an interesting account of good work done, having enrolled seventeen new members. The work of the Flower Committee was reported by Mrs. Fife, and the Strangers' Secretary, Mrs. Davidson, told of a large number of calls, at homes and at the hospital, carrying the good wishes of the society.

Miss M. Kidd gave a short but heart-searching address on Christian Stewardship, defining its meaning and its relation to us as W.M.S. members.

Three heralds brought messages from the Watch Tower. "Life in an African Village" was graphically told in a story read by Mrs. Rose. Mrs. Gillespie brought news from China, and Mrs. Curtis told of work among the Canadian missions.

Continuing the study of "Jerusalem to Jerusalem, Mrs. W. D. Sargent, in a splendidly prepared paper gave the second chapter, which held the closest attention of her hearers to the last word.

Mrs. E. Kitney sang a very appropriate solo which fitted closely into the spirit of the meeting.

A short account of the wonderful influence of the World Day of Prayer was given by Mrs. Davidson, who stressed the power of the prayers offered in St. John's beautiful church by hundreds of consecrated women.

A season of prayer in which several members took part followed, and all joined in sing the oft-repeated little prayer hymn.

The meeting was also closed with earnest prayer offered by Miss Kidd.

Plans were arranged for an executive meeting to be held on Friday evening at the home of the president, at St. James' Parsonage.

Mrs. Armstrong's group will be in charge of the April meeting and the Easter Thankoffering envelopes will be received at this meeting.

FORD MAKES ACCUSATIONS.

NEW YORK, N.Y.—The New York World to-day quotes Henry Ford as saying that the big money interests of New York are back of the bootlegging in the United States, and that liquor interests are concentrating near his factories in Dearborn, Mich., because they knew he is a dry.

CONSTABLE RUN DOWN.

NEW YORK, N.Y.—Patrolman Joseph J. Scott was deliberately run down and killed to-day by a speeding motorist whom he attempted to stop. The driver veered the car toward the policeman. The officer's body was caught on the bumper. The driver swung the car across the street, after dragging Scott 90 feet, and with a jerk of the steering wheel threw the policeman clear and sped away.

SPRING BRINGS HOUSECLEANING AND MANY NEW ARRANGEMENTS

Tour Through Furniture Stores Will Provide Wealth of Suggestive Ideas.

LATEST DESIGNS SHOWN

Spring is in the air. The sweet songs of the returning birds already proclaim it's coming. Buds on the trees are beginning to peep shyly forth and mother nature is slowly but surely relaying her carpet of greensward to replace her mantle of snow and ice, which has lain on the land for so many weary months.

This is the time of the year when the housekeeper looks forward with relief to the period when furnace fires will finally be put out and the annual household renewal can begin.

Springtime is a busy time for all but more especially for those who garden and keep up their homes — everything seems to happen at once.

Peterborough is astir already planning for the various activities which can begin still earlier—while the March winds still blow, cold and bleak. Here and there one may see signs of a revival in the painting and decorating business, and could one take a peep into the numerous homes in this city doubtless one would observe busy housewives undertaking the task of putting the house in summer garb, or maybe, as it is still a little early, one could overhear the family discussing the numerous alterations which they are contemplating on the advent of spring.

The city stores are no less busy. About the pretty maple pieces shown in the shops is a light spring-time air. One may finish the living room all in maple, or just add a few pieces that seem to fit in. Covering for chairs have a happy variety. Chintz is used glazed or quilted.

A variety of woods may be the mark of distinction of your living room. You may panel it with pine and use for floor linoleum suggestive of the wide boards of Colonial days.

Pewter on Mantel.

The fireplace with its framed sampler above and its arrangement of old pewter on the mantel shelf may face an open Welch dresser whilst old blue Staffordshire plates may line the dresser shelves. Drapes should suggest hand woven materials, in which blue and white combine—or blue, red and white. In this room there would also be a corner cupboard.

If one is not satisfied with the living room arrangements, the following corner, seen in a local store, might suggest something.

A chintz covered couch of painted wood in soft greens, was the centre of interest. A set of light graceful shelves hung above it with an intriguing group of books. Arranged so as to be part of the wall decorations were French prints below the shelves. On either side was a small bracket holding a potted ivy. For the convenience of the guest, near the couch were two tables, one placed so as to hold a lamp for reading, the other was set with coffee things.

Then the window with its wooden lattice shade, was peculiarly suggestive of summer and filtered sunlight. Plain colored drapes of rose with their ball fringe, were tied back. Even the necessary radiator had a light cover, on the top of which was a fine bowl of flowers.

How skillful is the window dresser's art. There is another very attractive bedroom display in which is used walnut for the low twin beds.

Large dining room suites are shown in varied woods, all beautiful specimens of the woodcarver's art. Chairs are studded with nail heads, and the most popular suites seem to be those executed in French walnut inlaid with Satinwood.

Novel Breakfast Nooks.

Novelty in treatment is usually confined to breakfast nooks—these in creasingly popular adjuncts to the modern household and bridge rooms. In a bridge room one can go as "modern" as one likes. Choosing silver, red and black designs indiscriminately. One bridge room, in which a well known city hostess often entertains, is furnished with a set of red chairs grouped about black tables for the card players. A mirrow glass screen stands in one corner of the room while in the other a low table holds one of the new clouded crystal lamps surrounded with one of the ultra-modern lamp shades.

In all local stores may be found the very latest in small corner cupboards and tall slim bookcases, which are useful and effective as "occasional" pieces. Oftentimes there is need for an extra chair to fit a particular spot. For a small dining room, a pair of Chippendale chairs would be attractive. For a man's room an overstuffed, deep, comfortable seat may be found in a red leather chair.

As spring brings freshened thought to one's housekeeping and winter's ideas are laid away, there comes the time to consider a number of details that have not been arranged satisfactorily. A studied survey of the furniture stores of Peterborough will at least stir up a wealth of suggestive ideas and bring one to a realization that furniture, no less than dress fashions, undergoes radical changes each year.

Almost every house enjoys a radio these days, when besides the excellent programs of music one is able to listen to speakers of National and International reputation. Perhaps your radio was purchased early in the drab days of winter without any thought as to how it would fit in with the scheme of your house furnishing. This problem of housing a radio is subject to many solutions. Beautiful cabinets and consoles are offered by the radio dealers, and one can choose from a wide variety, the style and the wood that will fit into your home. Some of the latest designs in radio cabinets are carried out in Chinese red lacquer—cabinets of elaborate design, or old oak chests, treasured antiques can readily be adapted to housing the radio.

LIBRARIES FILL LONG FELT WANT

IN GREAT DEMAND

ST. JOHN'S Nfld., March 13. (CP) The settlements of Newfoundland, lacking libraries available to more populated centres, have not been permitted to go without an opportunity of securing books. Assisted by the Carnegie Corporation and supported by the Bureau of Education, various English publishing houses and President Paton, of the Memorial College, a Travelling Library was established two years ago and now two thousand books are out to readers in different parts of the Colony. In addition, the Bureau of Education has established a Students' Library.

Of the five thousand volumes comprising the Travelling Library, three thousand are on the shelves. Last year fifty-seven books were distributed and several settlements sent in encouraging reports. Since last September requests have been received for only forty-five boxes. Ignorance of the Library's existence was given as one possible reason for the lack of more general interest.

The school in each settlement is regarded as the most convenient centre for housing the library, and the teacher the most suitable person to care for it, but the utmost freedom in management is permitted in each locality. Boxes containing thirty to fifty books are sent out on request from headquarters and may be returned or exchanged at any time.

$4.50 Deposit on 30 Books

A box of thirty books requires a deposit of four and a half dollars, a box of forty, six dollars, and a box of fifty, seven and a half dollars. This works out at fifteen cents a book. The money is usually raised by forming a reading circle. Fifteen people may contribute thirty cents, each, giving them the privilege of using thirty books, which cost one cent a book. Each member of a circle may have two books per fortnight until all are read. After passing around the circle, they are returned to headquarters, and if received in good condition, three fifths of the deposit is refunded the teacher for her work.

Any person may obtain a book from the Students' Library at a charge of ten per cent of its cost per month. For instance, one student received an eight-volume historical work for eighty-five cents. This Library contains three hundred volumes, and others are purchased on request if approved by the Bureau of Education.

DAY OF PRAYER

AT HAVELOCK

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, March 13.—On Friday afternoon, March 7, the fourth occasion on which the World's Day of Prayer was observed, a large gathering of women from the local churches and the Havelock Mission assembled at the Knox Presbyterian church for the impressive service.

Mrs. (Rev.) J. Lennox, president of the Knox W. M. S. presided, and invited Mrs. R. Bonney, president of the United W. M. S. and Mrs. Edward William, president of St. John's Anglican W. M. S. to come to the platform.

Before commencing the program, Mrs. Lennox expressed sorrow at the loss the Knox W. M. S. had sustained in the sudden death in Toronto on Thursday of Mrs. William Whitton, a member of the society. Word of Mrs. Whitton's death, which was received Friday forenoon came as a great shock to the community, casting a gloom over the meeting. Prayer for the bereaved family was offered by Mrs. R. Bonney.

Ladies' Aid Meets

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid of St. John's Anglican church, was held last week at the home of Mrs. R. Sanderson, when a large number of members were present. The devotional exercises were under the leadership of the president, Mrs. Williams.

Rev. Mr. Howard took the scripture reading. A very fine address by the Rev. Hugh Brown was much appreciated. His topic was the work of the Missionary society. Mr. Brown spoke on the life work of a number of Missionaries with whom he was personally acquainted. He spoke particularly of the late David Livingston and Rev. Mr. McKay. Mr. Brown spoke of having received a bouquet of flowers from the grave of the noted missionary, David Livingston, which were sent to him by the latter's mother. The ladies present were delighted with his address. At the conclusion of the meeting a delicious lunch was served by the hostess.

AT WOOLER

WOOLER, March 13.—(Examiner Correspondence)—The Woman's Missionary Society held a special meeting on Friday, "The World's Day of Prayer." Lunch was served at noon by Mrs. Clarence McMasters, Mrs. N. McColl, Mrs. J. J. Way, Mrs. Percy Goodin, Mrs. Elgin McMasters and Mrs. R. S. Hunter. At 2 p.m. the program used by Christian women throughout the world was used. "That Jesus May Be Lifted Up." An address on national and international life was ably given by Miss Edith Valentine and another address on "Church Life" was given by Mrs. W. H. Crews, impressing on the minds of the mothers the influence the children in their Sunday schools have on the church. Train the children in their infancy to become linked up with the teaching of Christ. Mrs. L. H. Rowe at the piano playing the hymns softly and the hymn "Art Thou Weary, Art Thou Languid", the first two lines sung as a question by Mrs. Caleb Cole and the last two lines of each verse were sung by Mrs. C. R. Terrill and Mrs. P. J. Wessels. The silent prayer guided by the following suggestions, In my own life, in my family life, in my neighbourly life, was in charge of Mrs. Clarence McMasters.

Speaking of SPORT

By Frank Getty

The colors of old Jim Jeffries, once the champion of all heavyweights, have come back to the prize ring after an absence of approximately two decades, Ronald Wagoner, Los Angeles correspondent tells us.

Al Morro, a young boxer trained and seconded by the former champion, turned in his first bout at the Hollywood Legion stadium recently and fans and critics agreed that the youngster made a great showing against veteran Tony Stabineau in 10 rounds.

Jim, now living a peaceful life at his lady ranch in the Burbank orange country, fairly beamed as he handled the sponge and water bottle and watched 186-pound Morro survive some heated sessions to wear down Stabineau, an experienced and dangerous Pacific Coast trial horse.

Jeffries has been grooming Morro for more than a year after taking a sudden interest in the fight game to which he was indifferent for some time after he was beaten by Jack Johnson.

Jim claims he has Morro pointed toward the heavyweight crown and declares he will push his protege slowly but surely to the pinnacle vacated by Gene Tunney.

The fight critics of Los Angeles still are unwilling to tab the Jeffries' entry as a future king of the heavies but Morror opened the eyes of a few of the experts by winning his first battle—a fight in which he was an 8 to 6 underdog in the betting.

A young racehorse named Gib has given British racing enthusiasts a new and striking example of the phrase, "the luck of the turf."

Gib, whose name is a contraction of Gibraltar, was bought as a foal for a mere $75. Tom Creedon says that Gib, now at the age of seven, is one of the most valuable steeplechasers in England.

Gib recently won his eighth successive handicap steeplechase, defeating the 1929 Grand National winner, Greglach in a 3-mile race at Lingfield Park. Sandy Hook, Kilbuch, and several other well-known jumpers were in the field. Gib has not been entered for this year's Grand National because his owners are waiting for him to develop a bit more.

Lord Killeen, now the Earl of Fingall, bought him as a yearling from his breeder in Ireland. He ran twice in 1928, and won one race worth about $500. In February of the following year Gib commenced his all-conquering career still in the same ownership. However the noble Lord, who is a well-known amateur rider, and the only jockey who keeps his spectacles on when racing, sold Gib for $10,000 after winning a race on him at Sandown Park last year. The horse was bought in partnership by two prominent members of the London Stock Exchange, Ben D. Davis, and Albert Bendon.

Gib is a queer looking fellow who when walking ambles along in the most unconcerned manner, occasionally turning his head to take stock of onlookers. Very speedy, he takes his jumps, in a supremely easy manner. Easter Hero, who is three years older, and favorite for the Grand National race, is a bloodlike beauty animal possessing remarkable speed, and jumps like a stag.

Many horses in the past, bought for the proverbial song, became famous in their later years. Pathfinder, winner of the Grand National in 1875, was bought for $50 and six bottles of ale. Rubio, which won the race in 1908 once fetched $75. He was considered merely capable of dragging a railway station omnibus. Tipperary Tim, the sensational winner of 1928, was once described as "mean and infirm." The sire of Shaun Spadah, winner of the 1921 Aintree race, was bought for the cost of transporting him from Kildare to Dublin, which worked out at a little less than $3, while the dam cost a matter of $15.

Hamilton Secures One-Counter Margin in First Game of the Series.

McGOWAN STARS.

West Toronto and Cataracts Tangle To-night in Third Game for Junior Title.

TORONTO, Ont., March 13. (Canadian Press)—Six teams are still in the running for the right to represent eastern Canada in the Allan Cup final against the western Canada champions at Toronto, March 27 and 29.

It was expected the Quebec champions would be decided in Montreal last night when St. Francis Exavier, intermediate titleholders, clashed with Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, senior champions, in the second of their two game series. The intermediates, however, again surprised by holding the much fancied M.A.A. sextette to a one-one tie with 30 minutes of overtime play. In the first contest the teams played to a scoreless tie and a third game is now necessary to decide which team will meet Truro Bearcats, Maritime champions.

Close Call for Tigers

At Toronto, Iroquois Falls, Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior representatives, threw a scare into the camp of Hamilton Tigers. The latter team, champions of the Ontario Hockey Association, by scoring with less than two minutes to go, managed to eke out a two to one victory over the Eskimos. The second game of their series will be played at Hamilton to-night and winner will clash with Shamrocks, Ottawa district champions, March 15 and 17.

Four of the best junior teams in eastern Canada swing into action to-night. Montreal Amateur Athletic Association travel to Ottawa, where they meet Rideaus of that city in the O.H.A. Memorial Cup competition. The return will be at Montreal on Saturday.

At Toronto, Niagara Falls and West Toronto will endeavour to settle the O.H.A. championship. The teams have played a home and home series and are deadlocked on the round, six to six. This game will be played to a finish as a winner must be decided to meet Sault Ste Marie Greyhounds, N.O.H.A. champions on Saturday.

SAUCE FOR GOOSE

GENEVA, N.Y. (U.P.)—It is as fair for an alumnus to support a boy through college for athletics as for the ministry to do so, in the opinion of Dr. Murray Bartlett, president of Hobart college. There should be no discrimination between athlete and non-athlete, he said. He advocates college football.

BASKEBALL BOOM

PHILADELPHIA (U.P.) — Temple University has announced plans for construction of a basketball arena with a seating capacity of 4,500. Popular interest in the sport has resulted in overcrowding of spectators in the gymnasium now used.

ONLY GAME ON LIST.

TORONTO, Ont., March 13 (C.P.)—In the last International hockey game of the season at Hamilton, the Tigers trounced Niagara Falls, seven to two, last night in the only game scheduled.

Despite the lack of an incentive for aggressive playing, both teams being definitely out of the running for a play-off berth, the fans saw a display of exciting hockey. The losers were the first to score, McLeod tallying unassisted in the opening frame.

Soon after the second had commenced the Tigers evened the count and then took the lead with two quick goals. The winners hammered in four markers in the last frame soon after the Cataracts had notched their second goal.

Detroit Olympics and Toronto will meet in the lone fixture to be played to-night. The Olympics are experiencing difficulty in getting up in the standing to qualify for a play-off position They are now one point ahead of the fifth place Windsor sextet and victory over Toronto will just about eliminate the Bulldogs Toronto are down near the bottom, but are capable of upsetting the calculations of any team in the league

AROUND SOUTHERN TRAINING CAMPS

Assured of $160,000 for the next two years, Babe Ruth is devoting himself with great zest to the New York Yankees' spring training exhibition games at St. Petersburg, Fla.

The Babe was an outstanding figure in the Yank's victory over the Braves Tuesday, getting a long triple, a single and two walks besides making a one-hand catch while running backward for the fielding gem of the game.

Dick Coffman will be the St. Louis Browns' inaugural exhibition game pitcher when the American Leaguers' engage the Buffalo Internationals at Fort Landerdale Friday, Manager Bill Killefer declared after watching the Alabama work out yesterday.

Frank Frisch, captain of the St. Louis Cardinals, was expected in camp at Bradentown, Fla., yesterday with his contract signed and ready for the season's work, while Charles "Flint" Rhem, a holdout came to terms Tuesday morning and was in uniform in the afternoon.

It may have no significance, but Zeke Bonura, husky recruit, has been assigned to play first base with the regular squad of the Cleveland Indians in the absence of the convalescent Lew Fonseca.

The Detroit Tigers were back in their training camp at Tampa, Fla., yesterday rubbing sore spots inflicted by the Brooklyn Dodgers, who on Tuesday made 17 hits off four Bengal pitchers and won an exhibition game at Clearwater, Fla., 11 to 3. The defeat, which leaves the Tigers with a .500 average on the exhibition contests, was laid to Tiger pitching and the inability of the Detroit batters to solve Dodger hurlers at times when there were men on bases.

Even with Willie Kamm and Arthur Shires missing at third and first bases, respectively, the White Sox infield has displayed a pleasing amount of speed to Manager Donie Bush so far. Tuesday the combination of Jerfferies, Cissell, Clancy and Hunnifield completed five double plays, bringing their total for three games with the Giants to nine.

The Los Angeles Club of the Pacific Coast League invaded Catalina Island yesterday to give several young and aspiring cub pitchers another chance to prove to Manager Joe McCarthy that they are improving.

Manager McCarthy planned to send William McCaffee, George Bell, Bud Teachout and Hank Grampp to the mound for the rubber game. In their two previous contests the teams split.

Prowess at the bat bids fair to determine who shall hold down shortstop and second base for the Washington Nationals, pre-season assignments notwithstanding.

Joe Cronin and Buddy Myer promptly were given these berths, but this week's workouts have developed a pair of formidable contenders for the places, Jimmy McLeod for shortstop and Jack Hayes for second.

Connie Mack, Major-domo of the Athletics, is pretty well satisfied with the showing of the champions in the four-game series with the St. Louis Nationals, which resulted in an even break. The A's took the final game Tuesday 14 to 3 in six innings. "We stand pat" he said. "Who ever heard of changing around a championship team?"

MILLBROOK, Mar. 12.—Soft weather has halted the schedule games at the local curling rink, but the series of Scotch doubles for the Waddell Cup was completed just previous to the present thaw, when R. H. Edmunds and H. J. Lancashire defeated T. H. Collins and C. C. Garside by a score of 15-3.

Available space for spectators was completely filled while the game was in progress, the winners giving a fine exhibition of curling, scarcely missing a shot while the twelve ends were in progress. By ends the score was:

Collins and Garside:

LATE SCORING WINS

BERKELEY, Calif. (U.P.)—The University of California basketball team had to play its full schedule of 17 games to come out on top in season's scoring. The Bears, after the second game of the Stanford series—their sixteenth contest—had scored 470 points to their opponents' 470. A 41 to 25 victory over Stanford gave the Bears a season total of 511 points to 495 for their rivals.

Baseball Is Booming In Lake Shore Towns

COBOURG, March 13. — The C.P.R. Athletic Club at Trenton is already showing activity over baseball, and will enter an intermediate team in the O.B.A.A. group. It is proposed to form a league composed of Campbellford, Picton, Point Anne, Napanee, Deseronto, Frankford, Brighton, and Trenton. If this is consummated there will be plenty of baseball for this eastern section. It is expected a meeting of representatives of these places will be called at an early date.

EAST CITY SQUAD BEATS LAKEFIELD

LAKEFIELD, March 13 (Examiner Correspondence).—With the ice softened by the unusually warm March sun, two teams battled for hockey honors on Monday night in the Lakefield skating rink. The varied uniforms seen on both sides bespoke composite teams culled from teams well known to hockey fans during the past season. The Peterborough East City team and the Lakefield Rink Rats were the names given officially and, in spite of poor ice a slim crowd, a real good game was played, with the visitors the superiors in weight and combination, although the locals gave a good account of themselves. McFadden, who has all winter played such a strong game as goalie, was moved forward to the defence lines, whereas he would probably have saved the game had he been left in his accustomed position. Adamson, Stenner, Jewell, Wannamaker and Kennedy played their usual strong game for the locals while Calladine, Gardner and Milliken starred for the visitors. Ferguson, the Peterborough goalie, was remarkably good and saved many counters which would have piled up the score against him. The score was 12—7 in favor of Peterborough, Calladine got six of these, Milliken four and Gardner two. For the locals, Wannamaker got two, and Stenner, McFadden, Adamson, Kennedy and Jewell each one. The line up was as follows:—

Referee—Louis Sabatino.

SPRINTER WINS NEW YORK MEET

EDWARDS BEATEN.

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 13. — Phil Edwards, the tall colored runner of the Hamilton Olympic Club, and Dallas Creamer of Toronto, both placed in their events at the Knights of Columbus track meet held at Madison Square Garden here last night.

Edwards, running in the "Casey 600," trailed Bernard McCafferty, of Holy Cross College around the course. At one point he almost caught the flying leader, but at the finish he was four yards behind him.

Miss Creamer won her heat in the girls' 40-yard dash, and placed fourth in the final. A slow start spoiled her chances and she was unable to gain much of the ground she had lost. In the girls' international 220-yard sprint she came second, just ahead of the bunch who followed Stella Walsh of the New York Central Railroad Association of Cleveland, in her record-breaking dash around the boards. Miss Walsh clipped 2 7-10 seconds off the old indoor record when she covered the course in 26 1-10 seconds. She bettered the outdoor record for the distance by 7-10 seconds.

Conger Wins Mile Event.

Ray Conger won the Columbian mile, the feature event of the program, beating out Dr. Paul Martin of Switzerland by a yard. Conger turned in the fastest time of the indoor season, 4 minutes 15 1-5 seconds, to retain the honors he won in the same event last year. It was the sixth straight victory at the mile route indoors this season for the Illinois A.C. flyer, who was pressed to the limit by the Swiss Olympic veteran in a finish that brought 12,000 fans to their feet in a wild cheer.

Eight yards back of the flying Conger and Martin, Gene Venzke, Swedish-American A.C. runner from Philadelphia, took third place, while Joe Sivak, burly Butler University miler, who set most of the early pace, was fourth. Bringing up the rear were Joe Hickey, New York University; Joe McCluskey, Fordham, and Bob Dalrymple, Boston A.A., in that order.

NEW TECH FOES.

PITTSBURGH, March 13. (U.P.) — Buffalo University, Georgie Tech and Temple University will be played at football by Carnegie Tech this fall, for the first time in Tech history.

THIRD SUCCESSIVE VICTORY FOR WINNERS IN HOUSE LOOP

McLeish, Huffman and Grose Unable to Subdue Sparton Defence.

SIX PERSONAL FOULS.

A fast moving clash between Hec McLeod's Spartons and the Bohunks in the Y.M.C.A. House League at the "Y" last night resulted in a close finish. The Bohunks nosed out the Spartons by the count of 29-25 for their third win in succession in the second half of the schedule.

The Hunks found hard going in the first session of the clash scoring 11 points to their opponents' 15. McLeish Huffman and Grose on the forward line failed to get around the Sparton defence on many advances, and their tries were forced. Huffman got four points while McLeish and Rose got a basket each. Ward at centre got the other five points of the first stanza.

Six personal fouls were tagged by Referee Cooper in the first, 3 for each squad.

In the last frame, McLeish unlooased some speed and ran in eight points for the Hunks. A couple were on skillful solo tours. Ward and Lewis tagged four points each and Loomis 2 points. This brought the Bohunks' total to 29 while the McLeod men were busy getting their count up to 26. With ineffective offensive work, and weak support from the defence line, McLeod and Crawford were able only to count a basket each. Kitchen at centre ran in 6 points.

The teams:

Bohunks: Forwards, McLesh, Huffman, Grose, Loomis; centre, Ward; guards ,Greenlaw, Lewis.

Referee—Joe Cooper.

WILDCATS-RATS.

Smith and Dundas were the foremost snipers for the winners, getting 12 points each on field goals. Wolstenholm and Routley on the Cat squad worked hard but managed to run up only seven baskets as well as two free goals that Routley got in the first period.

Smooth Offensive Work.

The Rats got double the score of the Wildcats in the first frame due to the smooth offensive work of Smith and Dundas. Taylor and Cooper seemed unable to stop their onslaught. The score stood at 12-6 when hostilities were interrupted for intermission. Dundas and Smith continued to score on effective efforts in the last twenty minutes hanging up 14 points but the Wildcats improved and got 12 points. But their total efforts still fell short of the Rats.

The teams:

Rats — Forwards, Smith, Beavis; centre, Dundas; guards, Taylor, Bates, Reynolds.

Referee—Arthur McLeish.

SCHEDULE CLOSES ON FRIDAY NIGHT

"Y" Seniors and Westclox Battle Will Be Feature Clash of Evening.

The Peterborough Ladies' Basketball League will be wound up at the Y.W.C.A. to-morrow night with four games in which all the entries in the league will compete.

A clash between the "Y" Seniors and the Westclox will be the feature of the evening. Both the Westclox and the Seniors have won 2 and lost no games in the play-offs of the Senior group of the league, and to-morrow night's game will definitely decide the championship. The Seniors have not dropped a game this year. The Westclox have been their most dangerous opponents during the season.

A game between the "Y" Intermediates and the Senior School Girls will be another feature in the Junior section. If the School Girls score a win they will have the Junior championship, but if they lose to the Intermediates they will have to play off a tie, for each squad will have won 2 and lost one.

The St. Paul's crowd will meet the De Lavals also to-morrow night in the Senior section and the "Y" Elementary squad will tangle with the Wohelos in the Junior group.

Games will start at 7.30, when the "Y" Elementary and Wohelo game will be set under way. At 7.45, St. Paul's will meet the De Lavals, at 8.15 the "Y" Seniors and the Westclox, and the final clash of the evening will start at 8.30 with the Senior School Girls and Intermediates.

The teams are battling for three cups. The G. N. Gordon trophy will go to the Senior champs, and the Industrial Cup presented by the Westclox, Canadian Woollens, De Laval and C.G.E. will be given to the Junior section winners. The Harvey Cup is for the runners-up in the senior section.

ENTER PENN GAMES.

PHILADELPHIA, March 13.— (U.P.)—A heavy entry list for the 36th annual Pennsylvania Relay Carnival was announced by athletic officials of the University of Pennsylvania. Many other entries are expected. Among the first to accept bids to compete were Iowa, Wisconsin and Ohio State.

HALIBUT KNOWN AS FIGHTING FOOL

Fish Frequently Gets Better of His Captors and Has to be Cut Loose.

HARD TO LAND.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Mar. 12.—All's fair in love and halibut fishing seems to be a rather misquoted maxim but according to veteran Gloucester fishermen it is quite practicable.

The halibut has long been known as the "fighting fool" of the sea among the standard food fishes. Unlike its fellow denizens of the deep, it does not grab up the bait like a snapping turtle but approaches it cautiously and after deciding that it is good to eat gobbles it. Then is the time for the experienced man to call on all of his talent to land the wily fish.

Immediately upon feeling the barb in his stomach he does not run wild but waits until he finds himself being drawn upwards before he begins his fight. Sometimes, with a particularly stubborn specimen, the experience fisherman will, after getting him to the surface, suddenly let him run. They say that the halibut then will dive for the bottom, nose down like a plummet, striking its head when it brings up with force enough to stun it. Then it is easily retrieved.

It is in the summer fishing only a few miles off the shores of New England that the dorymen hand-lining for halibut have their real adventures. A fish weighing from 75 to 100 pounds will occasionally put up such a battle that the dorymen will sometimes cut him loose rather than risk the chance of capsizing in trying to get him aboard and holding him there.

It is always necessary to club a halibut on the nose when he is brought alongside but sometimes this is not as easy as it sounds. The fish, it seems, has just begun its fight and still has one of its favorite tricks left. It will spin like a "whirling dervish" and it is generally true in this case that the gunwale of the dory received the most punishment from the club.

After the halibut is pacified, or at least slowed down, he is gaffed between the eyes; the dory is canted until the gunwhale is near the water and then the prize is taken in. But this does not mean the end of the fight. In a surprisingly short time the big fish may wake up and begin a bombardment with his tail that has caused many a disaster.

He is likely to thrash oars, thwarts and gear overboard. With his flail-like tail he is apt to knock out the dory's bottom planking. In his slithering from side to side he will cause the frail craft to roll in a most dangerous manner. The wise fisherman always takes the precaution of lashing the halibut's tail to the rising strips of the dory as soon as he is in and quiet from the numbing blows of the club.

O.B.A.A. Play Down Here On Saturday

Peterborough basketball fans will be given an opportunity to see an O.A.B.A. play-down match in this city on Saturday night. The O.A.B.A. executive has ordered a sudden death game between Orillia and Belleville intermediate entries in the local Y. W. C. A. gymnasium.

To make a finished basketball bill arrangements have been made also for Belleville to send up a girls' squad to meet the Peterborough Y.W.C.A. Seniors.

Both the squads that will come from the Quinte town are those which Peterborough tackled a couple of weeks ago in exhibition matches in Belleville. The boys suffered a loss but the girls scored a triumph.

PROSPECTS OF DETROIT REST ON MOUNDSMEN

Manager Harris, Confident of First Division Berth, Will Keep Rookie Hurlers.

FUNK IN OUTFIELD.

Youngsters Have Displaced Veterans as Regulars—Rogell at Short.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 13.—Fans of Detroit will have the pleasure of watching a first division ball club during the coming championship season if Bucky Harris, shrewd little manager of the Tigers, has his expectations fulfilled.

Discovered in the Clearwater clubhouse after to-day's defeat by the Robins, the peppery Tiger manager answered all queries readily and frankly.

"A little too much to expect a penant this year" he smiled, "but certainly we're going to be much better than last season and I think we'll be in the first flight. It all comes down to the pitching, after all. Otherwise, we have a good club. If the pitching comes through we'll furnish plenty of competition.

"Of course the Athletics and the Yankees are at the top of the heap. Connie Mack has fine pitching, but if the A's repeat they're going to have a whale of a time doing it. As for the rest of the first division, I rather anticipate that it will be something of a battle among the Tigers, the Indians and the Browns for third and fourth places."

Harris Has Team Lined Up

Harris has definitely lined up his team to start the season and there are several new faces in the lineup. Last year, Hellmann, Roy Johnson and Harry Rice were the regular outfielders, but this year two rookies have won regular berths.

They are Elias Funk, the dapper young shoe merchant from Oklahoma City, who two years ago made an excellent impression upon the late Miller Huggins, and John Stone, a collegian from Mulberry, Tenn.

As for Funk's ability to hit, his average in the Pacific Coast League last season was .370. With those figures, one's own opinion may be formed.

Funk has a great arm and can cover territory after the manner of Tris Speaker. He is very fast on the base and a hard man to catch on a good bunt.

Harris's infield will comprise Alexander at first, Charley Gehringer at second, Bill Rogell at short and Marty McManus at third. Rogell is the newcomer and Harris thinks he is the right man. He came to the Tigers as a purchase from the St. Paul club. Gehringer is rated one of the best second basemen in the game.

Rensa Leads New Catchers

George Rensa appears to be the best recruit catcher of the five on the roster. He is a stocky Polish coal miner from Parsons Pa., and has earned the commendation of Roger Brensnahan, who rates as the complete boss of battery men.

Harris has turned the job of handling pitchers and catchers over to Roger and will not interfere with Brensnahan's decisions, he said.

Of the pitching staff, four recruits already have won permanent places. Elon Hagsett, big left-hander from Kansas, who boasts Indian blood; Whitlow Wyatt, Arthur Herring and Merton Nelson, right-handers, make up the quartet. The regular holdover hurlers are Owen Carroll, John Prudhomme, Victor Sorrell, Earl Whitehill and the veteran George Uhle, which accounts for nine of the ten pitchers the club expects to carry.

SCRAPPERS FAIL TO REACH SETTLEMENT

NEW YORK, March 13.—Prospects of a Jimmy McLarnin-Jackie Kid Berg match at Madison Square Garden became exceeding dubious following a conference between managers of the boxers and Tom McArdle yesterday.

The managers remained deadlocked over a difference of four pounds. Charley Foster, manager of McLarnin, refused to sign for less than 144 pounds, and Sol Golde, senior manager for Berg, declined to sign for more than 140 pounds.

Berg himself wants the fight, no matter what McLarnin weighs. So does his junior manager, "Jay" Jacobs. Golde is the big man of the establishment, however, and he has overruled his associate and his meal ticket.

"I have Berg's interest at heart," he told McArdle. "I believe my man has a chance at 140 pounds. McLarnin would be a cinch at 144 pounds."

To complicate matters still more, there is considerable feeling against the Garden in the Berg camp. Golde feels Berg has as much right to a chance at Sammy Mandell as Al Singer, but there is no question that Singer is being pointed for the Mandell match. Singer is a New York boy and a better drawing card than Berg.

McArdle is still trying to effect a compromise on the Berg-McLarnin matter at 142 pounds, but the matchmaker is about ready to give up on the bout.

BASKETBALL BOOM

DURHAM, N.C., March 13.—(U.P.)—A schedule of 24 games, 10 of which are with Southern Conference foes, has been prepared for the Duke "Bluedevil" baseball team. Only one player of last season's championship team is missed from the 1930 lineup. He is "Bill" Adams, outfielder.

ROPER'S LAST SEASON.

PRINCETON, N.J., March 13.—(U.P.)—Coach Bill Roper of Princeton is engaged in his final spring football campaign at Princeton. The Tiger mentor will retire after the 1930 season. A three-week session beginning late this month will be held by the Princetonian aspirants.

FIGHTING BOSTON BRUINS

The old N.H.L. season is getting down to the final scramble and the boys are setting their hats for the final playoffs. The Boston Bruins look as though they were about set to go through the works. This team has certainly turned out a bunch of tough eggs in the opinion of the other teams in the league. It has become a habit with the Boston aggregation to set records that should stay put for years. The Bruin team is regarded as one of the finest hockey machines to ever step on the ice in the N.H.L. circuit. We have to go back into history to find a team that stacks up with them, the Ottawa outfit of 1921. The players were: Clint Benedict, Eddie Gerrard, George Burke, Sprague Cleghorn, Punch Broadbent, Cyril Dennenay, Frank Nighbor, and the late Jack Darragh. The only team that might be able to make the Bruins like it are the Montreal Maroons, who, when under adverse circumstances, come through with a punch.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE PAW MARKS.

After Uncle Wiggily's rabbit children, with the help of the Police Dog, had driven away the Fox who had in the pile of bean poles, the little bunnies had much fun in the tent their father made by wrapping an old bed quilt around the sticks. The poles were piled up in the shape of an ice-cream cone turned upside down with its point toward the sky. The beanpole tent was like an Indian teepee.

The weather in Woodland, near the Orange Ice Mountains, was still cold and blowy, for now it was March, and though spring was not far away, where Uncle Wiggily lived, it was not at all warm yet.

"Though down in Florida, or South Carolina, or out in California it must be lovely now," said Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy as she looked at the snow on the ground. She was in her kitchen making a carrot shortcake for supper.

"Yes, those are lovely places to live," agreed Uncle Wiggily, "but as long as we are up North we had better stay. Soon we shall be having good weather, though now it still looks like winter."

"And those children are still playing out in the bean pole tent," said Nurse Jane. "I hope they won't take cold."

"They'll never catch cold in fresh air," said Uncle Wiggily. "The more they play out in the open, if they are well wrapped the better for them. I'm glad they have the bean pole tent."

"They seem to be playing some game. What is it?" asked the muskrat lady housekeeper.

and shouting and when Uncle Wiggily went close he heard them calling:

"Baby Bunty is it! Baby Bunty is it!"

"What game ar you playing?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Paw mark game," answered Jingle, laughing.

Seeing that her father looked puzzled Jangle, who was Jingle's twin sister rabbit, said:

"We take turns hopping over the snow and making funny marks with our paws. Then whoever is it has to guess who made the tracks. It's Baby Bunty's turn to guess now."

Uncle Wiggily saw that, besides his own rabbit children, there were the dog boys, Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, also Joie, Tommie and Kittie Kat, Curly and Floppy Twistytail, the pigs, and Lulu, Alice and Jimmie Wibblewobble, the ducks. While Baby Bunty shut her eyes Jimmie Wibblewobble walked over a patch of snow, leaving this paw marks.

"All ready, Bunty. See if you can guess," called Jingle.

Baby Bunty opened her eyes, looked at the marks Jimmie had left in the snow, and then she looked at Charlie Chick, the rooster. Everyone thought Bunty was going to guess wrong, but she said:

"Those marks were made by Jinnie the duck. I can tell because he has webbed feet, and Charlie's toes are all separate."

"Bunty is right," said Uncle Wiggily. "Though it is easy to tell in the snow the marks made by a duck from those made by a rooster. This is a good game for you children to play—the game of paw marks. When you get to know the shape of the paw marks made in the snow by the Wolf, the Fox and the Bob Cat you can keep away from these bad chaps."

Uncle Wiggily pointed to a place in the snow where, the day before, the Fox had left his paw marks, and showed the little animal children how to tell the track of a Fox from that of a dog.

"The dog's paw mark in snow or mud is almost like that of the Fox," Uncle Wiggily said, "but the dog's paws make a much broader and deeper mark, for the Fox, being wild, runs more lightly, and, knowing hunters may be after him, he leaves as little a paw mark as he may."

Going home across the snow that afternoon, after they had finished playing games near the bean pole tent, Baby Bunty saw some paw marks.

"Oh, Unkie Wig!" cried the little orphan rabbit, all excited. "Here are the paw marks of a Fox. Oh, I guess he's after us!"

"No, he can't be after us, for he has gone on ahead of us," said Mr. Longears. "And that isn't either the track of a Fox or Dog. You see a dog's toe nails and those of a Fox make little dents in front of each toe. But there are no little dents and bid dents here—just four small dents and back of them a larger one, where the foot touched. This is the paw mark of a cat, and, unless I am mistaken, it is your friend Tommie, who left before you did and ran home this way."

Surely enough, a little later, they caught up to Tommie Kat walking daintily over the snow and it was the cat boy's paw marks Bunty had seen. So the bunnies had their little lesson and then, with their Daddicums, they went in the bungalow to supper and afterward to bed.

REGGIE is frightfully bucked up. Not a moment ago, what with a flat tire and all, he had murder in his heart for Cadmus, or the Phoenicians, or whoever it was that invented automobiles. One taste of Rowntree's York Milk and he'll probably burst into song. York Milk is like that.

Try it yourself, next time you have a blow-out. Notice how delicious is its perfectly blended flavour—how smoothly it melts away in your mouth. But be sure you ask for Rowntree's York Milk Chocolate, the bar that sets a new standard of milk chocolate goodness. No other has just that perfect flavour.

("After all, dear, the tire's only flat on the bottom," says Angele.)

There is also York Nut Milk—with delicious whole filberts—for those who prefer nut milk chocolate.

IN MEMORIAM.

PINCH—In loving memory of Arthur Pinch, who died March 13, 1928.

As I gaze on your picture that hangs on the wall,
Your smiles and your welcomes often recall;
I miss you and mourn you in silence unseen,
And dwell on the memories or days that have been.

Dear is the grave where Father is laid,
Sweet is the memory that never will fade;
Flowers may wither, leaves fade and die;
If some do forget you, never will I.

FRANK GRAY WINS BOWLING HONORS

Crack Tossing Features Final Games of Examiner Intershop League.

Frank Gray's quintet rolled their way to the championship of The Examiner bowling league last night, winning the play-off from G. J. Johnson's men in two straight games. The scores were: Gray 1,087 and Johnson 873; and Gray 1,017 to Johnson 919.

Crack bowling featured these final games as it has in this league throughout the season. C. Butcher was hitting 'em in great style. He was off to a great start in the second game, nabbing eight strikes in succession, but he picked the head pin in the ninth frame, to finish with a 344 score. His rolling proved one of the main reasons for Gray's victories, since he knocked out 209 in the first game. On the losing team was W. Zeihr, who rolled 213 and 209, while G. Cullen of the winners was hitting along consistently, getting totals of 206 and 214.

C. HAMILTON HAS TRIAL SET OVER

$50,000 BAIL RENEWED.

STRATFORD, Ont., March 13 (C. P.) — The trial of J. Cecil Hamilton, who was to have faced a charge of conspiracy as the result of his alleged dealings in Listowel, as agent for the real estate firm of Hubbs & Hubbs, of Toronto, was set over by Chief Justice Meredith to-day to the next court of Assizes.

R. U. Robertson, K.C., defence counsel, objected to his client being tried on the conspiracy charge prior to being tried on 14 false pretence counts which stand against him. He also objected to the indictment in the conspiracy charge which was read to Hamilton and to which he pleaded guilty. Bail of $50,000 is being renewed.

BIG SHIRT SALE IN GRAFTON STORE

Manufacturer Has Offered Season's Overmake at Attractive Price.

The men of Peterborough are always prepared for some startling merchandising by the Grafton store, and the announcement of a great shirt sale for the last of the week was the climax of an all winter campaign. Always ready to profit by its opportunities, when a prominent shirt manufacturer offered its season's overmake at a most attractive price Grafton's took quick advantage of it and made an immense purchase.

1,500 of these shirts came to Peterborough with instructions to rush them out in three days at the very low price of $1.50 each. These are shirts made to sell up to $2.50 each, and the three-day opportunity to buy them at $1.50 each is surely an economy event for men and young men.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up by an Examiner Reporter

OBJECT TO SMOKE NUISANCE
The smoke nuisance is again promising trouble for the City Council. Residents in the south end have strongly complained that the linens and curtains in their homes are kept in a continual state of dirt by the fine soot from one factory's chimney. They urge that the council "must do something about it". The council admit their limitations in curbing this difficulty, but it is likely that an attempt will be made to pass a by-law making excess dirt from factories unlawful.

THEY WILL DO IT.
Two trucks crashed together on George Street near the C.P.R. Station shortly after 9 o'clock this morning. One, a light delivery truck owned by Beatty Bros., was severely damaged; the other, a heavy gravel truck driven by J. Patterson, escaped with a bent axle. The small truck was driving out of a laneway when the cars collided.

BUSINESS EXPECTED.
Officially the city's dog population last year was 645. That was the number of dog tags purchased from the police department. The tags for 1930, 700 in number, arrived at the police office this morning, and the desk sergeant announced that he was all ready to do business with the dog owners.

WORK AT STANDSTILL.
The Board of Works department is engaged with little work at the present time. A gang of twenty-five is employed part time in cleaning up the streets, but otherwise work is at a standstill. The ground has not dried up sufficiently to allow the completion of the work on the property near the Queen Mary School that was taken into the city last fall.
The erection of the proposed addition to the Sewage Disposal Plant will likely prove the greatest work of the city's workmen this year.

SPECIAL GATHERING
One of the largest meetings in the history of the Friday Night Supper Club will be staged tomorrow evening at the Y.M.C.A. on the occasion of the farewell address of J. F. H. Wallace, who has been chairman of the organization for six years past. Mr. Wallace is leaving the city during the new few days to take up new duties with the Sun Life Assurance Company in Montreal. His successor to leadership in the Friday Night Supper Club will be C. A. Salmonsen.

CHANGES NAME.
The Canadian Department Stores, Ltd., is the gold-lettered sign that has replaced the old Teco Store signs on the two stores of The T. Eaton Company, Ltd., in this city.
The company announced the change in last night's Examiner, and workmen were observed busily engaged in carrying it into effect a few hours later.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT GEORGE ST. W.M.S.

Regular Monthly Meeting of Missionary Association is Held.

The regular March meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of George Street United Church was held in the Board room of the Sunday School Hall with an attendance of over fifty members.

The President, Mrs. E. W. Coon occupied the chair. Group B of which Mrs. Parnell is leader had charge of the devotional exercises which were conducted by Mrs. J. E. J. Millyard. A devotional leaflet was read by Mrs. S. R. Armstrong, followed by prayers by Mrs. Aires. Miss Birnie and Mrs. Parnell, Mrs. Millyard gave fifteen excuses, which so many women give for not attending and helping the Missionary Society. Responsive verses were read from the Bible by a number of ladies giving definite reasons why all should help.

Several announcements were made by the President of coming events, including the Olde Tyme Concert presented by Mark Street choir on Friday evening under the auspices of Mrs. W. P. Hetherington's class in aid of the building fund. A. St. Patrick's tea to be held at the Parsonage under the auspices of Miss Higgins' Sunday School class. This was also in aid of the building fund.

It was decided that the Thank Offering meeting be held on the regular meeting day, the second Tuesday in April, when Mrs. Morr of Springville, president of the Presbyterial will be present.

A committee composed of Mrs. E. W. Coon, Mrs. W. H. Morton and Mrs. E. E. Harvey, were appointed to answer a questionnaire sent from the branch.

The Sick and Visiting Committee of which Mrs. Hales is convenor reported having made 174 calls and the strangers secretary, Mrs. J. Spencer is convenor had made a number of calls on strangers in the city who were attending George Street Church.

A splendid report from China was given by Mrs. Bonney and on the work among the Indians in Canada by Mrs. Latimer.

Mrs. P. Rutherford reported for the Systematic Giving Department and read a leaflet entitled "He is counting on you" preparatory for the Thank offering meeting.

It was decided to give the members of the Mission Band a treat at their next meeting. Mrs. Armstrong and Walker being named as convenors to pick their committee and make all arrangements.

A fine musical number was given by three young men of the Collegiate orchestra, Edwin Wand, Reg. Kingdon and Max Parnell which received hearty applause. Mrs. E. E. Harvey took up the chapter of the Study Book entitled Winning Europe and in a very interesting and concise manner traced the introduction of the Christian religion into Europe from the time Paul saw the vision of the man begging him to come over into Macedonia, up to the time of the Roman conquest of Britan and St. Augustine's work there. She also referred to St. Patrick, his early history and his missionary work and the early work among the people of Holland and Denmark. Mrs. Coon expressed her thanks to Mrs. Harvey and the members of the Collegiate Orchestra for their fine contributions to the program.

Faced By Broker's Demand, Girl Suicides

LOTTIE NUGENT TAKES OWN LIFE IN TORONTO HOME

Brokers Had Called Upon Her to Pay $4,421.77 Within Six Days.

30 YEARS OF AGE.

Former Peterborough Girl is Found Dead in Her Room in Toronto.

TORONTO, Ont., March 14 —(Special to The Examiner.)—That Lottie Nugent, formerly of Peterborough, who took her own life in her gas-filled room early this morning, was faced with a six day demand from her brokers demanding that she pay $4,421.77 to close out her account was revealed by police in their investigation into the case.

On Week's Vacation.

Letter is Found.

Search of her room by Sergeant Follett of the Markham London station who answered Mrs. Agar's call for assistance, revealed brokers' letters among her effects.

Miss Nugent left no personal messages of any kind. Police arrived within a few minutes of the discovery. The body was still warm. Sergeant Follet immediately carried it to an open window and commenced artificial respiration. With doctors who were called in, he worked for over an hour but could not bring life back to the newly dead form.

It is believed that death came very shortly before the discovery was made.

TORONTO, March 14 (Special to The Examiner).—Lottie Nugent, aged 30, a former resident of Peterborough, and whose father, William Nugent, resides at 210 Prince Street of that city, died this morning in her room at 353 Huron Street from the effects of inhaling gas fumes. The case is thought to be one of suicide, though police are investigating to find any clues to possible violence or other causes of death.

The late Miss Nugent was a stenographer by profession. Coroner Crawford ordered the removal of the body to the city morgue, where an autopsy will be performed.

Found By Roomer.

Miss Nugent's body was found by a fellow-roomer, May Anger, who when she discovered that Miss Nugent was not up as she passed her door on her way to work, knocked and, receiving no response, advised the landlord, who broke into the room.

The body was found stretched out in bed and the wall bracket turned on full.

That the case was one of premeditated suicide was proven, police stated, by the fact that the cracks around the door had been carefully plugged up with newspapers to prevent escape of the gas from the room.

Relatives in Peterborough were notified this morning through the police of that city.

CHANNEL TUNNEL FEASIBLE

LONDON, March 14 (C.P.)—Committees studying the project for an English Cannel tunnel to connect England and France made public a report to-day saying that they could see nothing against the feasibility of such a project.

Woman, Lion, Bear All Die in Fight

CASSEL, Germany, Mar. 14 C.P. —A woman lion tamer's heroic attempt to separate a battling lion and bear in a circus menagerie wagon proved fatal to herself and to the beasts yesterday.

The tamer entered the cage armed only with a wire whip, and wrenched the bear from the lion's claws. Suddenly the lion leaped on the woman and clawed her. Attendants dragged her from the cage after shooting the lion. The bear died from his injuries.

LORAIN, Ohio, March 14. (CP) Fred Hentrie, 42, Detroit, alleged rum runner supposedly bed-ridden from wounds received when Coast Guardsmen shelled his armor-plated tug, escaped from a hospital here last night.

Despite two serious bullet wounds in his back which lulled his guard into a feeling of security, Hentrie arose from his cot and leaped through a ground floor window. An automobile was standing outside with the engine running, police learned. It was traced to a Cleveland gangster by the license number.

U. S. and Japanese Rumored to Have Reached Agreement.

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, March 14. — France and Italy, the two great rivals of the Naval Conference, got together for a heart-to-heart talk this afternoon.

Throughout yesterday Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, as chairman of the Conference, with Secretary of State Henry Stimson of the United States was busily engaged in trying to heal the breach which was largely responsible for the conference deadlock.

Stimson meets Grandi.

To-day Mr. Stimson had a talk with Dino Grandi, the Italian Foreign Minister, and later Signor Grandi met M. Briand, the French Foreign Minister, for a discussion of their differences. Premier MacDonald had interviewed both the Italian and French delegates yesterday separately. Mr. MacDonald will have a further talk with Premier Andre Tardieu of France at Chequers on Sunday.

U. S. WILL AGREE TO DEEPENING OF RIVER CHANNELS

Make No Objection to Canada Using American Channels While Cutting Waterway.

GOES TO PRESCOTT.

Be Financial Arrangement Later to Cover Expense of Undertaking.

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 14.—(C.P.) — The United States government is about to reply favorably to the Canadian Government concerning proposals of the latter for deepening the channel of the St. Lawrence River from Lake Ontario to Prescott. The United States, it is understood, will raise no objection to Canada making use of the American channels in cutting a waterway which will enable vessels of considerable draft to proceed from the lake to Prescott. The project is said to be a matter of cutting away shoals and dredging in the river particularly in that section extending from Alexandria Bay to Brockville.

Discussing the St. Lawrence project as a whole with the Canadian Press yesterday, Senator Allen suggested that eventually "when the waterway is completed there would have to be some kind of financial settlement between the governments to cover whatever had been expended in the development of particular sections.

It is said here that while the Ontario to Prescott stretch of the river may in the future become part of the larger project its immediate development is desired for the benefit of grain shippers.

ENGINEER TRACES RAPID GROWTH OF MOTION PICTURES

Sol Goldenhamer of the Northern Electric Company Addresses the Kiwanis Club.

DEMAND INCREASING.

Greater Developments Are Prophesied Within the Next Few Years By Speaker.

Tracing the marvellous evolution of motion pictures from their first crude beginnings back in 1850 to the present day perfection of "talkies," technicolor and grander pictures, Sol Goldenhamer, assistant chief engineer and acoustic expert of the Northern Electric Company, in addressing the noon luncheon of the Kiwanis Club to-day promised even greater improvements in the motion picture industry in the near future.

"You, the theatre-going public, have demanded this new form of entertainment in your quest for something new in the line of entertainment, and science has given it to you," he said. "How are those in the scientific field further to satisfy your demands? We realize that you won't be satisfied very long even with the talking pictures, and we are endeavoring to meet your every damand. With things moving so fast I almost hesitate even to predict what is coming in the future. I am confident, however, that time will not be very long, when you will be able to go to your local theatre and enjoy seeing, as well as hearing a prize fight or some other current news feature, at the same time as the event is actually taking place, possibly some thousand miles distant.

"Third dimensional pictures are almost perfected. In the past the screen has only been able to protray to dimensions, width and height. With this new development a perception of depth will also be possible. Two weeks ago one of the largest theatres in New York city displayed what are called "grandeur pictures." That film used in this process is twice as wide as ordinary film and projects a picture the whole width of the theatre, making it possible to view very large scenes at one time with very great effect.

Greater Developments

"So it is quite obvious," said Mr. Goldenhammer" that within the next year or two advances almost as important as the talkie itself, are not improbable."

The first attempt to make pictures move was the 'wheel of life" invented by Dr. Campbell around 1850. This consisted of numerous drawings which were pasted in the interior of a drum which, when viewed while revolving rapidly, gave the appearance of moving pictures.

Mr. Edison was the first to actually devise a machine that even slightly gave the effect of motion pictures. Rapid strides followed the invention of Mr. Eastman, president

LEGION OFFICIALS EXTEND DEMANDS

Bring Up Questions of Estimation of Disability in Case of Further Wars.

SET 10 PER CENT. LIMIT.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 14 (C.P.).—War veterans' representatives throughout the Canadian Legion will propose in their legislative proposals to the Government that in the case of war aggravation of a pre-war disability at the time of enlistment should no case be estimated at more than 10 per cent.

Under the present Pension Act, where there is a disability that existed prior to enlistment, the Pension Board may assess the amount of aggravation caused by war services, and in some cases, Legion officials claim the Board has ruled in cases of men with 100 per cent. disability that only 25 per cent. was war aggravation, deciding the men were 75 per cent. disabled on enlistment. In the view of Veterans' officials, no doctor would have permitted a man to go to war with 75 per cent. disability.

In some cases where physical disability was obvious and placed on the record, such as in the case of men passed by sympathetic medical officers even though they had an artificial eye or a wooden leg, veterans' officials say they would not expect the Board to assess that at only 10 per cent. But in the case of disease, Legion officials contend no man should have passed the severe medical test in Canada and England before going to France if he had any serious pre-war disability.

GANDHI MOVES TOWARD COAST WITH HIS BAND

Policemen at Vasna Resign After Hearing Addresses.

WAR COUNCIL FORMED.

Calcutta Mayor Leaves For Rangoon to Face Sedition Charge.

NAWAGON, India, March 14 Canadian Press). — Mahatma Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, left here at dawn to-day with his 79 devotees for their third day's march toward Jalapur in the inauguration of the movement for Indian independence. They arrived shortly at Vasna, and intended to proceed to Mater, where they will halt for the night.

In an address before the villagers at Nawagon, Gandhi congratulated the eight head men who resigned as a protest against Vallaobhai Patel's imprisonment. He exhorted them to manufacture and to wear homespun cloth and to volunteer as civil resistance workers.

Police Head Men Resign.

His exhortation for severance of Government connections also brought about the resignation of police head men at Vasna and Mahalal. The villagers vowed in Gandhi's presence not to fill the vacancies.

At the start of his march to-day, Gandhi addressed the newspapermen who are following his movements, asking them to be patriotic and to support the country's clause.

Gandhi and his associates are journeying from Ahmadabad to Jalapur on the Bay of Cambay, where they will manufacture salt in violation of the British Government monopoly. The action is expected to be the first definitely serious move in a campaign of civil disobedience to bring about complete Indian independence.

War Council Formed

POONA, Bombay, March 14 (C.P.) —A "war" council of eleven members was appointed by India Nationalists to-day to organize passive resistance to the British Government in Poona and this district.

One hundred volunteers enrolled and decided to march to a suburban district of Bombay on the seacoast and manufacture salt in violation of the British monopoly.

Mayor Goes to Trial

CALCUTTA, India, March 14 (C.P.) —J. M. Sengupta, Mayor of Calcutta, who is under arrest on a charge of sedition, left his home in a motor car procession to-day for the docks where he embarked on the steamer Sirdhana for Rangoon. He must answer the Government's charges there.

He was garlanded profusely, and his forehead was painted with vermilion marks on the occasion of to-day's Hind's Festival. In his parting message to his people Mayor Sengupta advised:

The men left Madagascar on Jan. 10, and were last seen on the 13th near Port Granqui fighting high winds. They were found in the great Kasai forest.

KAYE DON READY TO TEST HIS CAR

Giant Automobile Will Probably Be Tried Out at Daytona To-day.

BEACH IS NOT GOOOD.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 14 (C.P.)—Kaye Don, British driver, who seeks to break the world's automobile speed record, prepared to take his giant car onto the beach course today and probably again Saturday to limber it up and get accustomed to the performance of the machine and the "feel" of the beach.

The car never has been driven since it left its factory in Wolverhampton, England, and certain adjustments to obtain proper carburation probably will be necessary after the preliminary tests.

Don's sister, Mrs. Rita Livesey, who accompanied him here from Great Britain, has been selected to christen the car. Beach conditions indicated an official speed trial would not be feasible before next week.

Appears Anxious

In contrast to the carefree attitude of Sir Henry Segrave, who set the present record of 231 miles an hour here last year, and Captain Malcolm Campbell, who clipped off 206 two years ago to set a former record, Don appears anxious that his efforts be successful.

Although he won the British racing championship in 1928 and 1929, and has at least ten years' racing experience, Don's past performances have been at a speed of 100 miles an hour less than the pace of 240 miles an hour, which he hopes to attain here.

Made Record on July

When he clipped off 136 miles an hour at Brooklands on July 1, 1929, to set a world's record for automobiles of from 183 to 305 cubic inches piston displacement it was the fastest he ever had travelled over a mile route, although for one kilometre on the same date he set a mark of 140 miles an hour. He also holds the record for the mile at 100.77 from a standing start.

Virtually all of the weight of the two heavy motors of the car Don has here rests near the centre of the chassis which has a wheel base of 15 feet 5 inches. Don, however, has expressed confidence in the machine and said that he has little worry that mechanical difficulties would be experienced on the trials.

One Little Finger Is Worth $24,000

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., March 14 (Canadian Press). — A crushed finger, if it belongs to a concert pianist, is worth $24,000, a jury in State Supreme Court decided to-day in awarding that amount to Miss Marguerite Volay in her suit against the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. The little finger of her left hand was crushed in a door of a car in May, 1924.

NEW PLANET IS FIRST VIEWED IN DARK ROOM

Discovered By Clyde Tombough While Developing Photo Plates.

ASTRONOMERS UNEXCITED.

Believe It May Be the Lu King Lowell Planet—May Yet Be Mistake.

(By Claude Tombaugh)

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., March 14.—(Canadian Press).—How would you feel if you saw a new world giving you the high sign from beyond the rim of the solar system? That is what happened to me in the dark room when I was running another bunch of photo plates through the machine.

"Just a strange flicker of starlight in a routine day's work.

"Excited? I should say so. That is no word for it. I just didn't know what to do or think, or how to act.

"Sure, I was the first to see it, but the whole Lowell staff has been working on it for a quarter of a century. I was just lucky. That was all there was to it.

Astronomers Unexcited

"And what did the others say when I called them in to see it—well, you know how these astronomers are. They are used to thinking in terms of millions of years and millions of miles. They weren't excited. They said it might possibly be the Lu King Lowell planet, but they would have to watch it further to check it with data they had been gathering so long.

"This happened Feb. 18, and we have all been working on it ever since. Only last night did they feel sure enough about it to make an announcement—and even yet, there might be a mistake—but we don't think so.

"You know I am not a real astronomer—guess you couldn't call me one at all. I'm just interested in stars and have been all my life. When I was a kid back on the farm in Kansas an uncle used to tell me about the stars. Then I got all the books about stars and the skies I could find.

Got Job Last Fall

"One day last fall I just decided I was going to do what I wanted to do most in the world. I had always been interested in Lowell observatory at Flagstaff, I had read a lot about what they had done there. So I just wrote to Dr. Slipher and asked for a job, telling him I would do any kind of work. And they put me to work on the dome in which I later took the picture which revealed this new planet.

"I guess I'll just keep on taking pictures of stars. That is what I like to do. I am studying Mars and the Moon now. There is enough here to keep me busy for a long time."

TRANSFER TAX IS BASIS OF INQUIRY

Liberal Leader Asks Public Accounts Committee to Produce Three Officials.

TORONTO, Ont., March 14 (C.P.) —W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., Liberal Leader, took steps before the Public Accounts Committee of the Ontario Legislature this morning to throw open as far as possible the discussion of Government control of brokers and their transactions. He moved that on next Wednesday, F. M. Turnbull, Assistant Provincial Treasurer; J. T. White, K.C., Controller of Revenue, and W. A. Orr, Assistant Controller, appear before the committee ready to explain an item in the public accounts of $620,314 as revenue from the stock transfer tax.

"As far as I can do," Mr. Sinclair told the press, "I will reopen the brokerage situation discussion through this committee. In other words, it will be my own Royal Commission."

After Hon. W. D. Black, former Speaker of the House had been elected chairman, and Mr. Sinclair made his motion, the committee adjourned until next Wednesday.

MRS. BEATRICE GRANT, KINGSTON, IS BLAMED BY THE COBOURG JURY FOR DEATH OF CLIFFORD THOMPSON

Mrs. Thompson, Widow of the Deceased Young Farmer, is Given $9,000 and Costs.

SOUGHT $20,000.

Case Held Rapt Attention of Crowded Court Room Throughout Hearing.

COBOURG, March 14.—Placing the responsibility for the death of Clifford Thompson in a highway accident four miles west of here on August 15 last entirely upon Mrs. Beatrice L. Grant of Kingston, who was driving the car that caused the fatality, a jury in the Spring Assizes yesterday afternoon awarded Mrs. Thompson, widow of the deceased young farmer, $9,000 and costs.

In her suit against Mrs. Grant, the plaintiff had asked for $20,000. A stay of fifteen days was allowed by Mr. Justice Garrow. In fact His Lordship suggested that respite to enable the defendant to consider the question of an appeal. Her solicitor, Thos. Agar, K.C., of Toronto, had left at noon upon the completion of the argument. T. N. Phelan, K.C., of Toronto, and A. R. Willmott of Cobourg were the plaintiff's solicitors. The jury was out nearly three hours.

The Defense Plea.

In reviewing his case to the jury Mr. Agar stressed two points; one, that Thompson turned across the pavement to enter a lane on the north side of the highway without giving any warning signal of his intention of doing so. In moving from a place of safety into a place of danger he should have first satisfied himself that he had ample time to do so. Another point stressed was that from the time the horses started to cross the road until the collision occurred, the team traveled fifteen feet, or about six paces, and this movement, according to the plaintiff's witness, was completed in from three to five seconds too brief a period to enable Mrs. Grant to avoid the accident.

"The Crux of the Case."

Mr. Phelan argued that the crux of the case was the distance the automobile and the horses were apart when Thompson started to turn his cultivator off the highway. The defense contention that this distance was only three car lengths was absurd, Mr. Phelan declared. Mrs. Grant car must have been from 300

SEVEN BUILDINGS RAZED.

Three Hundred Families in Everett Flee as Homes Are Threatened.

EVERETT, Mass., March 14.— (C.P.)—Fire early to-day destroyed the Merrimac Chemical Company plant at South Everett with a total loss of $500,000. Firemen from eight cities fought the flames, with frequent explosions and poisonous fumes endangering their lives.

Seven buildings, three and four storey wooden structures, were burned with their contents and equipment. Chief Philip Ham, veteran chief of the Everett Fire Department, and Chief Daniel Sennott of the Boston Department, and five other men were overcome and 100 firemen were affected by the sulphurous fumes.

The fire spread to the repair yards of the Boston Elevated System, burning a number of cars. The nearby Beacon Oil Company plant and the brick shops, station and tracks of the Elevated System were threatened at the height of the blaze.

Borne on a stiff wind, the smoke and fumes were carried towards the heart of the city and 300 families were roused by police and volunteer workers to leave their tenements. Flaming brands spread over a wide area, setting small fires on several buildings and the oil soaked marsh behind the Oil Company plant afire.

The fire started in the lacquer building of the plant. Aid was summoned from Boston, Malden, Chelsea, Revere, Medford, Somerville and Winthroy. A fire boat fought the flames from the river side of the plant.

LORD'S DAY ACT DRIVE

TORONTO, (U.P.) — Police here have started a campaign against tobacco selling on Sundays, which is contrary to the Lord's Day Act. Several merchants were fined $5 for violating the law.

CHANGE CEREMONY WORDS

GENEVA, N.Y. (U.P.)—A marriage ceremony performed here differed slightly from the orthodox vows in that the bride requested the words "as long as we love each other or until legally divorced," which were substituted for "until death do us part." The bride was Mary J. Dildine of this city and Lester W. Wesner of Watsonville, P The marriage was performed by City Judge George Ditmars

Peterboro Health Association Bulletin

VOL. II. MARCH 14th, 1930. No. 6

The Peterboro Health Association in its work throughout the City knows no race, creed or color, like the rain that falls upon the just and unjust; it ministers to all. In the more than sixteen hundred calls made by the nurse last year, none were asked questions of church or creed; they were suffering and needed help, that was sufficient.

Many were too proud to appeal to public charity, and their destitute condition would never have come to light, if sickness had not fallen upon them, and the attending physician called for the Health Association Nurse.

There's many a little chair in some humble home that would now be vacant if it had not been for nourishment, medical attention and skillful nursing furnished them. A vacant chair in any home, no matter how humble, means as much as though it were vacant in a palace. This community work goes on day after day, month after month, throughout the entire year, but it is only once a year that financial support is asked for from Peterboro citizens. It is a community project to build up the health of our own city and a cause worthy of everyone's support.

Bourassa Bill Is Beaten In House

SECOND DIVORCE BILL DEFEATED BY 56 MAJORITY

Henri Bourassa Proposed to Remove Issue From Dominion Statutes.

PARTY LINES CUT.

Western Members Strongly Against Measure—Miss MacPhail Surprised.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 14 (Canadian Press). — Another Bill respecting divorce went down to defeat in the House of Commons yesterday. This time the measure was sponsored by Henri Bourassa, Independent member for Labelle, and its effect would have been to remove from the Federal jurisdiction the question of divorce. It was introduced in the form of an amendment to the Marriage and Divorce Act.

The House recorded its disapproval of the proposed legislation in no uncertain terms. The Bill was defeated by a vote of 114 to 58, a majority of 56 against the measure.

Support came largely from French-Canadian members of the House, but party lines were cut. Members of the U.F.A., Progressive, and Labor groups present all recorded their votes against the Bill, while A. W. Neill, Independent member for Comox-Alberni, Mr. Bourassa's seat-mate, was also opposed.

Premier Absent.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King was not in the House when the division took place, but Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, voted in favor of the Bourassa Bill. The other members of the Cabinet present, Hon. T. A. Crerar, Hon. C. A. Dunning, Hon. Charles Stewart, Hon. J. H. King, Hon. J. C. Elliott, and Hon. W. D. Euler, were all opposed. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative Leader, also voted against the Bill.

As the bill was a private member's proposal, its fate did not affect the Government.

Strongly opposed to the bill were nearly all the western members present. J. T. Thorson, Liberal member for Winnipeg south centre, had opposed the amendment on the ground that it was "iniquitous legislation—absolutely unjust." He took the ground that the passage of the bill would repeal the 1925 legislation which placed women in the same position as men insofar as grounds for divorce are concerned. Miss Agnes MacPhail, Progressive member for Southeast Grey, expressed surprise that Mr. Bourassa should ask Parliament to double back on its tracks by attempting to divest women of the four Western Provinces of the rights which they had so recently won.

Bourassa's Views

In supporting his bill, Mr. Bourassa took the position that jurisdiction in marriage and divorce should belong to the Provinces. The primary object of the bill was to do away with what he considered a social evil. Also it was aimed at a readjustment of the relative powers of the Confederation pact, he asserted.

BUDGET DEBATE TO END TUESDAY

J. F. Strickland Defends Price's Policy—Eleven Members Take Part.

WIDE RANGE OF SUBJECTS.

TORONTO, March 14 (C.P.) — When eleven members of the Legislature took part yesterday in the Budgt debate, it cleared the way for a division next Tuesday. Premier G. H. Ferguson, W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., Liberal Leader, and Hon. H. C. Nixon, head of the Progressive group will speak then.

Practically every subject in municipal, Provincial and Federal politics entered the debate yesterday. Many members made their maiden speeches.

The members who spoke were T. J. Mahoney (Cons., Wentworth South); D. M. Ross (Prog., North Oxford); Rev. W. G. Martin (Cons., Brantford); T. P. Murray (Lib., Renfrew); T. H. Bell (Cons., Toronto); T. A. Blacklock (Lib., Halton); J. F. Strickland (Cons., Peterborough); F. W. McKay (Lib., Bruce North); F. G. McArthur (Cons., Northumberland); F. V. Laughton (Cons., North Middlesex), and H. J. Davis (Cons., Elgin East).

J. F. Strickland (Cons., Peterborough) commended the Government for its budget and took up cudgels in defence of Hon. W. H. Price.

"The member for Dufferin said the other day that what was needed was a Nickle or a Raney in the office of the attorney-general. But I would remind the honorable member for Dufferin that the people showed who they wanted in that office," he said. "All that we expect from the attorney-general is an efficient administration and the elimination of the conditions exposed. And the people are receiving just that kind of service," declared Mr. Strickland.

ERIE NAVIGATION OPENS.

LONDON, Ont., March 14.—(C.P.)—Navigation on Lake Erie opened yesterday with the sailing of the ferrys Marquette and Bessemer to Port Stanley from Conneaut, Ohio. The Bessemer reported the lake clear of ice.

All Sky Wires May Not Lead to Radios

BRANTFORD, March 14.—(C.P.)—Roger Lee, county engineer, failed to obtain a radio license, and appeared in court yesterday. A government official proved that he had seen a wire strung in the sky, and also stated that the accused had no permit. He stepped down, and Magistrate Jofs casually inquired whether or not Mr. Lee had a radio. The official had overlooked this important detail. The county engineer was discharged since one must have a radio to obtain a license.

PROBE OF 1926 TRAGEDY URGED

T. P. Murray Claims Many Believe Foul Play Involved in Haliburton Deaths.

TWO BURNED IN SHACK.

TORONTO, Ont., March 14 (Canadian Press). — That there was foul play in the deaths of William Stringer and John Billings, Ontario forest rangers, in Haliburton, four years ago; that the situation was never cleared up; and that the Government should investigate it thoroughly, was the thought expressed last night in the Ontario Legislature by Thomas P. Murray (Liberal, South Renfrew).

Referring to the deaths, Mr. Murray declared that a number of people had thought that there was foul play.

It was also believed, he added, that the Government should have sent an officer in to the district in disguise to investigate.

Both of these men, said he were soldiers of the Empire who had come to an untimely death. Surely the matter should be investigated. One in particular had an outstanding record.

Stringer and Billings were believed burned to death in a shack in Haliburton County some time between January 8 and 20, 1926. An arrest was made in connection with the case.

LINDSAY FIREMEN ANSWER ALARMS WHILE ON STRIKE

Officially Lindsay Has Only Two Fire Fighters—Volunteers Strike.

ANSWERS 3 CALLS.

Asked For Raise of $100 in Salary and Town Council Granted $50.

LINDSAY, March 14. — Officially Lindsay has only two firefighters, Chief Herbert McCullum and Asst.-Chief Ross McArthur. The volunteer firemen having demanded a $100 raise in salary, with the ultimatum that they would all quit if they did not get it.

The Town Council refused this demand, but offered a $30 increase, with Wednesday noon as the time limit for acceptance. The men decided not to accept, so automatically resigned after the time limit had expired.

Yesterday three fire calls were received. One at five o'clock in the morning being of great potential danger. The scene of the outbreak was in Curtin's grinding mill. It was first noticed by Norman Mark of the Maple Leaf Dairy, who hurried round to the fire hall to call the Chief. Responding promptly, the Chief, his assistant and H. J. Metheral turned out with the fire truck, and with the help of Mr. Mark and Croft Newsome, got the hose turned on the flames. Within a few minutes the erstwhile strikers put in an appearance and took over the work. Had the men refused to turn out it is probable that the mill would have been a total loss.

Nothing definite has yet been done to reach a settlement of the deadlock, but a special committee of the Town Council, with J. J. Hussey as chairman, is meeting soon to talk the matter over.

There are two sides to this wage dispute—as indeed there are generally two sides to any question. Briefly stated, they are, that the Town Council thinks the volunteer firemen are better paid than any other volunteer brigade in the province for a town the size of Lindsay, and the firemen do not agree, contending that they do not get enough money to cover actual expenses, let alone remunerate them for the risks they take and which they may be called upon to make.

LABORITE GOV'T SUSTAINED ON CENSURE VOTE

Backed By Liberals, MacDonald's Party is Given 73 Majority.

Snowden Scores Opposition.

LONDON, March 14 (C.P.).—The expected happened yesterday. The Macdonald Labor Government was sustained in the House of Commons in face of a vote of censure on the Government's tariff policy moved by the Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative and Opposition leader. The Government was given a new lease of office, but the feeling is still general that Tuesday's reverse on the Coal Mines Bill was the handwriting on the wall. Yesterday's vote was 308 to 235.

The Liberals had announced they would support the Government; Sir Herbert Samuel complimented Mr. Snowden, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, on his fiscal policy, and Mr. Baldwin was reconciled in advance to the result.

Unemployment To Be Downfall.

"The Government will win tonight," he said, "but rain washed away the corn laws, and so will unemployment wash away this Government."

Had the Conservatives changed the wording of their motion the issue might have been in doubt. As it was, the Liberals were almost bound to vote with the administration when the Safeguarding and McKenna duties and the Government's supposed coldness to them were made the gauge of the battle. The Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden blamed the Opposition directly in the matter of unemployment. Their gloomy propaganda, he charged, had done much to aggravate conditions.

Firemen Overcome In Chemical Blaze

EVERETT, Mass., March 14 (C.P.)—Fire swept the Merrimac Chemical Company plant early to-day.

The fire started in the alum building of the Chemical company and spread rapidly to the centre of the plant. Fire Chief Philip E. Ham of the Everett department and two other men were overcome by chemical fumes.

Aid was also summoned from Chelsea and Melrose. An early estimate declared the loss would exceed $250,000.

OPEN VERDICT IN WRIDE SHOOTING

FRIENDLY WITH NEIGHBORS.

SIMCOE, Ont., March 13. (Canadian Press).—An open verdict was returned by a Coroner's jury indicating last night circumstances surrounding the shooting of Wilson Wride, 21, farmer of Jarvis, near his home on the night of March 7 last.

"We find" the verdict stated "That Wilson Wride came to his death at Norfolk General Hospital at 2.45 a.m. March 8, as the result of gunshot wounds inflicted, according to the evidence adduced, by the shotgun he was carrying, during a scuffle with his wife on the evening of March 7."

According to his widow's story, Wride was insanely jealous of her on account of her friendship with some neighbors. On the night of the shooting she had gone to the home of a Mrs. Evans, but had returned to her home. Wride then went outside and searched for footprints she said, which might show she had gone to see another man. Finding none, she stated, he took his shotgun and a lantern and left the house. She followed and a struggle ensued during which the gun was discharged.

TORONTO, Ont., March 14. —(C.P.)— A spectacular fire in a woodworking shop on Queen street last night threatened to gut a whole block before it was brought under control. Damage was estimated at $70,000.

MILITARY FORCES PREPARE TO PAY COMRADE HONOR

Plane Squadron Will Drop Roses During Last Rites For Col. W. G. Barker.

Toronto Garrison to Attend.

V. C. Holders, Comrades in Royal Air Force and Statesmen Will Join Procession.

TORONTO, Ont., March 14 (C.P.)—A shower of pink rose petals scattered from a squadron of airplanes soaring overhead will furnish the spectacular note amid the solemnity and impressiveness of the funeral rites here on Saturday for Col W. G. Barker, famous war ace killed in an airplane crash at Ottawa Thursday.

A number of the highest military officials of this district and of the Canadian Militia hastened preparations yesterday to honor the noted flier with all the pomp and dignity and sonorous martiality of a funeral befitting an air officer and one of the Empire's heroes. Orders were issued asking all units of the Toronto Garrison forces, both permanent and non-permanent, to have detachments at the funeral, in uniform if possible.

V. C. Holders to Attend

Simultaneously his comrades in arms, particularly who were members of the Royal Air Force during the Great War, got in touch with one another and arranged to pay their last tribute to him. Toronto holders of the Victoria Cross also arranged to attend the funeral in a body.

As the funeral procession slowly wends it way towards the cemetery, with statesmen, Militia officers of the highest rank, and prominent men in all walks of life following the gun carriage, six airplanes will circle above it. They will be piloted by former war pilots, men who knew and admired "Bill" Barker and faced the same dangers as he did, and who will pay sorrowful tribute to the man who went overseas at 20 years of age and returned as one of Canada's greatest heroes and with 52 destroyed German planes to his credit.

PLANET IS FOUND BY ASTRONMER

Long-sought-for World Probably Larger Than Earth Discovered.

AT U.S.A. OBSERVATORY.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 14.—(Canadian Press).—A new world has been found—a planet probably bigger than our own—swinging in a lonely circle far out on the borders of the solar system, more than a billion miles beyond the last previously known outpost.

Behind the announcement that came from the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., to Prof. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard College Observatory, lies one of the most dramatic stories of astronomy.

The very name of the newly discovered world, "Planet X" gives its element of mystery. Strange thought it seems, the plant has been known by that name to astronomers for years for its existence was foretold and its location predicted by Prof. Percival Lowell of the Lowell Observatory, by Prof. William Pickering of Harvard and by certain European observers.

Notice Irregularities

Far back in the nineteenth century, Prof. Shapley of Harvard points out, astronomers noted curious irregularities in the motion of of Saturn and Uranus. Applying the laws of gravity and mathematics it was predicted that another planet would be found within the solar system and its direction was forecast. Discovery of the planet Neptune, 2,689,000,000 miles from the sun resulted.

But still there remained what astronomers called "residual motion" in the paths of Saturn, Uranus and Neptune.

Irregularities of momement that could not be explained by the attraction of the known planets for one another. Thus the existence of still another planet was suspected.

These slight deviations from their regular orbits, Prof. Shapley says, would be almost inconceivably small to the layman's mind. In the case of Uranus, they might be one second —or about one thousandth the diameter of the moon as it appears to the eye.

PLAN TO HONOR FLIERS.

BUFFALO, N.Y., March 13. — Thirteen Polish military fliers will be awarded the insignia of the "Gold Caterpillar" by the Irving Air Chute Company, according to an official announcement issued by Col. Rayski, Chief of the Department of Aviation, Ministry of Military Affairs.

TELEPHONE INCREASE

The net gain in telephones for the past year was 47,211 as compared with 45,862 in 1928, according to the Bell Telephone Company's Annual Report. This increase involved the handling of more than 400,000 telephones, connecting 227,828 and disconnecting 180,617. Of the new telephones installed, 11.7 per cent were extensions added by subscribers to increase the convenience of their service. At the close of 1929, 67.5 per cent of the telephones in service were in residences.

The modern Chamber of Commerce is a contributing factor of considerable proportion and importance in the building of a balanced community, including the locating of substantial industries.

FIRE PROTECTION AND ADEQUATE WATER SUPPLY ARE IMPORTANT FACTORS IN THE HOME LIFE

Campbellford Provided With Best Facilities in Regards to These Necessities.

MODERN FIRE HALL

Volunteer Fire Brigade is One of Most Efficient in the District.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 14 (Examiner Staff Correspondent).—Fire protection and an adequate water service are two of the most important factors in home life to-day. Without proper fire protection a property owner not only endangers his own life and property, but the lives and property of his fellow residents. And without an adequate water supply the community runs a grave risk of the outbreak of disease. Both these risks are brought down to a minimum in Campbellford as a visit to the pumping station and Fire Hall will show.

Pumping Station

The pumping machinery and system is of the best. In permanent operation is a DeLaval pump with a 185 foot head having a capacity of 1400 revolutions per minute. This is driven with a 100 h.p. Canadian Westinghouse motor. This outfit, which was installed in 1928, supplies the town with its water and also runs four streams of hose of 100 to 110 pound pressure. As a reserve force there is a Morris pump capable of 1150 revolutions per minute, driven by a 75 h.p. Westinghouse motor. This was installed in 1913. All water going through this service is chlorine treated.

The fire prevention equipment is in good shape and up-to-date for a town of the size of Campbellford.

The two and a half ton Bickle Engine mounted on a Chevrolet truck carries 1200 feet of hose. In addition it is equipped with a chemical tank, 200 feet of one inch chemical hose, two small extinguishers and ladders totalling 40 feet in length. The wagon carries 80 feet of ladder and the necessary hooks and ropes. There is also a reserve of 700 feet of hose.

A. Redden is in charge of the pumps and Fire Hall with W. Shearer as his assistant, which enables a twenty-four hour a day service.

Volunteer Fire Brigade

The fire brigade, which is volunteer, is one of the most efficient in this part of the country. It comprises twelve men with C. Davidson as its chief and C. Williams assistant chief.

The fire hall itself is undergoing repairs. Hardwood floors are being laid in Mr. Redden's apartment and the installation of a bath is under way. The hall is also to be redecorated and the lighting service is to be rewired.

TORONTO, Mar. 14.—There were no cattle in the first receipts of the live stock in the Union Stock Yards yesterday morning. There were 21 calves, 69 hogs and 2 sheep.

The offering consisted of a few plain cows that had been held over from Wednesday. They sold at from 6¼ to 6¾ cents a pound.

Closing sales Wednesday showed prices steady on good killers and a shade easier for the week on cows and bulls. There were no good calves in the offering yesterday morning, but plain to medium veals sold steady, quality considered, at 8 to 13 cents a pound.

The hog offering consisted of about 100 hogs, including those brought in by truck. Prices were unchanged at 12¼ cents f.o.b. and 13½ cents weighed off cars for bacon.

There were not enough sheep and lambs offered to make a market.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, March 14.—With another drop of from one to two cents yesterday egg prices were reported as having reached the bottim. Country shippers were quoted, for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, 26c to 27c for extras; 24c to 25c for firsts, and 22c for seconds. Dealers quoted the retail trade 34c for extras in cartons; 32c for extras, loose; 30c for firsts, loose, and 27c for seconds, loose. These low prices were not due to any recent purchases of American eggs, as local dealers were not interested in shipments from the United Stats, but to the fact that Ontario receipts have been heavy. Previous receipts of eggs from Chicago were reported as being gradually consumed, and it was expected that they would soon disappear from the market. Retailers in St. Lawrence market here were selling extras at 40c, and firsts at 35c, yesterday, but these prices are not general for the city as some retailers are still getting 45c and 50c for extras. There was a slightly better demand yesterday and it was expected that the market would strengthen, as retailers' prices lowered.

Jobbing

Dealers were willing to buy eggs at 29c for extras, 27c for firsts and 25c for seconds, graded eggs, free cases; but brokers held out for 30c for extras, 28c for firsts, and 26c for seconds. As there was a better demand for extras and firsts, small lots of each changed hands.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, March 14.— Heavy production from United States, Ontario and Quebec sources has reduced local egg prices to such an extent that British Columbia shippers are disinclined to send any eggs to Montreal at this time of the year, although in former years there have been large quantities of the B. C. product on the local market. Producers are not satisfied with the prices they can obtain for eggs laid down here and are holding most of their product for export shipment. Prices here continued to show a downward trend, being quoted here yesterday as follows: Fresh specials, 37c.; fresh extras, 35c.; fresh firsts, 33c.; and fresh seconds, 30c. a dozen.

Butter prices held steady at the recent decline, being quoted at 33¼c. a pound in carlots and 33½c to 33¾c for broken lots. To the retail trade prices of 33c for prints and 37c for solids remained steady.

Potatoes again found lower levels, quotations ranging from $1.40 for New Brunswick Green Mountains to $1.25 for Quebecs, per 90 pounds, in carlots, ex-track here. Cheese was steady at 18¼c. to 18¾c for Easterns and 19c to 19¼c for Westerns.

Refined sugar was reduced 10c per cwt. by Montreal refiners. Weakness in the world sugar markets was said to be responsible for the decline.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 14. — Wheat trading became of a more two-sided character yesterday, the market shifting to a notable degree from recent out-and-out bias downward. Reports were at hand pointing to a considerable impairment of crop prospects from domestic wheat both in the soft wheat belt and in hard wheat territory as well. Meanwhile, however, persistent letting go of May wheat holdings was in progress, especially on the part of Easterners who were acquiring ownership of wheat yet to be harvested.

Final quotations were irregular, ranging from 1⅜c decline to ⅞c advance, compared with Wednesday's finish. Corn closed ⅞c to 1⅜c down, oats unchanged to ⅛c higher, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 12c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, March 14. — Three-quarters of a cent down at the close yesterday, the Winnipeg wheat market was still showing the effect of the new low-price records set up at Wednesday's session. But the close was firm, and news from overseas buyers was the most optimistic in several days. Moderate export business was done overnight, involving more than half a million bushels of Canadian wheat.

Broomhall reiterated his statement that North America would ship about 9,000,000 bushels of wheat weekly until the end of July, and it was considered likely here that Canada will do the bulk of this business.

Cash prices—

Wheat — No. 1 hard, $1.00⅞; No. 1 Northern, $1.00⅞; No.2 Northern, 97⅞; No. 3 Northern 93¾c; No. 4, 89⅝c; No. 5, 83⅛c; No. 6, 63⅝c; feed, 52⅝c track, $1.01⅝; screenings, per ton, $5.00.

TORONTO ISLAND MAY BE FLOODED

Harbor Manager States Level is One Foot 8¼ Inches Above That of Last Year.

CONTINUE TILL MAY

TORONTO, Ont., March 14—(Canadian Press).—If the lake level continues to rise, Toronto Island will be under water this year, the authorities fear. General J. G. Langton, manager of the harbor, reported that the lake level was one foot 8¼ inches higher than at this time last year. Some hope is held that the water will recede when the ice goes out of the St. Lawrence, but harbor authorities say that it is the only hope.

Yesterday the water was 247 feet 8¾ inches above sea level, and on March 12 last year, it was 246 feet 6 inches. The highest the water reached last year was 248 feet 9 inches, a foot higher than at present, but it is expected that the level will continue to rise until May 26.

"The water level is a foot higher now than it was at this time last year," said officials at the filtration plant at the island. "If it goes on rising the people will have to use boats to get to their cottages like they did last year."

AN IMPORTANT CHANGE.

The transference of the Ontario highway traffic officers from the Highways Department to that of the Attorney-General, announced this week, is another important step toward the centralization of law enforcement in this Province—a development that promises to give better results.

Henceforth the highway traffic officers will be part of the Provincial Police Force and while their duties will be practically the same as before, they will be under the control of the commissioner of Provincial Police and of the Attorney-General's Department.

The change has been mooted for some time and has been advocated by the press and by law enforcement officers, but up to the present time Hon. George S. Henry, the Minister of Highways, has refused to agree to handing over his staff of motorcycle officers.

Even yet the Highways Minister says that he is loth to agree to the transfer, but admits that he realizes, however, "the decided advantages to be gained by a consolidation of law enforcement forces," and believes that "with the very complete organization of the Provincial Police Force it will be possible for the officers detailed to the regulation of traffic and the enforcement of the traffic laws to accomplish even greater results than they have accomplished."

This view is very generally shared, and the transfer just agreed upon is expected to prove to great advantage both in the handling of traffic and in the other work of Ontario's Provincial Police.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF AVIATION.

It is a coincidence that while the lamented death of Col. W. G. Barker, the noted Canadian war ace, has concentrated public attention on the dangerous side of aviation, statistics prepared by the Civil Aviation Branch of the Department of National Defence, covering flying activities in Canada last year, show not only that great progress in the use of this newest and speediest form of transportation is being made in this country but that aviation is being developed along safe lines.

There were 29 accidents, involving death or injuries, while the passenger miles flown numbered 5,888,000.

The rapid growth in the use of aircraft is revealed by the fact that Canadian aircraft flew 6,000,000 miles, as compared with 2,728,414 in 1928, and carried 3,700,000 pounds of freight, as against 2,406,682 the previous year, while the flying hours increased from 43,071 in 1928 to 78,000 in 1929.

Incidentally the report speaks volumes for the skill and carefulness of that splendid body of flyers in the Ontario Provincial Air Service, who in spite of the fact that their machines were in the air 11,602 hours and achieved a record of over a million passenger miles last year, had only two minor accidents, involving neither death nor personal injury.

Figures such as these will do much to inspire public confidence in the safety of aviation.

THE DONNELLY CASE.

A precedent set in Canada as long ago as the regime of Sir John Thompson and in accordance with the English practice in this respect, prevents the public from learning the official reasons for the clemency extended to a Senator's son whose jail sentence on a charge of being drunk in charge of a car was cut in two.

The Federal Solicitor-General has declined to produce, at the request of Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P., the papers in the case, declaring that according to the precedent mentioned documents relating to the extension of clemency should be treated as confidential, and that it would not be in the public interest to make them public.

That may be orthodox parliamentary practice, but in this particular case it is difficult to see how the publication of the facts would be harmful to the public interest.

So far as the public has been able to probe into the affair, the reason that young Donnelly was released from jail before his sentence had been completed was because he is the son of a Senator and had influence where it would do him the most good.

The refusal to make public the documents relating to this case will simply confirm the prevelent impression that Donnelly secured his liberty because he had a friend at court.

Such incidents do great harm, for they give reason for the belief that there is one law for those without power or influence and another for more fortunate individuals who have a "pull" available for use in emergencies of this kind.

A TRANS-CANADA HIGHWAY.

Although the question of Federal assistance for road-building has been disposed of for the time being, it seems certain that it will be heard of more and more frequently as the demand for a trans-continental motor highway throughout Canada increases.

There is little doubt of the need of such a highway, for this country with a million automobiles in commission should have a system of good roads extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

We are in a new era and modern demands call for a highway that would permit a citizen of this country, or a tourist for that matter, to drive his car from Halifax to Vancouver.

It is not good business that motorists making a trans-continental trip should have to cross into the United States and for a considerable portion of his journey depend upon American roads, as is the case at present.

A trans-Canada highway is a major public work that is bound to come, and it is difficult to see how the Federal Government can continue to disassociate itself from such a project.

Roads, it is true, are for the most part a provincial responsibility, but a trans-continental highway is a different matter.

It would be unreasonable to expect provincial administrations to carry the whole burden of such an undertaking, for long stretches of such a road would necessitate, it is said, a prohibitive outlay. Under such conditions the Province would be slow to construct highways.

The Border Cities Star says that a trans-Canada highway is a national project in the fullest sense of the expression, and that it transcends any purely provincial consideration.

With that opinion it is to be fancied the majority of Canadians are in agreement.

WHERE BRITAIN LEADS THE WORLD.

It used to be said that there was no sweeter sound in Britain than the rhythmic rattle of riveters' tools and the steady beat of hammers in the shipyards of the Clyde and Tyne. For it meant that times were good, shipbuilding being the industry which, more than any other, seemed to reflect trade and business conditions generally. When the stocks were filled and the air vibrated with the hammermen's chorus, all was well; when silence reigned in the yards and keels were not in sight, there was depression all round.

As an index, or barometer of British trade the shipbuilding industry still retains much of its former significance. But conditions have changed and are changing, creating new problems and necessitating new methods, and a number of the leading British shipbuilders have come to realize that these conditions can only be met by concerted action and a process of rationalization. Hence, as a preliminary step in that direction, the formation of a company, bearing the name of the National Shipbuilders' Security Limited, which will tackle the problem of readjusting the shipbuilding capacity of the country to the prospective demand for tonnage.

At first sight, the movement may seem somewhat ominous, since it is proposed to "close all redundant or obsolete shipyards with the object of concentrating building in a smaller number of yards and reducing overhead administrative costs and tax burdens." But as those behind the scheme explain, this does not mean a reduction of the shipbuilding capacity, or a limitation of the means of production, nor will it necessarily cause additional unemployment. On the contrary, the assurance is given by the shipbuilders that a policy of concentration, with reduced overhead costs, will strengthen their power to compete with foreign rivals and thereby insure steadier and increased employment.

Among the factors that have brought about the present situation are the decline in warship building and the increase in the size of merchant ships. Just how far Britain has gone in the direction of naval armament limitation, without waiting for the results of the five-power conference, may be judged from the statement of the shipbuilders that "to-day only one-seventh of the pre-war tonnage is being constructed." As for the merchant ships and passenger liners, their increased size and greater tonnage have meant fewer vessels, a smaller number of berths and, consequently, inequality in the distribution of orders.

Yet, notwithstanding these and other difficulties in spite of the almost frantic efforts of her foreign rivals to keep pace with her on the seas, in the building of ships, as her last year's record showed, Britain continues to lead the world.—Ottawa Journal.

A MURDER A DAY.

(From "America" Weekly)

Last year an undesirable citizen in Chicago organized a company to deal in hold-ups and murders. As a business man he had his ups and downs, but, on the whole, he was fairly successful. Recently, however, a little business deal failed to return the usual profit. He had stopped an automobile and ordered the driver to give up his valuables. When the driver hesitated, the business man murdered him. By an oversight, all this was done in the presence of witnesses, one of them a policeman, and this official politely escorted the business man to jail.

In due course, the business man's attorney made much of the fact that his client had pleaded guilty. It may be that he exaggerated the value of this concession, since the State had witnesses to prove its case, but he argued that his client's confession should avert the death penalty. "Capital punishment is unpopular in the civilized world," he informed the court, "and is a hideous relic of the past." He might have added that it was even more unpopular with associations formed for murderous purposes, but this omission was supplied by the attorney for the State. "The enforcement of the death penalty," he argued, "is the only solution of our crime problem of one murder every day."

It is difficult to dissent from this assertion. On February 5, the Chicago Tribune chronicled the "seventh gang shooting and the fifth murder in less than a week, and it was only one of a number of outstanding news items in Chicago's crime wave developments during the day." Some of the unnoted items concerned bombing of private residences, and the discovery of caches of dynamite in a hotel room. The police, reports the Tribune, are "massing their forces." A concerted drive followed during the next week. As a contributor to this Review wrote some weeks ago, it would be interesting to know what would happen were there an execution, not for every murder, but for every other murder. The scheme seems worth trying. There is a vast deal of argument in support of the theory that capital punishment does not "deter." Warden Lawes, of Sing Sing, himself an outstanding opponent of capital punishment, said not long ago (New York Times, February 10) that we have about 100,000 homicides every year and about 100 executions. Perhaps capital punishment does not deter, but all that we know as fact is that speedy infliction of this punishment for murder is rare. What might happen in case a punishment, occasionally imposed, were abolished by statute, is mere speculation.

Punishment has other ends than deterrence. One is the restoration of the balance of justice disturbed by crime. Another is the protection of the individual citizen in his peace, his goods, and his life. Still another rises out of the duty of the State to preserve good order in the community. We do not know whether in this country a hanging following fast upon every murder would decrease the number of murders. But we are quite sure that it would decrease the number of murderers.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Sir Henry Segrave, holder of the world's automobile record, has been fined for speeding. The 45-mile-an-hour rate that got him into trouble must, however, have felt like a crawl to the crack driver.

Australia is to take a referendum on the question of introducing the dole system. Apparently the British experiment in this direction has not frightened off other countries.

There may be another fight on the divorce bill question during the present session. At least Wm. Irvine, M.P., has started a drive that may lead to the House having to deal with the matter.

Let us see, who in Ontario ever asked the Federal Parliament to present this Province with a divorce court?

A Thought

A PRAYER FROM A LITTLE ROOM

Here is a quiet room;
Pause for a little space,
And in the stillness cool
With hands before thy face
Pray for God's grace.

Let no unholy thought
Enter thy musing mind;
Things that the world has wrought
Unclean, untrue, unkind,
Leave them behind.

Pray for the strength of God;
Strength to await His plan.
Rise from the knees less clod
Thany when thy prayer began,
More of a man.

THE GREENE MURDER CASE

By S. S. VAN DINE

CHAPTER 22.

Sibella tossed her cigarette into a receiver, and began abstractedly to pet the dog in her lap. "And now, I suppose, you want to know if I heard the shot. Well, I didn't. So you may continue the inquisition from that point."

"You were in your room, though, at the time of your brother's death?" inquired Vance.

"I was in my room all morning," she said. "My first appearance beyond the threshold was when Sproot brought the sad tidings of Rex's passing. But Dr. Von Blon shooed me back again; and there I've remained until now. Model behavior, don't you think for a member of this new and wicked generation?"

"What time did Dr. Von Blon come to your room?" asked Vance.

Sibella gave him a faint whimsical smile.

"I'm so glad it was you who asked that question. I'm sure Mr. Markham would have used a disapproving tone—though It's quite au fait to receive one's doctor in one's douboir.—Let me see. I'm sure you asked Dr. Von Blon the same question, so I must be careful. * * * A little before eleven, I should say."

"The doc's exact words," chimed in Heath suspiciously.

Sibella turned a look of amused surprise upon him.

"Isn't that wonderful! But then, I've always been told that honesty is the best policy."

"And did Dr. Von Blon remain in your room until called by Sproot?" pursued Vance.

"Oh, yes. He was smoking his pipe. Mother detests pipes, and he often sneaks into my room to enjoy a quiet smoke.

"And what were you doing during the doctor's visit?"

"I was bathing this ferocious animal." She held up the Pomeranian for Vance's inspection.

"Doesn't he look nice?"

"In the bathroom?"

"Naturally. I'd hardly bathe him in the poudriere."

"And was the bathroom door closed?"

"As to that I couldn't say. But it's quite likely. Dr. Von is like a member of the family, and I'm terribly rudeto him sometimes."

Vance got up.

"Thank you very much, Miss Greene. We're sorry we had to trouble you. Do you mind remaining in your room for a while?"

"Mind? On the contrary. It's about the only place I feel safe." She walked to the archway. "If you do find out anything you'll let me know—won't you? There's no use pretending any longer. I'm dreadfully scared." Then, as if ashamed of her admission, she went quickly down the hall.

Just then Sproot admitted the two fingerprint experts—Dubois and Bellamy—and the official photographer. Heath joined them in the hall and took them upstairs, returning immmeditately.

"And now what, sir?"

Markham seemed lost in gloomy speculation, and it was Vance who answered the sergeant's query.

"I rather think," he said, "that another verbal bout with the pious Hemming and the taciturn Frau Mannheim might dispose of a loose end or two."

Hemming was sent for. She came in laboring under intense excitement. Her eyes fairly glittered with the triumph of the prophetess whose auguries have come to pass. But she had no information whatever to impart. She had spent most of the forenoon in the laundry, and had been unaware of the tragedy until Sproot had mentioned it to her shortly before our arrival. She was voluble, however, on the subject of divine punishment, and it was with difficulty that Vance stemmed her oracular stream of words.

(By J. H. BURNHAM)

Having been for nine years on the Divorce Committee of the House of Commons, I think I know a little about this question and as nobody else appears to have anything to say, it will do no harm to reply to some of the many questions being asked about it.

To begin with, let me state that I am against the right to remarry, on moral as well as Biblical grounds. It leads to what we see in the United States. Separation is of course permitted at any time. The real question, therefore, is simply that of the right to re-marry. It must be remembered that dissolution of marriage by Parliament leaves children without a married parentage. After the divorce they are nowhere as legitimate children. I was so disgusted by the horrors of divorce and by the conditions leading up to it that I begged the House to let me resign from the committee, but it was not permitted. Moreover, many cases go through of the rankest injustice, because if a wife has no money she will get little of the advantage of presenting her case. If therefore, divorce is to be maintained at all, why not by taking it to a court of law? Why not a divorce court in preference to a divorce committee? Why not justice and law instead of neglect and injustice?

Hence I say while all divorce with a right to re-marry is bad, to maintain the present system is infinitely worse from every point of view. I do not believe that a patriotic citizen should sidestep in his own interests all his responsibilities to his country and therefore as I know something about it, I venture to submit these remarks.

SCORES INJURED IN FIRE.

MANILA, March 13 (C.P.).—One person was killed, scores injured and probably 5,000 persons made homeless by a fire which swept Manila last night and early to-day, destroying more than 1,000 homes.

What To-day Means To You

WHAT TO-DAY MEANS TO YOU

"PISCES."

If March 14th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., and from 10:45 p.m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m., and from 4 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The interests of the day on this date will center around home and family to the almost entire exclusion of other interests. There will be a mixture of anxiety and happiness. Do not neglect your health as it is an adverse time for such factors.

Children born on this March 14th will be ambitious and aspiring, and they will challenge their destinies and seek large enterprises. They will have quick intellects and be hasty in speech. They will make staunch friend, and bitter enemies through the positiveness of their natures.

There is much firmness in your character which makes for bold decisions and prompt actions. You grasp, very quickly and accurately, the whole scheme of things, but you are too impatient to master details. You are shown to love activity and work, but your activity should be along mental lines. You possess executive ability and are born for leadership. You are slightly inclined to believe that your way is the way, and that the world must abide by your "rule of thumb." You are very conservative in your ideas, and you must be shown before believing anything You obstinately stick to your view-points and habits—you are not progressive. You are very close mouthed, but you have the faculty of getting people to speak freely—others leave you feeling that you have obtained all their confidences and given nothing in return. You are probably called "poker Faced."

You are very neat and orderly and discord and untidiness grate upon you most unpleasantly. If you be a woman, you are probably a "crank" about your housekeeping—your efficiency may make you a better housekeeper than homemaker. As a child you probably pouted when things went wrong, and as a grown-up, you probably have bad moods. If a man, you are strong and direct in your manner and brutal in your frankness.

Read: Acts 20:32-35.

MEDITATION

To the immature this is nonsense. They have not yet discovered the mechanics of joy. We make much use of the phrase "getting a kick" out of life. Those who use a gun know that a "kick" is the rebound that comes from the release of pent-up energy. "A kick out of life" comes as a part of a similar process. The child jumps up and down and laughs. The student bends to a problem and finds joy in it. The loving heart pours itself out joyfully. No man is happy for long in merely receiving things. It is nature's protest that he is not the center. Happy people are those who put the center of life outside themselves. In spending, not in getting, in realizing their noblest hidden energies, they find life's greatest and most enduring happiness.

PRAYER

O God, we pray Thee that we may exercise this day the noblest capacities that Thou hast implanted within us. Give us wisdom and courage to put into daily practice our best thoughts and dispositions, and the things we most sincerely believe. Amen.

Louis M. Auger, former member of parliament, who was sentenced to two years in Kingston penitentiary on a serious charge.

DEPUTIES PASS FRENCH BUDGET

Tardieu Defeated By Four Votes on Extension of Free Schooling.

NOT CONFIDENCE ISSUE.

PARIS, March 13. (C.P.) — After an all night session the Chamber of Deputies finally passed the 1930 budget, which probably will be enacted by both houses before the end of the month.

Enemies of Premier Tardieu made a determined effort to entrap him, and he actually suffered defeat by 4 votes on a question of extending free schooling to the higher grades, but as confidence was not at issue, there was no question of the government resigning.

The one question upon which the Premier staged the life of his ministry, credits for the maintenance of new ministers embraced in his second cabinet, resulted in a governmental majority of 60 votes.

Extension of free schooling to what corresponds to the first year of High School in Canada was hailed as a great victory by the Radical Socialists whose avowed ideal is eventual free education of all classes in French schools and higher institutions.

The Toronto market was dull and featureless. Noranda and International Petroleum were both ex-dividend and strong. Ford Motors and Nickel were fractionally weaker. The New York market moved higher led by U. S. Steel and Eastman Kodak. American and Foreign Power recovered two points and Vanadium made a new high at 95 7-8.

WHEAT PRICES HOLDING OWN

SALES VOLUME MEDIUM.

WINNIPEG, Man., Mar. 14. (Canadian Press).—Traders turned almost a smile toward a market that has been spurned for days and Winnipeg wheat prices managed to finish unchanged to half a cent higher for the previous finish. Early break of more than two cents was wiped out and indications pointed to improved export business in the offering.

Broomhall confirmed a sale of 300,000 bushels of Canadian wheat to Portugal for shipment to Vancouver and check-up among shippers and sea-board interests disclosed more than three-quarters of a million bushels disposed of over night besides. At times pit trade was brisk but the total volume failed to reach very large proportions.

At the close, No. 1 northern cash wheat was selling at one cent above the dollar. May closed at $1.05⅛ and $1.06⅝. Cash wheat business still continued in only meagre proportions.

AMALGAMATED STEEL COMPANY CONTROL QUESTION SPECULATED

Copper Buying Trend Continues Small States Report From New York.

ABANA MINES REPORT.

TORONTO, Mar. 14. (Special to Examiner.)—It was just another day on the mining market to-day, and that appears to be about all there is to say about it. Average sales for the past week have been particularly low, and the price action, from a speculator's point of view, has been most uninteresting.

Searching for something constructive in the news these days is like looking for the proverbial needle but the recent merger of metal marketing organizations in the old country provides some food for thought. It is very apparently an effort to stabilize popular word—the general base metal situation and seems destined to go a long way towards guaranteeing the big Canadian producers at least a fair show in the scheme of things in Europe.

The question of control of Amalgamated Metal Corp., as the new company is called, is an important one and from available information, is difficult to calculate. It is generally believed, however, that British Metal Corp., Noranda agent, will have the big hand while International Nickel and Smelters will probably augment their already substantial holdings in the enterprise in the future. New York word on the copper situation is buying trend abroad is small owing to the February statistics which showed another increase of 59,000,000 pounds in refined stocks, though this increase was about what the trade expected. Encouraging features of the situation were the still further decrease in United States mine output and the decline in production of blister copper in both North and South America.

The total amount of the dividend to be disbursed by British American oil on April 1 was incorrectly reported yesterday as $327,830. The actual amount is $524,528 which is 40 cents a share of 1,311,321 shares outstanding.

The Abana mines report, prepared by General Manager Clement, which was covered in these columns last Wednesday, is now going forward to shareholders Mr. Clement places mining, concentrating costs and overhead at $5 a ton and says copper concentrate will show $4.34 profit per ton milled and zinc $2.49 or a total of $6.83 the mine is ready for production, he states, and it is estimated that above the 600 level west of the Dyke and above the 300 east of the dyke there is about five and a half years supply for the 250 ton concentrator.

COAL INTERESTS HAVE NOT INTERFERED WITH GRAIN MOVE

PROTEST FROM MARITIMES.

EDMONTON, Alta., Mar. 14. (C.P.)—Western coal interests have not discussed or protested against any proposal so far as he knew, which would have facilitated the movement, of Canadian grain to Great Britain, declared W. W. McBain, chairman of the Canadian coal committee, when asked to comment on complaints voiced by A. J. McPhail, president of the Canadian Wheat Pool, in an address at Regina Thursday.

It was claimed by Mr. McPhail the strong attitude taken by the coal people on this dise of the Atlantic had resulted in abandonment for the time being at least of a British Government proposal which would have aided the wheat export business.

"Mr. McPhail should be more specific,' said Mr. McBain. "Who are these coal people he is talking bout? At present there is considerable Russian anthracite coming into Ontario, but we have not protested about that, and it is one of Alberta's most dangerous competitors."

If British coal were brought into the east, it would not likely come farther west than Toronto, said Mr. McBain. Therefore, he could not see where a western protest was possible, though no doubt, coal interests in the maritimes would be affected by such imports from Great Britain.

James C. Dunn, managing director of the Luscar Collieries, Limited, said protests against the importation of British coal had been made by Nova Scotia mining interests, but no representations of the kind had been made from the west.

LINDSLEY GROUP SHOWS STRENGTH

Price Action Confined Within Narrow Range on Mining Market.

TRADING LIGHT.

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 14.—It was just another one of those days on the mining market during the early session to-day, trading continuing unusually light with price action confined within a narrow range. The oil stocks received some attention and the Lindsleys were firmer, but the big part of the list displayed the dullness which has characterized it all week.

International Nickel and Noranda were particularly quiet, and slightly easier in tone. Nickel, at $39.40, was off 10 from lasy night, Noranda eased $39.40 to $40 in the face of some light selling. The golds were also inactive and mixed, McIntyre selling up a quarter to evidence of renewed interest. Howey and Kirkland Lake were off a point or so.

Early Setbacks On Chicago Grain Market

CHICAGO, Ill., March 14. — (C.P.) — Wheat prices underwent a material setback all around early today. Influenced by reports of scattered showers southwest and by weakness of quotations at Liverpool; besides there was considerable selling of May wheat here on account of possibilities of shipments to Chicago from Kansas City and of applications from track deliveries here.

Starting unchanged at 2c lower, Chicago wheat futures showed general downturns later. Corn touched a new low price record for the season, opening 3-8c to 1⅛c off, but afterwards recovering. Oats were easy. Provisions declined.

AFTER 65 YEARS

NEW YORK — After thirty-five years of honesty, Edward O'Neill slipped. Working as an $8-a-week bus boy in a restaurant, he found it hard to make ends meet. So instead of depositing a check for $217 for his employer, he kept it. He told police he used it to pay his room rent and buy shoes and a new suit.

British Securities Rise Under Cut Rate

LONDON, March 14. (A.P.)—The advent of cheaper money, which is helping a world wide reduction in bank rates, has also caused a smart rise in British government securities on the stock exchange during the past few days.

To-day such securities rose a quarter to one per cent under big buying orders and since last Friday—the day after the bank rate reduction—they have risen one to two per cent.

Poor trade had induced commercial, insurance and financial concerns to put their surplus funds into bank deposits but now that the rate of interest on those has shrunk to two per cent as a result of lower bank rates, there is apparent a general transference of funds into good yielding securities.

RADIO INSPECTOR TO SUMMON 11

$50 MAXIMUM.

Eleven persons in Peterborough will receive summonses to-day or tomorrow to appear before Magistrate Langley in Police Court next Thursday and answer to a charge of having no licenses for their radios. This is the result of a check-up that is being conducted in the Dominion by the Department of Marine and Fisheries which has extended to this city. The law on the matter reads: "No person shall establish any radio-telegraphic station or install or work any radio-telegraphic apparatus in any place in Canada except under and in accordance with a license granted in that behalf by the Minister." The Minister mentioned is the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Many prosecutions have resulted from the general drive in other cities in Ontario. The law provides a maximum penalty of $50 fine, but a fine of $5 is the usual demand.

It is understood from the wording of the law that a radio owner must have a license regardless of whether or not the radio set is in operation, as long as it can be termed "installed" in the owner's house.

Radio licenses expire on April 1. It is evidently a last attempt on the part of the Government to get in last year's license fees before the new ones are required.

A radio license costs $1.

CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC SHOWS GOOD SALES INCREASE

Large Apparatus Lines Not Up to Sales Mark of Preceding Year.

FOREIGN BOND MARKET.

TORONTO, Mar. 14. (Special to Examiner.)—Shareholders of Canadian General Electric will gather at the head office on March 26th for the annual meeting and the presentation of the financial statement for the year end December 31, 1929. In the first nine months of the year to be reviewed total business increased in the neighborhood of 16 per cent, and it is anticipated the profit and loss and balance sheet will reflect the improvement of this increased business. While the large apparatus lines of C.G.E. did not show the same increase as 1928 did over 1927, other lines such as electrical supplies, lamps, refrigerators, radio sets, etc., showed a little larger increase and, on the whole, the improvement was well up to that experienced in the preceding year. Most public interest in the securities of Canadian General Electric is in the preferred, as the bulk of the common shares outstanding are held by the parent concern. In 1928 there was earned 43.77 per cent, to meet the fixed 7 per cent dividend on the senior issue and after all charges, the balance was equal to $16.39 a share on the common.

Foreign Bond Market.

Recent developments in the foreign bond market are extremely interesting state Matthews and company in pointing out that prior to the war, the London market had almost a monopoly in international financing. It is only since 1918 that investors in Canada, and the United States, have bought substantial amount of bond issueds by foreign governments and corporations, and it was only by reason of abnormal economic conditions abroad and the large supplies of capital for investment in America that this activity grew to the extent that it did. That this movement, particularly during the last four years, reached large proportions is evidence that the present estimate total of foreign bonds held by Canadian and American investors, namely $12,000,000,000.

Tannery Licenses.

Word received from Victoria that the provincial government will not increase the number of cannery licenses under the improvement of the industry justifies such action should be welcome news for the stockholders of British Columbia Packers, Ltd., to increase cannery licenses would only undo the work accomplished by the consolidation that have already taken place and tend to bring back the cut throat competition that in the past was so costly to the operating companies. British Columbia Packers is a holding company for British Columbia Fishing and Packing company, Gosse Packing company and Millerd Packing company and was formed for the purpose of bringing the operations of all three under the one management.

Units Increase.

Consolidated Good Products are making headway in the opening of a chain of "stop and shop stores" and since the beginning of the year the number of units in operation in the city of Toronto has increased from four to eleven. It is the intention of the management to open one new store a week and to spread to other points in the province. In the east the company already has seventy units in operation in Montreal and Ottawa. Consolidated food also operates the Arnold Stores and the question is naturally raised why the second chain. No explanation is given but it is assumed that eventually the units will all operate under "stop and shop" name.

COMMENT ON THE MARKET

A Special Service to The Examiner.

C.P.R. AS A MEDIUM OF INVESTMENT.

Attention is directed to C.P.R. as a medium of investment at the present juncture, because, due to certain adverse conditions, obviously of a transient nature, the market for the stock has been depressed. The marketing of wheat was very limited during the autumn and winter, which reduced railway earnings rather severely, but the grain has to be moved and assuming that importing countries will consume a normal volume, C.P.R. in 1930 will be called upon to move its share of a large corporation of the 1929 and 1930 crops. C.P.R. earned for 1929 $11.15 per share on the common stock, as against $14.73 in 1928. This year the company could easily show a startling gain in earnings over any previous peace year. The stock markets have recovered only to a limited extent from the general price crash that occurred in the autumn of last year. Comparative indices of representative stocks reveal the fact that whereas New York stocks have recovered over 35% from the losses sustained late last year, the Canadian market has recovered 22%. These figures are cited to suggest the probability of a marked appreciation in the stock market, once uncertainty is removed and confidence in the immediate future is restored.

Listed in Toronto, Montreal, New York, and London and traded in France, Germany and Holland, in each of which countries the stock has a strong following, C.P.R. shares are not subject to pool operations and is, therefore, not susceptible to manipulation and can be classed as a prime investment security. The speculative possibilities of the security are, undoubtedly imposing, but these arise from within the organization, because it serves the best business of the country and its wide ramifications have become solidly established, as a result of many years of effective organization and consolidation.

Nothwithstanding, the company's annual business exceeds $200,000,000, C.P.R. must still be regarded as a pioneer road. Large as its traffic is, only a small proportion of the vast territories it serves with its 15,500 miles of steel in Canada has reached an advanced stage of development. The Union Pacific Railway, which is regarded as the closest counterpart of C.P.R. in the United States for comparative purposes, has about twice the average gross revenues per mile. Let it be conceived that within a reasonable period and by consistent stages traffic per mile on the lines of C.P.R. averages as much as even roads operating in the western United States. Then C.P.R. earnings would make imposing gains. With respect to increase in freight density, the future favors the big Canadian road.

Another striking contrast, and this demonstrates how real are the potential benefits to shareholders, is the relatively low capitalization of C.P.R. per mile of railways. Basing calculations on a total capitalization of C.P.R. of $740,000,000, including senior and junior securities, and a total mileage of 20,805 miles, capitalization per mile is $35,300, as compared with roughly $75,000 per mile for Union Pacific Railway. Such low capitalization per mile is attributable to the ploughing back into the property of large sums of earnings during its history of well on to fifty years.

The split n the stock, which brought the price within reach of the average investor, has already had the effect of increasing quite substantially the number of Caadian shareholders. There is every prospect that Canadian holdings of the stock will continue to increase and that in good time C.P.R. will become one of the active features on Canadian exchanges.

MEDICAL FIND MADE BY GIRL

Discovery if Substantiated May Be One of Greatest in Bacteriology.

LONDON, March 14 (C.P.). —Miss Kathleen Chevassut, young pupil of Sir James Purves Stewart, widely-known British medical authority, was reported to-day to have discovered that which may prove to be the germ of "disseminated sclerosis." This disease is often responsible for paralysis, and its causes have hitherto been obscure and its treatment unsatisfactory.

The discovery was published in the well-known medical journal "The Lancet." If it is substantiated, The Lancet believes that it will rank among the foremost achievements of bacteriology. Experiments are being made in treating the disease with vaccines prepared from cultures of minute bodies that Miss Chevassut discovered.

The results hitherto have been discouraging. Disseminated sclerosis, a degenerative disease of the brain and spinal cord, slowly but steady progresses in most cases, chronic nephritis or tuberculosis frequently developing and causing death.

New Hat Given Titled Canadian

While watching the hockey match between the Canadian team and Oxford and Cambridge at Golden Green rink, England, recently, Lord Greenwood, formerly Sir Hamar Greenwood, and a native of Whitby, Ontario, had his hat damaged by the puck. As a sequel a new hat was presented to him, with a letter from the captain of the Canadian team at a dinner given in connection with the Canadian section of the British Industries Fair. The photographs heer show ord Greenwood (LEFT) accepting his new hat at the hands of the Canadian hockey captain.

ACTIVITY OF FORD OF CANADA FAILS TO AROUSE INTEREST

B. A., Imperial and International Petroleum Leaders in Oil Group.

SUPER-TEST DROPS POINT.

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 14. (C.P.)—Not even the phenomenal rise of Ford of Canada "A" shares in the past couple of days has been able to induce widespread interest or activity locally in the stock market and to-day trading on Toronto Stock Exchange was again of that slow uninspired nature which betokens only backing and filling operations.

Those who still are hopeful of a broader movement upward take heart from the fact that surprisingly little liquidation has followed Ford's spectacular rise in the face of a market that was holding quite firmly at 33½ where it had closed last night and which is between four and five points above its recent level. Then too the oils were looking better to-day, B. A. oil, Imperial and International Petroleum all showing gains of ¼ point. International Petroleum, in addition had recovered the 25 cents ex-dividend this morning. Supertest lost a point on a very small turnover.

NEW YORK MARKET ADVANCES FOLLOWING EASIER CREDIT

Call Money Rate Drops to Lowest Mark in Nearly Four Years.

BROAD ADVANCE.

By Stanley W. Prenosil (Associated Press Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 14.—A further relaxation in credit conditions, arising from the reduction in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate from 4 to 3½ per cent and the heavy accumulation of funds here in anticipation of March 15, tax payments, furnished the impetus for another broad advance in prices in to-day's stock market. A sprinkling of issues, including a few high priced specialties, showed conspicuous weakness. Trading was in fairly heavy volume.

Call money renewed at 3½ per cent for the first time since January 23, 1928, and then dropped to 3 per cent, the lowest official rate in nearly four years. Outside funds were available as lows as 2¼ per cent.

The oils, which had not participated extensively in the recent "bull" market, again gave an impressive demonstration of strength. Redent favorable trade developments have revived speculative activity in those issues and led to the formation of several new pools in the oil stocks. With a few minor exceptions, practically all of the leading petroleum shares, including the Standard Oil issues, Sinclair, Simms, Phillips and Richfeld, moved into new high ground for the year.

A. M. Byers, Atlas Power, American Tobacco "B", Peoples Gas, Auburn and Texas & Pacific Land Trust were marked up 4 to 5 points. Electric Power & Light which is reported to be engaged in natural gas merger negotiations, ran up more than 3 points to a new high at 80.. General Refractories, Warren Bros, Checker Cab, International Match preferred and Airways Appliance also reached new high ground.

ENGINEER TRACES

of the Eastman Kodak Company, when he managed to produce pictures from a negative of a flexible base, that is, celluloid.

None of these men realised that in the future their efforts were to be used for the entertainment purposes, but they were only striving for a scientific novelty, and thus it remained for several years.

At the same time as these experiments along photographic lines were proceeding, developments were also taking place in the way of recording the human voice as well as music.

The first recording was made on a cardboard cylinder, over which was wrapped tin foil. In 1875 Thomas Edison carried on experiments trying to produce "talking picures" but for several reasons he gave this up as a failure.

Lee DeForest in 1906 invented a device which, at the present time, is known as the photo-electric cell. This devide or cell has the peculiar property of converting light rays in electrical impulses. This is the secret of "sound on film" reproduction used in the theatres at the present time.

The Bell Laboraories, an institute that spends millions of dollars a year in research work were always interested in the transmitting, recording and amplifying of speech. This organization carried on extensive experiments in this connection.

In 1920 Lee Deforest organized the first company to record and reproduce talking pictures in theatres throughout the country. After several years the company failed, but it made valuable experimental work in his field.

In 1926 the Warner Bros., a large film producing company, were on the verge of bankruptcy. The company was desperate and was willing to try anything once to boost business and perhaps save themselves from their sure coming disaster. The directorate of Warner Bros. invested every cent in the proposal of the Western Electric Company to stage "sound pictures." It made Warner Bros. because the talkies proved a success, the first picture, the "Jazz Singer," taking Broadway by storm.

Now 87 per cent. of all pictures for showing in English-speaking countries are either made all-talking or partly talking. A silent picture today represents about as much interest with the theatre-going public as they would get locking through a catalogue advertising tomb stones.

Divided Into Two Classes.

Technically, talking pictures can be divided into two classes. That is, those pictures and recording where the actual sound is recorded on a disc somewhat similar to a common every-day phonograph record, and those that are recorded with the sound actually printed on the same film that the photographic action takes place on. The former is more commonly known as the Vitaphone method, while the latter is called the Movietone or Photophone. When talking pictures were first commercialized, most of the recording was done on discs, but with the perfection of the sound on film method, most of the producers are now favoring this latter method. The present-day theatre must be equipped with a device that can faithfully reproduce both of these recordings, and both theatres in Peterborough have this device.

Talking pictures brought great changes to the studios and the present-day movie studio set resembles the padded cell of a lunatic asylum. The walls are padded to prevent echoes and reverberation. The camera is either in an adjoining room, sound proofed from the room where production is actually taking place, or in the same room in a padded hut called a "blimp."

Two years ago only slightly over 3300 theatres were wired in the United States for talking pictures. To-day there are over 5,000 installed with talkie apparatus. The Palace Theatre in Montreal was the first so wired in Canada, and now there are 235 in this country, with 336 more being in process of installation.

The luncheon was largely attended, it being announced that 92 per cent. of the Kiwanis Club's members were in attendance. Charlie Cook, of the De Laval Company, was booster for the day, and his remarks gained much laughter and applause.

Balance . . .

Is Your Investment List Well-balanced?

If you are not sure that it is, write for a copy of our latest pamphet entitled "Balance." It emphasizes the importance of a well-balanced investment list. No investor's holdings should include too many securities of any one type or of any one industry.

Moreover, a well-balanced list for one person might be wholly unsuited to another. For instance, a business man might purchase securities which would be unwise for a widow dependent solely upon income from interest and dividends.

We make a specialty of adjusting clients' investment lists to suit their particular needs. Write for further particulars of this service.

ISLAND'S CALL FOR ASSISTANCE SAVED CREW OF SAILING VESSEL

Sturdy Schooner Neptune Drifted Seven Weeks Across Atlantic.

CAUGHT IN STORM

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Mar. 14.—By the Canadian Press.—If a call for medical assistance had not been made from the lonely island of St. Kilda, 50 miles from the mainland of Lewis and 140 miles from the mainland of Scotland, and if the Northwestern Lighthouse Commander's steamer Hesperus had not been sent with the requested aid, the Newfoundland three-masted schooner, Neptune, 18 would have been wrecked on the rocks off Ardnamurchan Point, Scotland, after drifting seven weeks across the Atlantic, covering a distance of five thousand miles, according to an account of the trip published in the Daily News of St. John's.

On Wednesday, January 15 last, an appeal was telegraphed from St. Kilda to the Scottish Board of Health, in Edinburgh, asking assistance for a sick woman. The next day, during stormy weather, the Hesperus, commanded by Captain Budge, was trying to reach the island with Dr. A. Slesarer when the Neptune was sighted at 3 p.m. and towed to Tobermoray Bay. On Friday morning the storm became more violent and a second attempt to reach St. Kilda failed. Owing to continued tempestuous weather, the trip was temporarily abandoned. In the meantime, the Hesperus returned to Tobermory and towed the Neptune to Oban, arriving Sunday afternoon. The call to St. Kilda was made Monday.

The arrival of the Neptune at Oban aroused great interest, spectators commenting on the excellent condition of the eleven persons comprising the crew and passengers, including a woman, who showed no sign of the ordeal they had undergone.

Crew Entretained.

Captain Barbour and the others from the Neptune were entertained by the Council of Tobermory, and Mrs. Humphries, wife of the boatswain, Peter Humphries, received the hospitality of Mrs. MacGilp Clydesdale at Bank House. A Scotch terrier was presented to Captain Barbour at a memento of his stay in Tobermory.

"When we were only a day out," said Captain Barbour, "we shipped tremendous seas which smashed our lifeboats and bulwarks. I was quite ignorant as to my position for our usual route was seldom out of sight of land. It was a terrible ordeal and we never expected to see shore again. When nearing the coast, the weather became so much warmer that we supposed we were going to Africa.

"My uncle and I own the vessel which was built in 1920, and we use her for general trading, including the carriage of salt fish, etc. I had some idea of getting a motor engine put in the vessel to take her back to Newfoundland.

"We had enough provisions on board to have lasted us for a considerable time. It was a good thing that part of the cargo was oranges, which we rationed out at the rate of three a day."

Mrs. Humphries, of Newton, Bonavista, said she and Captain Humphries had been in St. John's visiting their daughter.

"We expected to spend our Christmas at home with other members of our family," she remarked. "Instead, Christmas Day saw all hope of making home abandoned as we were heading straight for whatever land we might make on the other side of the Atlantic.

"I was confined to the forecastle along with the crew as it was impossible to remain aft owing to the tremendous seas which were continually being shipped. With the confined air of the forecastle and anxiety I was completely exhausted."

Peter Humphries, oldest man on board the Neptune, gave the following account of the trip:

"We loaded with general cargo at St. John's, bound to Newtown, Bonavista Bay, and sailed on November 29, with six of a crew and five passengers, including my wife. When almost within sight of our home, we struck a heavy gale of wind and snow which forced us to run under almost bare poles for 220 miles.

Seas Terrific.

"The seas were terrific, and in all my forty year's experience as a Newfoundland fisherman I never encountered worse. While taking my watch at the wheel one sea engulfed the entire poop swept away our wheelhouse, smashed both lifeboats and damaged our steering gear. I was thrown against a little deckhouse and rendered unconscious, but fortunately I got tangled up in some ropes and that kept me from being washed overboard.

"The wind changed and by tying up temporary steering gear we endeavored to sail back to St. John's. We made good progress for two days, but again encountered more head winds which increased to gale force, and once more we had to run before it. For four days we kept the vessel running before the wind and then found ourselves about 300 miles southeast of St. John's, where we hove to another four days. We spoke to a large British passenger liner on the 14th of December and sent a message on board.

"After we had drifted about for some days the weather became worse, and on December 21st we found that the only hope of saving our lives was to try to make across to Britain. We had only one compass on board and no other instruments, so it was impossible to take our bearings. Our captain shaped a course which he thought would bring us to the English Channel."

When the Hesperus came to the rescue, all on board thought they were in the neighborhood of the Scilly Isles.

In view of the battering she sustained, the Neptune suffered remarkably little damage, and the pumps were never required during the whole period of her drifting. For many days the wheel was lashed to windward, Captain, crew and passengers remaining below. It is estimated that in the course of her drift, the Neptune covered a total distance of 5,000 miles.

Passengers on the Neptune were Mrs. Humphries, Edward Gill, George Bungay, Ephraim Blackmore, and William Norris. The Crew: Job K. Barbour, Captain; Percy Barbour, Mate; Peter Humphries, Boatswain; John Norman, Cook; Naxter Barbour, seaman, and Harold Keates, seaman.

Nine other vessels sailed with the Neptune for Bonavista ports. All were scattered by the hurricane and subsequently accounted for. Six were abandoned derelicts but only one life was lost.

CALCUTTA MAYOR IS UNDER ARREST

Taken in Custody When He Refused to Furnish Bail on Conspiracy Charge.

BACKS 'GANDHI'S POLICY

CALCUTTA, March 14 (C.P.).—J. M. Sengupta, Mayor of Calcutta, was taken into custody today when he refused to furnish bail on a charge of sedition. He was directed not to leave his house until tomorrow when he will be taken to Rangoon. A warrant, which was prepared in such a way that bail could have been furnished, was issued Monday at the instance of the Rangoon Police Commissioner for Sengupta's arrest. Today the Assistant Commissioner of Police in South Calcutta served the warrant.

Addressing a public meeting last night Mayor Sengupta appealed for volunteers to join the army of civil resistance and carry out the program of Mahatma Gandhi in behalf of Indian independence.

The Mayor added that before he was taken from Bengal he hoped that thousands would come forward to convince him that bureaucratic violence was not going to win the day any longer.

WESTWOOD COUPLE CELEBRATES 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. John Hope Recipients of Congratulations From Many Friends.

AT SOCIAL GATHERING

(Examiner Correspondence)

WESTWOOD, March 14.—Mr. and Mrs. John Hope were the recipients of the good wishes and kindly greetings of a large circle of relatives and friends when on March 10, 1930, they celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Hope, the latter formerly Miss Louisa Elmhirst, were married in the year 1880 at the Keene Manse, by the Rev. Dr. Andrews. For thirty-four years they resided on their farm in Otonabee. Sixteen years ago they retired from active farm life and settled in Westwood where they still reside.

Quietly Celebrated

Owing to illness in the family the happy event was very quietly celebrated. At twelve o'clock noon, a wedding dinner was served at which the bridal couple of fifty years were the honored guests. The host and hostess for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Armstrong of Peterborough, the latter being the only living sister of the bride and the bridesmaid of fifty years ago. At the close of the dinner, toasts were proposed to the happy couple by Mr. Armstrong and Rev. W. G. Fletcher, to which Mr. and Mrs. Hope ably responded.

During the afternoon between fifty and sixty relatives and friends called to offer their best wishes and congratulations. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. John Sargent, an interesting feature being the use of a teapot which was a wedding gift of fifty years ago.

Presentation Made

Mr. and Mrs. Hope were presented with a congratulatory address and a beautiful bouquet of fifty golden daffodils from the members of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's United church of which Mrs. Hope now Honorary President was president for thirty-five years. Letters of congratulation and telephone messages were received from many friends during the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Hope are life-long residents of this community and were members of the former Presbyterian church. Over twenty-five years ago he was ordained an alder, which office he still holds, and continues to take an active interest in the affairs of the United Church.

SUNDAY LABOR IS DEPLORED

Note of Lamentation Expressed in Regard Increasing Laxity of Observing Sabbath.

PRESBYTERY MEETING

LINDSAY, March 14.—Conditions which make it necessary for bank clerks to break the Sabbath by working on Sunday were deplored by members of Presbytery of Lindsay at a meeting in Lindsay this week. A note of lamentation was expressed in regard to a general increasing laxity in the keeping of the Sabbath due to greater popularity of Sunday golf and fishing at the summer resorts reported by convenor of the committee of Sabbath observance.

The members were told that in the year 1927 at one summer resort on Balsam Lake building operations were conducted on Sunday. Commendation of the action of H. J. Cave of the Uxbridge Journal in taking up the matter of bank clerks working on Sunday in his editorial columns was expressed and it was decided to report the matter to the Lord's Day Alliance.

"Two In One" Is Boast Of Proud Hen

MOUNT PLEASANT, March 14—(Examiner Correspondence)—We read of eggs of unusual shape and size being laid by proud biddies of the farm flock, but its rare to possess a hen who lays two eggs at once.

When Mrs. Harry Sisson, Jr., Ida, cooked an egg for dinner Wednesday, she found upon opening it that it happened to be two eggs instead of one.

The egg, fresh laid today, was of average size, and contained another egg inside, which was of a smaller type, but was fully equipped with the yolk and white and also a hard shell.

BOY SCOUTS ARE PLANNING BIG DAY

Jamboree Will Be Held in Peterborough on May 24th.

400 EXPECTED

Empire Day, May 24th, will be a red letter day, one long to be remembered in the annals of scouting in this district. It was recently announced by Commissioner J. T. Hornsby that a Jamboree is to be staged here on that date, and a gathering of scouts will assemble from the four corners of the Peterborough district which is a very extensive one and includes Bowmanville, Cobourg, and Campbellford.

It is the first time that any such venture has been attempted locally, although the Jamboree held in England last year will still be fresh in the minds of most people. Jamboree it may be explained is an American Indian word meaning a merry gathering of the tribes and it has been adopted by the Boy Scout Association to express a large gathering of Scouts. There is also a Scout magazine in existence bearing this title, printed in four languages.

From three to four hundred khaki-shirted boys are expected to visit Peterborough for this big celebration and local boys will be asked to billet one or two brother scouts for the term of their short stay here. The visitors will come on the 23rd of May and all the various troops will assemble in Confederation Square at eight o'clock the following morning to be reviewed later by Assistant-Provincial Commissioner F. C. Irwin of Toronto and Assistant-Dominion Commissioner John Stiles of Ottawa.

It is not known yet where the saluting base will be situated, this to be decided later, but it is understood that Fred L. Roy will photograph the parade with a cinematograph camera, for the purpose of public exhibition. Possibly one of the local regimental bands will head the parade, which will march to the Exhibition Grounds where various demonstrations of Scoutcraft will be staged, concluding with songs and games around the camp fire.

Further details will be announced later.

SEAL HUNT LURES SPORTING BLOOD

ACCIDENTS RARE.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Mar. 14—(By C. E. A. Jeffery, Canadian Press Writer)—While the possibilities of adding something to their modest means may to some extent prompt the fishermen of the north coast of Newfoundland to join the sealing ships which engage in seal hunting during the months of March and April, there is a stronger impulse behind their willingness to face the discomfort of being crowded into cramped quarters and to undergo the hardship and exposure that are inseparable from the chase over the icepans in pursuit of the living freights they bring down from the Arctic regions.

The zest displayed by these hardy fisherfolk may be compared with that of the college athlete, who revels in the opportunities that the football field or the hockey arena afford to display his skill and to prove his worth. The element of risk, when it occurs, is something that makes the sport all the more thrilling. The spirit of adventure which this seal hunting game satisfies is in the Newfoundland fisherman's blood. It is a heritage from those hardy West Country people, his forebears, who dared the Atlantic and made their house in the bay and inlets along the Newfoundland coast, struggling with Nature on the one hand for a share of the soil, and on the other fighting a continuous battle with the sea for their harvest of fish.

Sureness of foot and good judgment are essential to safety in the seal hunting game. These qualities are acquired at an early age. A pastime in which the outport boy engages in "coppying", which is hopping from one cake of ice to another floating in the harbor. Ducklings not infrequently occur and paternal admninishments may follow, but they are regarded as an injunction to be more careful in the future rather than as punishment for engaging in the sport.

Few Accidents.

To witness a crew leaping from the side of the ship as she forges through the ice, or running this way and that over the floating pans to reach the seal herds is to be impressed with the importance of surefootedness, good judgment, and nerve. Open spaces of water have to be crossed by jumping from one pan of ice to another. Sometimes the cake is big enough to support the weight of a number of men; in other places it submerges underfoot as a flying leap is made across it. An immersion is a serious matter, as the ship is often far away, and it means working for hours in wet clothing without any means of shelter from the icy blasts, not to mention the risk of drowning if assistance is not close at hand It is remarkable, however, how seldom an accident of this kind occurs.

Sense of Direction Keen.

In the pursuit of the seals, the men are at times several miles distant from their ships. A patch of seals may cover a considerable area, and to secure as many as possible before other ships arrive, it is customary to drop one master watch with a gang of men in one place and string the others out at suitable points of attack. Each gang kills and pans all the seals in the vicinity, and is either picked up later on by the ship, or if she is jammed, a way must be found to reach her. That sometimes entails a long journey, and if in the meantime a storm has come on, a journey of a hazardous and arduous nature. A master watch in recounting one such experience told of having travelled with his men for some twenty-four hours over the ice during a hunting expedition. They spent one night on board another sealer, and the next day started to rejoin their ship which was then out of sight. Overtaken by darkness, they had to make what shelter they could and maintain warmth as best they could in the snowstorm which had come on. In the morning, with nothing to indicate the direction of the ship, they resumed their journey. The master watch in his account does not appear to regard the fact that they reached their ship with the storm still raging as a remarkable achievement. All that he says is, "We were glad to locate our vessel about two the next morning after having been on the ice for fifty-two hours."

Eager for the Hunt.

Each spring, there is the same eagerness displayed to secure berths on ships bound to the ice, no matter what the luck of the previous season was, no matter what hardship was previously experienced, no matter, even, if the voyage had been marked by a disaster. It is true of late years the number who engage in the seal fishery is considerably less than in the past; that however is not due to any disinclination of the men to take part in it, but rather to the fact that with the use of steamers instead of sailing vessels in the prosecution of the industry, the complement of men required has been considerably reduced.

POPULAR NOTIONS ON SLEEP HABITS ARE GIVEN JOLT

Critical Age When It Is Unsafe to Miss Rest is Set at 35.

YOUTH SLEEPS LEAST.

Average, From Canvas of 509 Distinguished Men, Ranged Near 8 Hours.

HAMILTON, N.Y., March 13 (By Howard W. Blakeslee, Associated Press Science Editor). — The sleep habits of 509 distinguished men were made public at Colgate University to-day and upset some popular notions.

The critical age when it is unsafe to lose sleep is 35. Contrary to classical anecdotes, men of important affairs sleep about the full eight hours. It is youth instead of age that sleeps the least.

Counting Sheep Out of Date.

Then that old-fashioned way of getting to sleep by counting sheep jumping a wall is as out of date as Mary's lamb. Not that the fundamental method has changed, but today only a sheep herder should pick on the dream sheep. For the rest of us there are more effective sleep potions.

The survey was made by Dr. Donald A. Laird, director of the Colgate Psychological Laboratory. The ages of the men ranged from 20 to 95, and some gave permission to disclose their identities. One 95-year-old is Brigadier-General Aaron S. Daggett, U. S. A. Younger men include William Allen White, Rev. S. Parkes Cadman and Governor John H. Trumbell of Kentucky.

Dr. Laird finds 35 years 'the critical period when loss of sleep, or sleep on a train, shows most noticeable ill-effects. At this age poor sleep seems to bring more widespread bad effects than at other ages. Before and after this age sleep can apparently be tampered with with more impunity."

None Slept Over 10 Hours.

No one reported more than 10 nor less than 5 hours' habitual sleep. The average sleep for 25 years is 7 hours 25 minutes. The minutes' sleep over 7 hours then increase to 45 at 35 years, to 50 at age 45, drop to 45 at age 55, to 40 minutes at age 65, and rise to 45 minutes at 75. At 85 the sleeping time is 8 hours 10 minutes.

At 25 years the majority told Dr. Laird they sleep through the night without awakening. A uniform increase in wakefulness follows with age, and in the 95 to 100 years age bracket wakefulness was reported each night.

More than 70 per cent. reported sufficient difficulty in going to sleep to cause them to develop "special techniques." Thought control was used by 33 per cent; reading by 25 per cent, relaxation by 18 per cent; drugs, not including alcohol, by 3 per cent; alcohol by 2 per cent.

"It is interesting," says Dr. Laird, "that approximately half those reporting use of alcohol to insure sleep were college professors of considerable distinction.

Sleep Inducements

"A large number of unusual personal idiosyncrasies are reported in inducing sleep. One editor of a national magazine sticks his feet out from under the bedclothes. One Supreme Court Justice buries his face in his pillow. A young writer strains to keep his eyes open.

"Three men repeat Masonic rituals. An actor-playwright repeats Christian names in haphazard fashion. A Judge counts backward, or repeats the alphabet backward. A Judge thinks about the binominal theorem or extracts a few square roots in his head. A college professor eats onions. A writer of detective stories thinks about the futility of everything. One Bishop thinks about things accomplished rather than those ahead, another bishop smokes, and a third bishop prays."

During the year 17 new companies were established in various Ontario centres and 26 summer camps were maintained.

Mrs. G. A. Routledge, London, was elected Provincial Comissioner, at the election of officers. Miss K. S. Matthews, also of London, was chosen treasurer, while two London women were appointed to the executive committee. They are Mrs. T. B. Smith and Mrs. Auden.

Other members of the executive committee included Mrs. William Hendrie, Hamilton; Mrs. R. Hanna, Sarnia; Mrs. J. O. Rheaume, Windsor; Mrs. S. C. Tweed, Waterloo; Mrs. Urquart, Owen Sound and Mrs. Charles Carter, Hamilton.

HISTORIC FIRE 50 YEARS AGO

Many Valuable Relics Saved From New Brunswick Legislature Blaze.

RAGED IN WINTER

FREDERICTON, N.B., Mar. 14 — By C. W. Clark, Canadian Press Writer. — Fifty years ago on February 25, 1880, the building which for eighty years had housed the legislature of New Brunswick, was destroyed by fire. Erected twelve years after the imminent threat of attack from the sea had caused the removal of the provincial administration from Parrtown, now Saint John, to Fredericton, and twelve miles up the Saint John River, the one storey wooden building housed many relics of great historical value.

In the stone and granite structure, which rose to become the home of provincial government two years after the fire, are several of the old buildings traditional appointments, including the portraits of George III, Queen Charlotte, Lord Chatham and Lord Glenelg, which were snatched from the walls of the old Upper Chamber and carried to safety. The painted wall screen bearing the cypher of George IV, which stood behind the benches of the Judges of the Supreme Court, still serves in the present Supreme Court Chamber.

A survival of the government buildings of the early nineteenth century still stands to the East of the present House of Assembly. In the remaining stone building, one of which stood on either side of the Old Assembly chambers, the old time locks with keys a foot in length, the system of bellpulls connecting the various offices, the recessed fireplaces, and narrow stairways are all as they were when the province was still in its infancy, and they still give service in Supreme Court offices. The building on the west was long ago torn down to make room for the present Departmental building. Both were of the plain Georgian type, built low for warmth in winter.

Low Wooden Structure.

Sketches of the old Parliament building in its early years show little pretence to architectural excellence. A low wooden structure with two wings furnished sufficient room. The cornerstone was laid in May, 1800, by Governor the Hon. Thomas Carleton. For twelve years, both chambers had held sessions in a wooden structure known as King's Provision Store at the intersection of Chancery Lane and Queen Street. For seven years previous, after the formation of New Brunswick as a province with the coming of the Loyalists in 1783, the legislature had met at St. John.

The building which fell before the flames was devoted chiefly to the legislative branch of administration. Departmental and executive offices were housed in the stone buildings to east and west. The structure housed both chambers, until the Legislative council was abolished by legislative enactment about ten years after its construction.

The blaze which destroyed the building broke out in the library. Steam fire engines with the Saint John River providing a nearby water supply put up a strenuous fight, but winter conditions proved too great a handicap.

Two years were required for the erection of the succeeding structure of freestone on grey granite base which for forty-eight years had housed the New Brunswick Legislature and its officials. The first session in the present building was opened February 16th, 1882.

During the early history of Fredericton, lots of the land reserved for legislative buildings were leased from time to time for other purposes. One of the earlist post offices was located in Saint John street on a site now covered by the Departmental Building and near it stood the little building in which clicked the first telegraph instrument ever operated in this city.

To-day Fredericton prides herself upon her trees, yet in the day when the old Parliament Building was in use its grounds presented a desolate appearance. To-day Parliament Square is graced by elms which cannot be matched for spread of branches in Canada.

MRS. B. GRANT IS BLAMED FOR HIGHWAY CRASH

to 360 feet away when Thompson began the turn.

"The automobile was traveling at a rate of about 40 miles an hour," Mr. Phelan said. "At that rate it would cover 60 feet every second, and according to George Armour, a civil engineer, the same team with an identical cultivator made that same turn in six seconds. Therefore, on that basis the car was 360 feet away at the moment Clifford Thompson began to turn his team off the highway.

The horses walked twenty feet in making that turn, according to Mr. Armour's measurements. They were walking at a rate of about 2½ miles an hour and the car was travelling about 5 times faster than the team because its rate was about 100 miles an hour. Therefore, it must have gone 15 times farther than the horses walked, and 15 times twenty feet again brings the distance 300 feet as the probable distance separating the team and the car at the moment the team began to turn."

Thompson's Traffic Right.

Mr. Phelan argued that Thompson was entitled to start to turn off the highway when the only car in sight was 300 or 360 feet away. He didn't know that the approaching car had a driver who did not see him until only three car lengths away from him. Thompson had a perfect legal right to do what he did and his act was entirely consistent with that of a careful man, Mr. Phelan said. Even as it was Mrs. Grant had a space of ten feet between the cultivator and the south side of the pavement in which to pass safely going west if she had exercised the ordinary attention required of the driver of a car.

The jury replying to a series of questions drafted by Mr. Justice Garrow found that Mrs. Grant was wholly to blame fixed the award of damages at $9,000 and decided that Thompson's father was not to share in the money granted by the court.

This case held the rapt interest of a crowded courtroom through every stage of its hearing. The prominence of the principals and their respective solicitors were exceptionally attractive factors and the audience followed the legal duel and debate between T. N. Phelan and Thos. Agar, both of Toronto, as if it were the shifting scene of a theatre. An incidental feature that may not have been apparent to the laymen was the evident thoroughness with which A. R. Willmott, who is Mayor of Cobourg, had prepared the plaintiff's case.

Hand-Scrubbing for 30 Dead Whales — Cost Salvage Company Sum of $230

VANCOUVER, March 14. (Canadian Press).—The most unique bill in the world has just been paid by the Pacific Salvage Company of Victoria. It is for $230 for giving a thorough bath with gasoline soap and hot water to 30 whales. One of the company's boats went to Akutan to salvage American steamer Golden Crest, ashore near that point. The Salvage Company was given every assistance by men of the whaling station nearby.

The whalers were steadily bringing dead whales in from sea and mooring them at the station for processing. Thirty lay moored, side by side, awaiting conversion to everything desirable from hair tonic to perfume, when the tanks of the Golden Forest burst. The oil poured out and rode on the tide to the moored whales where it collected. The whaling station crew had to hand-scrub every whale before the mammals could be sent through the factory.

Hence the bill, which was cheerfully paid.

N.B.C. NETWORK TO BROADCAST C.P.R. PROGRAMS

First Time in History of Radio That National Program Has Originated in Canada.

W.J.Z. KEY U. S. STATION

MONTREAL, March 14. — A new development in radio broadcasting was announced here to-day by E. W. Beatty, Chairman and President Canadian Pacific Railway, whereby the National Broadcasting Company of the United States will accept the Canadian Pacific hours of cheerful and good music. This is the first occasion on which the National Broadcasting Company has accepted regular programs made outside the United States, and is considered by critics as a marked tribute to the unusually high quality of the music hours put on the air by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The widespread interest aroused in the United States as well as Canada by the musical programs broadcast by the Canadian Pacific Railway on Friday evenings over its own transcontinental network, resulted in negotiations between Mr. Beatty and the National Broadcasting Company of New York, resulting in an agreement under which the Canadian Pacific will supply WJZ and associated stations of the National Broadcasting Company through its affiliated stations in Toronto, with a series of Canadian programs made in Canada with Canadian talent. The net work includes such stations as WJZ, WBZ and KDKA, with a total of 12 powerful stations in the richest and most thickly populated areas of the United States, reaching five million receiving sets owned in a population of sixty million people, who have a taxable income of fifteen billion dollars, so that the publicity which Canada will receive from the broadcasting of these Canadian programs will be of notable value.

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal trouble of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

STOVE SALESMAN SHOWS INGENUITY

Originality and ingenuity are necessary requisites in the world of modern business, where keen competition has to be met and combatted, and a good example of this was to be seen in this city during the past few days.

To see a salesman enter a store bearing his samples of merchandise is not an uncommon sight but to see a buyer walk out of his store to do business on the street with a salesman is rather unusual. In the instance in mind, the samples which happened to be gas stoves, ranges, refrigerators and all varieties of lamps are it is admitted a little bit awkward to carry around in a "grip" which was probably the same thought which occurred to the representative of the General Steel Wares who is equipped with a large motor truck with an exceedingly spacious body, whose sides are hinged thus, making it possible to convert the vehicle into a store on wheels. The entrance to this open air "store" is situated at the rear and is made easy of access by the use of a small portable pair of steps. Here the salesman can interview his clients and give demonstrations of his samples which are all provided with gas which is generated on the truck. The refrigerators are of an entirely new and improved pattern, and embody the principle used in the construction of Thermos bottles.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Bisurated Magnesia to Overcome Trouble Caused by Acid Indigestion

Gas in the stomach accompanied by a full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion".

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a little Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful or four tablets in water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never in liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no fear of indigestion.

MACDONALD WILL STILL UNSETTLED

Business and Political Men, Judges and Courts Drawn Into $2,000,000 Dispute.

MADE TWO WILLS.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 14 (C.P.)—In the midst of involved controversy the will of the late Alexander Macdonald, pioneer Western wholesaler, is still unexecuted to-day—nineteen months after his death. Judges and courts, business and political men have been drawn into debate over the $2,000,000 estate left by the 84-year-old dealer in groceries and provisions.

Two wills, actually, were made by Mr. Macdonald before his death. One, dated December 26, 1923, was signed in the presence of one witness only; under Manitoba laws, it could be admitted to probate only by action of the Legislature. To the other, dated June 22, 1928—two months before Mr. Macdonald's demise—are attached the names of two witnesses.

Included in the will of 1923 is instruction for setting up the "Macdonald Trust" for the benefit of charitable institutions (including hospitals" in or about the City of Winnipeg to be selected by acting trustees for the estate. By the 1928 will the entire estate was bequeathed to Duncan C. Macdonald and Grace Ann Forlong, son and daughter of the testator. Duncan predeceased his father by 15 days.

First unusual angle of the Macdonald will case evolved on March 1, 1929, when Judge L. St. G. Stubbs of the Surrogate Court revoked probate of the 1923 will, granted a few days before in common form; he ordered that the will be propounded for proof in solemn form. Later the Court of Appeal upheld Judge Stubbs' order for probate in solemn form.

Contending that the will could not be proved in solmen form, counsel for Mrs. Forlong early in April filed an application for administration on her behalf. Almost two months later, after lengthy conversations and proceedings, Judge Stubbs notified solicitors for the estate, that administration would not be granted to Mrs. Forlong; offering, however, to grant temporary administration to a trust company under certain conditions. The offer was rejected.

In the meantime, Judge Stubbs had delivered an interim oral judgment, dated June 12, 1929, mentioning that he would later hand down a formal, written judgment. He stated that if his court were able, it would unhesitatingly admit to probate the 1923 will, signed by only a single witness. He mentioned that on one occasion the Manitoba Legislature validated a will irregular and invalid for the same reason as the 1923 Macdonald testament.

Application Withdrawn

"The proponents of this alleged will," said Judge Stubbs in his oral judgment, referring to the 1928 judgment, "have withdrawn the application to probate it on the ground that it was irregularly executed; but, in my opinion, it is not only irregular, invalid, for informality of execution, but it is void, absolutely void, for want of testamentary capacity in the testator."

Continued refusal of Judge Stubbs to grant administration to Mrs. Forlong resulte, on November 3, 1929, in a notice of motion being served on the Surrogate Court for order of mandamus to enforce the grant. Five weeks later, Mr. Justic W. J. Donovan granted a mandamus, ordering the Surrogate Court to grant Mrs. Forlong letters of administration within eight days.

Promptly the Surrogate Court filed notice of appeal against the order. On January 13, 1930, the Court of Appeal set aside the order of Mr. Justice Donovan and directed the Surrogate Judge "to forthwith proceed to hear and determine the application of Grace Ann Forlong for administration." Five days later Judge Stubbs formally recorded refusal to grant administration.

Court of Appeal, however, on an ex parte motion January 22, ordered that letters of administration be grant to Mrs. Forlong and directed clerk of the Surrogate Court immediately to deliver them. Two days later, Judge Stubbs delivered his final judgment on the whole proceedings. In this judgment he criticized the actions of Mr. Justice Donovan and of the Court of Appeal; and recommended that criminal proceedings be instituted against John A. Forlong, son-in-law of Mr. Macdonald, and W. A. Irish, one of the witnesses to the 1928 will.

A month later, informations were sworn by Police Chief Chris. H. Newton against both Forlong and Irish. Against the former, charges of perjury, subornation of perjury and conspiracy were laid; the latter was charged with perjury and conspiracy. Both men, prominent in Winnipeg, hurried back from holiday and health visits beyond Canada's borders and submitted to arrest; they were released on bail.

On February 13, 1930, developed one of the most unusual features of the entire Macdonald will case. Judge Stubbs created a precedent in Canadian judicial annals when he reviewed the entire case before a public audience in a crowded downtown Winnipeg theatre. William Ivens, Labor member of the Legislature for Winnipeg, was on the platform.

Thirty-six page booklets were distributed entitled: "The Macdonald Will Case, by Lewis St. George Stubbs, Surrogate Court Judge." The pamphlets contained a detailed chronology of the will case, as well as text of Judge Stubbs' interim oral judgment and reasons for his final written judgment. Illustrations depicted the disputed 1928 will, as well as affidavits sworn to by the two persons signed as witnesses to the 1928 testament.

"Since taking Sargon I know what good health means for the first time in four years.

"My appetite failed me to such an extent that I never even thought of eating breakfast, there was a sort of giving away of my digestion and my strength and energy steadily failed me. I was so nervous that practically every night I'd lie awake until early morning. I couldn't get my liver active, no matter what medicines I took, and I was weak and rundown in every way. Sargon restored my appetite and overcame my indigestion. I eat hearty meals, my nerves are strengthened, I sleep the whole night through and get up with strength and vigor I haven't felt in years. I am taking on weight right along! Sargon Pills got my liver active and are different from any other laxative I ever took."—T. Anderton, 874 Logan St., Toronto.

D. R. COLEMAN'S 90TH BIRTHDAY

BORN IN NORTH CAROLINA

BELLEVILLE, Mar. 14.—Congratulations to D. R. Coleman, a gallant veteran of the war between the South and North, in the United States, and a pioneer and honoured teacher of the Ontario School for the deaf, (in 1870 known as the Deaf and Dumb Asylum)! What worthy contributions he has made to the progress of education in scholarly thought, interpretation and citizenship! Today he attains the 90th anniversary of his birth. "Laurels of winter round his brow, but summer in his heart," Mr. Coleman is an honorary life member of Concord Masonic Lodge. May he be spared many years with his esteemed wife and daughter in their happy home on Highland avenue. North Carolina begot him, but Belleville got him, and is richer thereby.

Our Mail

Conducted by ANNE WILCOX

Dear Anne:
Will you send for the enclosed pattern for me for which I enclose fifteen cents? Thanking you for this and all helps received through your column at different times.
Yours sincerely
Mrs. C.

Thank you for telling us that you appreciate our page. I have proceed your pattern and no doubt you have received it before now.

Dear Anne:
You will find I am a stranger to you but really Marion did have my name on her book one time. I do enjoy reading your column and like Highflyer. I do think it is wonderful to have someone like Ad Nauseam to tell your troubles to and know they are safe. It is grew you you can tell anything to and know you won't hear it all back again in a short time greatly exaggerated, then you are so sorry you ever opened your mouth.

Highflyer speaks of some people trying to lord it over the rest. I know a woman who is just like that but she is very large common woman with a voice like a man. She is everywhere, into everything where she can boss any one, and keeps a hired girl and if you saw her Anne, you you not think she needed a hired girl or man either—she looks strong and rough enough to lift the world.

I think I like you Anne, and I do not think you are old either. I certainly do not see any harm in a game of cards or a nice party but I do not like to see anything get such a hold on the people as card playing has or smoking. Oh, what a shame! I live in the country Anne and really I know so many who drive miles to some hall to play cards and dance and I have heard of girls smoking and a dear little pony standing in a cold shed or perhaps tied to a post freezing. Some of our young people seem to be born with cards in their hands and the first air they get is full of tobacco smoke. Now, Anne don't think I am dreadful for I am not. I like to see people have a good time but not slave.

This has been a very cold winter, but I like to see winter weather in winter time then we may get an early spring. I am hungry to see the flowers and the green trees again and the dry roads so that I can drive out and see the wonderful beauty that unfolds itself in spring time.

Did you ever go to market Anne? There is where we meet all kinds of people, mostly busy people, but then there are these idle, lazy people who come there to spend the morning 'don't you know.' Many retired farmers who do not know what to do with themselves come down there and stand around the stoves and visit with some other idle men. Last Saturday two of these met right in front of my basket and had a heart to heart talk. I really had to ask them to move away. You couldn't sell them anything, oh no! There are women too, who come there and ask the price of butter, examine your fowl, ask if you are sure your eggs are fresh, but if you try to sell them anything. Oh no, they have a friend bring them what they need. And we have to be polite and say it is all right. When we are wishing they had a dozen children to keep them at home.

I am very thankful to C. C. for her talks on raising chickens. She must be a wonderful woman, her daughters ought to be very thankful to have picked such a mother. I am sure she doesn't spend her evenings and afternoons at bridge parties. I do not raise many chickens—I like flowers and a garden and the two don't go together very well. I am sure C. C. comes to market—does not wear very short dresses—thanks for longer dresses—seed pearls.

Well Anne I am afraid I am getting tiresome and I must write more letters. This is poor writing. I have a stiff shoulder due to a cold. I will do better next time.

. . . . . Georgia.

You forgot to give a penname, so I have given you 'Georgia'—how do you like it? If you do not care for it as a penname, why I shall be glad to change it for you in your next letter. Yes, I have gone to market and have seen the men standing around that stove. It isn't so bad in summer, but then you don't see them in the summer do you—it is always on the coldest day and they try to keep all the heat around the stove! Ruralite complained about this once before.

Dear Anne:
This is just terrible me never writing until now to thank you for your card at Christmas, but better late than never they say!

I have been quite sick since the holidays and have just been doing my own work lately. Just after I got better the baby took sick. She's only nine months old so you see she would be a big trouble. I have certainly enjoyed the letter of late. Nyrna's sure caused a discussion among the neighbors. I like very much to read Ad Nauseam's letters, as there is something different than the rest. Perhaps she won't like me to say this, but she should be so glad she's different from the most of people.

Anne is it good taste when you invite people in for tea to put on all the style you possibly can? The reason I asked we were out to tea one night last week but after the meal was over I was actually sick. I think they had all the silver on the table that they had in the house. You have written on how to place silver and I studied the piece, but you never said anything how they had the table laid.

I would love to have the neighbors write and tell us how to manage our children when they get about a year old. I'm away from all my people and don't know hardly any of the people where I live, and this is my first child and I'm young, so won't someone of you friends tell me some fine night, because no one realizes how I worry to bring her up so people won't say "Well, that child was spoiled." So all you neighbors give Nyrna a rest and talk about babies because I'm sure there are some mothers among our friends.

Best wishes, Anne, I remain.
Just Another

So sorry that you have been ill Just Another, for I realize how hard it is with a small baby to try to keep up with all the work too! It certainly isn't good taste to put on all the style you know when entertaining—anything done in the simplest manner is always the most enjoyed. You must have been attending a very formal affair, or probably the people were just desirous of displaying the silver which doesn't get a chance to be displayed very often! Guests at all times should be the first consideration of the hostess, and the nature of the entertaining should be governed accordingly.

Famous Singer, Galli Curci, With Her Husband

Galli Curci, famous singer and operatic star, who left New York not long ago upon a European tour, announced in Paris that she had cancelled all her engagements and would sail immediately for New York. She states that she has been the victim of a newspaper campaign because of alleged exorbitant fees and unjust criticism, she maintains, for her European concert charges are less than half her American fee. Galli Curci is shown in the photograph here with her husband and accompanist, Homer Samuels.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

TO GET A CLEAR SKIN.

In these days when to have a clear skin is considered desirable by men as well as women, I often wonder why more thought is not given to what gives and maintains a nice skin.

Where the skin is harsh, gray looking, perhaps pasty in appearance, or has blemishes of any kind, the first thought with many individuals is to use some special soap, cream, powder, or salve.

Now there are conditions where these applications are helpful, as they stimulate the skin in this particular part, increase the circulation, and improvement can be noted.

But I have particularly in mind that dread dry looking skin so often noticed.

Now it has been found in treating certain chronic skin ailments, eczema for instance, that diet is the most important factor in bringing about a cure.

Sometimes it has been tomatoes, too many potatoes, too much bread, too much fresh fruit that were the underlying causes of harsh skin.

Research men, with the above experience in mind, have been experimenting with food, and its effect upon the skin, and found that the diet of these individuals with dry, harsh, gray skin was made up mostly of those four main articles, meat, potatoes, bread, and pie or pastry.

These are serviceable foods, all of them, and should be eaten, as they have plenty of starch for energy purposes and the meat is a body builder, but they lack certain essentials, certain vitamins, mineral substances. They are too 'acid.'

Accordingly by lessening the amount of meat, potatoes, bread, and pastry, and adding milk, fresh cooked vegetables, fresh fruit and lettuce, they have given to the blood the elements necessary to give the skin its rightful appearance, clear, a good color, soft, and pliable.

Now if these foods are doing this for the skin, what must they be doing for all the internal tissues of the body. If these foods are making the skin 'young' in appearance, they will do the same for the lining of the blood vessels, kidneys, liver, and other organs.

Remember you are to eat meat or eggs, bread and potatoes, in smaller quantities and add fresh cooked vegetables, milk, fruit and lettuce.

Uncommon Sense
By John Blake

THE SPACE BETWEEN THE EARS.

Down here in Florida, where I am spending a week or so, old timers tell you many stories about the alligators.

Once there were dozens of them in each little pond—hundreds and perhaps millions in the big ones.

As a rule they are peaceful creatures, content to mind their own business but not at all well tempered when bothered.

The other day while playing golf on a West Florida course, I saw one of them, apparently about twelve feet long, floating in the water, with his eyes like two little periscopes elevated just above the surface.

"Is that a dangerous alligator," I asked the caddie.

"He ain't dangerous if you leave him be," said the caddie, "but I wouldn't suggest that you poke him with a pole or do some swimmin' near him."

The alligators are few now. You can see their skulls sometimes in the gas stations where they are kept on display to attract customers.

And because the alligators had no brains, their great strength has not saved them from impending extinction.

Soon the only ones you will see will be on the alligator farms, or deep in the swamps where you will probably not go because of snakes.

The alligator is a pretty good example of how mych physical strength is worth if it is not directed by an intelligent mind.

A great alligator could easily bite a man in two with a snap of his long powerful jaws, or could kill him with a blow of his tail.

But those who hunt the alligator have no fear of him.

They know that he has not the sense properly to protect himself, that, even though he flops into the water when shot at, he will be up again in a few minutes, probably in the same place, to find out what it was that made the funny popping noise.

He has plenty of health and endurance. Some of them are said to live for three hundred years.

But those three hundred years have taught them nothing, because the brain space inside their heads is so small and the quality of the gray matter within it is extremely poor.

Because a man has a thinking mind he can devise weapons that are many times more destructive and powerful than those of the alligator, and he could, were the brutes suddenly to runamuck, wipe out the last of the race in a campaign of a few weeks.

If you are one of those who are constantly seeking to get big muscles and develop your physical fighting ability, reflect a bit on the alligator.

Put him in a ring with a prize-fighter the latter unarmed, and he would, quickly win. But the fighter or somebody would soon borrow a gun, and the alligator, lacking space between the ears, would take a long, long count.

A Beautiful Recipe

A beautiful turning to God in prayer,
At the break of day, be it dull or fair;
A beautiful word when a chance occurs,
Instead of gossip that hurts and slurs.
A beautiful deed, not one or two,
But just as many as you can do;
A beautiful thought in mind to keep,
Where otherwise evil and sin might creep;
A beautiful smile! how it helps and cheers,
And coaxes from others their frowns and tears;
A beautiful song in praise to Him,
When the shadows fall and the lights grow dim,
If followed, you'll find it a beautiful way
To make—and so easy—a beautiful day!

SOCIETIES HOLD DAY OF PRAYER

Stirling Women's Missionary Auxiliaries Gather in St. John's Church.

A.Y.P.A. MEETING

STIRLING, March 14.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The World Day of Prayer was observed by a joint service of the three local Women's Missionary Auxiliaries and Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, the large gathering being held in St. John's Anglican church. Potted plants of spring flowers, also cut flowers added to the beauty of the sacred edifice. Mrs. (Dr.) Alger of St. John's church presided throughout the service.

At intervals prayers were offered by members of the various auxiliaries. A duet "Oh Lead Me Father," was sung by Mrs. Claud Sherrer and her daughter of Mount Pleasant and an excellent paper on "Pentecost" was given by Mrs. Harper Rollins of St. Andrew's church.

Interest is being shown by the increased attendance at the Guild meetings of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church held every Monday evening. This week's program was arranged by Mrs. A. S. Murdoff. The president, Mrs. Harper Rollins, occupied the chair. After the opening hymn the 90th Psalm was read by Mrs. Nathan followed with prayer by Rev. A. N. Reid. Mrs. Will Dermity gave a pleasing solo. The main feature of the evening was a number of lantern slides shown by Jos. Wilson, B.S.A., which were greatly enjoyed by all. A vote of thanks was given Mr. Wilson for his willingness to contribute to the program. The count was Hustlers, 37; Busy Bees, 36. The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

A.Y.P.A. Meeting.

The A.Y.P.A. met in the vestry of St. John's church on Monday evening. The meeting opened with a hymn and prayer followed by the roll call. The program was a missionary one.

Miss Florence Faires read an account of the life of William Carey taken from the book "Blazing New Trails" by Wallace. Carey is called the Bible translator of India as he translated the Bible into the native tongues and compiled dictionaries of the different Indian languages.

Miss Dorothy Alger read a portion of Rukins' "The Seven Lamps of Architecture", comparing these laws to the seven laws of life that govern the architecture of the soul.

Mr. Arthur Gould gave an account of David Livingston, the greatest of African trail blazers. This Scottish missionary and explorer did a very wonderful work among the natives travelling 30,000 miles through the heart of Africa.

Teams 1 and 2 tied for the T party contest. Teams 2 and 3 tied for the baseball contest. The next meeting will be a literary one.

St. Paul's Y.P.S.

St. Paul's Y.P.S. met as usual on Monday night with a large attendance. Mr. Harry Hulin, president, was in charge of the entire program. Miss Etta Thompson read the scripture lesson and Mr. Walter Lindenfield led in prayer. A unique part of the program was given by junior members on the current events of the day given by Olive Munroe, Pearl Staple, Frank Buller, John Munroe, Lloyd Rowland, Madaline Leury, Marion Bailey, Ruth Martin and Ruby Stapely. Evelyn Lindenfield favored the audience with a piano solo. The main topic of the evening was given by Miss Grace Vanderwaters, first vice-president, on the subject, Education and Work. This proved most instructive to all.

The quartette, Mrs. W. Lindenfield, Mrs. F. Jeffrey, Mrs. R. Weese and Miss Ruby Richardson was enjoyed by all. A Bible contest was put on by Miss Rheta Chambers. The meeting closed with the Mispah Benedection.

On Monday afternoon Mr. Sprentall flushed a portion of Front street from the library building to the bridge, which made a decided improvement. There is, however, some ice still remaining along the way in the gutters.

Mr. Robert Lannigan left his horse, as he thought, securely tied in the Presbyterian Church shed on Monday afternoon, but it broke loose and came out from the shed and was not captured until it had damaged the buggy and harness to a considerable extent.

The highway between here and Foxboro is barred from traffic in places, due to the frost coming out. Those who have business in that direction have to detour and go by way of the Ridge road.

MRS. J. M. WALSH

BROCKVILLE, Marrh 14.—Mrs. Walsh, widow of Major J. M. Walsh, for many years one of the principal officers of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police and later administrator of the Yukon Territory at the time of the celebrated 'gold rush' passed quietly away on March 7 at the family residence, "Indian Cliff", King street, east, after a long illness.

The late Mrs. Walsh was born here Mary, a daughter of John Andrew Mowat and his wife, Mary Mowat, originally of the Orkney Islands, and was married to Major Walsh in 1870. Thereafter with the exception of visits to the Northwest in company with her husband, she continued to reside in Brockville where her friends were legion. A Presbyterian in religion, she was for 23 years the president of the Ladies' Aid of the First Presbyterian church and an active worker in its interests, and laterly she had been a member of the United Church of Canada.

Predeceased by her husband in 1905 and by all her brothers and sisters, Mrs. Walsh is survived by her only daughter, Mrs. E. A McGannon, of Brockville.

This crepe satin tailored frock, which is to be found in the Martial and Armand collection, is sufficiently dressy to appear at any hour of the day

THE TAILORED DRESS IS APPROPRIATE FOR ANY HOUR.

There are few women who do not find use for a somewhat tailored type of dress which is sufficiently dressy to appear at almost any hour of the day. I have had their needs in mind in creating this frock, and to give it a real air of practicality, have made it in a crepe satin, using the dull side for the body of the dress, and setting in long narrow strips of the shiny material. The buttoned-on cuffs and the collar and little vestee are in white. Worn with a black hat, and shoes, and with the thinnest of thin black stockings, this dress has a distinction all its own.

"A little nonsense now and then
Is relished by the wisest men."

• • • • • • •

During my sojourn in Peterborough I have found that there are a great many people who have not a sense of humor.

• • • • • • •

I wondered why this was, because, as you know, it is something one should have to live a happy and successful life. A very wise thing to do is to cultivate a sense of humor.

• • • • • • •

Housewives, to be successful must have this essential. Of course there are ups and downs in every household and when one has a sense of humor, it smoothes the rough places and oils the wheels of domestic relations which otherwise run with jars and jolts.

• • • • • • •

And often when you are downcast and everything seems to be going wrong, it turns this sadness into laughter and diverts many misfortunes that otherwise would befall a family.

• • • • • • •

I have been told by certain people that they would like "so and so" much better if they only had a sense of humor.

• • • • • • •

There are those people who take life so seriously they rarely look on the pleasant side and always find the pessimistic note, rather than the optimistic one.

• • • • • • •

Of course we would not be wise in choosing such people as friends, for very likely we, too, would become pessimistic and our sense of humor would be lost.

• • • • • • •

Surely then, such a boon as humor that makes life easier and promotes happiness is worth possessing and cultivating at all times.

• • • • • • •

Those who have it appreciate its value and all that it does for them; and so it is to those who have not a sense of humor that I direct this article.

• • • • • • •

The first requisite, then, in obtaining this desired essential, is to look on life as not made up of gloom any more than it is entirely composed of merriment. Do not think the worst of people or of some misfortune which has befallen you.

• • • • • • •

Once you have mastered it and you make humor your friend, it will come to your aid whenever you desire and need it most. You will learn to rely upon it, just as you would some close friend who stands ready to help, at your call.

• • • • • • •

When you have thoroughly cultivated it, it will crop up without apparent seeking, and this is just what you should strive to make it do.

• • • • • • •

But let me warn you against mistaking bad humor for good. So often have I come across this, that I want to stress it.

• • • • • • •

Be on your guard against humor that is at the expense of someone's feelings or brings any suggestion of unhappiness to another. Sometimes I wonder how people can be so cruel as to take advantage of a person in this way.

• • • • • • •

I am sure you do not practise humor of this kind, but the kind that helps lift a frown from another's countenance and that sends a thrill of joy through your own system!

Fashions

NEWEST FASHIONS REMINISCENT OF OTHER DAYS

NEW YORK, March 14. (U.P.)—Most women will feel like giving three rousing cheers for the return to high favor of navy and white and the old familiar pin and polka dot designs. Among the myriad of printed patterns offered, dotted designs strike a responsive cord in the hearts of women. All shades of blue are being backed for Spring, and navy alone or with white is by no means least in favor.

Faconnes ranging from washable crepes patterned in satin, to woollens and heavy silks with the faconnes influence manifested in dots, are highlighted in all reports of the Paris showings. Even an occasion embroidered chiffon or cotton voiles carries out the faconne idea.

Among the other fabric interests from the Paris opening viewpoint are Shantung especially in its heavier versions and stiffened chiffon which of course has much the effect of organdie. The repeated appearance of both stiffened chiffon and organdie is due to the habit French dressmakers have acquired of adding dainty lingeries touches to neckline and cuffs. Blouses are also fashioned from these delightful materials. It is amusing, incidentally to hear again of peek-a-boo waists! After the frankness with which the feminine form has been revealed, the pek-a-boo waist seems a little late—something in fact like an anti-climax.

St. Patrick's Rolls

One cupful of milk scalded and cooled, one tablespoonful of sugar, a pinch of salt, one-half cupful of compressed yeast, two cupfuls of flour. Let rise over night. In the morning add flour, enough to make a stiff dough. Let rise again, then add one-half cupful of sugar, a piece of butter, a little nutmeg, two eggs. Beat butter, sugar and eggs to a cream, then add to dough. Knead, roll with rolling pin, cut with a large cake cutter, then cut in halves, dip in melted butter and lay against one another, with rounded part up. Let rise again then bake.

OUR CHILDREN

UNFRIENDLY CHILDREN.

Parents sometimes find themselves shocked by the unfriendly attitudes of their children. Where they expected cheerful co-operation, they find silence, sulking, talking back, defiance, utter unfriendliness. Why should that be?

When the children were little this was not so. They were friendly, obedient, affectionate. Then this change gradually fell upon them. They began along about the age of three and four years to discover they were people. They found that they wanted things, that they wanted to change things about them, that they had a wish to be different from those about them occasionally. When they displayed any such desire their elders promptly objected and punished them. "No, no. You do as I say and ask no question."

That attitude of "do as I say and ask no questions," brings in its bill along about the time of adolescence. By that time the personality is well developed, the desires are stronger, the will is firmer, and what was in the beginning a questioning of the life about the child has become a determined intention to do and to dare on his own account.

If the child had no such equipment he would never develop into a self sustaining, self supporting individual. His personality must be allowed exercise, his desire to be a person of importance in the family group must be fulfilled happily. The child must be given as large a share in life of the family as he is able to carry from the start.

Little children who say, "Let me, let me," must be given the chance they ask for without grudging. Let them try. Help them to try. Set the stage for their successful effort. Praise them when they succeed. Encourage them to take over home responsibilities and talk hopefully of the time when they can relieve you of any and all responsibility as occasion offers or demands.

If you want friendly children, you must maintain an attitude of friendliness toward them. Speak to them as though you respected them as people. The littlest child understands that tone, and responds to it. A dominating tone, a harsh, unsympathetic manner, sends a child back into itself and ends in utter unfriendliness.

Take a child into partnership early. Say "WE" when you are planning things. Talk over family hopes and plans, let the children join in the discussion of ways and means according to their powers and intelligence at the time. Each bit of co-operation strengthens them for the next. Every friendly experience lays the basis for the next.

Acts tend to repeat themselves. So do mental attitudes. In fact the mental attitudes are first always. Guard against unfriendly children of adolescent age by making friends and partners of the children at an early age.

STRANGE MALADY PROVES MYSTERY

Form of Paralysis Inflicts 160 Persons in Three States.

UNABLE TO BEND LIMBS.

ATLANTA Ga., March 14. (C.P.)—The health departments of Mississippi Georgia and Tennessee to-day are confronted with the problem of determining the cause and finding a treatment for a mysterious paralysis that has afflicted 160 persons in the three states within the past week.

The outbreaks have occurred in limited areas. So far there have been no fatalities, although all patients have been incapacitated through inability to flex the lower limbs.

Dr. E. L. Bishop, State Health Commissioner for Tennessee, from Nashville, yesterday, said the cause of the malady had not been determined.

The outbreak in the south first was reported from East Tennessee, and yesterday there were 120 cases in four counties, but no new cases have been reported within the past day or so.

Members of the State Health Department are co-operating with the local physicians in Tennessee in treating the disease, and seeking its cause.

CHICAGO WATER DIVERSION APPEARS IN COURTS AGAIN

Chief Justice Hughes Does Not Sit During Argument on His Report

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 13 C.P.)—The long standing controversy between the Great Lakes States and the Chicago Sanitary District again came before the Supreme Court yesterday, as arguments opened in the contention over the report of Charles Evans Hughes as special master.

Chief Justice Hughes did not sit during the argument over the report which he prepared and will not in any way participate in the action of the court. The report presented a plan for carrying out the decision rendered by the court in January, 1929, ordering that the present diversion be decreased as rapidly as possible. The five hours set for argument will be continued to-day.

ENGINEERS TAKE KEEN INTEREST IN PAPERS GIVEN BY STUDENTS

Interesting Topics Are Discussed by Three Local Student Speakers.

THE DEISEL ENGINE.

Keen interest was manifest in the papers presented by student members of the local branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada in the Paragon Tea Rooms last evening and the discussion which was afterwards raised paid handsome tribute to the appreciation with which lectures were received. Answers to questions likewise gave evidence of a sound technical knowledge borne of much intensive study and practical training. W. H. Hooper was in the chair.

The lectures, all employees of the Canadian General Electric Company were A. E. Jagger, S.E.I.C. "The Deisel Engine"; R. L. Morrison, S.E.I.C. "Power Rectifiers" and J. I. Taylor, S.E.I.C. "Forestry in Alberta."

Mr. Jagger and Mr. Morrison, both natives of Vancouver, were educated at the University of British Columbia and have been in this city since June last year. The former is foreman in the fractional motors department, whilst the latter is in the test department. Mr. Taylor, who hails from Edmonton was educated at the University of Alberta and has been in this city for the past sixteen months.

The Deisel Engine

The first speaker, Mr Jagger, spoke at some length on the invention and development of the Deisel engine and was able to speak with a great deal of authority, having had considerable experience with marine Deisel engines on the Pacific coast.

He explained how this engine is growing in popularity and made the prediction that it will replace the steam engine within the course of a few years. Already its use is common in mines, power plants and on railways and whilst the initial cost of installation might be greater than steam the lower cost of operation counterbalances any objections which might be raised in this respect.

It is increasing in importance in marine work as it does not take up much space. The oil fuel is easily stored in tanks below the water line of a boat whereas coal bunkers necessary on a steamship, take up considerable room above the water line which could otherwise be used as cargo space.

Engineers are at present working on Deisel engines for use in motor cars and airplanes, whilst everyone will be watching the projected flight of the British airship R.101 with a great deal of interest as it is equipped with Deisel engines.

The lecture was illustrated with numerous lantern slides showing various types of Deisel engines. One picture in particular being of great value in showing the cleanly appearance of the engine room of a certain power plant and the neat disposal of the two 360 h.p. Deisel Electric units.

Showed Own Slides

Mr Morrison also showed a few slides of his own construction and used the blackboard to elucidate a highly technical lecture on Mercury Arc Rectifiers. He spoke of the early development of the rectifier saying that in 1908 the Westinghouse Company commenced research work and spent much time and money to make these appliances a commercial possibility.

The use of the rectifier is most common in operation on street car power systems and is specially suited to this type of work as it will stand a considerable overload of power for short periods. He instanced a case where this is particularly noticeable, which is when a street car is just starting up.

Complaints of noisy sub-stations have almost entirely ceased as rectifiers of the present day are practically noiseless in operation. Interference with radios has also been eliminated by the use of shields.

1,500,000 Sq. Miles

"My subject covers a large area" said Mr. Taylor, in opening his interesting talk on Forestry. "It covers an area of 1,500,000 square miles." He spoke intimately of the vast forest reserves of his native province having at one time been on a survey party at which time he took several photographs from which he made lantern slides. These he exhibited in conjunction with his address which added greatly to the success of it.

He discussed the duties of the Fire Rangers which includes the cutting of trails, erection of telephone communications between camps and the erection of stop-over cabins and look-out towers.

Their three major duties are preventing of fires, detection and suppression. The first is accomplished by educating the people of the danger of forest fires and of the necessity for conservation of the vast timber resources. Detection incudes patrol work by airplanes, a daily patrol of the railroad with speeders and lookout men stationed in the watch towers.

A great point in forestry is being able to recognise fire hazard periods and these are largely dependent on the humidity of the air. One of the latest methods adopted by Price Brothers of Quebec is to measure the moisture content of the "duff" or top soil. It is a method which is meeting with success and is likely to be adopted by all Provinces.

Mr. Taylor also dealt with the control of insect pests which attack standing timber, adding that another menace to forest reserves was fungus diseases.

The aim of the Forestry service is a system of management which will lead to a sustained yield of timber and the speaker was of the opinion that it should be managed solely by the Government and not left to the exploitation of private concerns.

In addition to his own slides Mr. Taylor used some very artistic colored slides kindly provided by the Department of the Interior.

Hall of Fame Disturbed.

The weigh scale building on Peterborough market Square—a popular gathering place for the city's "Hall of Fame," who are usually to be seen basking in the sunshine on the benches provided for their use, were in session yesterday afternoon, inside the building, when the sheet iron roof soared from its moorings to land with a mighty clatter on the open square.

It is presumed that the "air" generated by the "sages" coupled with the high wind which was blowing at the time was responsible for the incident. Fortunately no one was struck by the flying roof and it is reposing in its accustomed position, having been replaced this morning.

Matters of great moment are discussed daily by this varigated assembly—great questions of international import, world problems and civic affairs being theoretically solved in a manner which would make the City Councillors hang their heads with shame.

It is understood that the "council" were discussing plans for a bigger and better Peterborough at the time of the occurrence and the consternation of the "benchers" can better be imagined than described, as they found themselves left roofless and speechless.

KROEHLER WEEK IN LOCAL STORE

Home Furnishing Store Has Some Splendid Values on Display.

OVER 100 FABRICS.

"This is my home". With these words you invite your friends into your living room, the one room which above all others, should express your personality, your own ideas—your welcome to your guests.

Most of us can remember the "parlors" of other days. Everywhere those stuffy, seldom used rooms, with their horsehair sofas, sea shells and large framed pictures of uncles and aunts were very much alike. They were cold and uninviting. Little wonder the family used the parlor only on "state" occasions.

Now how different is the room that we rightly call the "living" room. It has become really livable, the enjoyable gathering place of our family, the meeting ground of our friends. Luxurious comfortable chesterfields and chairs invite you to rest, to lounge and enjoy yourself.

This is Kroehler Week at the Home Furnishing Store, 208 Charlotte street. A special representative of the Kroehler Mfg. Co. is present during this event and is offering chesterfield suites at the lowest prices ever quoted on such dependable living room furniture. A splendid showing is to be seen at the Home Furnishing Co. store tomorrow. Plan to take advantage of this opportunity, the savings are well worth while.

If you wish a suite made up to your order there are over a hundred fabrics to choose from. Do not hesitate to choose your livingroom suite now, as this is the greatest money-saving opportunity of 1930. Home Furnishing Co.

SHRINERS EXPECTED TO VISIT DISTRICT

Local Chamber Offers Co-operation in Helping to House Visiting Delegates.

An offer of co-operation in helping to house the Shriners during their Imperial Council four day session in June, has been extended by the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, and George W. Leger, chairman of the hotel and housing committee in a letter recently received here expresses his appreciation for the offer of assistance.

It was pointed out to Mr. Leger by the Chamber that a record was on hand of all the residents in the city who were prepared to offer accommodation, this list having been compiled during the Old Home Week Centennial celebrations. As soon as definite information is received here as to the number of Shriners likely to need accommodation, it was explained that arrangements could easily be made to induce summer resort and hotel proprietors to open earlier than usual to cope with whatever demand is made on their resources.

The opinion locally seems to be that the Shriners hailing from all quarters of the continent are hardly going to journey to Toronto, without taking advantage of the excellent summer resorts and sightseeing trips which abound in this section of Ontario and it was considered a foregone conclusion that a trip to the Kawarthas was a necessary adjunct to the itinerary; however, it was never considered possible that accommodation would be sought very far away from Toronto during the session of the Council. This contingency has nevertheless been made necessary, and accommodation has been sought as far afield as Guelph. It was this fact that induced the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce to make an offer of assistance, and the outcome will be watched with a great deal of interest.

TWILIGHT CIRCLE HOLDS BANQUET

St. Patrick's Dinner is Partaken of by George Street Circle.

ALLOCATION ANNOUNCED.

The regular March meeting of the Twilight Mission Circle of George Street United Church was held in the Sunday School Hall. The members met around the supper table at 6.30. An Irish stew was the principal item of the menu. The members then adjourned to a class room where the business meeting was held. A letter was read by the president stating that the allocation would be $100 for the ensuing year. A motion that the proceeds derived from the next presentation of "Cranberry Corners" be donated to the Dramatic Club was passed. Mite boxes and Easter thankoffering envelopes were distributed by Miss Myrtle Burns. Miss Evelyn Scott rendered a pleasing solo, accompanied by Miss Musa Cox. A talk on St. Patrick's Day was given by Miss Dorothy Wiman. A reading was given by Miss Evelyn Miller. Y'S MEN'S CLUB HEARS THOMPSON two years there were eight flourishing clubs in Ohio. In February, 1922 the international organization of Y's Men's Club was given birth.

159 Clubs in 8 Countries

Up until 1927 the organization enjoyed rapid growth, but during the last few years its numerical advancement has been slight. At the present time there are 159 clubs in 8 different countries, numbering more than 4,000 members.

One thing responsible for its later tardy growth was the lack of interest shown the movement by Y.M.C.A. secretaries. However, this year, mainly through the efforts of Mr. Thompson, the General Council of Canadian Y.M.C.A. has heartily endorsed it, and while a movement is on foot to gain the same support from the American General Council, that council has already approved it.

A Y's Men's Club is a service club similar to Rotary and Kiwanis, but its work is centered about the Y.M.C.A. It lists young men over twenty years of age who desire to do worthwhile services while getting fun in doing them, and its members acknowledge that with every privilege there exists a duty.

An important aim of the club is the development of closer relationship among the nations and to make for better understanding.

It was announced that within a short time an inter-city meeting with the local club and the Belleville club, one of the banner clubs in the international organization, will be held.

DROP IN THE BUCKET

PITTSBURGH, (U.P.).—Willie Williams and Robert Wright have found that it is easy enough to sell "stuff" to thirsty patrons for a good price—and they know how to get away with it, too. At a hearing at which they were charged with selling three five-gallon cans of "moon" for $45, it was learned that two of the cans contained water; the third a tube which had a smell like liquor.

30 CANDIDATES TAKING COURSE

Provisional School of Infantry Instruction Opens at Armouries.

MEETS TWICE A WEEK.

More than 30 candidates including a contingent from the Victoria and Haliburton Regiment at Lindsay began the course offered by the provisional school of infantry instruction which was opened this week at the Armouries. Captain J. Edwards, District Weapon Officer of Military District No. 3 took charge of the school.

The school has been secured for Peterborough through the efforts of Lieut.-Col. M. H. Park, commanding the Peterborough Rangers. It is a special provision of military headquarters to enable members of the regiments to qualify as non-commissioned officers without the necessity of attending a Royal school.

Practical work is proceeding under the capable instruction of Q. M. S. I. Thomas of headquarters staff, M. D. 3. The enthusiasm of the members of the course assures the success of the school.

The work includes training in infantry drill, weapon training and field tactics. The latter part of the work will be carried on in the open since the surrounding country is specially suited to tactical schemes.

Officers of the Peterborough Rangers are confident that the holding of the special school with its practical training will provide an unusually good set of qaulified non-commissioned officers for the Battalion. It is expected that these men will be able to bring the work of the drill season which is rapidly approaching, to a state of efficiency above that of last year.

The school is held on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings with the outdoor work planned for Saturday afternoons.

While their husbands are busy at conferences, wives of members of the American delegation are shopping for antiques and old prints. Mrs. Reed, wife of the Senator from Pennsylvania, is purchasing Georgian furniture for a new home being built in Washington. They are participating in a round of social functions during Lndon's season now at its height.

Campbellford Wins the Trent Valley League Title

"BUSTER" WHITTON TALLIES WINNING GOAL IN OVERTIME TO COP VICTORY FOR MILLERS

FEW PENALTIES.

(Special to The Examiner)

BELLEVILLE, March 14.—'Buster' Whitton, Campbellford's shifty little centre man, decided the closely played hockey series between the Millers and the Stirling team here last night when he tipped a shot into the net after eighteen minutes of overtime had been played. It was a great climax to a thrilling engagement which had the crowd on their toes throughout. There was little choice between the teams either last night or on the series, as they battled to a scoreless tie in the first game, again tied in the second game 2-2, while last night's game settled the issue.

Few Penalties.

It was exciting all the way and in contrast to the last game here, few penalties were handed out, the teams realizing that they must remain on the ice if they hoped to pull out with a win. Stirling had previously won the Whitty Trophy, emblematic of the championship two years in succession, and had they won last night's game they would have retained it.

The arena was packed to the doors for the game, and it was estimated that in the neighborhood of three thousand witnessed the titular battle. One goal was scored in the regulation time by Stirling, but Referee Joe Smith of Kingston, who had the game well in hand at all times, called it back for an offside. The Campbellford team set a terrific pace in the overtime and again they swarmed in on the Stirling goal, only to be frustrated by Morton's brilliant work. Only two minutes before, Whitton had scored the winning goal, he had set sail from centre ice and with only Morton to beat, he lost the puck, when Blue, in his anxiety, skated in front of his partner. While a fast pace was set by both teams, the Campbellford team substituted but one man; Blue replacing McKay, while on the other hand the Stirling team finished the game with their starting line-up.

Ken Davis had a pretty duel with Whitton at centre ice and since the latter scored the goal, he corralled the honors last night. Both boys are smart hockey players; Davis the speedier of the two, although Whitton more than counteracts that with his trickiness.

Goalies Good.

Morton played a splendid game in goal for the losers and saved them several times when the Campbellford team swarmed around him. Irwin had many shots to handle, but he was not kept as busy as Morton. Horkins was watched closely and seldom did he have an opening to break away, but he was very effective, and besides fingering some dangerous thrusts, he broke up some smart plays by the Millers. McKay thrilled the spectators with his rushes into Stirling territory, and combined nicely with his partners on the forward line. Ibey worked himself into exhaustion for the Stirling team, while Ingram played one of his best games of the season on the defence.

Lack Scoring Punch.

The Stirling team opened up with a concerted assault on the Campbellford goal but they lacked the scoring punch, and then Campbellford opened a barrage on Morton. Play ranged up and down the ice but invariably the rushes ended in the corner.

The second period was a repetition of the first with both teams trying hard to score while the three thousand fans yelled themselves hoarse. In the third spasm the checking was intense and it was a tired bunch of players who went to the dressing showed some startling speed in the overtime and had the Stirling team bewildered. Ibey the Stirling wingman, was badly injured in the first overtime period when he collided with McKay, but after receiving repairs in the dressing room he went back to finish the game, and was one of the most important cogs in the Stirling machine. After the game, Whitton was boosted shoulder high by the Campbellford supporters who swarmed on the ice and made things decidedly lively.

The smallest crowd to watch an N.H.A. game in Montreal this year saw an indifferent display of hockey.

CHICAGO, March 14 (Canadian Press).—In a furious overtime game of thrills, spills, penalties and protests, the Chicago Black Hawks snapped the long winning streak of the world's championship Boston Bruins by a score of 3 to 2 before 14,000 spectators at the Chicago Stadium last night.

Charlie Paddock Enters Eighteenth Year of Competition

Charlie Paddock enters his eighteenth year of competition. The famous sprinter, once the "world's fastest human," begins training for a place on the Los Angeles Athletic Club relay team as preparations for spring track events are begun at Los Angeles. In his first appearance of the year, Charlie tries out various forms of "starting blocks." WEST TORONTO ARE JUNIOR O.H.A. CHAMPIONS

VICTORY OVER MILLIONAIRES PLACES DETROIT OLYMPICS ON EVEN FOOTING WITH LONDON

Take Stranglehold on Fourth Play-off Place in International.

THREE GAMES TO-NIGHT.

Victors Throw Away Many Chances to Counter on Wild Shots.

TORONTO, Ont., March 14.—(C.P.)— Blanking Toronto Millionaires, six to nothing, Detroit Olympics practically clinched a play-off berth in the International Hockey League last night. The victory places the Olympics on even terms with the third place London Panthers and three points ahead of last year's champions, Windsor Bulldogs.

Only two games remain on the schedule for Windsor and Detroit and the Bulldogs must win both to oust the Olympics who showed rare form in crushing the Millionaires in the Motor City.

Detroit secured a pair of goals in the opening period. Toronto had few scoring chances, the Olympic defence playing superbly, aided by the fine back-checking of the forwards.

Three Games To-night.

Three games will be contested tonight, two being of major importance, while the other is merely playing out of the schedule. Windsor Bulldogs have their last chance to squeeze into the play-off picture when they entertain Detroit. Victory to-night will brighten the Border City team's hopes considerably as in their last league fixture they meet the lowly Niagara Falls team while the Olympics clash with the second place Cleveland Indians.

London Panthers go to Niagara Falls to engage the Cataracts. The Forest City team are considered a certainty to finish in the first four, but they need another brace of points, at least, to clinch third place.

In the other game Hamilton Tigers travel to Toronto to meet the Millionaires.

Kitchener Receives Severe Hockey Jolt

TORONTO, March 14. (C.P.)—Galt Terriers defeated the Kitchener Dutchmen four to one, in a Canadian League game last night, and in doing so gave the Kitchener's team's hopes of participating in the play-offs a severe jolt. The losers are in third place, just two points ahead of the last place Brantford team.

Only two games remain on the schedule and should Kitchener lose again, while Brantford wins, the teams will be tied.

Tentative dates for the play-offs have been announced by Robert Dawson, president of the league. The semi-final series between Galt and either Brantford or Kitchener will be played March 18 and 20, with the final commencing March 22, three games out of five deciding the champions.

Superiority in Team Play Feature of M.A.A.A. 2-1 Victory Over Rideaus.

ELIMINATIONS NARROW.

TORONTO, Ont., March 14.—(C.P.)— Junior hockey held the limelight in Eastern Canada amateur hockey circles last night. Four teams which had successfully surmounted the difficulties strewn in the paths of teams in quest of the Ontario Hockey Association Memorial Cup, emblematic of the Dominion championship clashed in two exciting contests.

At Ottawa, Montreal Amateur Athletic gained a two to one victory over Otatwa Rideaus because of their superiority in team play, while in Toronto, a well balanced team—West Toronto — were crowned Ontario Hockey Association champions when they defeated Niagara Falls, five to three.

East Meets West.

Montreal and Ottawa will play their return game at the eastern metropolis on Saturday, the winner qualifying to meet the winner of the West Toronto-Sault Ste. Marie series, which commences here Saturday night. The Quebec champions took the lead against Rideaus in the opening period when that mighty atom, Kenny Farmer, scored a polished goal. Finnigan tied the count for the homesters shortly after, but Montreal netted the winning marker on a long shot in the middle frame.

A packed arena saw West Toronto eliminate Niagara. Previously the teams had each won a game by a four to two count. The "rubber" proved the most exciting of the series. Thrice the youthful Cataracts came from behind to tie the score, but lack of reserve strength kept them from duplicating this performance in the last period when West Toronto notched a pair of goals without a reply.

The winners will now meet the Greyhounds, champions of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, in a two game series on Saturday and Monday in Toronto.

Hamilton Tigers stamped themselves as a team much better than some care to rate them by crushing Iroquois Falls, seven to nothing, in the second of their two game Allan Cup elimination series. In the first game at Toronto, Hamilton eked out a two to one triumph. It was thought perhaps the long play-off grind had worn them out. But, in Hamilton last night the Tigers flashed the form which carried them to victory over five of the best senior teams in Ontario during the last few weeks, and the northern champions were almost outclassed.

Tigers will now play Ottawa Shamrocks in the first round of the Allan Cup playdowns. The first will be at Otatwa on Saturday, with the return at Toronto on March 19.

BUFFALO'S SICK BILL.

BUFFALO, (U.P.)—The annual report of the Department of Social Welfare here placed Buffalo's annual "sick" bill for 1929 as over $20,000,000. "Moderation in eating and reliance on soap and water would cut the enormous cost of sickness in half," the report said.

WINNERS GIVEN GRAND RECEPTION

BIG PROCESSION.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 14 (By Staff Correspondent).—No royal personage could have received a more enthusiastic welcome than did the Campbellford team on its return from Belleville with the Trent Valley championship. As the train approached the station a sullen rumble was heard, which swelled into a roar as it came to a stop. Cars jammed the roads and people the platform and sidewalks. Everywhere was excitement and joy. The strains of the band marshaled the procession, which, headed by the fire engine, made its triumphal entry into Campbellford.

Round the streets it went, letting the people know that town had battled its way to the head of the league, and after a hard struggle won the cup. At the Clifton Tea Rooms it at last halted, and there the band entertained a large crowd with musical selections, while the boys prepared for the victors' supper. This was served in true and honored style by Mrs. Smith, and amid a riot of fun and happy chatter, occupied the early hours of the morning. Everyone is satisfied. The hard work the boys put into their practice and games and the time and expense of the club officials and fans is worth the result. Stirling met its Waterloo at the hands of Campbellford.

BURKE AND COTE REFUSE TO SIGN ON PRESENT TERMS

O'Neill Tells Them to Stay Out of Uniforms and They Go Golfing.

BOTH PLAYERS NEEDED.

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., March 14.—Between rain showers yesterday Steve O'Neill aided and abetted by Brother Jimmy, drove the Leafs through two hours of drilling, but Less Burke and Pete Cote were not part of the party. The holdout infielders during a conference with O'Neill were quietly told to sign their contracts or stay out of uniform.

Well they again refused to write on the dotted line and did not go near the ball park but went golfing instead. O'Neill's action was in keeping with the policy adopted by the Toronto Club some time ago not to allow an unsigned player to take part in the workouts.

Burke and Cote feel they have a real grievance and both told O'Neill that there would not be any signing on their part unless the salary differences were adjusted. And they talked as if they meant it too, however, as said before everything is likely to be straightened out when President Solman and Vice-President Dunn arrive here Monday.

Both Players Needed

But no matter what happens both Burke and Cote are needed in the Leafs' infield. At least there does not seem to be a candidate in camp able to fill either player's position, though Harold King, with Wheeling in the Middle Atlantic League last season, appears to be a promising prospect, though whether he will be able to clout International League pitching is another thing altogether. King belted the old apple for .312 in 1929 and his hits included 16 home runs.

Of course Nolan Richardson can be shifted to short which would leave an opening for Fred Bedore at third, but Bedore as he played last season would never do at all. However, the Leaf boss has confidence in the Chicago boy's ability to do a comeback and play the same fancy baseball he did after replacing Billy Webb in 1928.

Manager O'Neill to-day lined up two teams for the first time and the workout was a most useful one. Phillips and Wise did duties behind the bat, Sheedy and Davies were the first base rivals, Jimmy O'Neill and Charlie Mongan, the latter a young fellow who came to the camp with O'Neill, performed at second, while Richardson and Hewett were the shortstops. Veteran Joe Harris and King covered third. Bonk, Cosington, Ruble, Petrie, McHenry and Billings looked after the outfield. Only the young pitchers were asked to work Gwathney, Vick, Niggeling, Lesterck, Noble and Leheny each toiling two innings.

Curves were barred and O'Neill, acting as umpire and standing behind the pitching box took care that the flingers did not overdo it. Hugh Wise poked the ball over the fence, no light tap, for a home run with two men on base. Sheedy, Ruble, Joe Harris and Eddie Phillips also did some long distance poking, but inside the park.

Rain fell this morning, causing a postponement of the practice until 1 o'clock, and the athletes were just concluding their labors when the skies opened up again. It was continuing to come down to-night. However, it will take a tremendous rainfall to do damage to the ball park here.

COLLEGE OARSMEN IN HARD TRAINING

Oxford and Cambridge Prepare For Big Race on April 12.

LONDON, March 14.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—Bustly engaged in the peak of their training for the great university boat race on April 12, the rival crews of Oxford and Cambridge are seeking by every strategic means to increase the power and co-ordination of their entrants.

Oxford, seeking to break a dismal record of six straight losses, to-day shifted C. M. Johnston from No. 2 to No. 4, bringing R. V Low from 4 to 2. The change seemed to make an improvement during the first outing of the day. The crew was out an hour, covering six miles, or half as much again as the boat race course. They had no long stretches of intensive rowing, however. One outfit brought them to 33 strokes a minute.

The Cambridge crew were heartened by the return to-day of their No. 4, F. N. Carpmael, who had been indisposed. The crew went through the fastest spurt they have yet done —10½ strokes in a quarter minute, and 39 in a full minute.

The great universities are now on even terms in the century-old duel, Cambridge having evened the score with their sixth consecutive victory last year.

C.G.E. HOCKEY LEAGUE FINAL

Drafting Room and Toolmakers No. 2 Teams Will Tangle For Works Championship.

ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

The final game in the C.G.E. Shop Hockey League will be played Saturday, March 15, when the Drafting Room and Tool Room No. 2 teams, champions of Groups 1 and 2 respectively, journey to Oshawa and cross sticks in battle on the large artificial ice arena there.

Despite the splendid showing of the Toolmakers in the first game, when they were nosed out 2—1, the Draftsmen are conceded a victory, while the large ice surface should dive the latter an added advantage. The close checking of the Toolmakers in the initial tilt played havoc with the combination play of the Draftsmen, but whether or not they will be as effective on the large surface has caused much discussion.

Regardless of the outcome, however, a real struggle is assured as both teams are keen to win and both boast many outstanding stars on their line-ups.

HAD NO EFFECT.

AKRON, O.—Rev. W. W. Wieterich's sermon on honesty either didn't have much effect on one of his congregation, or else someone took advantage of his absence from his study. While he was giving the sermon on honesty, his blue chinchilla overcoat was taken from that room. He is a minister at the First Methodist Episcopal Church here.

NOT GUILTY PLEA ENTERED BY DAY

FRENCH SPEAKING JURY.

THREE RIVERS, Que., March 14 (Canadian Press). — Andrew Day, local paper worker, pleaded not guilty yesterday when his trial opened before Judge Aime Marchand, on a charge of having murdered his wife and seven sons on the morning of December 16 last. Pale and weak from his long convalescence following the knife wounds on his throat suffered on the morning of the tragedy, Day was given permission to sit during his trial. He elected to be tried by a French-speaking jury which was quickly secured, only eighteen talesmen being challenged by J. M. Bureau, counsel for the defence.

Day's wife and seven children were hacked to death with an axe in their home here. The crime was discovered early on the morning of December 16, when a policeman encountered Day on the street near his home, bleeding from throat wounds. He was taken to the police station, unable to articulate clearly. He wrote on a piece of paper a declaration that he had murdered his family and tried to commit suicide. This written confession was admitted as evidence in court in spite of objectons of defence counsel. Other exhibits included an axe and a razor which police had found in the Day home on going to investigate following Day's written statement.

The trial is continuing.

HIGHWAYS AND BYWAYS IN THE SPORTS WORLD

BOOSTS AND KNOCKS for EVERYONE

(By "TED" OUTRAM)

If Central League baseball is hanging fire here, then Peterborough is no different in this regard from the other cities in the circuit. None of the clubs, not even the Belleville Nationals, has yet officially expressed the intention of having a team in the league this year. Newt. Thompson, secretary of the C.O.B.L. for many years, when questioned last night, admitted that he had received no replies to letters sent out a month or so ago asking the clubs intentions as to the 1930 campaign.

This may mean a great deal and then again it may mean nothing. Take for example Belleville. It is a well known fact that the Nationals have all their old guard left. Reports from the Quinte town indicate that Manager Walter Gerow has already commenced looking over his material, apparently for another attempt on the flag.

In Oshawa there are many good ball players, but it is very improbable that the General Motors will this season foster a senior diamond team. Rumors reaching Secretary Thompson give the impression that a textile company may maintain Central League ball in the motor City.

No word, not even rumors, has come out of Kingston, and what the Limestone City ball tossers intend to do, remains a closed book.

Rumors from here have it to the effect that if the old club was unwilling to field a team then a club which has had considerable success in intermediate circles, might move into the senior loop if conditions were right. It was admitted this morning by one with some authority in the Raybestos ball club's councils that the Rays were considering the idea of entering the Central League in order to retain senior ball here. He admitted further that the team would have to be greatly strengthened and as yet the whole scheme was far from being definite.

Local curlers will get an opportunity to look back over the season's activities at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club on Monday night. Important business is on the slate including: the election of officers election of representatives to the Ontario Curling Association and general business. It is likely that installation of artificial ice in the rink will come up for considerable discussion. This important matter has already been given the unanimous approval of the curlers.

Not of least importance Monday evening will be the presentation to Jack Amys' rink which for the second consecutive year has brought the Ontario Junior Tankard to Peterborough. Suitable recognition of this feat of the young curlers will be made by the old guard.

Seldom has a championship series in any sport been featured by the same close play and scoring that has marked the finals of the Trent Valley Hockey League in which Campbellford and Stirling engaged. By netting a goal in the second period of overtime in Belleville last night Campbellford won the third game by 1 to 0, and the round by 3 goals to 2. The first contest was scoreless, and the second ended in a 2-2 tie. The victory for Campbellford averts the necessity of the league investing in another trophy. Had Stirling won it would have made the third successive time that Bill Whitty's team had held the championship cup and they would have had the right of retaining it.

The Peterborough Golf and Country Club held its annual meeting this week in preparation for another big year. More than $10,000 was spent by the club last year in improving and extending its splendid course, and the program of improvement will be continued this season. The club's property now extends for a mile along the River Road and the canal, taking in all the beautiful hill and dale between. It is fully expected that local golfers will have the pleasure of whacking balls over a full eighteen-hole course before the 1930 season is completed.

U. S. WILL RETURN FARM TO CANADA

Tract of 320 Acres is One of Ashburton Treaty Errors —Great Nuisance.

HOUSE HAS NO COMMENT.

OTTAWA, March 14 (C.P.)—In a few weeks it will be no longer a saying that Uncle Sam owns a farm in Canada.

Yesterday Hon. Charles Stewart informed the House of Commons that legislation will be introduced both at Ottawa and Washington presenting the farm—a tract of 320 acres—as a free gift to Canada.

As far as the claim of an American Senator to Hunter's Island, a million acre tract in Ontario, was concerned, Mr. Stewart dismissed it with the remark that he had never even heard of it.

The "gift" to Canada is simply a matter of international convenience. The Joint Boundary Commission decided that the twist in the boundary in the Lake of the Woods section—one of the errors perpetrated in the Ashburton Treaty—created more of a nuisance than control of the territory was worth. Hence it unanimously comes back to Canada without a struggle and without a shot fired.

Whether the land is settled, whether it is farm land or swamp, whether the owner will without choice find himself pitch-forked into Canada, the House was not informed.

The first official announcement that Canada's territories would be extended further south was made casually and provoked not a cheer or a comment.

"BEGGAR RESERVATION"

MADRID—Beggars have grown so in numbers here lately that the city aldermen have passed a resolution providing for the erection of a "beggar reservation" in the city at a considerable cost. This will consist of a large park where the beggars can camp. They will be compelled to leave their loafing places and go to work.

MOVIES FOR CHURCH

PARIS—Movies for the church have been suggested by Canon Reymond, French churchman. He declares that the church should not look upon the movies as an evil influence, but should adopt them and organize a moving picture program the world over and show films made and directed by the church itself. This would spread religion, he believes.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S ALARM CLOCK.

Uncle Wiggily came down late to breakfast one morning. This wasn't at all like the old rabbit gentleman, for he was almost always on time whether it was coming to his meals or going off to the woods to look for an adventure.

"My goodness! I am quite late!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily as he looked at the alarm clock on a table near his bed. "I shall be late for my breakfast even if I slide down the stair banister rail!"

Uncle Wiggily always slid down stairs this way when he was in a hurry and he was in a hurry now, for he did not want to keep Nurse Jane waiting to serve his breakfast.

"But I am late and I beg your pardon, Nurse Jane," said Mr. Longears as he sat down at the table and helped himself to some carrot pancakes with lettuce gravy. "I am very sorry."

"Well, I'll forgive you," spoke the muskrat lady housekeeper. "But how does it happen that you are late? Haven't you an alarm clock that rings a bell when it is time for you to get up?"

"Oh, yes," Uncle Wiggily answered. "I have an alarm clock, but it must be wrong. My time is only 7 now and yet by the kitchen clock it is nearly 8, I guess."

"It is after 8 by the right time," Nurse Jane said. "Your alarm clock is more than an hour slow. The children have started for school long ago."

"Hum! My alarm clock an hour slow," said Uncle Wiggily thoughtful like. "I wonder why that is?"

"Perhaps," answered the muskrat lady, "it is because there is no piece of glass over the face of your clock."

"The glass has nothing to do with the hands keeping time," spoke Uncle Wiggily. "The glass broke off the other day when my clock fell. But it still

"My goodness! I am quite late!"

ticks and the hands go around—the long minute hand, the shorter hour hand and the fussy little second hand. They all go around the numbers on the face of the clock, for I have watched them. Still my alarm clock runs slow. I must find out the reason."

"Perhaps it needs oil as your auto does sometimes," suggested Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"Perhaps," agreed Uncle Wiggily. "I'll oil it and set it ahead and to-morrow I won't be late.'

Mr. Longears did this, but the next morning he was again late to breakfast, though he jumped up as soon as the alarm clock bell tinkled. However, he got down to breakfast even later than before.

"My clock ran slow again," Uncle Wiggily said to Nurse Jane. "To-night I am going to sit up and watch. For though I set my clock right by the radio time when I go to bed, when I awaken in the morning it is slow. Something must happen to it in the night. I'll sit up and watch."

Instead of going to bed that night as he always did after he had listened to the radio for a while, Uncle Wiggily sat up. He set his alarm clock to the correct time when he heard a little gong ting in the radio and then the night grew later and later.

Several times Uncle Wiggily almost fell asleep, but he would rouse himself with a jerk and look at his clock on the table near his bed to see if anything had happened to make it go slow.

At last, just about 12 o'clock, midnight, there was a little sound in a corner of the room and a tiny voice said:

"It's my turn to-night to ride on the fast hand."

"All right, Jubie, the second hand for yours," said another voice. "I'm going to sit on the minute hand."

"Well then I must take hour hand, for that's the only one left to ride on," spoke a third voice. With that, three red spotted Squiggle Bugs came out of a knothole in the floor where they had been living. Uncle Wiggily tried not to laugh and kept very still, pretending he was asleep until he could see what the Squiggle Bugs did.

They crawled up to the alarm clock. One Squiggler perched himself on the fast-moving second hand. Another Squiggler hopped up on the minute hand and the third bug got on the slow hour hand. And then, as the clock ticked on, the Squiggle Bugs had a lot of fun, as if they were on a merry go 'round that was standing on its side. Of course, the Squiggler on the second hand had the fastest ride of the three. But the Bugs, small as they were, held the clock hands back and they went more slowly than they should, thus losing time.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily, hopping out of his chair. "So it is you Squiggle Bugs, riding on my clock hands, that made made it slow."

"Oh, we are very sorry!" buzzed the Squiggler on the second hand.

"Don't mention it!" said the kind rabbit. "I'll get me another clock with a glass in front of its face. You may have this one."

So the Squigglers who, every midnight had been riding on the old clock, had that ticker for themselves. Mr. Longears got a new clock and was never again late for breakfast.

22 Karat Soap

JUST as it is possible to fashion a "gold" ring from part gold and part baser metals . . . so is it possible to make a soap from part pure soap and part substitutes. The Karat mark on the ring tells you of its purity, but what mark is there on soaps to guarantee their purity?

With Sunlight soap . . . the "karat" mark of purity is on every bar. It reads: "Guaranteed Pure and to Contain no Adulterant Whatsoever."

Sunlight is the only laundry soap with a standing money guarantee that it is all pure soap. Being pure, Sunlight dissolves readily—forming plenty of suds very quickly—suds which are lively and lasting. They wash more clothes beautifully clean without harm to fabric or colour . . and Sunlight's pure, gentle suds never could roughen your hands.

Because Sunlight is all pure soap, it is the most economical. It makes more suds to wash more clothes.

REPORTS READ AT MEETING OF "Y" BOARD

New and Varied Costume Designs Will Provide Colorful Setting For Pageant Dances.

ATHLETIC CLASSES.

Educational Committee Gives Favorable Report on Study of English Drama.

Items of business in connection with the Y.W.C.A. Board meeting this month included special reports from the Pageant committee, Educational and Religious committees.

The Sewing committee for the Pageant have completed many most attractive costumes and the ladies feel that this year's costumes with their bright and dainty colors, new and varied designs will provide a colorful setting for the Pageant dances. The Advertising committee reported work on the Pageant programs and arranged for posters, slides, dodgers and pennants. Tickets will soon be on sale and the committee asks for a generous response when the children call. The Physical Director reported the various classes are all most interested in their part in the program, each class being reported in dumbell, wand, reed and fancy club swinging or Swedish gymnastic drill as well as folk, interpretive, aesthetic, dainty and new toe dancing.

The Educational committee reported most favorably of the English drama and expressed much appreciation of Mr. Macdonald's kindness in taking the class.

The Religious work committee reported proceeds of $115.00 toward the foreign work. Plans are now being made for a small sale to bring this amount up to the allocation amount of $150. A program on China, India, and Japan will close the campaign.

Special announcements were made of the Y.W.C.A. regional conference, to be held March 20 to 23 in Hamilton. The General Secretary, Residence Superintendent, Physical Director will represent Peterborough Board and committee members and girls are also invited to attend.

Special invitations have also been received for the United States Y.W.C.A. convention, April 25 to May 1.

General Secretary

The General Secretary reported on the month's activities, including very much enjoyed Sunday evening singsong services and Sunday afternoon Friendly Hour and tea, with special devotional services and helpful talks. Miss Margaret McNaughton, formerly Education Secretary in Tokio, Japan, was a welcome visitor and her message was much enjoyed by the "Y" members.

The St. John Ambulance First Aid Course has been completed; Dr. R. Scott conducting the examination at the close. The Red Cross home nursing class will complete their course this month. Club activities have been most interesting and many projects of service to others carried out by the girls. The Wohelo Club entertained the girls of the C.G.E., and this month plan to have as their guests the girls of the Quaker Oats and Westclox. They also visited the Protestant Home and sent Valentine gifts. The Old Country club held a surprise package sale with proceeds for the foreign work, and the Friday Supper club entertained the Saturday club to a sleigh drive and refreshments. One hundred and twenty-five children enjoy the club programs each Saturday afternoon.

Campers' supper followed by social hour is enjoyed each month by a group from "Y" Camp Inglestane.

The Physical Director reported 57 new members in the gymnasium as a result of the campaign. The total enrollment now being 473 plus 72 basketball players. The basketball has been keenly contested and splendid showing made of several teams. The final games will be played this Friday evening, after which refreshments will be served. Two large Valentine parties were held for junior and senior members. Life saving awards were presented to successful swimmers who passed the test last Fall.

At the close of the meeting tea was served from a pretty table presided over by Mrs. A. A. Moir of the residence committee.

NERVES WERE A WRECK

"Bon-Tone" Built Me Up.

MRS. BERNARD HART.

Mrs. Bernard Hart, Hotel Gerrard, 399 Parliament St., Toronto, states: "About a year and a half ago I lost my child, and following this I became a total wreck. I was all run down and my stomach became affected, and everything I ate nauseated me and distressed me, and the only relief I could get would be by vomiting. Gas would always form, and it would start by causing a sinking sensation in my stomach, followed by severe pains, and I would have to draw my knees up, these pains were so severe. My back ached a lot, too, and altogether I felt pretty miserable. I have been taking Bon-Tone for some time now, and this medicine has built me up just fine—made me strong again and settled my nerves and fixed my stomach up O.K. so that I can eat what I like without the least distress afterward, as everything digests as it should. I sleep well nights, and morning feel refreshed, and my housework is now a pleasure instead of the hardship it formerly seemed. Really this Bon-Tone has given me a new lease on life, and it is a pleasure to recommend it to every one."

What Bon-Tone has done for Mrs. Hart, is it not reasonable to suppose it will do for you, too? This great remedy is made of 14 of Mother Nature's roots, leaves, barks and berries, and for disorders of the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels it is unexcelled. Start the Bone-Tone treatment to-day. Delays are dangerous!

Don't try new remedies. Bon-Tone is not an experiment, but a definite proven remedy and will show results if directions are followed carefully. Call or write to the Bon-Tone Man, who is meeting the public daily at Bond's Drug Store, Peterboro, for more information, and ask for the free booklet, "The Road to Success." Price $1.25 per single bottle; half treatment $3.00.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

God's statement, given in Gen. 2, 17, is that death would be the penalty for sin. Satan's statement to the contrary is found in Gen. 3, 4. The majority of those belonging to the five biggest religious denominations of to-day use even stronger language than Satan did in disputing God's word. Satan said, "Ye shall not surely die." They say we have immortal souls that cannot die. People are beginning to wake up to see that this old doctrine of the devil is an unmitigated lie; and that they have been deceived too long by those who have preached and taught (either through ignorance or willfulness) this old time lie.—M. MARTHA NORELIUS PLANS TO RETIRE FROM AQUATIC MEETS

Noted Swimmer Will Bask in the Reflected Glory of Her Husband's Honors

MARRIES ON SATURDAY.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., March 14. (Canadian Press).—Martha Norelius, world's greatest woman swimmer, whose greatest triumph was scored in Canadian waters with the winning of the Wrigley Marathon in Toronto last summer, will adopt the land of her crowning success by her marriage on Saturday to Joseph Wright, Jr., Canadian sculling champion and winner of the Diamond Sculls at Henley in 1928.

At the pinnacle of her success, with a trail of shattered records in her wake, Miss Norelius will retire from further swimming competition to bask in the reflected glory of her husband she told the Canadian Press correspondent to-day.

"Yes, I am all through with swimming," she replied when interviewed at the fashionable Greenbrier hotel here where the wedding ceremony will take place on Saturday night in the presence of the immediate families and her most intimate friend, Miss Helen Meaney, Olympic diving champion.

Nothing To Be Gained

"I have gotten all there is out of the sport" she continued "and see nothing to be gained by further competition. The real fun of the game was lost after I had won my first and only professional race and realized that the thrill of victory was gone."

Martha is still but a youngster; she was twenty-one a few weeks ago and is probably the most attractive locking girl of the swimming world. She is a distinct Nordic type, blonde hair, blue eyes and a bewitching smile that reveals a pearl-like set of perfect teeth.

"We will motor to Toronto, leaving here on Sunday morning," she related, when questioned regarding their plans. "After a short visit with Joe's family we will go to Montreal on our wedding trip."

"Then we must hurry back to Toronto for Joe must start his training for the Henley again," she explained.

Her prospective husband is hurrying down from Canada with Mr. and Mrs. Wright, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Phelan, sister and brother-in-law. They will arrive Friday night. After a quiet wedding Saturday night Martha's mother will be hostess at a dinner party at Elmhurst farms. The couple will remain at Greenbrier Saturday night and leave by motor bright and early Sunday.

TO LECTURE ON JAMBOREE

The recent Scout Jamboree in Birkenhead, England, is to be brought to Peterborough through the medium of the motion pictures, which will be accompanied by a lecture delivered by Edgar T. Jones, field secretary of the Boy Scouts' Association for Ontario. Mr. Jones was a participant in the Jamboree, having gone over with the Canadian contingent in the capacity of quartermaster. His lecture will therefore be based on a wide knowledge and should attract a large audience.

The film will be shown in the St. Alphonsus Lyceum and all Scouts and their parents and friends are cordially invited to be present on Thursday evening, March 20th.

OPTIMISM.

The city evidently has some confirmed optimists on its payroll. On the corner of Park and Charlotte streets where the city have been doing some improvement work in the little triangle, a number of keep-of-the grass signs are to be seen. As yet it would be a rather difficult matter to disobey the warnings as not a single blade of grass is in evidence.

CHIMNEY FIRES

An epidemic of chimney fires broke out in the city yesterday, which was the means of keeping the firemen fully occupied recharging chemicals and cleaning the fire trucks after each trip.

Commencing shortly after noon a run was made to 294 Townsend street, and a few minutes later the truck was speeding away south on Stewart street. With the men just nicely seated at the dinner table the gong sounded once again. This time a run was made to 103 Rubidge street after which the "chimney chasers" were able to take it easy until shortly after supper, when two more alarms were received in rapid succession from 530 Parnell street and 512 Wolff street respectively.

Whilst attending the Rubidge street call, the skid chain was lost from a wheel on the truck. It is requested that the finder please return it to the Fire Hall.

And took our flower away.

CALCUTTA HOLDS PROTEST AGAINST MAYOR'S ARREST

Schools Close and Students Decide to Join in Disobedience Struggle.

LABOR BODY TAKES PART.

Gandhi Starts Fourth Day's March—Ranks Diminished By Sickness.

CALCUTTA, India, March 15 (Canadian Press).—A partial hartel—cessation of work—was observed here to-day in protest at the arrest of Mayor Sengupta Thursday on charges of sedition. Most schools and colleges remained closed.

A meeting of protest was held last night under the presidency of Satindranath Sen, who led the passive resistance movement in the Barisal district last year.

The secretary of the local Students' Association announced that the students intended to join Mahatma Gandhi's civil disobedience struggle and would observe and complete hartel to-day.

Gandhi Starts Fourth March

AHMADABAD.—Mahatma Gandhi and the 79 devotees who are marching with him to Japalpur, on the Bay of Cambray, where they will manufacture salt in violation of the British monopoly, left the village of Matar after prayers this morning, commencing the fourth day of their journey.

The Mahatma announced that some of his volunteers had fallen ill and would accompany the party by car. There are still 16 days left before the pilgrims reach the coast and begin in real earnest their "civil disobedience" campaign by which they hope to gain independence for India from Great Britain.

The Textile Labor Association, founded here by Mahatma Gandhi, decided to-day to join in the "war for independence" and will enlist volunteers for a passive resistance campaign from the ranks of labor.

Director to Fix Day

MADRAS.—It was understood today that the Andhra Provincial Congress working committee had appointed Konda Venkatapayya as director and had authorized him to fix a day and place for starting the civil resistance campaign in Andhra province.

THREE FIREMEN HURT IN DETROIT

$100,000 Fire Damages Manufacturing Building Early To-day.

CAUSE UNKNOWN.

DETROIT, Mich., March 15 (C.P.)—Fire starting in one of the upper storeys of a five-storey brick building at 113-115 West Jefferson avenue shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, destroyed that structure and was not brought under control until nearly five hours afterward.

The building in Detroit's wholesale district, was occupied by the American Upholstering and Manufacturing Company, Inc., and the Globe Paper Company.

Three firemen were hurt, one seriously, when one of the walls collapsed upon the roof of an adjoining building where the firemen were directing a hose line.

Fire officials estimated the loss at more than $100,000. The origin of the fire has not been determined.

The modern Chamber of Commerce, as a voluntary, centralized community institution, organized for community building, offers citizens, with the capacity for co-operation, an effective instrument through which they may build a balanced city.

INSURANCE LIMIT EXTENSION ASKED BY LEGION CHIEF

Plan is to Make Protection Available For Those Unable to Get Ordinary Policy.

MANY BEEN REFUSED.

Question Over Disabled Man's Expected Length of Life Arises.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 15. (C.P.)—A definite request that the time limit for returned soldiers' insurance applications be extended, and for changes in the regulations, will be placed before the Parliamentary committee on soldiers affairs under the direction of Lt.-Col. L. R. Lafleche, president of the Canadian Legion, on behalf of all the veterans of Canada.

The present time limit for applications expires August 31, 1930, the previous limit having been extended for one year last session, when the late Hon. James A. Robb acceded to a request of the Canadian Legion that this be done. The chief purpose of the veterans' [illegible] is to make returned soldiers' insurance available for those for whom it was originally intended, namely, those disabled in war service and unable to secure ordinary insurance. Several thousands of veterans have secured this protection for which they pay the premiums fixed by the actuaries of the Department of Finance.

Applications Refused.

The amendment the organized veterans are seeking has to do with the provision that the veteran with no reasonable expectation of life cannot secure this protection. A number of applications have been refused on this ground and the veterans take the view that in many of these cases it is quite possible for medical men to be in error as to expectancy of life, or for veterans' condition to improve so that, even if he may be seriously ill at present, he may subsequently have a reasonably long expectation of life.

The veterans' plan to solve this difficulty asks that conditional policies be issued in these cases whereby the insured veteran must live for a certain given period from the date of application before he becomes entitled to full insurance benefits. If he dies before that period has elapsed the premiums paid would be returned, and the beneficiary debarred from insurance benefit. Should he live beyond the period fixed however, the veterans ask that he be assumed to have had a reasonable expectation of life at the time he appealed for insurance and that he be given a full policy.

DON PREDICTS 300 MILE AN HOUR RECORD

New Speed Mark Assured Under Present Rapid Development of Automobile Industry.

DEPENDS ON TIRES.

Car Can Only Be As Fast as Its Tires Will Permit.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 15. (C.P.) — Prediction that a land speed of 300 miles an hour or more would be established within the next few years was made to-day by Kaye Don, British race car driver, here awaiting favorable beach and weather conditions to make an assault upon the world's automobile straightaway record of 231 miles an hour.

He declared he could make no estimate of what the actual land speed limit would be, but added that with the present rapid development in the automobile industry the time is not far distant when the present record would be considered "slow."

"Just what the exact limit will be," he said, "is something no one knows. When Sir Henry Segrave did 231 here last year the world was astounded and declared the mark never would be surpassed. Since he has done 231 it is not unreasonable to believe that some one may do 232. Likewise it is not unreasonable after accomplishing that for some one to do 240 or 250 or 300 or more.

"I have been asked if the time ever will come when a record of 500 miles an hour is set. All I can do is to point to the rapid advancement of the record during the past few years and say that with the aid of modern science it should keep on advancing. Surely, however, if the record is to be pushed much higher there must come a corresponding advancement in racing car construction.

"Really the most important detail of a high speed car is its tires, in the final analysis. For a car can be only as fast as its tires will permit. There is nothing on the car that will be subject to greater stress than the tires. I have been assured that the tire equipment on my car will be safe up to 300 miles an hour.

"When speed records higher than that are set I believe some new departure in the construction must be made to withstand the terrific centrifugal force exerted by wheels travelling at that speed. Probably the day then will come when steel tires or some material other than rubber will be used."

Disappointed at not being able to take his giant racer on to the ocean speedway because of adverse weather and beach conditions the British driver planned to spend the weekend at pleasure. Indications are that it will be Monday at least before he can make any test runs and probably the middle of next week before the actual official record breaking attempt can be staged.

If Don is successful in establishing new records for the flying kilometer and the flying mile the timing instruments next will be installed for the five kilometer and five mile distances.

WINNIPEG 'REDS' FORM NEW BODY

Will Seek More Unemployment Relief and Abolition of City Woodyards.

PLAN AGITATION.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 15 (Canadian Press). — For the purpose of carrying on more extensive demonstrations against unemployment by means of parades, planned agitation and mass meetings, an organization called the "Unemployment Association" was formed here yesterday by the Winnipeg Branch of the Communist Party.

Speakers at the initial meeting of the Association declared 18,000 unemployed persons are registered at the Government Employment Bureau. The Association will seek increased unemployment relief, abolition of city woodyards where men must work in order to obtain aid, and will demand paid transportation to all jobs outside of Winnipeg.

SENTENCED TO FIVE YEARS

THREE RIVERS, Que., March 15.—(C.P.) — Amedee Baron, found guilty of a serious offence against a young girl, was to-day sentenced to five years in the penitentiary, starting with his first day incarceration.

Baron found guilty of the same offence last year was sentenced by Judge Marchand to fifteen years and fifteen lashes. The Supreme court ordered a new trial.

A Tribute to Lieut.-Col. Barker, V.C.

QUEBEC, Que., March 15 (Canadian Press).—Canon Frederick George Scott, noted Canadian poet and former chaplain with the Canadian Corps in France, pays tribute to Lieut.-Colonel W. G. Barker, V.C., who was buried at Toronto to-day, in the following poem:

Up to the regions of battle,
Where broods invisible death,
On the broad, white wings of morning,
Fanned by the winter's breath,
Our comrade rose, light-hearted,
With eyes that gazed afar,
Till the arrow of Fate's bow struck him,
And he plunged like a falling star.

Then the victor soul flew upward,
Buoyant, courageous, and strong,
To the ranks of the hosts who have conquered,
And he thrilled at their deathless song—
The song of the welcome of heroes,
The song of the finished strife,
The song of the warriors feasting
Where the wine in their cups is life.

MODERN YOUTH HAS FOUR HEROES

F. J. H. Wallace is Honored By Friday Night Supper Club.

PRESENTATION MADE.

"I am in entire disagreement with the pessimisms of to-day which prompt the question 'What is modern youth coming to?' declared F. J. H. Wallace, addressing the members of the Friday Night Supper Club at the Y.M.C.A. last night in a farewell address after seven years as chairman of the organization. "There is nothing wrong with the youth of to-day. It is only conditions that have changed. Each generation expresses itself in its own way and in its own language.

With an insight made possible through an intense interest in the youth of to-day he continued "Modern youth in my opinion finds expression in movement, especially rapid movement. Who are the heroes or modern youth? The speed kings of the air and the track, then the sports men and the men in big business and fourth, the super mechanic. Those are the four heroes of youth. They are admirable heroes for each must have courage, fitness and self-control.

"Youth of to-day at its best strikes me as very clean physically and mentally. I believe that it is less sex-obsessed and more mature but—" he added with a touch of humorous understanding—"not as romantic as that of the past generation. Modern youth doesn't fall in love with life as youth used to. It is entranced by the fast motion of this mechanical day.

To Combine The Two

"The young man's problem is how to combine the mechanic and the artist. We must be afraid lest the youth become mechanized slaves — slaves to movement and excitement. Youth must say, 'I will possess my own soul' for youth has a right to say it.

Expressing a plea that the idealistic side of life be not subordinated to the materialistic or mechanical side of life, Mr. Wallace continued, "The young man must have an artistic nature in balance with a mechanical nature. He must try to develop the artist side of life so that the mechanized side will never overcome it."

A note of regret on the fact that it was necessary to abandon the chairmanship of the Friday Night Supper Club which he had held for seven years permeated the address. One of the features of his talk was a definition of the Club. He said, "I would say that the Friday Night Supper Club is simply an organization of young men who are beginning to realize that the life which has been given them is something which they should hold as a sacred trust to be guarded by right principles and good deeds which result therefrom."

Presentation Made

The Club presented on to the retiring chairman was a large snap album containing photographs of some 114 members and associates. It was presented by Lawrence Killaly, vice-chairman who bespoke the regrets of the organization on the occasion. Mr Killaly stressed the untiring activity and interest on the part of the retiring chairman which resulted in the building of the original small gathering into the largest young men's club of its kind in the city in seven years' time.

A guest of the ocasion was Mrs. Wallace. She received a corsage of roses.

C. A. Salmonsen who now takes the chairmanship, presided at last night's supper. He prefaced Mr. Wallaces words with a deftly-worded eulogy.

Robert Allin bespoke the feelings of the club members as a whole with regard to the loss of their chairman.

Al Capone Will Go Back to Old Haunt

PHILADELPHIA, March 15.—(C.P.)— Al Capone the "scar-faced gang boss," said yesterday that he is going back to Chicago, back to the racket empire, which may or may not have been carved up and parcelled out among his rivals when he is turned out of Eastern Penitentiary here Monday after a year's imprisonment on the whimsical charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

"I've never run away from anything yet," he explained, mildly. "That's where my home is, and that's where I have most of my business interests."

HOOVER HOPEFUL FOR NAVY PARLEY

WISH FIVE POWER PACT.

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 15. — (C.P.).—President Hoover is confident that the London Naval Conference is making progress and he still is hopeful that it will achieve its purpose.

This became known at the White House, but at the State Department, Acting Secretary Cotton declined to comment on reports that the United States and Japan had arrived at an agreement through which a Three-Power Pact might be worked out if it became impossible to arrive at a Five-Power agreement.

President Hoover has felt throughout that there should be forthcoming from the Conference a Five-Power Pact entailing a reduction in naval armament.

MARRIAGE LICENSE NOT ALWAYS SURE OMEN

Even when the marriage license has been secured it is not absolutely certain that the marriage will take place. At least several prospective bridegrooms in the past year have gone through the embarrassing formality of swearing out a marriage license at the City Hall and then never reached the altar.

What happened; who changed his or her mind; or whethe. both decided that wedlock was not a happy existence, those in charge of this important branch of the city's business cannot say.

The marriage license is only good for three months after date of issue and several times also weddings have been so long delayed that another one had to be sworn out for the ceremony.

Which all goes to show that Peterborough folk do change their minds.

ROBBER LOOTS SAFE AND TILL; CLERK WARNED

Lone Armed Bandit Secures Between $4,000 and $5,000 in Ottawa Bank.

MAKES GOOD ESCAPE.

Young Clerk Was Sole Occupant of Bank When Robber Entered.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 15 (Canadian Press). — Between $4,000 and $5,000 was the loot of a lone armed bandit who held up the branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale on Beechwood Avenue in the suburb of Eastview at 11 o'clock this morning.

A young clerk, sole occupant of the bank when the bandit walked in the front door, was forced to stand with his face to the wall, hands above his head, while the man ransacked the cashier's till and safe.

The robber hurriedly left the building after warning the clerk that to raise an immediate alarm would mean death.

COUNTY VETERAN JAMES HENDLEY IS 108 YEARS OLD

Aged Resident Was Born in Province of Quebec in 1822.

CAME TO BURLEIGH IN 1879.

To-day's Celebrations Are Slightly Marred By His Presence in Hospital.

One hundred and eight years old to-day! Another year has slipped by, another of a long row of life's milestones has been put behind, and James Hendley, former seaman, lumberman, and farmer, who is now an an inmate of the Peterborough County House of Refuge at Lakefield, enters the 109th year of his life.

The glory of the day, however, is a trifle marred by the fact that the old gentleman has been forced to spend it, much against his wishes, resting in St. Joseph's Hospital in this city with a slight weakness of the heart. But his illness is not serious, Mrs. Fry, matron of the House of Refuge, hastened to assure The Examiner yesterday. She said that they would have put him to bed in his quarters at Lakefield if they could prevent him from disobeying doctor's orders by climbing out again.

With unabated interest the old centurion continues to watch the stream of life whirl and eddy by through clear blue eyes that yet do not require the assistance of spectacles. He walks about with a firm and straight carriage, displaying the sprightliness of a man 40 years his junior. A cane he uses, true enough, but even this is not an absolute necessity. Deafness is the only affliction which he has to bear. He is mentally alert and tranquil.

A French-Canadian

"Jimmy," as his friends call him, is a French-Canadian. Is that the reason for his longevity? Ask him if it is so, and we will shrug his shoulders and say, "Who knows?" in his quaint but expressive French-Canadian manner. Ask him if he likes to smoke, and you will get an eager response in the affirmative. He will say, "I smoke when ten year old." That was nearly a century ago.

Perhaps the secret lies in hardy, outdoor life he has led. He has spent his life in the fresh air and also has been abstemious and frugal although not an absolute teetotaller.

Definite proof that he was born in 1822 was secured recently by a sister from a parish priest who looked up the records at the church of his baptism in the Gaspe Peninsula. He began his life in the small French-Canadian village of St. Anne des Monts. When he was quite young he was taken by his parents to Griffin Cove, on the Gaspe Peninsula. For forty years he lived by the sea.

During these years he sailed—not across the broad ocean, but from Gaspe to Halifax and other places whose names trip sonorously from his tongue as his reminiscences carry him

Dog Catcher Preys on Hungry Goats With Appetites for Family Washings

NEW YORK, March 15. — City Dog Catcher Smith of Yonkers, ordinarily an amiable and friendly man, will sally forth with his deadly nets, his wagons and his boxes. But instead of poodles, hounds, and collies, the professional objects will be goats with huge and discriminating appetites.

Far from North Broadway's madding crowd, far from the din of City Hall, lies Yonkers' Twelfth Ward—a region quiet and essentially honest. Householders there still leave the key under the front door mat; they still leave the wash hanging on backyard lines. Until the coming of the goats they trusted one another thoroughly. Then when clothes began to disappear, when tatters of dresses were found on the ground with the dew of the morning, they began to wonder. Midland Avenue soon was a battleground of suspicion; it almost became a battleground of blows. Then the goats were discovered and all was explained.

How many there are is not quite clear. They make their visitations only when it is dark and still. Back yards see them, and belated revellers, roaring home, are startled to watch them loom up in the road ahead. Traffic has been snarled at times and the wash of the sedate Twelfth Ward has been scattered and torn. Shotguns, relics of the partridge days of old, have been brought out and fired and the goats remain. The Twelfth Ward has lost its aim.

RUM RUNINNG BAN GETS SECOND READING

PREMIER SEES PERIL TO CANADA FROM EXPORT OF LIQUOR TO U.S. IN DISCUSSING RUM RUNNING BILL

Bennett Supports Measure But Claims Nothing to Fear From U. S.

WANTS DANGER DEFINED.

Lone Member is Opposed — Believes Bootlegging May Increase as Outcome.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 15. (Canadian Press)—Grave peril to the Dominion of Canada is involved in the continued export of liquor to the United States in defiance of the laws of that country. So declared Prime Minister Mackenzie King in the House of Commons yesterday, while the crowded floor and galleries listened with close attention.

The Prime Minister was speaking in support of his bill to prohibit the issuance of liquor clearances to cargoes destined for the United States. The bill was given second reading without division, just before eleven o'clock last night. It received a few minutes' consideration in committee where it now remains.

Wants Support of Parliament

Coupled with the Prime Minister's arresting assertion was the intimation that he would not be willing to continue administering the external affairs of the country in this respect unless he felt that he had the support of Parliament, or of the country for any steps which he felt necessary to take.

"May I say, Mr Speaker," declared the Prime Minister, "that so perilous do I believe the situation to be that I would no longer assume the responsibility in the matter of external affairs in this regard if I were not sure that I had the support of this Parliament.

In any policy which I believe to be necessary to prevent a condition which might prove perilous to this country any day, or failing the support of this Parliament, the support of the People of Canada in a matter as grave as this."

While Mr. Bennett supported the Bill, his speech was anything but an approval of the record of the government with respect to liquor smuggling. He declined absolutely to accept the view that there was anything to fear from the United States.

"I for one refuse to be terrorized. I refuse to become afraid. I refuse to be fearful because the Prime Minister conjures up the ghost of the past in memories of those who are no more," he declared with emphasis. He proposed to support the bill because it gave effect to a principle in which he had a profound conviction. "And," he said, "I will leave to those who have different convictions the right to voice them in any way they desire, when opportunity arises and when necessity demands."

Mr. Bennett's reference to the "ghosts of the past" reverted to a part of the Prime Minister's speech in which he told of the Imperial Conference of 1923 at which the question of liquor smuggling into the United States had been discussed.

Mr. King told the House that the late Lord Curzon, who headed an important committee at that conference, foresaw the danger of possible delicate and difficult situations arising between Britain and the United States over rum-running on the Atlantic.

"I think the dangers which Lord Curzon foresaw," added Mr. King, "the danger of possible difficult and delicate situations arising between Britain and the United States over rum-running on the Atlantic, are as nothing to the delicate . . difficult situation that at any moment may arise on our international frontier if this thing is permitted to continue."

Mr. Bennet pursued this suggestion with energy. What was this danger which menaced the Dominion? he asked. Had Mr. Massey, Canada's Minister at Washington not communicated something of it to his government? No record of it appeared on

BADLY BEATEN GIRL RELATES HORRIBLE TALE

Tiny 16 Year Old Domestic Walked 8 Miles to Escape Employers.

LIES IN HOSPITAL.

Body Covered With Lye Burns and Bruises—Action Being Taken.

SIMCOE, Ont., March 15 (Canadian Press). — Frightfully bruised from head to foot, her back severely burned and blistered by lye, 16-year-old Anne Matthews lies in a hospital here physically in agony, but mentally, she says, enjoying the first peaceful moments in two months.

She was brought here from Waterford by H. A. Carter, agent for the Norfolk Children's Shelter. She arrived in Waterford after walking more than eight miles over railroad ties from Vanessa where, for the last 15 months, she has been acting as a domestic for people who took her from the Children's Aid Society.

"She tells me the woman with whom she lived with did this to her," said Mr. Carter last night. "She tells me this woman burned her with lye, kicked and struck her over the head with a milk bottle, and dragged her upstairs by the hair. It all happened, Anne tells me, because she had taken an orange and some candy belonging to the woman's children.

"It is the most frightful case of brutality I have ever seen. Court action is proceeding at once," said Mr. Carter.

Doctors Astounded.

"Never before have I seen such terrible wounds, such evidence of savage torture," said the physician attending Anne.

According to the girl's story, the husband of the woman with whom she lived was never around when she was so terribly beaten. As she was going to bed on Wednesday night said the girl, the woman came into the room and stood over her with red-hot curling irons.

"If you ever tell anyone about this, I'll burn your tongue out," the girl says she was told. And with that the woman leaned forward and clutched her, as if intent on carrying out her purpose, when the husband came in and took the woman away.

SOLLOWAY, MILLS APPEALS

TORONTO, Ont., March 15 (C.P.)—Counsel for Solloway, Mills and Company, Limited, prominent Canadian mining stock brokerage firm, yesterday filed an appeal at Osgoode Hall from the judgment of Mr. Justice Middleton on March 11 last, in which he refused to quash a search warrant.

The grounds for the appeal were stated to be based on the assumption W. Davidson, Police Magistrate for the Province of Alberta, had no power to issue a search warrant for the production of Solloway, Mills and Company's books and papers, to be executed in Ontario.

QUEEN MARY HAS INTERESTING DAY IN SLUM DISTRICT

Bar-room Frequenters Startled as Her Majesty Investigates Beer Shop.

MINISTER IS GUIDE.

Living Conditions in Poorer Dwellings Rouse Feeling of Sadness.

LONDON, March 15 (C.P.).—Queen Mary knows considerably more of beer, bartenders, and bar-rooms today than she has ever known before. Yesterday she visited a public house and found out for herself some of the things which so much has been written and spoken here and abroad.

Her comment upon leaving the barroom was: "I have enjoyed myself tremendously. I think it is a splendid place, so cozy and homely."

The silence of astonishment and bashfulness fell upon the men in the crowded public house when Her Majesty, wearing a mauve gown, appeared behind the bar and looked round her with a friendly smile.

Sets Party At Ease.

The men doffed their hats but said nothing, until an elderly man whispered to his neighbor, "Ain't she lovely?" The compliment did not escape the Queen, who laughingly acknowledged it, and in so doing set the whole party at ease.

Determined to learn all about the beer shop trade, Queen Mary addressed the bartender, a young man who conquered his bashfulness and replied to her query as to what his job was with the words, "To draw beer."

Queen Mary was not just sure how beer was drawn, so the bartender pulled a lever and drew a glassful to show her, explaining how the beverage was pumped from a cellar. She then questioned other workers who detailed their various employments, and visited the cellars where she saw how beer is stored.

The public house was the Anchor Inn in Somerstown, a slum district of North Central London, and is the "model" establishment conducted by the Reverend Basil Jellicoe, cousin of the famous Admiral Lord Jellicoe.

After leaving the Anchor Inn Her Majesty accompanied Reverend Jellicoe on a visit to some slum dwellings. In a five-room house where five families were living she talked sympathetically to the inmates, asking a number of questions and adding to one woman:

Appeared Saddened.

"It must be terribly inconvenient to cook your meals in such a small place." The woman afterwards relating her experience, said: "You could see the sight had a saddening effect upon her."

From these miserable surroundings the Queen was taken to a block of new tenements replacing the recent hovels. Here she was more cheerful and chattered gaily with the occupants. She patted three-year-old little Ernie Barton on his head, and, learning it was his birthday, felicitated him.

She asked Ernie's mother how many other children, and received the reply, "Thirteen, Your Majesty."

"My word," Her Majesty commented.

LINERS COLLIDE WHILE PASSING PANAMA LOCKS

General Sherman May Need Dry-docking Before Trip To Orient.

PANAMA, March 15 (C.P.). — The steamship General Sherman of the Arrow Line, bound for Port Alberni, British Columbia, for Philadelphia, was rammed by the steamship Silver Yew of the Kerr Line, bound from England for the Orient. The General Sherman was believed to be extensively damaged and may need dry-docking. Divers were examining the extent of the damage to-day. The Silver Yew was only slightly damaged.

The accident took place when the General Sherman was leaving the Miraflores lock chamber and the Silver Yew was preparing to enter it for transit to the Pacific. The Silver Yew dropped anchor and reversed her engine in an effort to avoid the crash but was unsuccessful.

THREE POWERS ARE AGREED ON NAVAL POLICIES

Need Only Home Govt's Approval on U. S.-Japanese Settlement.

WAIT ON TARDIEU.

Much Depends on Outcome of MacDonald's Talk With French To-morrow.

LONDON, March 15 (Canadian Press).—A 10 per cent. agreement among the United States, Great Britain, and Japan was said in naval conference circles to be an accomplished fact as far as the delegations are concerned.

Approval by the home Governments of the United States-Japanese settlement which closed yesterday was said to be the only thing remaining to enable these three diegations to write finis to their naval conference difficulties.

For days these delegations have been so close to agreement that there was said to have been little between them. A provisional American-Japanese agreement, achieved by Senator Reed of the United States delegation, and Ambassador Matsudaira, is understood to have been th one thing needed to complete the circle.

In Position to Sign Pact.

Observers said that what this amounted to was that if this agreement is approved by the home Governments, the United States, Great Britain, and Japan will be in a position to sign a three-power pact at any minute if this should seem desirable.

There remains the crisis surrounding France and Italy and the next move would seem to be up to these two.

The conference to-day was more or less marking time awaiting the arrival of Premier Tardieu from Paris for a conference with Premier Macdonald to-morrow. Upon this important conversation may depend the outcome of the Naval Conference as far as a Five-Power Pact for limitation is concerned.

Both United States Secretary of State Stimson and Premier Macdonald were resting to-day after their week's arduous labors in trying to solve the crisis evolving about the French demands for a 724,000-ton navy.

The British Prime Minister was at Chequers, although he planned to attend a football game between England and Scotland at London this afternoon.

U.S.-Japanese Agreement Unknown.

The report of the United States—Japanese settlement produced something of a sensation here when it became known. Just what this settlement is, no one in authority was prepared to state at this juncture. Report had it that a compromise had been effected along the lines that Japan would consent to reduction in her claim for an 80 per cent. ratio of 8-inch cruisers would receive in exchange a higher percentage of destroyers and submarines than she had expected. But it should be emphasized that this report was unofficial.

BANDITS SLAY FIVE IN HOLD-UP

One Colorado Official Killed, Four Others Wounded in Battle.

SHERIFF SLAIN.

CHEYENNE WELLS, Col., March 15. (C.P.)—A deputy sheriff was shot to death and four other Colorado officers were wounded yesterday afternoon in gun battles with three men, believed by officers to be the trio who robbed the Manter, Kansas, State Bank of approximately $4,000 this morning.

The robbers fled from the bank when someone blew a police whistle. At the entrance they almost collided with Police Corporal Eugene Egan, who opened fire on the pair. They returned the fire and Egan dropped, bullet wound above his heart. At the emergency hospital little hope was held for his recovery.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Hickman of Eads, Colo., was killed two miles east of Eads, and another deputy, Bill Mosher, was shot through the leg. The officers attempted to halt an automobile similar to the one used by the Manter bank robbers in their escape, and a gun battle followed.

Posses were organized and sent in search of the men and Eastern Colorado officers were notified to be on the lookout for the gunmen.

Five miles west of Cheyenne Springs, Sheriff William Coles of Cheyenne County, and Deputy Sheriff George Hollings attempted to halt the slayers of Hickman. In an exchange of shots, Sheriff Coles was wounded in the left leg and Hollings was shot through the arm.

After the gun fight, the three men commandeered the automobile of Fred Hadley, a deputized citizen who was with the officers, and fled east toward the Kansas boundary.

SOVIET LEADERS WARN OFFICIALS

People Must Consent to Closing of All Religious Houses.

EASIER ON PEASANTS.

MOSCOW, March 15. (C.P.)—The central committee of the Communist party, which formulates the policies of the Russian Government, today issued sweeping orders against the forcible closing of churches, mosques or synagogues without the consent of the overwhelming majority of the population in each case and the formal sanction of the central authorities.

Village officials or party workers found guilty of jeering or deriding the peasants for their religious beliefs will be severely punished.

The committee pointed out that in some cases local officials attempted to justify the closing of churches by saying that it had been done "by the voluntary desire of the population."

Condemning recent wholesale closing of markets, bazaars and stores, the committee ordered that all such places be immediately reopened. Peasants, including members of the collective farms set up by the state, are in no way to be prevented from freely selling their products in open market.

Village officials are forbidden under pain of severe punishment to use force in recruiting peasants for the collective farms. Those who err in this respect will be dismissed from their posts.

The committee also forbids the confiscation or socialization of dwellings, cattle and poultry belonging to peasants who become members of collective farms.

Discredit Farm Project

Such actions, it says, discredit the whole collective farm movement and frequently result in the abandonment of the farms by the peasants. In some districts it found that as many as 20 per cent. of the peasantry were disfranchised and 15 per cent. stripped of their property.

"There have been cases of outrageous treatment of the population by certain local party workers, who sometimes were victims of provocation by counter-revolutionary elements. There also have been cases where Soviet officials have divided confiscated property of peasants among themselves."

PRIZE CATTLE AUCTIONED OFF

Most Successful Sale of Year Held at Bonnycastle Farm.

OUTSIDE BUYERS.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 15.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— What proved to be the most successful sale in this part of the country was held on Wednesday at the Bonnycastle farm in Seymour township, when the accredited herd of registered Shorthorns, together with hogs, sheep, horses, fowl and feed fell before the auctioneer's hammer, wielded by J. R. Battisby, with R. N. Morrison as clerk.

The prize herd for the most part went to other than local buyers and was sold in single heads.

Two buyers, however, bought several head of the cattle, Mr. Rutherford of Colborne, Ont., and Mr. Reily of Guelph. The latter took twelve head at a price ranging from $100 to $125 per head.

Hogs sold at an exceptionally fine price, as also did the horses, while oats, of which there were between 3,000 and 4,000 bushels, went at 97c. a bushel. Sheep, 36 head in all, brought from $17 to $18 per head.

Everything was sold, the amount of the sale totalling $5,500. The attendance at the sale was exceptional.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

In writing to the Ephesian Church, the Apostle, speaking of the ascension of the Saviour, says: "And he gave some apostles, and some prophets, and some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers, for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ." It is a great pity and, I am convinced, a source of weakness that the Church does not recognize this divinely arranged diversity of gifts. In many churches one man is supposed to combine them all in himself. Such a combination of gifts is rarely, if ever, possible!

Every Man His Own Work.

The one of whom I am now thinking was doing the work of an evangelist. Cultured! there was also passion pulsating in every part of his being. He did not leave his hearers in any doubt as To Whom he was speaking, or The Why of his effort. The attention of all was directed to the fifty-fifth chapter of Isaiah. There, he said, you will find to whom God will speak through me, what He wills you to do, the why of His speaking, and the glorious results of your obedience.

He that is dissatisfied.

Are You Ever Thirsty?

What is it to thirst? We shall have less difficulty in understanding this if we have ever traveled or lived in lands where droughts are known. When in Australia, I have seen the river beds parched, the streams run dry, every blade of grass burnt up. I have been where, for want of water, sheep were dying by thousands. This is thirst, when the object of life becomes a flunt for water, and every prayer or cry for that which alone can save from death.

The Psalmist says: "My soul thirsteth for God." Have you any experimental knowledge as to what he meant by that? Or is it just a phrase which falls upon your ears and leaves you as it found you? So far as you have gone you have never been able, out of a real heart-feeling, to utter that cry for yourself. Have you, at any time, ever felt a great desire for love to come and fill your being, to the exclusion of all self-interest—love for God, and mankind?

How Does It Affect You?

Have you ever heard, with the ears of your heart, the great cry of this sinning, suffering, sorrowing, heavy - laden world? How are you affected by the poor sin-blighted faces, the sad sights that darken our streets, the terrible stream of sin and trouble ever flowing, and gathering force? Does the sob of humanity reach your ear? If you have ever heard and noted the need, was it self that smothered the inclination to help raise the fallen? Am I mistaken in thinking that were it not a self-sacrifice, you would like to wipe away the tear, and in some small way alleviate the suffering, while you tried to stem the tide of evil?

Have you ever stood beneath the cross of Christ to "behold the Lamb of God?" Behold those wounds which speak more forcibly than any words of mine. Hear the cries of anguish, and remember that there never was sorrow like unto His sorrow — and don't lose sight of the fact that it was for you.

Am I Then Mistaken?

Am I again mistaken in thinking that the wave of scepticism and doubt has reached you? Are you groping amid the darkness, tossed hither and thither, trying to hold firmly to the faith of your fathers, but all the while assailed by doubts? One set of teachers exalts the sacraments, until you are led to believe that in them is rest and life. Another, with sacrilegious hands, tears them even from their right place, and tramples them under foot. And out of the depth of your being comes the cry, "I wish I knew what is the truth."

Let Us Have An Answer.

Do you, with me, long to be holy, to have some power to cope with the evil forces which are within us, and the evil forces that assail us from without; some power stronger than our own will, our own effort? I wonder if, like me, you have tried, and tried—and, defeated, you have thirsted for some outside help to lift you up, to change your vile nature, to take hold of your weakness and exchange it for strength?

Thirst? Yes, we do thirst! Listen. What is God? "The Lord God Almighty," "Your Holy One." "The Light," who purifies and vivifies, as well as illuminates. Is not God, then, speaking to you, when He says, "Ho, every one that thirsteth," or hungers? Of course, if you have no sense of great need, and are quite satisfied with what you are and what you have, you do not thirst —then I am afraid this next will have no message for you.

Perhaps you are among the poor ones, who have no money. I may be able to explain who these are, by telling you who they are not. Our Lord spoke once to some very poor people, and said:

"Thou sayest I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked."

Are You Like A Raging Whirlpool.

Strong words these; and yet are there not many in the same plight now? They think of the day when they will stand before God, and not knowing what He is, they say, "I am rich, and have need of nothing." You say that you are a Church member, that you have been christened and confirmed. You think that you became a child of God, and an inheritor of the kingdom of heaven at your baptism. You take Holy Communion, you say your prayers, you read your Bible, you are as good as you can be, you are far better than many Christians that you know, who make a great profession. You look at what you have got, all very good in their place, and say, Poor? No, I am rich. Poor, poor soul. Christ says you are "wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked." Such an estimate may not minister to your conceit, but it is calculated to minister to your eternal comfort and safety.

Think Of The Coming Day.

But, thank God, some of us are not like this at all. We have seen our own hearts; we know that in us "dwelleth no good thing." We, like Isaiah, have stood before God. We thought pretty well of ourselves until then, but now, before His holiness, we are undone! We have no righteousness to clothe the nakedness of our souls. We have nothing with which to make us clean. The past is before us, the present raging whirlpool of our own being is here. These things that others boast of, we have them, too, but they are not enough to meet the demands of the situation. Poor? Yes, we are poor; so poor that we fear to stand before God. To us the voice of loving invitation is addressed, "Come, buy and eat, without money and without price."

WHAT GOD BIDS US DO:

Listen
Think Come
Repent

God says, "Hearken diligently unto Me," and "Incline your ear." Let us say, "Speak, Lord, for Thy servant heareth."

Have You Made This Discovery?

In speaking at a meeting, sometimes, at the back of a large building, I have seen a man place his hand at the back of his ear—in fact, "incline his ear." I knew then he did not want to miss a word; he found himself concerned with what was being said. So, with our Lord's command, "Hearken diligently."

Perhaps, like others, you have found it difficult to concentrate your attention so that you miss nothing of the "still small voice." You have discovered that the sounds of the world, its music and its war, the voices within and without, all tend to distract. There is a way to overcome. You must "come apart," get alone and sit "at Jesus' feet, and hear His word."

As you listen, you must also think!

"Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labor for that which satisfieth not?" "Thus saith the Lord: Consider your ways. Ye have sown much, and bring in little; yet eat, but ye have not enough; ye drink, but ye are not filled with drink; ye clothe you, but there is none warm; and he that earneth wages, earneth wages to put it into a bag with holes. Consider your ways."

A Gracious Invitation.

"Come ye, buy and eat; yea, come." Here is indeed a gracious invitation, that none but love, and that God's love, would give. It is as if He said, You have rebelled, you have sinned, you have tried all other sources — now "come unto Me," where you can buy this strange commodity, which is indeed a foreign thing to you. Come and take of the water of life. "Come and buy" on these terms, "without money and without price." "I counsel thee to buy of Me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich, and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed." Not without ready money, but without any payment at all; for He has already paid the price "with His own blood."

You Have Rebelled.

"Come and eat." "Not the meat which perisheth, but that which endureth to everlasting life." Feed upon Himself; "eat ye that which is good"; entertain yourselves, take the "wine that maketh glad the heart," and the milk for babes, and "let your soul delight itself in fatness." Drink of this water, and ye shall never thirst again. Eat of this bread, and ye shall never hunger more.

Don't Take The Risk.

"Seek ye the Lord while He may be found; call ye upon Him while He is near." "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord." When? "While He is near." It may be that now is the only time for you to be saved from the consequences of sin, from its power.

"Let the wicked forsake his way," turn from sin, forsake it, leave it with loathing, never to return to it again. You see your way has not been good, that it has led you away from God. "And the unrighteous man his thoughts." Alter your judgment concerning God and man and things. The wicked, the worldling, and half-hearted Christians believe the devil's lie, think God is hard, and to be a Christian is to lose self-advancement. There lies the trouble! Repent! Return! Rejoice!

There is mercy and pardon through the blood of the atonement, an everlasting covenant of complete cleansing, and forgiveness for the past.

O happy day, that fixed my choice
On Thee, my Saviour and my God."

If what I have here set forth of a message first delivered many years ago helps you, my reader, to enter into a more vividly vital Christian experience I shall be satisfied that I have not written in vain.

Yours in happy service,

Allan Fairbairn.

Is It True Of You?

MANY professing Christians are like railroad station houses, and the wicked are whirled indifferently by them, and go on their way forgetting them; whereas they should be like switches, taking sinners off one track and putting them on to another.

What's Your Class?

A MAN will confess sins in general; but those sins which he would not have his neighbor know or his right hand, which bow him down with shame like a wind-striken bulrush, those he passes over in his prayer. Men are willing to be thought sinful in disposition; but in special acts they are disposed to praise themselves. They, therefore, confess their depravity and defend their conduct. They are wrong in general, but right in particular.

Slandering and Maiming

MEN utter a vast amount of slander against their physical nature, and attempt to repair deficient virtue by maiming their animal passions. These are to be trained, guided, restrained, but never crucified or exterminated, for they are the soil in which we are planted. Our life on earth begins in the body, and depends for vigor upon the fullness and power of our physical nature. An acorn at first sprouts from the soil, and spreads its young leaves upon the surface of the ground. Every year its top grows away from it towards heaven; yet the top neither forgets nor scorns the earth-buried root. The brightest leaf which the sun loves, or the wind waves on the topmost bough, has leave to be beautiful by what the root gives it, and carries in its veins the blood which the cold root sucked up from the moist earth. The top will famish when the root is hungry.

The way to avoid evil is not by maiming our passions, but by compelling them to yield their vigor to our moral nature. Thus they become, as in the ancient fable, the harnessed steeds which bear the chariot of the sun.

What Some Men Need

I have seen men who, I thought, ought to have a whole conversion for each one of their faculties. Their natures were so unmitigately wicked, that it cost more for them to be decent than it would for other men to be saints.

Not So Easy

MEN are greatly relieved when they have at length rid themselves of belief in some unwelcome doctrine—as if facts could be destroyed as easily as opinions.

Get Down Deep

SOME men spend their lives in picking off dead leaves from the tree of their being. They think they are growing better because they now and then take out their will, like a pruning knife, to cut off this and that bough. They imagine they are self-denying because they dust themselves over with unpleasant sulphur; but, all the while, they never go to the root, where the worm of selfishness is working.

Our Rejoicing

AS though the sky is not steadfastly clear, but often is covered with clouds, yet through the folds there shine at intervals the everlasting stars, so through the darkness of our hearts there steals at times the celestial glory, and we rejoice that there is a heaven above the world.

Are You Such?

SOME people have no perspective in their conscience. Their moral convictions are the same on all subjects. They are like a reader who speaks every word with equal emphasis. Even if they are well-spoken of, I cannot see how they can be well-thought of by those whose thinking is not warped.

Painters All

EVERY thought and feeling is a painting stroke, in the darkness, of our likeness that is to be; and our whole life is but a chamber, which we are frescoing with colors that do not appear while being laid on wet, but which will shine forth afterwards when finished and dry.

Doing Your Bit

A man must not only desire to be right—he must be right. You may say, "I wish to send this ball so as to kill the lion crouching yonder, ready to spring upon me. My wishes are all right, and I hope Providence will direct the ball." Providence won't. You must do it; and if you do not, you are a dead man.

The Ministry of Pain

IT is not easy for people who go through life with little or no suffering to be as thoughtful and sympathetic for others as they should be. Often they are too severe and exacting with those weaker than themselvts, forgetting that all are not constituted alike. A period of pain may give them the right perspective.

It is astonishing what a lot of odd minutes one can catch during the day, if one really sets about it.

Face the Question

IT is no uncommon thing, at least to a minister, to have the sick ask, "What have I done to merit this suffering?" And what tortures of introspection sensitive souls can go through when this question is uppermost in the mind! On the other hand, strangely enough, people who should trouble themselves about this matter seldom give it a thought.

Ministry of Flowers

IF some one could gather the material a sconsiderable book could be written on the ministry of flowers to the sinful. Many a hard heart has broken and sought the healing touch of Christ, not by harsh words of reproof, but by the simple loving gift of a pure white flower.

To know the great men dead is compensation for having to live with the mediocre.

We are under bonds for the moderate use of every faculty, and he who misuses any of God's gifts may not hope to go unscathed.

SATURDAY, MARCH 15, 1930

A TIP FOR THE GRAND JURY.

The Grand Jury that has been on duty at the Stratford assizes has established a precedent that should be of interest to citizens of Peterborough County who may be called upon some time or other for jury duty.

The Stratford grand jurors, after inspecting the county jail, has decided that the institution is sadly in need of a new washing machine.

Accordingly, they recommend the purchase of a new one, and go on to add a rider to the effect that the "Historical Society of the county make use of the old one as an antique.

There's an idea for a Peterborough Grand Jury.

For years juries here have been recommending the purchase of a shower bath for use in the county jail, but they never once had the thrifty idea of the Stratford jurors that the article to be replaced could be turned to useful advantage.

Why not follow the Western Ontario example and suggest that there is a place in the local museum for the historic old bathtub that has done duty so long in the Peterborough County bastille?

Let it be given a position of honor among the relics of the county—just as it is, even the ring round it.

LOOKING TO THE FUTURE.

The Lindsay Town Council is to be congratulated upon its decision to embark upon a practical scheme of reforestation.

It has been decided to acquire certain lands on the outskirts of Lindsay which were to have been sold for taxes and use this property for the planting of trees.

That is a business-like and common-sense policy that has two very useful results, for it not only provides a source of future wealth but it eliminates unproductive property from the municipal tax roll.

A continuance of this system over a period of years will give Lindsay a number of valuable stands of timber that can be sold to advantage.

The Lindsay Post remarks that "reforestation is more than a fad; it is a good paying business to be in."

That is true, and the Lindsayites of the next generation or two are likely to have every reason to look back with gratitude to the municipal rulers of to-day and give thanks that they were endowed with the wisdom and foresight to launch their town into a profitable enterprise.

Incidentally it is worthy of note that Victoria County has also embarked in the reforestation business, and has 600 acres on which the work of planting trees has been successfully carried out.

Both the town and the county authorities are looking to the future, and their municipalities will reap the reward in the years to come.

A REASONABLE REQUEST.

There is a good deal of common sense in the argument advanced by the Canadian Legion that in the case of disabled war veterans suffering from a pre-war disability that has been aggravated by service the disability existing at the time of enlistment should not be estimated at more than 10 per cent.

Men who were passed as physically fit for service in France have a right to demand that in the assessment of disability by the Pensions Board they shall be considered as having been in good condition when they went to France.

It is said that the board has ruled in a number of cases that disabled ex-service men were suffering from a 75 per cent. disability before they went to the front.

To most people it seems ridiculously unfair that the nation, through its medical examiners, should accept these men as fit for active service, send them to the firing line, and then when they come home disabled say, through the Pensions Board, that most of their disability existed before the war, and they are only entitled to a small dole because their condition has been aggravated by their war experiences.

All soldiers who were passed as fit on going to the front have a right to ask that when their pensionable disability is being estimated the board should accept the fact that they were passed for active service as prima facil evidence that they were in A-1 category at that time.

MR. PECK'S STAND.

E. A. Peck, member for West Peterborough in the Dominion Parliament, deserves credit for the stand he has taken in regard to the question of a divorce court for Ontario, as explained in a letter appearing elsewhere in this issue.

Mr. Peck declares that he is opposed to the bill, and unless he is convinced that the majority of his constituents desire him to support the introduction of a divorce court, he will continue to oppose legislation to that effect.

If the people of this riding do not want to see the facilities for the securing of divorce made more readily available—and a very large number of them undoubtedly does not—they will not lose time in letting the Federal representative know that they approve of his attitude in this very important matter.

There are features in connection with the present divorce machinery, as The Examiner pointed out in a recent article, that are not desirable, but it is believed the majority of people would prefer to let well enough alone, dreading the introduction of a system that would facilitate the breaking up of homes and the bringing about of conditions in this Province resembling those in the United States.

The divorce evil among our neighbors has made a joke of marriage, and even for the sake of sparing our Senators the work they have to do in connection with divorce applications, most Ontario people are not willing to risk similar developments in their own Province.

FIVE YEARS FOR PROVIDENCE.

Nearly every phase if life in Soviet Russia must be reshaped and perfected in accordance with a Five-Year Plan. The organized Militant Atheists are no exception. A year from now we may perhaps read figures from Moscow showing that in the first four months of the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1930, no less than 5,476,856 Russian men, women and children wholly lost faith in the existence of a Supreme Being, 12,345,478 persons lost between 50 per cent. and 75 per cent. of their faith, and a round 25,000,000 persons were slipping; all this being an increase of 236 per cent. over the corresponding period in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1929, and no less than 867,000 per cent. over the average annual growth of religious disbelief in the years immediately preceding the outbreak of the World War. Minutely parallel to the great Five-Year Economic Plan, with its precise allocation of percentages, tons, bushels, square meters and kilowatts year by year, are the details of an anti-religious campaign which in five years is to win 18,000,000 adherents between the ages of 8 and 14, by means of seven planetariums, three anti-religious operas, four operettas, eleven revues, thirteen musical comedies, twenty vaudeville sketches, thirty anti-religious paintings and sculptures.

It is not minimizing the serious and painful interest with which millions of people outside of Russia are following the Communist campaign against religion to suggest that there is in the atheistic procedure much of the essence of farce. Physical suffering for appreciable numbers of Russians of all creeds, and spiritual sufferings for much greater numbers, are involved in the behavior of the "godless," but the mind nevertheless insists on thinking of it as a circus rather than a campaign. Even though the Soviet Government is in sympathy with the atheistic activities as part of its larger aims, the impression of a "stunt" persists. A lot of grown-up children, among whom are not a few vicious children, have gotten hold of exciting formulas about dictatorship and propaganda and mass suggestion and public education and an increase of 37 per cent. in the output of kerosene over the corresponding period last year, and are now all set to drive God out of Russia in five years; or, if somebody thinks up an exceptionally effective anti-religious poster and operetta, perhaps even in three and a half years. One hundred million Orthodox peasants who ten years ago were living, in the matter of religion, in the piety of the Middle Ages; millions bred in the solid Roman Catholic discipline; evangelical believers whose state of mind to-day has been illustrated in the case of the Mennonites; three million Jews, always tenacious of their faith—these are all to be spiritually reconstructed in five years by the methods of a glorified automobile accessories sales campaign.

So strong is the ultimate impression of farce and futility about this anti-religious crusade that the Soviet Government itself is bound soon to awaken to one unpleasant consequence. A world that smiles skeptically, even if bitterly, at the Five-Year atheists with their 18,000,000 converts and their seven planetariums and their fourteen anti-Creator operettas and the rest of the scientific balderdash—such a skeptical world may transfer its doubts to the Soviet arithmetic about collectivized farms and grain crops and petroleum and pig iron and boots and shoes and lumber and imports and exports, all responding in their preordained goose-step percentages to the command of the Five-Year Ian. When Russian atheists begin to draw charts about human souls in quarterly periods they are helping to portray the whole Communist experiment as something carried on by a crowd which has gone more than slightly mad.—New York Times.

NATION OF GAMBLERS?

In a recently published British book, the statement is made that speculation in Canada is almost a universal obsession among the people, and is comparable only with the gambling on horse-racing in Great Britain. The writer points out that, in Europe, speculation, either in securities or in commodities, is usually the prerogative of persons with a certain income and position, but that this does not hold true in the New World.

There is much justification for this charge. During the past three or four years, there have been probably 300,000 people in Canada, speculating in mining stocks, in addition to those who have speculated in industrial and public utility stocks, grains and other commodities, etc. Speculative investments in securities are justified when those who make the speculation are persons in a position to take the necessary risk. Only a small percentage of the 300,000 people who gambled in mining stocks were justified, by their means or experience, to go into these issues to the degree that they did. The speculative boom in mining stocks became a huge gamble, and it is perhaps as well that it is over. Canada does not want another mining boom accompanied by the same senseless gambling by people in every rank and station. It is not good national economy. We now have plenty of evidence that it did not even tend to stimulate mining development of a permanent character.

There is ample opportunity for Canadians, even those of the most modest means, to invest soundly in the development of the country. There are a large number of the very best Canadian securities that sell at modest figures, between $25 and $50 a share and where the purchase of a five or ten-share lot represents the outlay of only a modest sum of money. Undoubtedly, many of those who have taken their $100 or $500 and attempted to make a fortune out of it quickly by gambling in very speculative mining stocks, under conditions that spelt almost certain loss for them, will now adopt the wiser precaution of making investments for the longer term in the securities of standard corporations.

An excellent opportunity is afforded to bankers, brokers and others to take every chance of stimulating investment along these lines. It may be that some of our larger corporations, by splitting their shares, could find many new shareholders. This would not only give stability to their shareholders' list, but would provide more and better investment for people of modest means. —Financial Post.

The British Labor Government has been granted a respite—but its life is likely to be a short and not a particularly merry one.

It is reported that the Reds of Winnipeg held a "quiet" parade. There seems to be a mistake somewhere or other.

By a new agreement, territory near the head of the lakes formerly considered as belonging to the United States has been given over to Canada. And now the natural question is, "What is the matter with it?"

A Thought

MALICE

Malice at any time, is a reprehensible state of mind. When it comes into being, there is a return to the primitive. Probably the psychologists would describe it as a return to type. We would probably say it was a 'throw-back."

It doesn't matter what we call it—malice is a very bad thing. And when it comes, there is no telling how far we shall go in it. It grips some badly—seriously; it lands them in a very dangerous, and even a criminal, position.

But malice of the usual known kind, the kind that is obvious—and, if the odd expression may be used, above-board—is bad enonugh. What is really worse is that super-malice that creeps in and out and around us, until we feel it doing its fell work, and yet we never know when it is going to strike us.

This sort is so delicate in its machinations that it becomes positively snakish. You can never tell where its fangs are going to bite next. The mind that has this kind of malice in it is not far off insanity; for it is no normal malice. And certainly it is no normal mind that conceives it.

Fortunately it is not very prevalent. But we do have to deal with it at times. Then it is that our soul and happiness are in jeopardy. —C. H. G.

THE GREENE MURDER CASE

By S. S. VAN DINE

Nor could the cook throw any light on Rex's murder. She had been in the kitchen, she said, the entire morning except for the hour she had gone marketing. She had not heard the shot and like Hemming, knew of the tragedy only through Sproot. A marked change, however, had come over the woman. When she entered the drawing room fright and resentment animated her usually stolid features, and as she sat before us her fingers worked nervously in her lap.

Vance watched her critically during the interview. At the end he asked suddenly:

"Miss Ada has been with you in the kitchen this last half-hour?"

At the mention of Ada's name her fear was perceptibly intensified. She drew a deep breath.

"Yes, little Ada has been with me. And thank the good God she was away this morning when Mr. Rex was killed, or it might have been her and not Mr. Rex. They tried once to shoot her, and maybe they'll try again. She oughtn't to be allowed to stay in this house."

"I think it only fair to tell, Frau Mannheim," said Vance, "that some one will be watching closely over Miss Ada from now on."

The woman looked at him gratefully.

"Why should any one want to harm little Ada?" she asked in an anguished tone. "I also shall watch over her."

When she had left us Vance said:

"Something tells me, Markham, that Ada could have no better protector in this house than that motherly German.—And yet," he added, "there'll be no end of this grim carnage until we have the murderer safely gyved." His face darkened: his mouth was as cruel as Pietro de' Medici's. "This hellish business isn't ended. The final picture is only just emerging. And it's damnable—worse than any of the horrors of Rops or Dore."

Markham nodded with dismal depression.

"Yes, there appears to be an inevitability about these tragedies that's beyond mere human power to combat." He got up wearily and addressed himself to Heath. "There's nothing more I can do here at present, sergeant. Carry on, and phone me at the office before 5."

We were about to take our departure when Captain Jerym arrived. He was a quiet, heavy-set man, with a gray, scraggly moustache and small, seep-set eyes. One might easily have mistaken him for a shrewd, efficient merchant. After a brief handshaking ceremony Heath piloted him upstairs.

Vance had already donned his ulster, but now he removed it.

"I think I'll tarry a bit and hear what the captain has to say regarding those footprints. Y' know, Markham, I've been evolving a rather fantastic theory about 'em: and I want to test it."

Markham looked at him a moment with questioning curiosity. Then he glanced at his watch.

"I'll wait with you," he said.

Ten minutes later Dr. Doremus came down, and paused long enough on his way out to tell us that Rex had been shot with a .32 revolver held at a distance of about a foot from the forehead, the bullet having entered directly from the front and embedded itself, in all probability, in the midbrain.

A quarter of an hour after Doremus had gone Heath reentered the drawing room. He expressed uneasy surprise at seeing us still there.

"Mr. Vance wanted to hear Jerym's report," Markham explained.

"The Captain'll be through any minute now." The Sergeant sank into a chair. "He's checking Snitkin's measurements. He couldn't make much of the tracks on the carpet, though."

"And fingerprints?" asked Markham.

"Nothing yet."

"And there won't be," added Vance. "There wouldn't be footprints if they weren't deliberately intended for us."

Heath shot him a sharp look, but before he could speak Captain Jerym and Snitkin came downstairs.

"What's the verdict, Cap?" asked the Sergeant.

"Those footprints on the balcony steps," said Jerym, "were made with galoshes of the same size and markings as the pattern turned over to me by Snitkin a fortnight or so ago. As for the prints in the room, I'm not so sure. They appear to be the same, however, and the dirt on them is sooty, like the dirt on the snow outside the French doors. I've several photographs of them; and I'll know definitely when I get my enlargements under the microscope."

Vance rose and sauntered to the archway.

"May I have your permission to go upstairs a moment, Sergeant?"

Heath looked mystified. His instinct was to ask a reason for this unexpected request, but all he said was, "Sure. Go ahead."

Something in Vance's manner—an air of satisfaction combined with a suppressed eagerness—told me that he had verified his theory.

He was gone less than five minutes. When he returned he carried a pair of Galoshes similar to those that had been found in Chester's closet. He handed them to Captain Jerym.

"You'll probably find that these made the tracks."

Both Jerym and Snitkin examined them carefully, comparing the measurements and fitting the rough patterns to the soles. Finally, the Captain took one of them to the window, and affixing a jeweller's glass to his eye, studied the riser of the heel.

"I think you're right," he agreed. "There's a worn place here which corresponds to an indentation on the cast I made."

Heath had sprung to his feet and stood eying Vance.

"Where did you find 'em?" he demanded.

The Sergeant's excitement got the better of him.

He swung about to Markham, fairly spluttering with consternation.

"Those two guys from the Bureau that went over this house looking for the gun told me there wasn't a pair of goloshes in the place; and I specially told 'em to keep their eyes pealed for goloshes. And now Mr Vance finds 'em in the linen closet off the main hall upstairs."

"But, Sergeant," said Vance mildly, "the goloshes weren't there when your sleuths were looking for the revolver. On both former occasions the johnny who wore 'em had plenty of time to put 'em away safely But to-day, d'ye see, he had no chance to sequester them; so he left 'em in the linen-closet for the time being."

"Oh, that's it, is it?" Heath growled vaguely. "Well, what's the rest of the story, Mr Vance?"

"That's all there is to date. If I knew the rest I'd know who fired the shots. But I might remind you that neither of your sergeants de ville saw any suspicious person leave here."

Markham was on his feet. "That means that the murderer is in the house this minute."

"At any rate," returned Vance lazily "I think we are justified in assuming that the murderer was here when we arrived."

"But nobody's left the place but Von Blon" blurted Heath.

What To-day Means To You

"PISCES."

If March 15th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6:30 a.m. to 8 a.m., and from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to noon, from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m., and from 11 p.m. to midnight.

The influences on this date should be inspirational, and the birth of new ideas should inure to your future benefit. There will be more social life than usual, with romance and pleasant friendships in evidence.

The child born on this March 15th will have a determined and practical nature, and it is destined to do some important constructive work. It will be industrious and hard-working, and will ask for neither "pulls" or favors.

You are very clear-headed and long-headed and courageous. You stand up and face your difficulties—when you see a crisis coming you get ready and meet it in time. You do not wait until your nerves are on edge when your judgment is warped by thinking in circles. You are not a muddler. You are very human, a person of cultured taste and have so amiable a temperament that you are beloved by all with whom you are brought into relation.

Your chief study is mankind, although it may be more or less concealed under other outward expressions. You should be an apt student of psychology, and you should be able to apply your knowledge in your every day life. It is not often that you are fooled in a person—you are not easily "taken in." You do not like a solitary life—you are happier when with a crowd, people do not tire you. You are a ready and convincing talker and exercise a great influence on those about you.

You maintain a sense of proportion—you do not emphasize one side of your nature very much to the exclusion of others. You do not live by meat alone—nor love, nor work, nor enjoyment. You should marry early in life—although attracted to and by a "Libra" or "Sagittarius" person, friction will arise unless faults are overcome on both sides.

"Highways to Happiness"

SCRIPTURE

Memory Verse: "He that loseth his life . . . shall find it" (Matthew 10:39).

Read Matthew 16-21:27.

MEDITATION

To lose one's life is not to throw it away, but to give it away. Life is too valuable to be sold at any price. We do not sell our most precious possessions. If we part with these we give them away. Life's best rewards come as we invest ourselves without thought of gain in some great cause or in the welfare of human beings. A story was recently told me of a wealthy man who offered his services to a hospital board saying: "I have spent enough time and effort in making money and in gettings things for myself: I should like now to have the pleasure of doing something for nothing." The way to the enjoyment of life is: something for somebody for nothing.

PRAYER

Deliver us, O God, from the self-centered life. Lead us forth from solicitous and anxious thoughts of self to the wider fields of service. In Christ, Thou has shown us the way; help us to walk in it, for His sake. Amen.

WHAT TO-DAY MEANS TO YOU

"PISCES."

If March 16th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a.m. to 11.30 a.m., and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. The danger periods are from 7 a.m. to 8 a.m., and from 10 p.m. to 11 p.m.

The astrological indications for this date are rather hazy and nothing of importance—good or bad—can be augured. There will be general apathy during the day, but more stimulating influences will awaken life during the latter part of the day and evening.

The child born on this March 16th will be changeable, quick moving and pleasure loving. It will rise to honor and recognition by reason of friendships and popularity, more than through any great ability or talent. It will have considerable sentiment, and will be highly emotional.

You are over-sensitive and easily depressed, although most of your miseries are self-created. You have wonderful imagination which you should turn to higher and more cheerful ideas. Your pessimistic view of life is probably the one big stumbling block which lies between you and a greater success and happiness. You have a very restless disposition and it is not likely that you will ever stay "put." You are inclined to fritter your time away, doing frivolous things, worrying over trivialities, and more or less wasting the years as they go by. You are not doing as many worth while things, or thinking worth while thoughts, as you are capable of doing. You are leading a very much self-centered life.

You have a mistrusting nature. Everything must be proved to you. You accept nothing on faith. Your likes and dislikes for people are greatly determined by prejudice, but once a friend, however, you are always a friend. You are extremely loyal to those whom you like and to your own kith and kin. You are passionately fond of animals and you should never be without pets. You are healthier and happier when pursuing an outdoor life.

You are more emotional than intellectual in your life and interests, and you live a great deal in your senses and sensations. Your fortunate times are the weeks beginning August 5th and November 12th.

$167,000 FOR BATH

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 15.—The Jury's "sympathy for a comely woman" was responsible for the largest accident damage verdict ever given a woman in Westchester, Supreme Court, Justice Taylor, Jr., in White Plains yesterday set aside the $167,000 award made to the blonde Juanita Hansen, former moving picture actress, on her testimony that when she opened the "cold" shower faucet at a New York hotel she was caught under a rush of scalding water and burned so badly that she had been permanently disfigured for the moving pictures.

Missing Mail Plane Real Treasure Ship

RENO, Nev., March 15. (Canadian Press).—The Nevada State Journal says that the missing Western Air Express mail plane, which disappeared on Nov. 10, carried $75,000 in currency and other securities amounting to nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

The Journal also says that the country over which Pilot Maurice Graham was flying has been thoroughly searched and that searching parties believe Graham's plane never landed in the storm-swept territory.

Members of the searching parties, the Journal says in the article, expressed the belief that if the plane landed it was destroyed and the body of the pilot buried by those who robbed the wreck.

PERIOD OF PROFIT-TAKING IN WALKERS IS ONLY SHOW OF ACTIVITY AT TORONTO

Few Orders Executed Without Affecting Level of Price Trend.

GAIN IN MASSEY-HARRIS.

Nickel, Brazilian, Ford of Canada and Canadian Dredge Unchanged.

TORONTO, March 15. (C.P.) — The market on the Toronto stock exchange closed to-day with prices steady and for the most part so close to those at the close Friday that no significance could be attached to the fluctuations. Apart from a short period of profit taking in Walkers, no attempts were made to either depress or carry ahead stocks. Orders drifted into the market slowly and were executed without affecting the level of the stock.

Walkers was made the object of a test drive by bears shortly after the opening on the theory that the ban on liquor exports to the United States would react unfavorably to Walkers. However the issue was offered plenty of support; trading soon fell off and at the end the price at nine was even above that at the close Friday.

STANDARD EXCHANGE IRREGULARLY LOWER

TORONTO, March 15. (CP). — Though price action was slightly broader than it was during the past week, there was no really important movements on the mining market to-day, the list closing with an irregularly lower appearance. Many issues failed to receive attention and the volume of sales was light for even a Saturday session.

The Lindsley group of mining stocks, with the exception of Sudbury basin which receded five to $3.25 on only a few sales, were firmer, Falconbridge moving up 30 to $4.75 on fair demand. Sherritt Gordon, at $2.75 was ten above last night's close, and Ventures firmed a point to $1.74.

Rain in Southwest Affects Wheat Trend

CHICAGO, Ill., March 15 (Canadian Press). — Reports of good rains at various points south-west led early to-day to lower prices here for wheat. Downturns in quotations at Liverpool ascribed to cheaper offerings from Argentina, counted also as a bearish influence. Opening ⅜c to 1⅜c off, Chicago wheat futures afterward kept near to the initial range. Corn and oats developed firmness, with corn starting at ¼c decline to ¼c advance, and later scoring gains all around. Provisions tended to sag.

Quotations Lower On Winnipeg Mart

WINNIPEG, Man., March 15 (Canadian Press). — Little trading developed at the opening of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day when quotations in all three futures were fractionally lower. Decreased quotes at Liverpool, coupled with absence of overnight export trade, caused the initial decline.

May was ⅞ to ⅝ cent lower at $1.02¾ to $1.03¼. July lost ¼ to ¾ cent at $1.03¼ to $1.04⅜. October was ⅝ to ⅜ cent lower at $1.06 to $1.06¼.

'Paddy' Substitutes For Real Shamrock

"Paddy it is the next best thing," that will be the consoling phrase on March 17th when the native sons of Ireland step into the local florists to make their purchases of shamrock—that little clover-leaf-like plant, peculiar only to the Emerald Island.

Enquiries at the local florists as to whether or not shamrock was being shipped here from overseas, elicited the information that it was not, although it was learned that a very good substitute is grown in Canada, and will be on sale in large quantities.

Each year sees a big demand for this little plant and it is one of the customs among Irish folk to send little sprays of shamrock to their friends and acquaintances.

LIST ADVANCES HEAVY BUYING

Efforts to Extend Recovery in Oil Shares Meets Increased Selling Resistance.

EARLY WEAKNESS.

(By Stanley W. Prenosil, Associated Press Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 15. — Strong buying support came into the stock market after an early period of heaviness to-day, with the result that closing prices were irregularly higher. Short covering by bearish professionals, who had sold stocks heavily earlier in the week, was a factor in the advance. Pools, faced with the prospect of easy money for some time to come, succeeded in marking up about a score of issues to new high levels for the year.

Efforts to extend the recovery in the oil shares met increased selling resistance. Simms Petroleum assumed the leadership of that group, crossing 31 to a new 1930 high. Pierce Oil preferred moved up more than 3 points to 40, practically doubling the low price of the year.

RIVALS IN STEEL STAGE BATTLE

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, March 15.—(Canadian Press).—A new drama of the steel industry was being staged to-day as rival leaders rallied support in their fight to control the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company and determine whether it will be acquired by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

James A. Campbell, president of Sheet and Tube, said to-day in a statement on the proposed sale of his company to the Bethlehem Corporation, that Sheet and Tube, finding its markets being taken away from it by changing conditions, must merge with another strong company or lose out in the industrial race. The executives of the Youngstown firm found in Bethlehem "the ideal company" for such a merger, Mr. Campbell said, taking full responsibility for the deal. "I made this deal," he said. "I set the price and Bethlehem accepted it."

Cyrus H. Eaton, Cleveland financier, who has sought to include Sheet and Tube in the Republic Steel Corporation he organized recently, already was predicting success of his efforts to block the merger with Bethlehem.

"The sale will not go through," Eaton said here in his first statement on the fight that began with an all-day conference of steel magnates in Cleveland Tuesday. "A good deal more than enough stock has been pledged against it and always has been."

Proxy letters outlining the stands of both sides were in the mails to-day. Bethlehem has offered one and one-third shares of common stock in return for each share of Steel and Tube.

OLD TYME CONCERT IS GIVEN AT GEORGE STREET

The choir of the Mark street United Church presented their Olde Tyme Concert in George Street United Church last evening to an enthusiastic audience. The quaint, old costumes and old-fashioned dresses were much admired as well as the program of old familiar songs.

The stage was very beautiful with glowing fireplace and furniture kindly loaned by Comstock Brothers, and a spinning wheel in motion belonging to Mrs. Carver, of "Spruce Glenn," added a picturesque note to the pretty scene. The tall brass candle holders on the mantel were kindly loaned by Mrs. T. Barrie.

Rev. J. E. Millyard acted as chairman, and expressed his appreciation to Mrs. W. A. Greenslade and her choir.

The concert was presented under the auspices of Mrs. W. P. Hetherington's Sunday School Class, who at the conclusion of the performance, entertained the choir. Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

GOLD MINING ONLY INDUSTRY NOT FACING SOME PROBLEM

Fixed Price of Gold Puts Industry in Strong Position.

MINING NEWS.

Outlook of Five Leading Companies Expected Increase in Output and Earnings.

TORONTO, March 15. (Special to the Examiner.)—Gold mining is about the only industry in Canada at the present time which is not going through a period of some unpleasant readjustment. With commodity prices declining in all countries and the world apparently on the way back to a lower cost of living, all industries but gold mining are being adversely affected. In fact the very factor which most hurts other industries is beneficial to the old mining business. Gold being a commodity with a fixed price, a lower cost for everything the gold mining companies buy allows them to make more money.

Last week in these columns we discussed the record of Ontario's five leading gold producers for the last five years as shown by the figures of the Ontario Department of Mines. This week we propose to discuss these companies from the standpoint of an investment.

A $600 investment would buy 10 shares each of Dome, Hollinger, Lake Shore, McIntyre and Teck Hughes at the closing quotations for these stocks last Wednesday. The combined annual income received would be $44.50 a share, representing an income yield on the investment of 7.4 per cent. The investment represents an equity in five gold mining companies with combined assets of $71,393,423. The total market value of their outstanding capital stock is approximately $107,000,000. Total working capital amounts to $20,600,000 and ore reserves may be estimated as sufficient to take care of production for an average of from three to five years.

Increasing Production.

The total gold production of these five companies in 1929 was $28,376,800 and if we eliminate Dome on which production is temporarily suspended pending the erection of a new mill, an increase in total output will occur this year. By May Lake Shore expects to be producing 2,000 tons daily or at the rate of 700,000 tons a year, compared with 430,000 tons in 1929. The increase of 270,000 tons over last year would, with the same per ton operating profit, increase their net earnings after all charges to approximately $5,119,200 or $2.55 a share, compared with $1.27 in 1929.

McIntyre which is now handling about 550,000 tons of ore a year is hoping to be able to increase its milling capacity this year to almost double depending on the results of work now being done. Double its present rate of milling and the same operating profit as was indicated in the company's last statement would show profits after all charges at the rate of approximately $4.75 a share, compared with indicated earnings of $2.32 a share in their current fiscal year.

Sometime this year Teck Hughes is expected to begin adding another 300 ton unit to its mill which would bring its production up to around 1200 tons a day or 420,000 tons per annum, compared with 337,600 in 1929. With an operating profit of $8.18 a ton, (the same as last year) this increase in tonnage would represent a profit increase of $674,000 or approximately 11½ cents a share.

Hollinger is not expected to increase its tonnage in the near future but an important feature of its operations in the fourth quarter of 1929 was an increase in the grade of ore milled of $1.66 a ton, the average being $7.30 compared with $5.64 a ton in the first nine months of last year. This if maintained, would mean an increase in net operating profits which would at least assure the dividend being comfortably earned.

What Increase Means.

When all of these increases in production take place, they will raise the combined output of the five companies in question by approximately 875,000 tons a year. The average grade of ore now being milled by these five mines is $8.54 a ton. Thus this increase in mill tonnage would represent an increase in gross income from gold production of $747,250.

It is a rare thing in the darkest days of a bear market to find one of the chief industries represented on the Exchange with an outlook which is almost cloudless. Such a situation now exists so far as gold mining and their stocks are concerned. A similar situation might not occur again in a long time.

CANADIAN STOCK EXCHANGES CONTINUE IRREGULAR TREND

Public Interest Fails to Increase and Prices Get Nowhere.

NEED MORE REPORTS.

Toronto, March 15. (Special to the Examiner.)—The public just can't get hot about the Canadian stock markets and day to day movements continue like the parade of the wooden soldiers—mechanical. Prices are drifting up and down with the regularity of an elevator; brief stops here and there and no objective.

This week saw a little more action of the wrong kind in the grain pits and this offset what improvement there was in sentiment which made itself felt at times in individual issues and groups such as Famous Players Canadian, International Nickel, Ford Motor of Canada and the oils. At every stage the public has before it the failure of the west to market its wheat to the disadvantage of the industries of the Dominion. Bad news is news. Good news something to skim over lightly and then toss aside as not having sufficient influence to sway prices. The old speculative crowd that continually talked higher prices when the list was at the peak in 1929 have lost their enthusiasm and will not look beyond the present situation, which is only temporary at the most and will right itself before long.

Prices Moored.

Wall Street is making progress while prices for Canadian securities are moored at present levels. Conditions in both countries are somewhat similar and it is the fear that New York may have gone too fast ahead and must meet a further corrective adjustment, before the advance is placed on a solid foundation, that is causing traders to hold back.

Another handicap Canadians are working under is the lack of official information and knowledge as to how business is standing up. The policy of issuing financial statements annually no longer meets the requirement and publication of quarterly earning figures is not only being advocated but should be adopted by the Dominion's corporations. Executives owe this to their shareholders, or partners, and should see that they are kept informed of current developments without having to wait for weeks and months after the close of the fiscal year.

Need of Quarterly Reports.

To the credit of many it is to be said the policy of issuing periodical reports has already been adopted but there are still a large number prejudiced against this action. Canadian companies having an international list of stockholders and applying for listing on the New York Stock Exchange have to agree to furnish reports at various times throughout the year. Others have done so voluntarily.

Supplying competitors with information, too much expense and a host of other excuses are offered, but the fact remains the issuing of such statements would go a long way to retain confidence of stockholders and undoubtedly make for much better market for the securities in question. Of late investors have found their income reduced by the passing of dividends without warning. Unfounded gossip has resulted in price depreciation that a full knowledge of the facts would not warrant, and shareholders have been given many anxious moments.

No Annual Statements.

On the same subject, those companies who have offered their securities to the public and fail to furnish their stockholders with even an annual printed report are deserving of criticism. In the past month there has been at least two cases of this kind where securities were sold to the public and subsequently listed for trading on the listed or unlisted department of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

To live up to the requirement of the companies' act a general meeting was called and held at which a profit and loss account and balance sheet was read. Shareholders in a position to attend heard the facts but others not so fortunate are quite in the dark. Reading of financial statements may have filled the bill in the old days, when shareholders comprised a small group closely connected but to-day public offering of securities usually meets with a wide distribution across the Dominion and it is hardly fair to expect shareholders to come from distant points to get this information.

C.N.R. BUSINESS REVEALS GAIN

Wheat Holdup Not Affecting This District Very Seriously.

GIRDERS SHIPPED IN.

"The volume of business on this section of the C.N.R. is heavier now than over the corresponding period last year" stated Alpine McNabb the company's agent here, when seen by The Examiner to-day. This he added is in spite of the fact that grain traffic is practically at a standstill. The hold-up of wheat is not affecting the railways, very seriously in this section of the country, only in so much as the amount of traffic handled over local lines is considerably lessened.

Owing to the shortage of rough grains in this Province and the favourable prices which have been obtaining in the West he said that the U.F.O. had purchased and distributed more feed grains to the farmers of this district, this winter than ever before, and locally several cars of oats, corn and barley have been handled in the past few months.

Shipments of grain are also coming in steadily to the two cereal plants here, which have of course been handled by both railroad companies.

If the volume of business handled by the railroads is any indication of trade conditions, Peterborough is in a very favourable position as compared with other large industrial centres.

The steel girders for the Martin-Hewitt factory now nearing completion, were also shipped in over C.N.R. lines this winter.

Expect to Commence Manufacture of Cardboard Boxes Before May.

MACHINERY COMES IN WEEK.

"We are expecting three or four car loads of machinery next week and will hope to commence the manufacture of cardboard boxes before the month of May" said Robert Martin of the Martin-Hewitt Containers, when seen by The Examiner Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Martin is on one of his weekly visits to this city and expressed himself as very pleased indeed with the way the contractors are progressing with the work.

Manufacturing will be commenced shortly although the building will not by that time have been fully completed and will not be able to work at maximum capacity until the contractors have vacated the site.

Mr. Martin was unable to give any idea as to the number of employees they would need at the commencement of operations, although when running at full capacity they will employ a considerable number of hands.

The Martin-Hewitt Company have already secured a substantial contract from the Quaker Oats Company for cardboard containers, hence their anxiety to commence operations, and Mr. Martin stated the fact that they have other good contracts in view.

The head office of the company will be situated here and it is probable that Mr. Hewitt will have the management of the works.

Both gentlemen will be making their permanent homes in this city, although neither of them have as yet completed definite arrangements for their houses.

NORWOOD, March 15. (Examiner Correspondence)—The March meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was held in the ladies' parlour of the church with Mrs. R. F. Hillman, the president, in charge. The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn followed by the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Claude Bongard. A very interesting paper on "What True Discipleship Means" was read by Mrs. R. G. [illegible]. The Watch Tower Hymn [illegible] were given by Mrs. McNeil, Mrs. Cuthbertson, Miss E. Burgess and Mrs. R. G. Lawlor. During the meeting a solo was sung by Mrs. R. Brown.

Y.W.A. Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Y.W.A. of the United Church was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Pauline Weir. The president, Mrs. R. F. Pakenham took charge of the meeting. The Scripture lesson was read by Miss Helen Armstrong. Miss Maud Bongard read an interesting article on the Mission School at Kola Kreeka. The president read two very interesting letters from Miss Greta Clark missionary in China, and followed with prayers for the teen age girls with whom Miss Clark works. The topic for the evening, which was the second chapter of the study book "From Jerusalem to Jerusalem" was given by Miss Beatrice Borland. A very appropriate solo, "Heed the Knock of the Nail-pierced Hand", was sung by Miss Lila Kirke.

St. Andrew's Y.W.A. held their regular meeting for March at the home of Mrs. J. Rogers, with Miss Grace Dean in charge. Miss Annie Ferguson read the Scripture lesson and Miss Lottie Rogers gave the reading from the "Glad Tidings". The topic from the study book was taken by Mrs. J. Rogers. COUNTY VETERAN JAMES HENDLEY IS 108 YEARS OLD

"Aye, my father fished in the blue water, too, for codfish and mackerel and herring. He was captain of a deep sea boat, but me—I do not go. My mother wished to stay at home.

"Why do I live so long? I do not know. Perhaps the good God don't want me yet. When the tam come I suppose I go like the rest." He smiles at the thought and relapses into the composed silence that characterizes this quiet, peaceful old man.

Came to Burleigh in 1879

After living in Gaspe he came to Burleigh Township in 1879 with his wife, and there he worked in a lumber camp for Dalton Ulyot, a Peterborough lumberman. He rode the logs with the best of them. His foreman was James Lynch. He spent the winters in camp and remained as caretaker for the summers.

In 1880 he turned to farming near Apsley, but continued to work in the lumber camps in the winter months. F. L. Robbins, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who had a summer home at Jack's Lake, engaged "Jimmie" as caretaker of his house and farm in 1894. He engaged in trapping also, and was a great favorite with hunting parties. Among those who have a wealth of memories of him as a hunter are Dr. J. R. Fraser and W. H. Casement, postmaster at Lakefield. For years they hunted in the Jack's Lake district.

He remained on the farm for many years before retiring.

Mr. Hendley has been married twice and has a family of five sons and three daughters who are now scattered. Philip and George are in Seattle, John and Joe are in Toronto, and Dennis is on the farm in Burleigh. One daughter, Minnie, died about 40 years ago. Josephine (Mrs. Ouster) lives in Toronto and Louisa (Mrs. Reynolds) in Dundas.

Five Sovereigns

Thumbing over a history book with Mr. Hendley's age in mind, one discovers some interesting facts. George IV. reigned at the time of James Hendley's birth. Since then he has lived to see the procession of William IV., Queen Victoria, Edward VII., and George V. The British Empire has grown and extended in his time with the settlement of Australia, New Zealand, and the winning of South Africa. He was a grown man when the Indian Mutiny occurred and the Crimean War was fought, and when Canada was made a Dominion he was forty-four years of age.

Just ten years before Mr. Hendley's birth the United States broke away from Great Britain and began its climb to the position as one of the world's greatest Powers.

He lives in absolute contentment at present, having genuine friends in Mr. and Mrs. Fry who are in charge of the House of Refuge, and being very popular among the other inmates of the house.

Mr. Hendley's father lived to be 96 years of age and his mother about 70 years.

PREMIER SEES PERIL TO U. S.

the file which he had before him, Mr. Bennett declared. The Prime Minister had made a grave and momentous statement. It was one of the gravest declarations that had ever been made in Parliament. Surely Mr. Massey should have sent to his government a diplomatic description of the danger, if it existed.

The Prime Minister took every determined ground against the continuation of a system under which officers of Dominion Government were used as the medium between the Canadian brewer and distiller and the gangs of criminal bootleggers and rum-runners of the United States. The Government was now satisfied, he said, that the United States was making a serious effort to suppress Liquor smuggling. Canada proposed to help her. He felt that the Legislation would meet with general support in Parliament and in the country.

Maj. Poven is Opposed

Four other speakers followed the Prime Minister and leader of the opposition. All were in favor of the ill with the exception of Major G. G. Poven (Liberal, Quebec South) who declared that were he to give the measure conditional support or even silent acquiescence, he would be indulging in humbug, and hypocrisy. He believed the effect of the bill would be to increase bootlegging, and he feared violence against citizens of Cahada by United States revenue officers.

ODDFELLOWS HOLD ANNUAL "AT HOME"

Social Evening in Stirling Theatre Much Enjoyed by Lodge Members.

STIRLING, March 15 (Examiner Correspondence). — On Wednesday night the Community Building practically belonged to the Oddfellows, as they had engaged it for their annual "At Home." At 8.30 o'clock, E. Jackman, Noble Grand of No. 239, called the audience of over 300, which had assembled in the theatre, to order and the evening's entertainment began by a musical selection by Mr. Frazer's orchestra, who furnished music for the occasion.

The Dramatic Club of Carmel United Church then gave a three act play, entitled "The Wrong Kitty." The different actors rendered their parts well in the play and between acts as well; in singing, dancing, and other features, and were called back by repeated encores in many numbers.

Messrs. Farrell, Brown, Archer and Smith gave several songs as a quartet. The latter of these gave solos and was his own accompanist on the banjo. James Houston featured step-dancing and was applauded for his effort. Henry Farrel, as the colored porter and bell boy, caused much amusement during the play.

At the close of the first part of the program, everybody was invited to the Community Hall upstairs, where an abundance of sandwiches, cake and coffee was served to the assembled crowd, and a social time was spent during this part of the program. In the meantime the orchestra was getting in position and soon the music began and the real lively part of the evening's program began, continuing until an early hour, being greatly enjoyed by those taking part.

The entertainment was more extensive than any undertaken by society heretofore, and proved very successful. The building and its appointments and conveniences contributing a great deal towards the gratifyng results obtained.

Small Fire

An over-heated stove pipe in Mr. Claude Tucker's house at the west end of the village caused a small blaze. The fire alarm was sounded but the services of the fire fighters was not required, as the fire was under control, which was fortunate on account of the high wind prevailing at the time.

The W.M.S. of St. Paul's United Church held their monthly meeting on Monday afternoon in the church parlor, a large number of members being present; Miss Lucy Williams presiding. The hymn, "A Better Day is Coming" was sung, following with prayer by Miss Gerwood and Mrs. C. Lansing.

The first item of business dealt with was the resignation of the treasurer, Mrs. C. F. Walt, who through ill health, is obliged to give up her office. A letter of regret and acceptance is to be sent to Mrs. Walt also a letter of condolence on the recent death of her mother.

Reports by several secretaries were given. Mrs. Hockey reported as Strangers' secretary, having called on several new comers. Mrs. W. Jeffrey, assistant secretary, also gave a statement of calls made. Mrs. T. Montgomery, Supply secretary, stated quilts were specially asked for and urged her hearers to get busy. Miss Hume as Temperance secretary, said that during the first three months of the fiscal year, 1,187 more permits were sold than during the same time the previous year. She then told of the 13-year-old boy of North Bay, who shot his father who, while under the influence of liquor, was abusing his wife. She considered the dying man's words to his boy, the strongest temperance sermon: "It was all my fault and I got what I deserved; it was drink did it. I wouldn't have struck mother if it had not been for whiskey."

Mrs. C. Macklin gave a summary of inventory she had made regarding the allocation of $610 and how it could be met, and said systematic giving was the best solution.

The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. H. C. Martin. Mrs. C. Macklin sang, "Is the Gospel According to You?" Mrs. R. W. Weise gave a reading, "The Deacon's story." Prayers by Mrs. C. W. Thompson, Mrs. Woods and Mrs. G. Richards concluded the meeting.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, March 15 — Ontario eggs have dominated the local produce market all week and as supplies increased the market weakened with the result that on Thursday and Friday country shippers were quoted 26c to 27c for extras, 24c to 25c for firsts, and 22c for seconds, ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned. Retailers were offered supplies on the same days at 34c for extras in cartons, 32c for extras [illegible] for firsts loose, and 27c for seconds loose. The prices during the last two days were equal to the lowest prices paid at any time last year, which happened to be at the peak of production in April, and though some dealers have declared that the local market has reached the bottom, others are inclined to believe that still lower prices will be in effect when production reaches its peak.

Canadian Survey.

Taking a Dominion-wide view of the egg situation we find that egg markets throughout Canada have been in a very uncertain condition. "Production everywhere has grown tremendously during the past week and values have undergone some very drastic declines. Prices were considerably lower than at the corresponding time for the past two years and were in fact down to a storage basis at a number of points in the producing areas. This applied more chiefly to the four Western Provinces. A great proportion of the blame for the present condition of the market could be placed directly to the rapid and extreme price declines on American markets and to the heavy importations which have been brought in from that country. Western markets with a surplus over local requirements, were endeavoring to unload carlots in the East but were finding markets in that section already well supplied with local stocks. It looked improbable that any further importations would be made during the present season.

Montreal during recent weeks has been bringing in 15 cars of United States eggs weekly. For the most part these have been needed, as domestic production has been short of requirements. With the sudden rush of local production, however, it appeared that imports during the past week were a little heavier than required. This of course was a very difficult factor to estimate and some over-stocking is almost inevitable under such conditions.

Butter Trade Dull.

The butter market has been a dull affair all week, in this city. Ontario receipts have been light and as the demand has been mostly for the product of this province only small sales have taken place. The quotation to country shippers for creamery pasteurized, No. 1, was lowered ¼c yesterday for top, and they were quoted 33 3-4c to 34c for No. 1; 33c to 33¼c for 38 scoring No. 2, and 32 3-4c to 33 for 37 scoring No. 2. Prices to retailers remained firm at 38c to 9c for No. 11, and 37c to 38c for No. 2. Churning cream also held firm during the week, and special brought 38c to 39c; No. 1, 37c to 38c, and No. 2, 34c, to 35c.

Cheese Market Firm.

The cheese market has been firm with a good demand all week. Consumption remained on an equal basis and supplies did not pile up. Country shippers were quoted for new, large, government graded, colored, paraffined, 20½c, and for twins, 20 3-4 cents delivered at Toronto. Retailers were asked 27c to 28c for old, large; 28c to 29c for twins; 23c to 23½ for new, large, and 23½c to 24c for twins.

Potatoes Lower.

The potato market took one drop during the week and wholesalers were quoting on Friday, $1.60 for No. 11, Ontarios, in bags, and $1.50 in bulk; New Brunswick, $1.65 in bags, and $11.55 in bulk; Prince Edward Island, Mountains, $1.85, and Cobblers, $11.60.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 15.—Uneasiness over crop hazards West and South, especially drought dangers and Hessian fly perils, turned wheat upward yesterday after prices earlier had suffered material breaks. A reported likelihood of a railroad strike in Argenina and of delay also to wheat shipments from India because of political disturbances attracted notice. There were later advices too, that export call for North American wheat had enlarged somewhat, yesterday's wheat purchases by Europe totalling 750,000 bushels, with North American barley and rye being taken also, the first since last fall.

Closing quotations on wheat were irregular, 1 3-8c, off to 1 1-8c, up, compared with Thursday's finish. Corn touched new low price records for the season, but closed unchanged to ¾c higher, with oats at 3-8c decline to 1-8c advance, and provisions ranging from 37c drop to a rise of 2c to 5c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, March 15. — For the first time for some days there were no consignments of American eggs or New Zealand butter arriving in Montreal, and consequently yesterday's receipts of both these commodities were light. Prices remaining steady, however, ranging from 33½c to 33¾c a pound for finest New Zealand butter, and from 30c to 37c for eggs.

Cheese arrivals were also very light, amounting to six boxes, against 68 boxes this day last week, and 234 boxs on the corresponding day last year. Prices remained at from 18½c to 19¼c a pound.

The potato market was unchanged, trade continuing light. New Brunswick Green Mountains were sold at $1.40, and Quebecs at $1.25 per 90 pounds in bulk, in carlots, ex-track here.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, March 15. — Wheat prices halted yesterday in their downward path. Improved attitude on the part of overseas buyers, and confirmation of about 1,000,000 bus. of overnight business brought a dead stop in the decline of values. Quotations were unchanged to ¼c better at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Pit trade was brisk at times, but failed to assume large proportions in the aggregate. Cash wheat business was still small, with offerings few. Number 1 Northern closed at $1.01. Eastern demand for various grades of oats and barley was generally good.

Cash prices—

Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.01; No. 1 Northern, $1.01; No. 2 Northern, 98c; No. 3 Northern, 93⅝c; No. 4, 89⅝c; No. 5, 83¼c; No. 6, 64⅛c; feed, 53⅝c; track, $1.01⅝c; screenings, $5.00 per ton.

Barley—No. 2 C.W., 42⅝c; No. 4 C.W., 37⅛c; No. 5 C.W., 36⅛c; No. 6 C.W., 34⅝c; track, 42⅞c.

Rye—No. 2 C.W., 53⅛c.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF A FOND MOTHER

Her child is a never-ending source of joy and a never-failing responsibility to the fond mother. It not infrequently happens that minor ailments of the child distress and puzzle her; she does not know just what to do, yet feels them not serious enough to call a doctor. At just such times as these it is that Baby's Own Tablets are found to be mother's greatest help and friend.

Most childhood ailments arise from a derangement of the stomach or bowels. Baby's Own Tablets will immediately banish them by cleansing the bowels and sweetening the stomach. Thus they relieve colic, correct the digestion, banish constipation and make teething pains disappear.

Baby's Own Tablets are guaranteed to be free from injurious drugs such as opiates and narcotics and may be given to the newborn babe with perfect safety and beneficial results. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SONG SERVICE MUCH ENJOYED

Miss Phyllis Kidd Has Charge of Y.P.S. Meeting in Millbrook.

W.M.S. MEETING.

MILLBROOK, March 15.—(Examiner Correspondence).— The Young Peoples' Society this week was under the direction of the missionary department, Miss Phyllis Kidd, convenor, occupying the chair. A song service, in which everyone joined heartily, appropriately opened the meeting, and was followed by the Scripture lesson, the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., giving a brief exposition on the passage chosen.

Mrs. (Dr.) Rae gave an instructive reading on "The Ukrainians in Canada" a subject upon which considerable information has now been gained by the young people as it has been taken up as a study by the Mission Circle at a number of its meetings this winter. Mrs. Rose's well known ability as a teacher made the topic full of interest, and vivid in detail.

A reading, "A Business Man's Confession" by J. H. George, was appreciated, and lent interest to the program; the offering was in the interests of the Forward Movement for Missions, and private subscriptions are received at each month's missionary gathering.

A closing song service, with prayer, brought the meeting to a conclusion; next week the Y.P.S. will be under the social and literary department, Miss Beatrice Jones convenor.

W.M.S. Meeting

The March meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Saint Andrew's Church was held in the church parlor on Wednesday afternoon, the executive being responsible for the program, and over fifty members and visitors being in attendance.

The president, Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones, took the chair, and read the devotional leaflet "Miracles Then and Now" after which several took part in prayer. The corresponding secretary read a letter from the Presbyterial Supply Secretary, Mrs. F. Snelgrove, Brighton, listing the articles required for the bale this year, and on motion it was decided to make arrangements for the quilting at the April meeting. Mrs. George reported three quilt tops now on hand and linings and batting for their completion were promised by Miss M. E. Hertherington, Mrs. C. W. Richards, Mrs. Rae, Mrs. T. H. Aiken, Mrs. Elmer, and Miss Burnham.

The special service when the thankoffering is taken up will be at morning worship the Sunday after Easter, and if possible a returned missionary will be secured as speaker. The Auxiliary, Circle and Band will attend in a body. The committee to arrange for the speaker is: Mrs. Jones, Mrs. H. W. Johnston, Mrs Rae, and Miss Burnham.

The April meeting will be in charge of Group B. Mrs. C. C. Garside convenor. The matter of financial support for an ill and shut-in member of the community was left in the hands of the following committee: Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. V. C. Lambert, and Miss Estelle Hetherington.

The study from the book, "From Jerusalem to Jerusalem" was concerned with the carrying of the gospel to Europe, and was illustrated by means of charts and a map of the continent. Those taking part, giving particulars of the mission work of the various characters presented were: Ufilas, missionary to the Goths, Miss Burnham; Olga, Queen of Russia, and her grandson, Vladimir, Mrs. J. H. George; Martin of Tours, Clovis and Clotilda, Mrs. O. Williamson; Bertha, Queen of England, with King Ethelbert of Kent, and King Edwin, of Northumbria, Miss Estelle Hetherington; Saint Patrick, Saint Bridget, and Columba, all missionaries to Ireland, Mrs. H. E. Smith; Boniface, the monk of Winchester, Miss M. E. Hetherington; Willibrord, of England, Mrs. A. J. Brown; and Ansgar, missionary to Scandinavia, Mrs. Garside.

The meeting closed with the W.M.S. Watchward after the offering had been received, and any who wished paid their annual feet.

When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tastless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—and drug store.

Designed and Built for those Canadians who want the Finest

Where one finds people of distinction, one also finds cars of distinction. At Murray Bay, for instance—at Banff, Kenora and all other fashionable resorts—the modern Willys-Knight is an accustomed sight.

The increasing popularity of this magnificent car among the socially prominent follows an established European precedent. King George and the Prince of Wales have long driven in Knight-motored cars. King Albert of Belgium, King Alfonso of Spain and half the aristocracy of the continent prefer them for personal use.

To Willys-Knight owners the reasons for this preference are obvious.

The Knight double sleeve-valve engine has established trouble-free motoring. Its power and smoothness are undiminished after one hundred thousand miles of driving . . . its patented sleeve-valve principle eliminates the necessity of lay-ups for valve-grinding and carbon-cleaning . . . in it there are no valve springs to weaken, no tappets to become noisy.

Just as shields of the above design symbolized the rank and wealth of the great English house of Scott from the 16th to 19th centuries, so ownership of the new Willys-Knight symbolizes unquestioned social distinction today.

The mechanical excellence of the Knight motor, however, is taken for granted by its many owners. They regard Willys-Knight in terms of regal beauty and luxurious transportation. They know only that the Willys-Knight takes them where they want to go, when they want to go, in refreshing comfort; and that to be seen in it is a constant stimulation to their pride.

Great Six Coupe (as illustrated), Sedan, Touring, Roadster, 5-passenger Coupe, all $2675 (6 wire wheels and trunk rack included). The new Willys-Knight "70B" ranges from $1275 to $1575. All prices f.o.b. factory, Toronto. Taxes Extra. Willys-Overland Sales Co. Limited, Toronto, Ont. Branches: Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg.

HASTINGS, Mar. 15.— (Examiner Correspondence.))— The funeral of the late John Lamey was held on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock from the family residence in Percy township to "Our Lady of Mount Carmel" Roman Catholic church, where requiem High mass was sung by Rev. Father J. B. Ferguson, of Warkworth, in the sanctuary.

The very large crowd of friends who attended the funeral, as well as the many floral and spiritual offerings showed the esteem in which the young man was held by all who knew him.

The bearers were Messrs. W. Noonan, L. Keogan, Jas. Herr, J. Coveney, D. Noonan, and J. L. Doherty.

Interment took place in Hastings R. C. cemetery. Prayers at the grave were said by Rev. Father McGuire.

NEW MEMBERS ARE INITIATED

Wide-Awakes Group C.G.I.T. Holds Regular Meeting in Millbrook.

GOOD PROGRAM.

MILLBROOK, March 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—Nineteen members were in attendance at the weekly meeting of the Wide Awakes group Canadian Girls in Training, held at the church Wednesday evening, the special feature being the initiation of eleven girls who joined the group since the new year, but had not previously been received into full membership.

The Dedicatory Service, as the initiation ceremony is now called, took up the entire period of the devotional section; the president, Miss Marian O'Brian; the Herald, Miss Jean Stinson; the leader; and a senior member, Miss Jean Burnham, who took the vice-president's part in the latter's unavoidable absence, having charge of the ritual.

The service is of a most impressive character, and in addition to the formal charges and questions and answers, includes also appropriate consecration hymns and prayers. The girls received included: Bernice Thornton, Mary Burnham, Bryer Edmunds, Mary Vance, Phyllis Kidd, Margaret Russell, Eleanor Ferren, Madeline McDowell, Pearl Swanson, Marian and Martha Earle. Other girls on the "waiting list" who were not able to be present on Wednesday evening, will be initiated at a later meeting; the group has now a membership of twenty-five.

During the business section the regular drill on memorizing the books of the Bible, which has featured meetings in the last two weeks, was continued, and it was decided to hold a work meeting on Tuesday of next week, when the extended project of preparing art scrap books will be the main business of the gathering.

The Wide Awakes are endeavoring to achieve as a "recognized group," which is a step higher than their present rating as a "registered group"; this will give the right to wear the chevron under the monogram on the left sleeve of the uniform, as well as other privileges.

A good time was enjoyed with games at the close of the regular session, and as usual there was something to eat as an item of popular interest.

The Government spokesman promised not to oppose the Bill, though he said amendments might be necessary in committee stage.

The New Gillette Razor

Spend a few pennies today for the greatest shaving improvement in twenty-eight years

THE old Gillette was a good servant. The New Gillette Blade and Razor (patents pending) is a better one—very much better.

You never need waste your time wiping this razor dry. And there's never any "razor pull" to deprive you of shaving comfort. These are only two of many improvements that have been made.

In tackling the problem of "razor pull," thousands of men were interviewed. Tens of thousands of razors were examined. The evidence all pointed one way. Most razors had been dropped and the corners dented. The dent threw the blade out of alignment. And this caused "razor pull." The smallest dent could do great harm, for your Gillette is a finely precisioned instrument.

Now the trouble is solved. In the New Gillette Razor the four corners have been reinforced to withstand the hardest knocks. The four corners of the new blade are cut out. The blade is not held at its corners at all when cap and guard are screwed together. There's no chance of its being thrown out of alignment even if the razor is dropped.

When you're through shaving with this new razor, there's no wiping necessary. You don't need to take it apart. Because this new blade is specially processed to resist rust, you merely hold razor under hot running water, shake thoroughly . . . and lay on the shelf.

Gone are the old posts that held the blade and accidentally stubbed so many keen edges. Please note too, how the new guard teeth are rounded back farther, to meet the skin more smoothly, more comfortably.

Another great convenience — the ends of the new blade are square, for safer handling with wet fingers. The square ends fit flush with cap and guard and permit closer shaving around the tight little corners of mouth, nose and ears.

Changed and improved as this new Gillette Blade is, it has been designed so it will fit your old razor until you are able to get your New Gillette. The new razor, 24K. gold-plated, and in a beautiful case with New Gillette Blade is only one dollar. The new Gillette Blade in the new green package costs one dollar for ten, or fifty cents for five.

Imports of Freight Automobiles Into Canada Shows Big Increase For Year.

CROSS-COUNTRY CARS.

OTTAWA, Ont., Mar. 15.—(By the Canadian Press)—Imports of automobiles from Great Britain into Canada are almost negligible but showing a tendency to increase. It is particularly noticeable that freight automobiles far outweigh in number the passenger cars imported from the Old Country. For the first six months of the current fiscal year there were only 10 passenger automobiles brought in from Great Britain as compared with 20 in the like period of 1928 but in freight automobiles the number increased from 57 to 68.

The basis for the increasing popularity of British-made freight automobiles was explained to-day Captain N. G. Duckett, of the Department of National Defense, in a paper which he presented before the Engineering Institute of Canada at the annual convention here. These freight automobiles, trucks or lorries, have been used to a considerable extent by the Department of National Defense and lately attention has been particularly directed toward testing under the most severe conditions of the Canadian climate and terrain the most interesting product of the War Department known as the 'rigid six-wheeler'. This vehicle is a product of the War Department in the same sense that it was designed by the military authorities and has patented features. But commercial performance was aimed at as well as filling the needs of a rugged cross-country military transport and the patented features are permitted to be used free of charge by all British manufacturers.

Fine in Snow Drifts.

One of the most interesting statements made by Captain Duckett was that under certain conditions the use of the War Department rear suspension has now been extended to include manufacturers in Canada, and other parts of the Empire. This is the feature which is especially the key to the successful performance of the six-wheeler through Canadian mud, sand and clay and also in snow drifts. It is the feature which has 'sold' the British vehicle in various parts of the world and is spreading its use rapidly throughout India, Egypt, South Africa and Persia, countries where roads are comparatively few, and also in Europe and America where roads are for the most part good.

The speaker emphasized that the British War Department wished to create a motor transport vehicle which would combine speed with cross-country performance. In the right six-wheeler these objectives were attained—speed equal to the four-wheeled usual type and cross-country performance equal, if not superior, to many of the semi-track or caterpillar types of vehicles which are at present performing Canada's difficult transportation jobs in mining, water power development and forestry operations.

Six-wheelers are as yet a rare sight in Canada. Then opportunity for manufacturing and placing in service this type of vehicle would appear to be a valuable one for Canadian automobile manufacturers. Captain Duckett stated that the British manufacturer failed to realize the great initial advantage he held in Canada and that, if he were alive to the potentialities, this market could be exploited with considerable success. In various other couptries the British War Department's approved type of six-wheeler is being put to commercial use in connection with railroad and road construction, as feeders to railways in districts where roads do not exist, for logging in virgin country and for general farm work.

School Fair Discussion Left Over Until April Meeting of Warsaw Institute.

DISTRICT NEWS.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, March 15. — The regular meeting of Warsaw Women's Institute was held in the Institute rooms on Thursday afternoon. After the opening exercises and reading of the minutes, there was some discussion about the play "The Eyes of Love," which is in course of preparation and will be put on about April 1st. Norwood has asked to have it on the 11th of April.

The school fair was discussed and it was decided to leave the matter over until the April meeting. In the meantime the chairman of the committee on Agriculture will obtain any points she can. Warsaw Institute has always aided the Fair. The last two years it has given money to the association; previously it gave prizes for certain definite things. Those present favored giving set prizes. Other matters were discussed, including singing in the schools. Reports of some relief work were given. Misses Valetta Drain and Mary Rose arranged the program.

Miss Anna McMurray gave a very interesting paper on a wild flower garden. She had such a garden in her home yard last summer, and plans a better one this coming summer. The paper was absolutely her own study and experience.

The young ladies served a delicious luncheon. There was a full half hour of pleasant social intercourse and the young ladies were heartily thanked for their first attempt.

Honor Couple.

Members of the Warsaw United Church, trustees and elders, with their wives, Sunday school teachers, and other church and Sunday school officials, with wives and husbands, brothers or sisters, numbering nearly forty, met at the parsonage, and later proceeded to Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Payne's home.

Gleaming hair!

The way modern hair dressers accentuate your hair by lovely lines and contours makes it important to keep the hair in perfect condition.

Now, millions know the quickest way to give the hair new life and lustre; to bring out its natural color, is with Danderine. It is so easy to use; you simply moisten your brush with it each time you arrange your hair.

Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff; stops falling hair; puts the scalp in the pink of condition. It helps the hair grow long, silky, abundant; gives it more lustre than brilliantine. It makes the hair easy-to-arrange; holds it in place. Waves look nicer; stay in longer when "set" with Danderine.

Mrs. Payne had been told to expect them but Mr. Payne had no idea of the coming invasion of friends to welcome Mrs. Payne and wish them both happiness and joy.

The guests were warmly welcomed and after greetings and some conversation there was a good round of beanbag throwing, with Gordon Payne and Allan Edwards as captains. Gordon Payne's side won by twenty points. A second round was started but Thomas Clements asked to change the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Payne were called, and Mr. Clements read an address in which he spoke of Mr. Payne's stirling qualities as a man in the community ,and also as a church worker. He is an outstanding Christian man, loved and respected by all.

To Mrs. Payne a warm welcome was given with the belief expressed that she would heartily join in the work of the community and church with which Mr. Payne is interested.

To both were expressed the wish for happiness and God's blessing.

Mrs. George Taylor then presented them with a beautiful mantle clock.

Mr. Payne replied thanking the people and saying that he did not deserve it at all. Mrs. Payne, too, thanked the donors, and hoped to know them all.

The clock was the gift of the church trustees, elders and other officials.

This was no sooner over than J. Sargent brought in a beautiful filled fernery, and presented it in the name of the Sunday school officials.

Shortly after delicious refreshments were served. There was music and singing by the gathering. Bryn Thomas sang the Welsh National Anthem in Welsh and then in English. Mr. Sargent told a story and gave two recitations.

"Blest be the tie,' was sung, and the whole gathering formed two circles; an inner and an outer, in the dining room, and sang "Auld Lang Syne."

Illustrated Lecture.

Tuesday evening there was given in the Baptist church an illustrated lecture by Rev. Mr. McCormick of Lakefield. He showed the train leaving Montreal, the ferry at New York, and a few views of New York, including the famous Brooklyn Bridge. Then there was the Olympic ocean liner, some racing yachts, and a few views of passengers en voyage, the landing at Liverpool, with the pilot. Then there were views of Liverpool, Manchester and surrounding country, with many interesting stories, as Mr. McCormick had spent some years there. Views of Glasgow, including Jamaica Bridge, Glasgow Cathedral, the University, hospitals and main streets; also views of the docks and up the Clyde were shown and explained. The whole lecture was interesting to all. Perhaps those who had seen most of the places enjoyed it most.

ELEVEN MEMBERS ARE CONFIRMED

Rt. Rev. James F. Sweeny, of Toronto, Conducts Ceremony in Campbellford.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 15 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Rt. Rev. James F. Sweeny, M.A. D.D., D.C.L., LL.D., Lord Bishop of Toronto, administered the rites of Confirmation to a class of eleven candidates in Christ Church, Campbellford, on Friday evening. The rector, Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, conducted the service and read the preface. Five of those confirmed were adults and six adolescents.

His Lordship, in his address to the class, took for his text Ecclesiastes 3, part of the 1st and 6th verses: "To everything there is a season and a time to every purpose under the heaven . . . A time to get." He spoke of the pleasure it was to him to be able to stir up the minds of those just confirmed and others of the congregation whose Confirmation belonged to the past, to the realization of what Confirmation was. Pointing out the demand made in baptism to the godparents of a child baptised to present the child to the Bishop His Lordship said that the laying on of hands was the fulfilment of that charge.

In conclusion His Lordship emphasized to the class that life has not ended with Confirmation, but begun. They were to walk through life worthy of the vocation wherein they were called. "Thus go on your way," he said "rejoicing that you stood up openly before Christ and this congregation and confessed yourselves Christ's to your lives' end."

DON'T neglect a child's constipation. It is the cause of so many ailments; biliousness, headaches, feverishness, sallow, broken-out skin; a general run-down condition.

The first signs of sluggish bowels are usually bad breath or coated tongue. Then it's time for good old California Fig Syrup. Children need no urging to take it. They love its flavor. And it works every time. It cleanses the little system of all souring waste. It gives tone and strength to lazy bowels and stomach, so they continue to act naturally. A child's digestion and assimilation improve when it is used. Meals are eaten with zest instead of indifference.

Mothers all around you know its quick benefits. Mrs. A. Gresham, 7 Currie Ave., Toronto, Ontario, says: "My little son, George, is a changed boy since I have been giving him California Fig Syrup. RADIO INVENTION WILL GUIDE PILOT Instrument Board Indicator Will Be Great Help to Air Mail Planes.

OTTAWA, Ont., Mar. 15.—(By the Canadian Press)Canada's mail pilots will be guided on their routes by a visual indicator on the instrument board. As simple as looking at the speedometer on a motor car, this device perfected in Canada, through collaboration of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals and the Canadian Marconi Company, will indicate to the pilot when he is deviating to right or left of his course and will guide him through darkness, mist or fog to his destination.

The new Canadian Radio Beacons will also be equipped to send signals for the audible system of direction-finding, stated Major Arthur Steel, M.C., to-day, describing Canada's radio aids to air navigation to the convention of the Engineering Institute of Canada in session here. The older audible system will provide for service to visiting American aircraft not equipped for the visual system.

Major Steel indicated that Canada's new radio aids to aviation will possess marked superiority over those in use in other countries, especially in providing for the use of the visual direction-indicator which consists of two steel reeds vibrating at equal amplitudes when the plane is on its course. Compared with the audible system, the pilot will be relieved of the strain of listening constantly to signals which is particularly fatiguing if static or interference is strong as is the case during bad weather when the system is most needed. The visual system is immune to static and magneto interference.

Change Made by Switch.

The mere throwing of a switch at the beacon transmitting station will enable the operator to change from either of the beacon positions to "voice", and to speak into the microphone the information which is most valuable to the pilot concerning weather and landing conditions and special messages of instruction. These broadcasts will be received by the pilot every hour without any change being necessitated in the tuning of the aeroplane receiving set.

This remarkable simplicity gives Canada the lead over other countries. In Europe, Major Steel pointed out, the intersection method is used for locating the position of a plane by determining the direction of its signals at two or more ground stations and plotting these directions at a base station. This information is radioed back to the plane's operator in 1½ to 10 minutes depending on the volume of calls being handled at the base station. In the United States, on the mail routes, the pilot listens to the audible direction signals and must change the tuning of his receiver to get weather broadcasts. Further refinements in the new Canadian system, it is hoped, will make possible the announcing of weather conditions without even shutting down temporarily the beacon service during this broadcast.

Radio beacons are being erected at Forrest, Manitoba; Regina and Maple Creek, Saskatchewan; and Calgary, Alberta. They will also probably be erected in Saskatoon and Edmonton. A radio beacon will be installed at London during this year to guide planes over the portion of the Montreal-Windsor route where night flying is required. A special radiotelegraph station has been erected at the St. Hubert field near Montreal and Marine Department Stations at Saint John, Father Point, Quebec, Kingston and Toronto are cooperating in the collection and dissemination of weather information. A weather map is made up daily at St. Hubert covering Eastern North America

Care Needed in Buying Alfalfa Seed Strain With Blue Stain Recommended

It is well known that all Alfalfa is not equally hardy and therefore farmers would be well advised to take every precaution when buying seed. Hardiness depends upon type and origin.

Canadian grown seed is admitted to be hardy. This is not stained. Variegated Alfalfa from the States bordering on Canada and from Utah, Wyoming and South Dakota is hardy. If properly verified this may be stained 1 per cent navy blue. Canadian grown and seed showing a blue stain is recommended for those desiring permanent stands and in all seed growing areas. Members of the Canadian Seed Trade Association in conference with Government officials have agreed to offer for sale, seed of the above mentioned classes.

They have also given assurance that any other alfalfa seed imported by members of the Association would be only from States bordering on Canada or from Utah, Wyoming or South Dakota. This seed will be stained 10 per cent red but can be distinguished from seed from other sources which may be imported by other dealers or agencies only by verification of origin. This can be obtained from the dealer importing the seed.

EARLY BREAK-UP BRINGS MENACE TO FARMERS' FALL WHEAT CROP

TOP DRESSING HELPS

Mild spring weather in February may have brought a message of cheer to Ontario town and city dwellers, but the farmer saw in it a menace to his wintering crops of wheat and clover. The early break-up took away the protective blanket of snow and left the wheat exposed to alternate thawing and freezing. Sown late in a dry fall, the Ontario fall wheat crop is seriously handicapped by the prematurely warm weather which has been followed by a renewal of winter conditions.

Under the circumstances, stimulation of spring growth by top-dressing with quick-acting nitrogen should show marked improvement in vigor and yield. The supply of soil nitrogen in the early spring is of vital importance to the wheat plant; unfortunately, it is at this season that the supply of natural nitrates in the soil are at their lowest ebb. The practice of spring top-dressing wheat with Chilean nitrate of soda has been growing in Ontario and in the winter wheat States bordering on this province. For a long period of years tests have been carried out by the Ohio Experiment Station in which spring applications of 160 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre have shown profitable increases in yield, and top-dressing is being recommended. Best results are secured when the nitrate is applied with a drill, running it crosswise to the rows of wheat. The top-dressing should be made as soon as spring growth starts.

The quick-acting nitrogen not only stimulates early spring growth, but it promotes stooling, and the production of new shoots naturally raises the yield.

New Winter Wheat May Be Sensation

REGINA, Sask., March. 15. (C.P.) — "Smithsonian", a new hard red winter wheat originated and developed by C. Edison Smith, twice world wheat champion, is expected to create a sensation at the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference at Regina in 1932.

Mr. Smith is a resident of Corvallis, Mont., and samples of his wheat have been thoroughly tested by experts of the milling, baking and chemical laboratory at Washington. The tests showed that the flour yield was almost 75 per cent, that the quality was excellent. It is lighter in color than any other hard red winter wheat tested during the season

Mr. Smith has been experimenting for over twelve years. He succeeded in originating the first "Smithsonian" wheat about five years ago. Sufficient quantity is now on hand to give it a thorough test in different sections of the northwest country. It has already proven to be winter hardy and an exceedingly heavy header in the Bitter Root Valley and much faith is expressed in its ability to rank among the greatest of hard winter wheats.

FALL WHEAT IS IN FAIR CONDITION

Clover and Wheat Has Been Well Covered With Snow During Winter.

Fall wheat and clover look to be in fairly good condition in Peterborough County according to the report of the Department of Agriculture for last week. They have been fairly well covered with snow during most of the winter and there is ice only in the low fields. In Ontario County fall wheat is also reported to be in fairly good condition, having had a fair covering of snow since the first thaw. In Hastings, alfalfa and clover, especially new seeding, is not in good condition to stand much freezing and thawing.

Some of the wheat fields in Durham have been uncovered by recent rains and at present look good. There is still a plentiful supply of apples on hand in Durham with some good quality apples of the better varieties moving out at low prices. Egg prices have dropped very suddenly with warmer weather and large supplies coming to market.

SCENES ON PORT PERRY MUSKRAT FARM

The muskrat industry is growing—growing in production and importance. There is an increasing demand for the fur, which is cheap and durable. The meat of the muskrat, so it is reported, is considered a delicay in some places. The photographs here show scenes from a muskrat farm near Port Perry, Ont. TIME-OLD GARDEN ARGUMENT HEARD

Value of Little Plot of Your Own Cannot be Measured in Dollars and Cents.

INTERESTING AND HANDY

Every year one is sure to run into the same old argument that a garden does not pay. True, one can usually run into the nearest corner store and buy some sort of vegetables all the year round. Flowers are also obtainable. But in this case there is not the same satisfaction as when one grows these things at home. There is a good deal of pride not to be valued in mere dollars and cents in displaying something out of the ordinary in the way of a beautiful flower that one has grown. The appearance of the ground the home is improved and here, if the house is to be offered for sale, there is often a real benefit measured by ordinary commercial standards. And then when we come to vegetables, there is an unanswerable argument in favor of the garden within a few yards of the kitchen door. There is a quality to vegetables that are put into the pot or served as salads within a few minutes of being picked. One cannot put a dollars and cents value on this and we all know that corn, peas, beans and other fresh vegetables of this type have a quality when fresh picked that cannot possibly be equalled when harvested in some distant point and shipped to the town for consumption.

OPPOSITION TO SIGNING UP YOUNG PLAN STARTS

Young German Nationalists Build Huge Bonfires.

BERLIN, March 14 (C.P.). — Organizations opposed to the Young Plan are planning nation-wide meetings in protest at signing of the measure by President Von Hindenburg for Sunday. Newspapers of the Right wing parties said to-day numerous demonstrations took place in various parts of Germany last night. They were described as "preludes" to the projected Sunday demonstrations.

Police discovered a bonfire Thursday evening. Close by stood a huge sign with the inscription, "Germany's youth buries the Young Plan." Young Nationalists and other organizations of the Reich are planning similar bon fires.

PAINLESS WAY IS USED IN TRAPPING LOWLY MUSKRAT

Victim After Bait Walks Unsuspectingly Into Mesh Wire Trap.

IS NOT INJUBED

Simple Lethal Gas Operation Used if Captive Suitable to Pelt.

On the ranches of the Lake Scugog Fur Farms located at Port Perry, only the most modern and painless methods are adopted in the trapping of the humble muskrat.

A trap costing a little more than the steel jaw type is in use and recommended as the most humane of all. The size is five inches by six inches by twenty-six, double action with no springs, and constructed with fine mesh wire. The muskrat walks in, takes the bait, and the wire door drops into place, holding him captive but not touching him in any way until the operator arrives. If the captive happens to be a kit or young one his is allowed to go free with no more than a slight scare incurred. If the captive is needed for pelting purposes he is treated with the simple lethal gas operation and no pain whatsoever is caused and no blood shed.

Most Humane Method

The open type trap is indeed the only humane method for many reasons. The animal when caught, is completely caged, no bones broken, no fur damaged and he is not subjected to the attacks of birds of prey as he surely is when in a wounded condition by being caught in a steel jaw type trap. The steel jaw has been proved conclusively to be cruel in the extreme. An animal in its frantic endeavours to free itself will twist the limb or limbs off or use its incisor teeth and literally gnaw its way to freedom, resulting in its being a cripple for life, and in all probability ceasing to be a progenitor from then on.

"The muskrat (Musquash) being the Cree Indian name, interpreted, meaning little brother of the beaver' or 'little helper of the beaver', earned this sobriquet," says Vernon C. Keachie in the current issue of the Humane Pleader, "through the fact that the beaver often commandeers the muskrat in his work of building dams, and helping with the interesting or strengthening of same".

No so long ago the muskrat pelt could only command a price of ten or eleven cents each, but it has now come into its own and obtains prices from twenty to thirty times its original valuation.

It is therefore in the interests of all people engaged in this vast fur farming industry that the methods employed in trapping should be of the most modern and painless.

There is nothing too large or too small which a classified ad. won't sell.

Far Northern Outpost Has High Hopes Of Raising Crop of Prize Vegetables

OTTAWA, Ont., March 15.—(C.P.)—Fort Simpson, away up on the Mackenzie River, has not yet figured among the blue ribands of the Canadian National Exhibition as a locale of prize vegetables; but it has hopes. In July last year the little group of wireless men who operate the station of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals at Fort Simpson enjoyed lettuce, radishes, beans, peas and carrots, grown in their own garden close to the Arctic Circle. And last summer, with its drought in the month of June, was a bad year in that part of Canada. This year the wireless men, encouraged by their success, will launch out on a more ambitious programme of gardening.

On Virgin soil that had not yet been broken, they planted their seeds around June 11. The plot had been assidously worked with toothed and disc harrows toward the end of May. The frost was still lying below the surface; but the ground was quite moist. Due to the drought water had to be carried from the Mackenzie River and sprinkled over the garden; but since the growing season also synchronized with the period of intensive work at the station the ground could not be adequately watered.

In spite of these handicaps, an excellent crop resulted. Lettuce and radishes were ready the first week in July; beans, peas and carrots came along the third week in July, and other vegetables followed in proper rotation.

Thus the friendly North takes care of its residents, and the limitless possibilities of Canada's expansion upward receive another convincing demonstration.

ONLY BEST SHOULD BE BOUGHT IN FLOWER OR VEGETABLE SEED

Canadian Climate is Rigorous and Short, Demanding Hardy Varieties.

BE ABLE TO STAND FROST

Although the cost of flower or vegetable seed is of minor importance and is the smallest item taken into consideration by the gardener, ones whole season's work depends absolutely on the quality of the seed used. Generally speaking, there is but one opportunity to plant during the season and if poor seed is used results are certain to be disappointing. The cost of the land, labour, equipment and fertilizer will be lost, as well as the pleasure of growing beautiful flowers and the satisfaction of producing high quality fresh vegetables if good seed which is the foundation of all this is lacking. It is essential to use good seed and suitable seed in Canada where our climate is usually more rigorous and our seasons shorter than average. A certain rose or a very fine corn, for instance, may give wonderful results down in Virginia where the climate is much milder or in England where there is little trouble with frost, but the same variety, if used here, will not do well. Because of this unalterable condition the gardener is well advised to obtain his supply of seed and plants from those sources which cater to Canadian gardens. Naturally the seedsmen in this country select their supplies to suit Canadian climate and conditions and the fact that most of our seed houses have been in business for a generation or more is ample testimony of the suitability of their selections.

Cow With Window In Stomach Dies

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., March 15.—The world-famous cow with a window in her stomach, Penn-Jessie, is dead.

In the past four years Jessie attracted world-wide attention and contributed much important scientific data to the feeding of man and beast, with the help of various Pennsylvania State College research specialists.

Jessie never showed signs of being bothered with the opening and quietly submitted to inspection by thousands of visitors.

Recently she had to be moved from her place of honor in the first stall of the dairy, and apparently she did not like her new quarters in another wing. She seemed to resent the imposition, lost her appetite and reputation as a contented cow, and quietly passed away when no attendants were about.

SEEK UNTAMED BULL FIGHTS.

MADRID (U.P.) — Now that the Berrenguer "transitional government" is undoing so many things adopted by the dictatorship, bull-fighting fans of Ciudad Real have petitioned that the reforms in bull-fighting procedure be rescinded. They would like to see the pads now used by the horses in the arena discarded, and permission again given to place darts with fireworks on bulls which did not show sufficient mettle. These reforms were made by the preceding government to make bull-fighting more "humane."

New-Fashioned Cars with the old reliable name of GRAHAM

the greatest safety factor since four-wheel brakes

This announcement signalizes the appearance of a new line of motor cars, bearing alone, for the first time, the name of the three Graham brothers.

Deeply impressed by the necessity of providing motorists with a positive safeguard against the frequent occasion of accident and death, the Grahams and their dealers celebrate the advent of these cars by foregoing all profit on a complete protective equipment of shatter-proof safety plate glass.

The Graham brothers endeavored faithfully to fulfill their stewardship to the Graham-Paige properties, to Graham-Paige dealers and owners, by a progressive policy which constantly produced better cars.

Now, with the obligation of a product bearing only their own name, their chief ambition is to be worthy of the public confidence of the past and a greater measure of confidence in the future.

To that end—aided by the generosity of Graham distributors and dealers who voluntarily forego all profit on the operation—they offer two new Graham Sixes and two new Graham Eights, equipped with one of the most important safety factors known to present-day motoring.

The entire industry must, of necessity, provide the public in due time with this complete and imperative protection because it is a safeguard which they should not be denied.

See the new Graham cars, learn the deadly difference in the two types of glass, and observe how fully these new Graham cars live up to the Graham guarantee of very good cars at low prices.

ALL LAKE PORTS REVEAL ACTIVITY

Blue Water Shows in Bays and Fitting Out Crew Are Busy on Freighters.

UNLOADING AT SARNIA.

TORONTO, Ont., March 15. (Canadian Press).—Canadian lake ports are humming with activity these days. Old Sol is pouring his beneficial rays down upon the remaining ice packs and blue water is showing through. Down below the waterline the 'fittin' out" crews are chipping bilges, that ghastly job of crawling below the deckplates in the black pit of the ship's bilge and chipping rust away from the plates. Other members of the 'black gang' are wiping away the grease with which all working parts of the engines are covered in the fall to prevent rust. Others are painting here, there and everywhere. It is getting near time for the 1930 navigation season.

Overhauls Start

At Port Colborne, Hamilton, Sarnia and Toledo the after-crews of the Canada Steamship Lines are busy after the winter lay-off. At Hamilton, the colliers Glenel and Coalhaven are being prepared; at Port Colborne the Midland Price is receiving the usual overhaul; and at Toledo, where the C.S.L. steamer Collier was was forced to put in late last fall, engine refitting is also underway. At Sarnia, the steamer Renfrew, bulk freighter, has been active for some days as an ice breaker, freeing some of th ships held there and enabling them to tie alongside the elevator for unloading winter storage grain.

According to present indications the four self-unloading colliers of the C.S.L. will be the first Canadian boats to go into operation.

NORTH HASTINGS DISTRICT

Pioneer Days in Madoc.

A paper prepared by Mrs. S. S. Ashley, and read at the last meeting of the Madoc Women's Institute.

In 1792, General Simcoe issued a proclamation dividing Upper Canada into nineteen counties for purposes of representation—the eleventh being called Hastings County.

Hastings County was an oblong strip of land, thirty-six miles wide and ninety-six miles long situated on the Bay of Quinte in Eastern Ontario, and was divided into twenty-four townships, twelve miles square, Madoc Township being the eighth named.

The Township of Madoc derived its name from Lord Madoc of Wales. It is situated in the North Riding of the County about twenty-six miles from the southern boundary. Its settlement began in 1830, and was very rapid. Madoc's natural resources appealed to the sturdy sons of the old land and soon some of the finest settlers of Canada carved homes for themselves out of the virgin forests.

The early homes were built of logs, the roofs covered with bark and the spaces between the logs plastered with clay and whitewashed.

A wonderful kindness existed in those early days. When the new settler arrived the neighbors all turned out with axes and oxen and helped clear a space and erect their house; which could be built in four or five days, and when built was warm. The first house was usually about 16'x20' and lean-to's were added as needed. The homes were usually built near a spring. The trees were cut and burned, the ashes producing potash, which was one of the chief sources of income.

We find among the earliest settlers of Madoc the name of Barnabas Vankleek, James O'Hara, Donald McKenzie, Thomas Allen, John Ketcheson, Cyrus Riggs, Jacob Hazzard, Uriah Seymour, Louis Empey, William Allen, Robert Cooper, John Nickle and others.

Donald McKenzie in the early 80's built a grist and saw mill, and opened a store (the first in the township) on Deer Creek, a tributary of the Moira River. This formed the nucleus of what is now the village of Madoc.

Madoc was first known as the village of Hastings. The town site first started East and West at Uriah Seymour's. A law suit followed between Russell and Cameron, for possession. Cameron lived on the land and it was the general feeling among the people that he should have the site, but Russell won the suit, and took the site.

Seymour owned the South site and they thought they should have had the town site but the town built north of the Seymour property on which the Seymour home still stands.

Copper was discovered first in 1858. It was while digging for copper that the celebrated Richardson mine was discovered in August, 1866, by William and Mark Powell, and Nicholas Schneider, (a German) on the Richardson farm, in the 5th Concession, seven miles north of Madoc village. They did not know it was gold until G. D. Rawe, a jeweller, panned it out. The people would not believe it was gold, but two Americans, Carr and Johnston, then drilling for oil in Sidney, hearing the story, came to Madoc, and at once took an option on all the adjoining land for thirty days, offering $30,000.

They at once filled 200 pork barrels, and shipped them to their own country. It was estimated that they took one hundred thousand dollars' worth of gold with them. The vein afterwards proved to be a pocket, but the people were wild. Thousands of people visited Madoc in quest of gold and thus a new Eldorado was started. It was in this way that Eldorado village was founded.

D. F. Taylor was manager of the Richardson mine. Hundreds of thousands of dollars was thrown away in speculation and machinery to work the mines. Business of all kinds flourished.

To maintain order twenty-five Mounted Police were stationed here. The Police Barracks stood where John Barton's residence now stands, and just south were the stables where the twenty-five more horses were kept. Police trustees were, J. C. Dale, D. C. Brown and Ed. Mouncey.

The population was over 1,700 every place was crowded. Large deposits of copper, lead, marble, talc, and lithographic stone were found within a short distance of the village.

Madoc had four hotels and many grocery sold liquor. The four hotels were Huffman House, Hastings House kept by Lyman Moon, The North American House just opposite, and the Hudgins House, where Frank Dafoe's Hardware Store now stands.

Uriah Seymour of Madoc Village erected at considerable expense a smelting furnace on his own property (the present Seymour property) and commenced the manufacture of iron, bringing ore from his mines on Lot 11, Con. 5 of Madoc Township. One hundred men were employed to carry on this industry. The works were carried on for some years, but owing to the inconvenience failed to net a profit, although the yield was 90 per cent pure metal—and thus the furnace closed.

The settlement of Madoc was rapid between 1830 and 1855, and good substantial homes replaced the old log homes of the first settlers. In 1861, we have the record of a gravel road known as the Hastings Road, running through Madoc village north extending about 100 miles from Belleville.

In four years 40 buildings were erected. Two flour mills were established. One by A. F. Wood, with two run of stones, fed by a 150 ft. flume on Deer Creek to the north, with a capacity of 70 to 80 barrels of flour a day, and one further south, erected by C. Kirk, to be run by steam at low water, later used chiefly for cracking grain, now used by W. J. Hill as a woollen mill.

There were four churches, Presbyterian, Wesleyan Methodist, Episcopal Methodist, and Roman Catholic, and material gathered to build the Anglican Church.

There were two grist mills, one saw mill, six general stores, five grocery stores, one druggist, one stove and tin shop, three hotels, one foundry, one planing mill, four carriage shops, five blacksmith shops, one tannery, two harness shops, two cabinet shops, six shoe shops, two tailors, three milliners' shops, two coopers, two butchers, one watch maker, one brick maker, one baker.

Owing to the township record being destroyed by fire in 1873, only an incomplete record can be obtained. The first election by popular vote was taken in 1850, J. R. Ketcheson being ware store now stands. Cross' first elected reeve. During December 1850 a by-law was passed ordering the erection of a town hall, which was built in 1851, but since burnt.

The village of Madoc was incorporated in 1878, with Thomas Cross as first reeve, and as councillors: E. D. O'Flynn, Dr. Loomis, Dr. Sutton and S. D. Ross.

The Model school was built in 1878. The first principal was Mr. Curtis and assistants, Misses Riddle and Cowlie. The first Public School Inspector for North Hastings was Wm. Mackintosh.

In 1873, the business portion of the vilage was burned, which was replaced by solid brick blocks.

The first Presbyterian church (a frame building) built near the sidewalk, facing north, on the property still owned, was built in 1853, with Rev. Mr. Chestnut as pastor. This church was built on the same property. Rev. Dr. Wishart began his pastorate in 1857, and ministered to his people for forty years. He was a graduate of St. Andrews, and Glasgow Universities. He was an outstanding character and did much to mould the life of the young town. His private residence was the first stone building in Madoc. The first Manse was the Jake Huff house on Durham street. The first church bell was donated by Mrs. Tournins. (Rev. D. Wishart's sister).

Hudgins kept hotel in 1866, where Dafoe's (formerly Casement's) Hardstore was where the St. Lawrence Hotel now stands, and afterwards where Nicol and Barry's store now stands.

E. D. O'Flynn kept the first post office next Hudgin's Hotel. James O'Hara was the first white child born in Madoc township, 1826. O'Hara's Cemetery was the first cemetery.

G. D. Rawe was the first jeweller.

The "Madoc Mercury" was the first newspaper, consisting of two sheets, and published by A. Smallfield.

In 1861, pastors of Wesleyan Methodist church were Aev. Edward Harris and Rev. J. C. Howell; of the Episcopal Methodist church, Rev. J. Campbell and Rev. Thomas Meyers. Rev. J. Whitemarsh was the Anglican minister, and the church wardens were Major R. M. Norman and John Clough.

Dr. McQuillan was the first M.D.

The first M.P.P. was A. F. Wood and Sir McKenzie Boswell, the first M.P.

The High School was erected in 1888 and 89, A. H. Watson, principal and only teacher, started in September, 1889, and for two years had no assistant.

The first Masonic Lodge was held in Rufus Diamond's house, three out, and was founded by John Bradshaw of Belleville, who afterwards founded Belleville Lodge. Mr. Bradshaw used to walk from Belleville to Madoc for each monthly Masonic meeting. He was born in Fredericksburg, and was baptised by the first Anglican minister in Canada. He died in 1868, at the age of 73, and was buried at Hazzard's cemetery. George Huffman was a grandson of John Bradshaw.

School was first held upstairs in the Hudgins Hotel.

E. D. O'Flynn founded the first bank, a private one. J. C. Dale, the next one, some years later. O'Flynn's Bank afterwards became the property of the Dominion Bank.

The first Episcopal Methodist church was built where B. O'Hara's house now stands, now the property of Mrs. A. Kinkaid. Rev. K. L. Jones was one of the first ministers. The first Wesleyan church is now the Hornerite church.

The first Roman Catholic church stood nearly opposite the R.C. cemetery with Father Lawlor as first priest.

The Episcopal Methodist church was moved out to Hart's, and is still house as a church there.

NUTRITION BY MRS. GORDON V. COOKE

Mount Pleasant

The study of Home Economics is one in which all Institutes are intensely interested. It is the major subject in our curriculum in this wide school for grown ups. The study of home economics has always been the study of shelter, clothing and foods, all of which are important. The study of foods is the most important and bears more directly on our individual health and the health of the nation. The study of foods has centred in the past on a clean supply but today, though we believe we need a clean supply, we are studying the quality and quantity which we need to enjoy health.

In all our schools there are children suffering from under-nourishment, not necessarily from lack of food but usually from unsuitable food—in most cases too rich food. In all our homes there are women running on one cylinder instead of six, losing valuable time recovering from the bad effects of wrong eating. In all businesses, there are men losing time, valuable to themselves and to their employers, from eating wrong food, very often with insufficient fresh air, exercise and rest. The head of physical training in Washington says "there is no adult who does not suffer from dietetic errors. We now teach the children in the school fair work that they are no better than the food they eat, but unfortunately we are also a product of what our mothers and our grandmothers are and of what we were given before we were of an age to chose. So each of us has dietetic errors to correct.

The first thing to do in correcting these errors is to get away from the idea that the good housekeeper is the one who can make excellent pies and cakes. The second idea we must get away from is that the fat person is the healthy person. After thirty every pound we are over a certain weight counts against us if we want to insure our lives. Even the thin child who has straight bones and good color is considered much healthier than the fat child with a poor color. This fact has been brought home to us emphatically by the prevalence of diabetics—one form of which at least is caused by over-eating starches and sugars.

Another wrong idea is that which was good enough for our grandmothers is good enongh for us. In the first place our grandmothers ate coarser grain in porridges and bread, and had less candy and iced cakes, in fact less of all our refined foods. In the second place it is true that some women are naturally good feeders just as there are farmers who can feed any animal successfully—partly from a seventh sense and partly from traditions handed down in their families. In these families we find healthy men and women and children living with very few doctors' bills, to a ripe old age and enjoying every minute of their life. But the great majority of us need to study the why and wherefore of good feeding.

The first essential is that we have good food to build and repair the tissue worn out by the daily wear and tear of life. The best source of this protein food, which alone can do it, is in milk, eggs, cheese nuts, meat and fish. Of these the cheapest service is milk and milk products. Not only is the milk a cheap source but it is a safe source as it leaves an alkaline reaction in our blood. Dr. Graham Lusk said "No family of five should buy meat until they have bought at least three quarts of milk a day." Too much meat will overtax the elimination organs and very often bring kidney disease. Meat also gives an acid reaction to our blood which is conducive to rheumatism and all kindred diseases.

The first essential of a good feeder is one who can induce her family to consume a quart of milk a day per person—in soups, in puddings, and so on; it takes a clever woman to do it.

Secondly the family must have lots of fruit and vegetables to regulate the body and to protect it from disease, or enable it to throw off disease. Our grandmothers used to take molasses and sulphur in the spring. Now we know if we keep our blood normal all winter, we do not need spring tonics, except in the form of correct food. We have splendid Canadian fruits and vegetables which can be kept through to the spring, celery, apples, carrots, turnips, and last but not least canned tomatoes, a cupful of which is equivalent to a cup of orange juice. Each has valuable things called vitamines, which are so valuable to our well-being. The child without the vitamines cannot withstand disease germs, cannot grow, is nervous, cannot as a rule assimilate other food. It is a common saying among dietitians that the person who cannot digest milk and eggs is not getting enough fruits and vegetables and this has been proved. Eat the fresh fruits and vegetables and the milk and eggs agree with you. Other vegetables besides these vegetables can be canned in season as they come on the market. Remember that the green leaf lettuce is much more valuable than the iceberg head lettuce.

Besides vitamines in these fruits and vegetables, and also in the milk there is valuable mineral matter which regulates the condition of our blood and other body fluids and also regulates the condition of our bones and teeth. Also there is valuable roughage in the fruits, vegetables and grains which regulate the rate at which the body wastes are eliminated. The too slow elimination of body wastes causes headaches, dullness and is the direct cause of many of our commonest diseases.

Fats, starchy foods and sugars are as necessary to our body as energy producers as the gas supply is to the motor car. The easiest fat to digest is butter and cream with the exception of cod liver oil which is an almost necessary food with underweight children. The cooked fat is the easiest to digest, but foods too rich in cooked fats invariably bring intestinal indigestion.

Our starch supply should be partly from starchy vegetables and partly from the more coarsely ground whole grains in both cereals and breads and the sugar is better from honey, maple syrup, and brown sugar that from a too refined product. Water, one must have in abundance for a healthy condition.

Our most common errors are too little milk, too few vegetables and fruits, especially in the raw condition, too much meat and too much sugar, all of which can be corrected. Eating heavy food when one is worried, tired or angry might be classified with these other errors.

Mistakes we continually make, but by reading and studying and observing results, we can correct most of them in time and build up a better body.

It is most unfortunate that it has been proved that the rural school child, in spite of the fresh air and good food, is not up to the city child in health condition. This is partly due to more rigid medical inspection in the city and the available clinics to correct defects, but is also due to the unfortunate cold lunch so many rural children have to eat after a long walk to school. The unsupervised noon hour with its cold lunch has been corrected by many Institutes all over Ontario, but there are so many still suffering morally and physically from this wrong condition.

WARSAW

Scotland's Scottish Women's Rural Institutes, generally known as the "Rurals" followed closely after the English organization of Institutes. With them it is "Scotland Forever" and the quotations on their programs show what fun they are having out of the gatherings, practical, homely fun. No Scottish gathering would be complete without a certain amount of literature, and the Rurals always have some of their own and often others, especially, Shakespeare. These women carry on their wonderful pottery, knitting and cookery, and will not stay behind any other country.

New Zealand, Australia, India and South Africa have taken to Institutes, but so far your correspondent has no especial notes about them, nor about those in other countries, many of which have taken up the idea.

Mrs. Watts suggests the idea of sometime having an Empire W.I. gathering. There would then be much contributed to the home and country lore. There would be fresh links of Empire, links of common interest and tradition, links of friendship and love.

There would be farm women from the great prairies, the veldt and the homeland, from east and west, women from the Islands of the Pacific and the Islands off the coast of Scotland, women from the first W.I.'s in Ontario and from the latest in Australia, from near the Arctic Ocean. All are daughters of pioneer mothers of the homeland. All are sisters.

MILLBROOK

Among suggestions for plays that have been given by Institutes with considerable success are: "The Path Across the Hills"; "The Cricket on the Hearth," adapted from Dickens' story; "Ten Nights in a Barroom", if something in the line of temperance is looked for; the ever-popular favorite, "East Lynne"; "The Neighbors", and a one-act comedy, "Just Like a Woman", which fills in nicely with other items on a program. These plays are moderately priced, and the list may fill a want, as such information is always in demand in these days when so much emphasis is being placed upon amateur theatricals, and Institute women have been so successful in adding to their funds by this particular means of entertainment.

One branch is doing a fine work in paying for the tuition of a boy from its neighborhood at the School for the Blind, as his family are not in a position to meet the expense involved through their son's affliction. Another branch has looked after two children who needed eye care and glasses, and again the parents were not able to give them the proper attention a considerable amount of expense being incurred. Dentists' bills for a number of little folk have been a care for more than one branch in the northern part of the province, and in one case the Institute sponsored a 'tonsil clinic', that did a great deal for the school children's health. "Has your branch seen to it that there is a first aid kit in your school?" is the reminder of the secretary who outlined the above information.

The matter of peace education is a live topic now and perhaps not all Institutes know that they may have a speaker on this theme, taking up questions of world peace, provided the branch pays the travelling expenses only. Mrs. Loeb, 154 Grenader Road, Toronto, will answer any inquiries along this line, and will help any woman gather material for a paper or discussion, not omitting the matter of cadet training in the schools. There is a monthly magazine published by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, "Pax International", subscriptions for which (50 cents a year) may be sent to Mrs. Loeb, it will furnish articles that may be presented at each regular meeting of the Institute.

"The Institute certainly stirs up energies", declares one mother; "it has made a great change in many homes, and the making of a home demands every ounce of energy, initiative, and ability a woman possesses."

WHEN mother's nerves are out of tune every noise and every childish question irritates and annoys. Perhaps you have not recognized in this condition a warning that your nervous system is becoming exhausted. Other symptoms are sleeplessness, frequent headaches and digestive troubles.

Of course you have heard about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. If you have never used it there is a very agreeable surprise in store for you.

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

Restores and revitalizes the tired, excited nerves. Soon you rest and sleep well and you find a new joy in life.

Thin Blood Makes People Feel Cold All the Time

After the Debilitating Effects of Winter Your System Needs Toning Up

Grip, influenza and winter colds so often leave the blood thin and weak. Many different symptoms may result. If you are nervous, melancholy, chilly, short of breath, run down, sleepless and despondent, try the simple treatment that Mrs. Rigge recommends for building up the blood. So many weak, discouraged men and women have found new energy, strength and ambition in this way that you owe it to yourself to give this system-building tonic a thorough trial.

"I was terribly run down, had no ambition and would get dizzy spells," says Mrs. Emma Rigge, of No. 1000 Wadsworth street, Saginaw, Mich. "My color was poor and I had a numbness in my hands. My blood was so thin that I was cold all the time. I had to be very careful as I caught cold easily. My appetite was fickle and I slept badly.

"One day I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them. I noticed an improvement while I was taking the first box. My appetite picked up and I gained strength and ambition. Dr. William' Pink Pills did me a wonderful lot of good. I have no dizzy spells any more, am not melancholy and my color is good. I cannot say too much in favor of the pills and I want others who suffered as I did to try them.'

You can get these Pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NEW SMARTNESS NEW COMFORT

AND THE SAME FUNDAMENTAL DEPENDABILITY

THE attractiveness of Oldsmobile is now heightened by its longer, lower body . . by refinements in the roof lines, rear quarter and side panels. There's a new smartness—a further charm—in the graceful continuation of the belt-line moulding to the front of the hood.

Increased roominess — greater richness in upholsteries—and added comfort in the seats—provide additional luxury in Oldsmobile interiors.

And improved fully-enclosed weather-proof four-wheel brakes, easier steering, and improved carburetion make the fine, dependable Oldsmobile chassis even more capable and durable than before.

Yet these splendid improvements have been accomplished without affecting the fundamentals which made this car so popular throughout all of Canada. Oldsmobile believes in change for the sake of progress — but does not countenance changes for the sake of change alone.

See Oldsmobile now. Drive it and test its brilliant performance. You will find it a finer car—a smarter car—and a greater value than ever before. And you will find that purchase is made easy by the G.M.A.C. Deferred Payment Plan. O-550X

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

THE DECORATIVE aspect of quilts is one that cannot well be overlooked in these days when every element in a room must contribute its meed towards ornament.

• • • • • • •

Therefore to suit modernistic rooms there must be quilts in modernistic style just as there must be quilts in quaint old-time designs to fit in with old Colonial interiors. Each had its definite place and cannot correctly be transferred.

• • • • • • •

If a person is furnishing a room in some farm house or spacious mansion in the type of architecture of the 18th or early 19th century she buys or makes quilts of the early pieced-patchwork style.

• • • • • • •

She is careful to have included in the patchwork colors that will harmonize with the scheme she is to use. The way these colors are combined in shaped pieces constructs the design, which should conform to some one of the many old quilt patterns.

• • • • • • •

The indented stitchery traces across them another and secondary design. Such a coverlet may well supply its ornamental quota as a spread during the daytime, if the bedspread is a quaint four poster toater bedstead, sleigh bed, or any of these antique styles.

• • • • • • •

It is when rooms are in the present modernistic vogue of decoration that quilts to conform to them should be used. These can be bought or made, but they cannot be heirlooms, for then they wouldn't be conveying the modern idea.

• • • • • • •

They are ultra-modern in that they are among the very latest contributions to contemporary art in bed coverings. Some of them have angular designs to suit angular lines in furniture. These lines in quilts are well suited for they follow linear quilting traceries.

• • • • • • •

I have seen some of these with colors so choice that boudoirs would be graced by their use. In other colors are strikingly combined according to modernistics conception of clashing harmonies.

• • • • • • •

It is easy to see that quilts of such description lend their special note of decorations to bedrooms. These quilts are likely to be folded across the foot of a bed in such a manner that their ornamental features are accented rather than be used as entire spreads.

• • • • • • •

There are other new quilts that are not so bizarre, but which showing modernistic tendencies still have a leaning toward more classic elements of design. Floral sprays are centered in squares throughout the quilt. A plain shade that accents a desired color scheme in quilt and room forms a border.

• • • • • • •

The homemaker who is furnishing or refurnishing the bedrooms of her home is fortunate today in being able to find quilts of every description to supply beauty as well as warmth and decoration as well as comfort in her home.

NEWEST FASHIONS REMINISCENT OF OTHER DAYS

HAIL MAID OF ATHENS—WITH GRACEFUL STATUE DRAPES!

NEW YORK, March 15. (U.P.) — The newest source of costume design is Grecian, but that acknowledgement does not mean for an instant, that the costume couturiers who are utilizing the them itneid for us to appear in robes like those worn by figures on a Greek urn.

Only the essence is extracted from the ideas of the Grecian silhouette of antiquity—namely, the hint of drapery at the shoulder as mentioned by Suzanne Talbot, the wider skirt silhouette, the tunic which resolves itself into a peplum to-day, the soft pleats, the sleeveless bloused bodice, the girdled natural waistline, and the approximation of the longer skirt. That is all there is to it, unless we include the unemcumbered, comfortable lines that are synonymous with the clothes of maids of Athens and which are equally descriptive of many of today's clothes.

The peplum, however, which was one of the most dominant features of the Paris openings is the particular element which has prompted calling attention to the Grecian motivation. In the present flaring versions, it is quite different from the original, but the resemblance can be seen readily.

It is a proof of the same way and balance with which modern clothes are done that even though analysis of the most current fashions shows old-world inspiration, they—the modern ones—are accepted without any balking on the part of the vast number of smart women today who hold a prejudice against contemporary clothes derived from period costumes.

As a matter of fact, these old-world themes are modified so cleverly that half the time wearers of such clothes are unaware of the Spanish, Renaissance, or Directoire label that could, be fastened to the dresses which they are wearing.

FISH AND GAME ASSOCIATION CALLS SPECIAL BUSINESS MEETING

Hunters Are Up in Arms Against Agenda For Committee of Legislature.

TO NAME DELEGATES.

The local Fish and Game Protective Association has just received a telegram from the Deputy Minister og Game and Fisheries informing it that the Fish and Game Committee of the Legislature will meet on Wednesday next the 19th inst. at 10.30 a.m. in Toronto to interview Hunters from all Ontario to decide:—

Whether dogs shall be prohibited in deer hunting; whether doe shooting shall be prohibited; whether deer season shall be shortened; whether non-residents shall be allowed to hunt bear in spring

Putting it mildly this agenda is causing consternation amongst local hunters and the local club have decided to hold a special general meeting on Monday next the 17th inst. at 8.30 p.m. in the Empress Hotel when all members of the club will have the privilege of recording a ballot on above subjects, and the meeting will appoint accredited delegates to represent them in Toronto on the Wednesday.

The local executive regret being given such short notice on this very important matter but are doing all possible to have a thoroughly representative vote on Monday next. The question of hounds for deer hunting is a subject that splits sportsmen's ranks more than any subject under the sun and when this question arose before, the local club had about 125 hunting members, the majority of whom favored the use of dogs. Since then those opposed to the use of dogs have made great headway with their educational work and stand a good chance right now of amending the law on that point. This makes it necessary for every local hunter to attend Monday night's meeting and register his vote.

It is gratifying to note the local club is starting off very splendidly this year and already has a large increase in membership, and a much more active and aggressive spirit is being shown, especially in the determination to definitely stop the catching of fish in the spring before the seasons open. Already certain game hogs have been trout fishing though the season does not begin till May 1st. The association has been doing educational work to stop that thing for years and have reached the end of their patience.

From now on no individual warnings will be given but prosecutions are beginning immediately. The Association does not wish to prosecute anyone who ignorantly breaks a game law and wishes to advise residents that it is illegal at any time to purchase Bass, pickerel or lunge, no matter whether it is Indians or whites who catch them. So long as there is a market for fish the trade will flourish but very soon court cases will be instigated against local people for buying fish from pedlars. Both buyer and seller will be hailed to court irrespective of standing in any way, shape, or form. The Association has already secured one conviction and frankly admits they are out for more.

Fishing locally can be made just as good, or bad, as local people wish and nothing has ever done the harm that is caused through residents creating a market for fish in the spring.

It is hoped that local anglers will attend this special general meeting as the executive is able to report good progress in many matters and it is hoped very shortly that the Association will be able to own its own trout hatchery and stock local streams with good sized trout.

CANADIAN LEGION B.E.S.L.

Peterborough Branch

At a meeting of the Executive of Branch 52 Canadian Legion it was decided that the annual church parade be held on Sunday April 20th, that being to commemorate the second battle of Ypres, in which the Canadian Division made such a gallant showing.

It is expected that all returned and ex-service men will attend.

It was also reported by the Program Committee that some prominent speakers will be heard at the Legion meetings in April. Preparations are being made to make these meetings of interest not only to men of the Legion but to all returned and ex-service men in the district.

The President, who is chairman of the Relief Committee, reported that this season there had been a heavy call on our finances owing to so many returned soldiers being unemployed, and needing assistance, and remarked how much easier the task would be if more of our returned men and ex-service men were to join the legion and give it a helping hand to attend to the needy of the dependents of our less fortunate comrades. He also spoke of the splendid work done by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Legion in helping to take care of the Relief Work, and sincerely hoped with the advent of Spring the situation regarding unemployment will be met as he believed that a busy time is being looked forward to in Peterborough this year. It was also passed that the secretary treasurer be at the Legion hall Tuesday and Friday nights for the purpose of receiving dues, etc.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

LET YOUR CHILD ACT HIS AGE.

Mickie was six years old when his baby brother was born. Now he is nine and little brother is three. Their mother thinks it is very important that the brothers love each other and learn to stick together so she makes Mickie play with little brother. Neither of them has a good time.

In the first place a child of three very soon becomes fatigued trying to live up to the achievements of the older child. The play that Mickie loves is beyond the little fellow. His language has little meaning for him. Play interests are too far apart ever to come together.

Mickie ought to be playing marbles with his friends who are close to his own age. He ought to be on the ball team. He should be a member of his gang. This in his gang time. His stage of growth demands the social avtivity, the directed purpose of the group of nine year olds. None of this is possible if he is held down to the care of his little brother. He becomes a very poor baby tender when he ought to be growing a body and an intelligence for the adolescence that wil soon be upon him.

The three year old child is not able to play with other children yet. But he needs to have some of them near by busy with the same interests as his own. He needs their companionship as the first step in the next stage of growth by staying with an older boy.

Each child must be considered mainly as an individual. He ought to be given what he needs when he needs it. If the individuals that go to form the groupe are not successful in their growth the group cannot attain its highest growth. A group always has to slow down for its weaker members.

Little children need companions of their own age. There ought to be a few three and four year olds now and then to stretch the horizon, but the level of age of the two and three year old ought to be about the same.

Little children of two and three years of age do not as a usual thing, enter into group activities. Each plays by himself, each builds his own sand house and pats it flat with his own shovel. You will see one straighten up, give a long serious look at his neighbor's work, turn the same searching gaze on his own labors, and then fall to again harder than ever under the impulse of a new idea. They learn by watching each other. Their nearness is sufficient for the time.

By and by as they grow older they fall into little groups of twos and threes and the rudiments of group work are formed. The nine year olds have passed this stage. To make them dwell in it for any length of time is to thwart their growth. A very dangerous thing to do from the standpoint of mental hygiene.

Let the nine year olds go his way and play with boys his own age. He will have more affection for his little brother, show him far more attention if he is not obliged to tend him and play with him daily. Keeping him tied to the baby is not the way to foster brotherly love. Far rom it.

RUGBY IN CAPE BRETON.

GLACE BAY, N.S., March 15.—At a meeting held recently by the executive of the Legion Athletic Club, it was decided to secure the services of Captain Joseph Hopkins, of Cardiff, Wales, as coach of the rugby football team for the coming season. Captain Hopkins played for several years on the Cardiff rugby team, which won the championship of Wales for three consecutive years. He is well known as a football authority, his opinion being often sought by the leading sporting journals of the Old Country.

The Legion Guards intend bringing in several outside teams this year and are promoting a plan to bring a team here from Wales. The Glace Bay club will also make an effort to have the Japanese rugby team, arriving at Vancouver, October 2, to begin a Dominion tour, appear here.

STRIKING BEACH DRESS IN TWO TONES OF YELLOW.

There will always be some women who prefer a dress to any other costume for beach wear. For them is designed this simple frock in peau de France in two tones of yellow, using the darker ochre tone for the frock itself, and a pale tilleul shade for the scarf collar and tie for the vest. Tones of yellow are used in many of my costumes for wear at Deauville and Le Touquet for late spring and summer.

In Police Court

A chance visitor at Police Court yesterday would have doubtless gained the impression that he had wandered into a deaf and dumb school. Three cases of assault in which a local deaf mute figured prominently held the attention of the court for three hours in the morning and again in the afternoon. Practically all the evidence had to be wigwagged on the hands by Detective-Sergeant Meagher.

A local butcher was charged with assault by the deaf mute, and on the case being dismissed the butcher withdrew a similar charge he had laid against the dummy. In the afternoon the Court went into session again to try the dummy on a charge of assaulting his wife. This was also dismissed after the evidence had been taken.

"I didn't drink much and I was drunk before I knew it," was the excuse offered in solo by three men who this morning faced charges of being intoxicated in public places. They were picked up separately, one at a party in East City, another on Water Street at 4 o'clock this morning, and the other in a hotel where he was making strong efforts to wreck the place.

The party-celebrator got off with $10.00, and a warning to confine his liquid refreshment to water henceforth. The furniture-wrecker will have to pay out a total of $48 94 in fines and to repair the damage he did, or otherwise he will spend six weeks in the gaol.

According to police, the other man has a criminal record and a technical charge of vagrancy was brought out against him on which he was remanded until Tuesday to allow police further time to learn reasons why he was loitering in a jovial mood at 4 a.m.

The words "thank you" have a dual meaning here. Workers carrying desks into the press room at St. James's palace encountered much difficulty in getting American reporters to move out of their way when they said "thank you" with emphasis on the first word. It is the British worker's way of saying "gangway" or "one side please." Salespeople place the emphasis on the last word when receiving cash.

The influence of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce extends over the entire Province and Dominion on matters of national development. Many resolutions on matters of national import have in the past 30 years emanated from the Peterborough Chamber. This and the exemplary local work carried on makes it important that the Chamber should be suppor. liberally by you.

DeFOREST CROSLEY

"Screen Grid Renown"

Proven 26.6% More Efficient Than Any Other Radio In Canada.

Would you like to see and hear the amazing contribution which De Forest Crosley, the Largest Radio Manufacturer in the British Empire, has made to radio enjoyment during the last six months?

PROVEN 26.6% BETTER

You'll want to see the actual figures of performance comparison between this great new instrument and other important radios. These measurements which prove the "Screen Grid Renown" 26.6% more efficient were made by an entirely independent research organization and offer convincing evidence of what your own ears will appreciate.

Your Radio Dollar Can't Buy More

$248 complete with tubes. Nothing more to buy. In radio engineering achievement, in beauty of cabinet, in fidelity of tone, in power for distance, in selectivity—your radio dollar positively can't buy more than the new De Forest Crosley "Screen Grid Renown" offers you.

More for Your Old Radio

This week we are making specially attractive trade-in allowances on old radios. Apply this big allowance on a new De Forest Crosley "Screen Grid Renown."

Don't Buy a Radio Blindly

Conditions in the radio industry to-day force us to give our customers this warning. When you see what looks like a bargain, be careful, find out:

1.—If the price includes tubes. Tubes for a modern radio cost about $30. Our price on the "Screen Grid Renown" includes tubes.

2.—If the set is likely to be an orphan or if it is made by a big, successful company. De Forest-Crosley is the largest radio manufacturer in the British Empire.

3.—If the model is no longer made or lacks the latest improvements. The "Screen Grid Renown" is De Forest-Crosley's latest model, incorporating the important new developments of the last six months. And no other set approaches its all-round efficiency standard.

DALHOUSIE MILL IS IN OPERATION

To-day 250 Tons Newsprint Were Added to Daily Output of Maritimes.

PREMIER OFFICIATES.

DALHOUSIE, N.B., March 15.—(By the Canadian Press)—Maritime Canada's daily newsprint output grew by 250 tons to-day when electric power from the Saint John River pulsed over one hundred miles of wire to set in motion the International Paper Company's new mill on Bay Chaleur. Planned as the largest paper manufactory in the Maritimes, two mills of the plant's ultimate battery of four machines came into production as Premier J. B. M. Baxter closed the switch in the presence of His Honor Lieutenant-Governor H. H. MacLean, and A. R. Graustein, president of the International Paper Company.

Constructed in a little less than a year and a half, the giant plant began operation three months to the day after the opening of Nova Scotia's first newsprint mill on the Mersey River. The initial outputs of the two mills are approximately equal, and both plan expansion, the Dalhousie plan calling for the installation of two additional machines and a production of 550 tons a day. Complete groundwood and sulphite pulp making departments are incorporated in the mill.

Early this morning special trains arrived at Dalhousie, bearing Government and Company officials and their guests, who were taken through the plant and shown the various operations of transforming New Brunswick pulpwood into paper. Ceremonies conducted by Howard P. Robinson of Saint John included addresses by the Lieutenant Governor, the Premier, and A. R. Graustein, and culminated in the formal setting of the plant in motion, as the circuit between the mill and the Saint John River Power Company's development at Grand Falls was closed by Premier Baxter.

Route Open 9 Months.

The plant's location, below the mouth of the Restigouche on Bay Chaleur, makes shipment of paper by the cheap water route practicable for at least nine months in the year. Rail shipments are possible at all times, and rail sidings have been provided for incoming and outgoing freight.

Work on the Dalhousie Mill included erection and equipment of the plant itself, the construction of a dam on the Charlo River, a pipeline to supply fresh water, and a 104 mile power transmission line from Grand Falls to Dalhousie. In order to provide a site it was necessary to build a seawall and fill a large sea to bring it to a level seven feet above average tide. Approximately 640,000 cubic yards of earth were moved.

With the two present machines in operation, between 300, and 400 men will be employed continuously, while logging operations during the season will more than double this number.

The pulpwood supply, amounting to more than 100,000 cords yearly, will be cut on the company's holdings and on Crown lands on the Restigouche watershed. It is estimated that the available supply of wood from the Company's owned and leased holdings is more than sufficient for the perpetual operation of four machines.

Electric power is obtained from the new hydro-electric plant at Grand Falls. The energy is sent to the mill over a 132,000 volt steel tower transmission line, transformers reducing the voltage for local operation. For two machines, 20,000 horsepower is required for regular operation.

Each paper machine room has two newsprint machines of the latest type, designed to operate at speeds up to 1,200 feet per minute and to produce 137 tons of paper daily.

FOR HUDSON BAY CRUISING.

SHELBURNE, N.S., March 15.—A forty-five foot cruiser designed by W. J. Roue, well known naval architect of Halifax, is being built here for Ralph Parsons, Manager of the Hudson's Bay Company, who will use it privately for visiting posts in the Hudson Bay district. This craft is probably the first built in Nova Scotia to possess wireless equipment permitting telephone conversation between ship and shore.

The Hudson's Bay Company's 150-ton vessel Fort James, built here, reached the magnetic North Pole last year through the Northwest Passage. The only other ship ever taking this route was the Gjoe, under command of the veteran explorer Amundsen in 1905. Amundsen's ship is now on exhibition at Golden Gate Park, San Francisco.

INSURANCE FUND URGED BY HEENAN

Claim One Per Cent. Should Be Given By Workers, Rest By Employers.

TIDE OVER SLACK TIME.

LONDON, Ont., March 15 (C.P.)—"I believe that the time has come when the employers and the workers and, if necessary, the Government, should contribute to a fund in order to provide insurance against unemployment," declared Hon. Peter Heenan, Federal Minister of Labor, addressing a political gathering here last night. "A system could be inaugurated in this country which would be suitable to Canadian needs. Take for example our railroad workers. In the summertime there are upwards of 200,000 men employed, and during the winter months there are about 25,000 of these workers laid off for several months. The wages of all railway men average about $130.00 a month. If a fund were created it would take about $5,000,000 to pay these employees half pay for three months, say January, February and March. The employees could contribute about one per cent of their wages and the railway companies the balance. This would not be too hard on either, and if necessary the Government could assist."

The minister, pursuing this theme, suggested that the system might be extended to workers in every industry and might become permanent. The House of Commons had already endorsed such a system.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

CREEPY STORIES.

In the course of a child's reading, he will come across some creepy stories that will, as the term indicates, make his skin creep. The healthy normal child will rather enjoy the creeps but nevertheless he will have a moment or two of shakiness. The long dark hall will make him halt and take second thought, and he may ask somebody to go down cellar with him while he gets the apples.

No harm will come the the child unless he is in an excitable condition. Children who are recovering from a severe illness, children who have excitable temperaments, children who entertain fears, ought not to have creepy stories read to them before bedtime. They should have their ration of such tales in broad day light in the open air where neither ghost nor goblin can have so much as a hint of reality.

Should a child remember a creepy story just at bedtime and ask for a light let him have the light and added strength of your cheerful company up the dark stairway and down the long hall where the dancing shadows suggest uneasy spirits. Say nothing about the matter unless the child makes it necessary and then take it all as a matter of course, as fairy tales and ghost stories must be taken, after all.

When you have a story hour before bedtime and the children take to telling ghost stories, be on guard. When the story is ended, turn on the lights full. Change the mood by having a little bite of refreshments such as children like—crackers and apples, thin bread and butter and a cup of cocoa, or milk. Then start them singing. Good rollicking airs at first, then gradually slowing down until the mood is right for the beautiful evening song, "Now the Day Is Over." Send them to bed in that mood and the, creepy story will not do them the least harm. It is when they carry the mood of the ghost tale along with them to bed that nightmares come.

Shall we forbid ghost stories and the creepy tales? I am not in favor of forbidding children to hear stories, or to tell stories, that I know they are bound to hear, bound to read. All of us have an instinct for the terrible, the mysterious. Unless that appetite is satisfied and redirected, it will rise to annoy and trouble its victim endlessly.

The ration of creepy stories is very slight in proportion to the rest of the children's reading. One need do nothing to foster a taste for it. Just let it alone and be on hand to counteract any ill effect by redirecting the children's thoughts into more normal channels.

These tales belong to the children of early adolescent years. They should have no place in the training of little children of tender years. The nursery stories ought to be graded according to the powers of the children. Any grisly items should be omitted for sensitive children lest their world be peopled with shadows of terror. But I think any normal child can hear and read and enjoy Cock Robin, arrow and all.

A Successful Six... A Custom Eight... and each brings you Oakland Value

There is more reason than ever, now, why you should give serious consideration to Oakland before you select your next new car. For not only does Oakland offer motorists the Successful Six. It also presents a new, more luxurious companion car—the New Oakland Custom Eight. And each one of these impressively beautiful automobiles provides that unusually good value for which Oakland is so well known among Canadian motorists.

The Successful Oakland Six . . .

An impressive performer—a car of distinctive style—a superbly comfortable automobile—that is what Oakland offers you in the Successful Six. It has bodies by Fisher . . . richly upholstered and tastefully appointed. Its big engine develops high power at moderate engine speeds. Advanced manifolding, a larger carburetor and an accelerating pump assure quick, eager get-away. Such features as the Harmonic Balancer, which eliminates torsional crankshaft vibration and Delco-Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers give smooth, dependable performance.

The New Oakland Custom Eight . . .

The New Oakland Custom Eight develops 85 horsepower—the highest power to be found in any car of Oakland's size and weight, only racing cars excepted. One horsepower is produced for every 37 pounds of car weight. That's why you can't pass this new eight on the hills . . . why it accelerates so rapidly . . . why few cars can equal its top speed. Non-shatterable Duplate glass is used throughout. Standard equipment includes six wire wheels, two in fender wells; trunk rack; and safety lights on front fenders. A wide range of color harmonies to choose from. Arrange for an Oakland demonstration today. Any model may be purchased on the G.M.A.C. Deferred Payment Plan.

Speaking Of SPORT

By Frank Getty

Here's a letter that needs no comment.

Dear Mr. Getty:

I've been thinking of writing you a letter for a long time. I see you around the boxing shows at the Garden and the ball games sometimes.

I would rather be a sports writer than anything else, but I can't write good enough and it is too late to learn now. So don't you worry. I am not going to ask you for a job.

• • •

I always try and get a seat near the press box for you hear more chatter of what is going on than you do other places. I know almost every sports writer in New York by sight. I can go with a friend and say: "See him—that's Wilbur Wood of the Sun. That guy next to him is Doc Morris of the Post."

• • •

None of them know me, but I guess that is my tough luck.

You know, I get more kick out of the side attractions of sports events than the shows themselves, almost. There are lots more things happen than you read on the sports page. I don't blame anybody for that because they aren't things that would really be a story, but they happen just the same and they are interesting to somebody who likes to think he is studying human nature in the raw. And some of it is pretty raw, too.

Take the gamblers who play the fights at the Garden. And the hockey games. You don't see much of them while the shows are going on. I think the really funniest thing about most of the guys you see at sports here is that they are always mad. They are mad at something or somebody. Mostly they are mad at each other or they act that way.

The only other really funny thing is to hear these guys talk about records. One will say Dempsey fought Sharkey at the Yankee Stadium and another will say it is at the Polo Grounds. Each "knows" he is right and wants to bet.

Maybe the crowds are the same every where in the U.S. but I sort of doubt it.

LONDON-FALLS IN TIE.

Paddy Farrell Proves Invincible in the Net Against London Panthers.

WINDSOR, March 15.—A crippled Windsor team, striving to stay in the running for a professional hockey championship it had hauled down last Spring at Fort Erie to climax a hectic series with Detroit Olympics, bowed before the same Detroiters here last night by a score of 3 to 0. The victory, brought about under circumstances never before experienced in the history of monied hockey under the guidance of President Charles S. King and before a capacity crowd of 5,700 fans that cluttered up every available bit of space in the Arena here, saw the 1928-29 champions go down to defeat in a bitterly-contested puck struggle.

Not only did the Bulldogs pass out of the International League picture as a result of the setback last night, but Abbie Cox, midget goalie of the locals, was carried out on a stretcher to a local hospital after sustaining on injury early in the second period. Porky Levine, substitute goalie for the Detroit Hockey Club, volunteered to take Cox's place in the nets after Venne, another Detroit substitute net minder, had been considered. Manager Frank Foyston, of the Olympics, agreed to allow either goalie to fill the gap. Levine donned the pads. The score was 1 to 0 for Olympics. Levine held his own team-mates scoreless in the balance of the second period, close to 18 minutes, and the two shots that slipped by him in the third were well earned.

Cox was rushed to a local hospital, while the game was delayed close to forty minutes. A hurried examination failed to determine the extent of his injury, although it was feared he had fractured his pelvis. Cox was hurt in an accidental collision with Bobby Connors, of the Olympics. They crashed alongside of the Windsor nets, and in falling Cox's back was jammed against an iron goalpost.

IN TIE BATTLE

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., March 15—Charlie Reid's Cataracts, crippled and weary, put up a good exhibition of hockey here last night and carried a 1 all tie with the fast-travelling London Panthers. Both teams carried out a fast-skating pace through the entire 70 minutes of play. The Falls did most of the attacking, while the Panthers seemed to hold back and wait for the break which never came, as Paddy Farrell was invincible in the net. Dolson also played a fine game in the London goal. The Falls team took the ice minus Russell Oatman, regular defence man, who had his leg broken in two places in an automobile accident. Yankoski was also hurt in the same accident, but played the entire game.

CHAMPION THROWS DEVITO FROM RING

TORONTO, Ont., March 15. (Canadian Press).—Gus Sonnenberg, Boston world's heavyweight wrestling champion, knocked out Joe Devito, Italian champion, in the main bout of a wrestling card here last night. The knockout came about when Sonnenberg crashed the Italian to the canvas with a backward slam, shortly after Devito had climbed back into the ring after being hurled out by the Boston grappler.

When Devito was knocked out of the ring he fell five feet to the wooden floor below and was in a dazed condition when he got back into the ring. After Sonnenberg had finished the bout with a tackle and backward slam, trainers and doctors busied themselves with the Italian champion for more than 10 minutes before they could revive him sufficiently to guide him to the dressing room.

In the semi-final, "Bull" Joe Komar secured the decision over Stanley Stasiak after 45 minutes of rough and tumble wrestling. Martin Plestina gave the crowd a glimpse of the old type of mat men by beating Joe Rogacki in 10 minutes with a body slam, while George Vassell dropped John Kattan in a wild swinging bout, in the first preliminary.

PUT THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ON YOUR PAY-ROLL.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor: :

Well Mac, outside the fact that you can listen-in to a hockey game every nite if you can pull in the anaemic station of the Toronto Star, and that Babe Ruth has sacrificed himself for the good of the Yanks by condescending to accept a paltry $80,000 a year on a 2-year contract, they ain't been a great deal of excitement in the sporting arena. Them that is still interested in the Sharkey-Scott tangle got a kick out of seeing some of the pictures of the bout, and they certainly show Mister Scott was hit low. And, Mac, it must have been a real swing, two, for the pictures show Pheeble Phil getting hit on the left hip and then holding his hand on his right side, so if the jolt travelled right through from left to right Mister Sharkey wasn't pulling his punches none.

I see, Mac, where Mister Irvin Bailey, what used to captain our hockey team back in the days when the Petes was making them all say uncle, has win a cup as the most popular player on Mister Smythe's Maple Leaves. That oughta suggest to the folks what has been asking all season "Wot's the matter with Bailey?" that the answer to their question is "Nothing." If you look up the figgers you'll see that Mister Bailey is leading his team in scoring for the 3rd year in succession, that he's rung up a better scoring total than last year, and although he ain't at the top, he's well up on the league list. Any bird what can step into the big show, get more scoring points each year than any of his teammates, lead the league in his 2nd year, and cop a popularity cup in his third season, ain't got nothing much matter with him.

Locally they ain't much to report since my last. The baseball situation is just where it was a week ago, although it's likely that the Peterborough Ball Club moguls will call a public meeting in the near future and put it up to the ball fans whether they want to continue in sr. ball this season. This berg has had a senior ball club ever since Mister Jake Solomon organized the Central loop eleven years ago, and a lotta folks would kinda hate to see no srs. operating this summer, feeling it would be a black eye to drop outa the major loop. At the same time financing a senior club these days ain't exactly soft, what I mean. With plenty baseball in other seriouses during the week and the customers hiking out for the fishing haunts in their cars Sat. afternoons, the patronage ain't what it used to be. Well, Mac, if anything's to be done it'll hafta come soon.

Anyway if all the old guard retires they is going to be some mighta lively golf round these parts this summer, for the ball tossers is threatening to wear plus 4's and smite the little pill round the pastures. Fore, and I don't mean maybe!

Well, Mac, I guess Bobby Jones and Wally Hagen will worry, eh? Meanwhile, keep your dog tied up or it'll cost you jack.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

DEMPSEY WILL BOX CARNERA AT CHICAGO IN SEPTEMBER

Schmeling First Considered as Opponent By Ex-heavyweight Champion.

PROMOTER AND SCRAPPER.

NEW YORK, March 15.—In a day featured by a great deal of everything and very little of anything the metropolitan mitten marts yesterday produced the semi-weekly bulletin on a Jack Dempsey come back.

According to two junior members of Primo Carnera and Co., the Man Mauler has definitely decided to do business with their concern. The transaction will take place at Soldiers' Field in Chicago early in September.

Dempsey will appear in the dual role of promoter and contestant. It seems that Manassa Jack has dropped $50,000 in promotion ventures around the Windy City and has reached the conclusion that a comeback is the only reliable method of getting it back.

Considered Schmeling

Before settling on Carnera Dempsey gave a few thoughts to Max Schmeling, his German double, according to William McCarney. He went so far as to talk it over with Joe Jacobs, the senior member of the Schmeling managerial menage.

While he was considering Schmeling his old pal, Billy Duffy, happened in, and Bill had a much better idea. Dempsey knows he would be a short-ender against Schmeling, whereas there is some room for optimism against Carnera. Duffy is the American representative for Carnera and Duffy finally carried the day.

So it is all fixed for Chicago early in September at the present writing. Walter Friedman, Carnera's American adviser, and Pete the Goat Stone, Carnera's American public relations counsel, are so confident the match will take place that they have turned down an offer to meet Kayo Christner at the Garden.

"Why stop for chicken feed when whe have a $2,000,000 fight only six months away" they said.

ALEX SURE HE WILL WIN 10 GAMES IN BOX

Counts on O'Doul and Klein to Supply Necessary Punch on Offensive.

FIT AS A FIDDLE.

Veteran Hurler Back to the Club He Started With Twenty Years Ago.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. Mar. 15. Back with the Phillies, the club he started with twenty years ago, Grover Alexander, one of the greatest pitchers the game has seen, is talking about "taking his regular turn in the box this season. He is forty-three years old, but says he can't believe it, he feels so good.

"I go better pitching every four days," Alexander told International News Service here as he gave his old soup bone a workout while several rookie pitchers stood behind him and watched him bend 'em over. "I can't see this business of ten days' rest. It's no good for me."

Alex did not want to predict how many games he would win this year but finally he said "ten games at the very least." He asked how could he help it with O'Doul and Klein rattling the ball against the fences and knocking in runs.

Lot Of New Faces

"Lot of new faces" commented Alexander between pitchers. "Why there isn't an active ball player in either league to-day who was playing when I broke in with the Phillies in 1911."

Alex said that one of the "stand out" players to him was old Honus Wagner.

"He was a great shortstop" said Alexander. "He would dive for the ball, come up with it in a cloud of dust and the first thing you'd see was that the runner was out. When Wagner got on first he stood flat-footed on the bag, but before you knew it he was safe at second."

Alexander said he was a great admirer of the pitching of the late Christy Mathewson. He related how he saw Mathewson hook up with Earl Moore of the Phillies in a pitching duel in which Moore beat him, 2 to 0. Alexander was in the bull pen in center field watching the great Matty work and he said "he sure had it."

Reminiscing some more, Alexander praised the old Chicago Cubs as "real ball players." He thought Frank Chance, their leader, was a wonder. He recalled that the first ball pitched to Outfielder Frank Schulte rattled off the right field fence so quickly Alexander didn't believe the ball was hit. He said the Cubs' pitchers, Brown, Overall, Pfeister, Ruelbach, Ritchie, and Cole were as good as he ever saw on any club.

His Greatest Feat

Asked if his greatest pitching feat was when he went in against the New York Yankees a few seasons ago to retire the side, ending the game by striking out Lazzeri, he replied negatively, adding:

"I think the best game I ever pitched was in that little old park in Boston against Cy Young. I was just starting, he was ending up his great career. They got one hit off me, a swinging bunt to third, and I won, 1 to 0. Hans Lobert singled with a man on second in the ninth inning. I thought I'd never get a run. That was in 1912, the last year Cy pitched."

Discussing his famous strike out of Lazzeri, old Alex laughingly admitted he wasn't a bit nervous in that tense inning. "Say, I knew Lazzeri was more anxious than I was" smiled Alex. "When he hit at a bad one, I fed him one that was worse. When he swung at that I gave him one still worse and it was over. That was all there was to it."

Alexander has been appointed as the "boss" of the Phillies' pitchers by Manager Burt Shotton. Youngsters, and even the veterans have been asking Alexander, whose pitching knowledge they respect, for "pointers". They not only talk to him about pitching on the field but come to the "old head" in the hotel lobby. A grand fellow personally Alexander is always willing to oblige.

WINGED WHEELERS WIN IN OVERTIME

Advance in Allan Cup Series By Beating Last Year's Runners-up.

MONTREAL, March 15.—After two overtime struggles, Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, senior amateur hockey champions of Quebec, won the provincial championship and the right to represent the province in the Allan Cup playdowns when they defeated St. Francois Xavier, intermediate titlists, 1 to 0 last night. The score came in the third overtime period.

The two teams played a scoreless draw in their first meeting, and three overtime periods of their second meeting failed to break a 1-all tie. Last night they were ordered to play until the match was decided, and it was not until they were half way through the third overtime period that the deadlock was broken. Record-breaking crowds attended all three struggles.

DON'T LIKE JAZZ

LONDON—Seallons, like artists, are temperamental. An experiment recently conducted to determine what effects music would have on them revealed that they reacted favorably to the strains of quiet music, but grew angry when jazz was played. When jazz was played they would dive and stay under water until the music stopped.

MEMORIAL CUP GAMES TO-NIGHT

Ottawa Rideaus Meet Montreal While Toronto Tangles With Soo.

TIGERS IN CAPITAL CITY.

TORONTO, March 15 (C.P.)—Hamilton Tigers, Senior representatives of the Ontario Hockey Association, journeyed to Ottawa last night, where they meet the Shamrocks, Ottawa and district champions, in the first of a two-game series, in the first round of the Allan Cup playdowns. The return will be played at Toronto, Tuesday, March 18, having been advanced 24 hours on account of an indoor track meeting being staged in Hamilton on the 19th.

It has been many years since the Ottawa champions advanced into the Eastern Canada final at the expense of the O.H.A. titleholders. The latter have a process of elimination which makes it certain that none but the fittest shall survive. Naturally it is the cream of the province that makes the annual excursion to Ottawa and this year there has been no exception—Tigers being worthy champions. However, this factor never daunts the boys from Canada's hockey centre, and they are quietly confident of turning back their rivals.

Two Memorial Cup games will be played to-day. At Montreal, Ottawa Rideaus will attempt to wipe out a one-goal deficit and advance at the expense of M.A.A.A. The latter team defeated the Capital City youngsters on their own ice by a two to one count, and are favored to meet the winner of the West Toronto-Sault Ste. Marie series in the Eastern Canada final.

The game will be played in the afternoon. Montreal displayed the most finished hockey at Ottawa, but lacked the sustained speed of the Rideaus, who would have made things warm for the Montrealers had they used more combination.

At Toronto, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, champions of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, make their 1930 debuit in Southern Ontario, in the first game against West Toronto, Ontario Hockey Association titleholders. The second game will be decided Monday and the winner on the round will clash with either Ottawa or Montreal for the right to travel West for the Canadian championship.

The battles of the boys from north and south are always a feature on the Winter's sport program and this year should not be any exception with the tense interest aroused in the recent series between the Junction Redmen and Niagara Falls for the O.H.A. title.

Sault Ste. Marie, coached by Doug. Hickson, a former Toronto boy and pupils of Bill Hancock, mentor of the Westenders, have been in Toronto more than a week drilling on Toronto ice for the games while they watched their rivals, West Toronto, play the crucial tests with the Cataracts. The Greyhounds figure they have a royal chance to stop West Toronto, being rested up for the games, while the Junction team has just emerged from a gruelling grind of five hard games.

Speaking of SPORT

By Frank Getty

Here's a letter that needs no comment:

Dear Mr. Getty:

I've been thinking of writing you a letter for a long time. I see you around the boxing shows at the Garden and the ball games sometimes.

I would rather be a sports writer than anything else, but I can't write good enough and it is too late to learn now. So don't you worry. I am not going to ask you for a job.

• • •

I always try and get a seat near the press box for you hear more chatter of what is going on than you do other places. I know almost every sports writer in New York by sight. I can go with a friend and say: "See him—that's Wilbur Wood of the Sun. That guy next to him is Doc Morris of the Post."

• • •

None of them know me, but I guess that is my tough luck.

You know, I get more kick out of the side attractions of sports events than the shows themselves, almost. There are lots more things happen than you read on the sports page. I don't blame anybody for that because they aren't things that would really be a story, but they happen just the same and they are interesting to somebody who likes to think he is studying human nature in the raw. And some of it is pretty raw, too.

Take the gamblers who play the fights at the Garden. And the hockey games. You don't see much of them while the shows are going on. They are there, but are pretty cagey and don't let themselves get conspicuous. But you ought to look at them outside the Garden after a long shot has come under the wire. You never heard such beefing in your life. Everyone of them blames everyone else. They seem to do all their fighting with words and they say plenty.

Then go down to the boxing commission and look at score of the exhitis 'A and B." Here's a bunch of third rate boxers and third rate managers hanging around trying to phenangle the commission into deciding their little private fuses. Nothing to do all day but try and collect some $15 purse, and three men trying to do it. Naturally I don't mean all the boxers who go to the commission are third-raters, btu they make the most noise and they are the funniest.

I think the really funniest thing about most of the guys you see at sports here is that they are always mad. They are mad at something or somebody. Mostly they are mad at each other or they act that way.

• • •

The only other really funny thing is to hear these guys talk about records. One will say Dempsey fought Sharkey at the Yankee Stadium and another will say it is at the Polo Grounds. Each "knows" he is right and wants to bet.

• • •

Maybe the crowds are the same every where in the U.S. but I sort of doubt it.

I go to some kind of a sports contest three times every week. I have been doing it for years and I guess I will keep on. I dont know why. But if there wasn't any crowd you couldn't hire me to go.

CHAMPION THROWS DEVITO FROM RING

TORONTO, Ont., March 15. (Canadian Press).—Gus Sonnenberg, Boston world's heavyweight wrestling champion, knocked out Joe Devito, Italian champion, in the main bout of a wrestling card here last night. The knockout came about when Sonnenberg crashed the Italian to the canvas with a backward slam, shortly after Devito had climbed back into the ring after being hurled out by the Boston grappler.

When Devito was knocked out of the ring he fell five feet to the wooden floor below and was in a dazed condition when he got back into the ring. After Sonnenberg had finished the bout with a tackle and backward slam, trainers and doctors busied themselves with the Italian champion for more than 10 minutes before they could revive him sufficiently to guide him to the dressing room.

In the semi-final, "Bull" Joe Komar secured the decision over Stanley Stasiak after 45 minutes of rough and tumble wrestling. Martin Plestina gave the crowd a glimpse of the old type of mat men by beating Joe Rogacki in 10 minutes with a body slam, while George Vassell dropped John Kattan in a wild swinging bout, in the first preliminary.

PUT THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ON YOUR PAY-ROLL.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor: :

Well Mac, outside the fact that you can listen-in to a hockey game every nite if you can pull in the anaemic station of the Toronto Star, and that Babe Ruth has sacrificed himself for the good of the Yanks by condescending to accept a paltry $80,000 a year on a 2-year contract, they ain't been a great deal of excitement in the sporting arena. Them that is still interested in the Sharkey-Scott tangle got a kick out of seeing some of the pictures of the bout, and they certainly show Mister Scott was hit low. And, Mac, it must have been a real swing, two, for the pictures show Pheeble Phil getting hit on the left hip and then holding his hand on his right side, so if the jolt travelled right through from left to right Mister Sharkey wasn't pulling his punches none.

I see, Mac, where Mister Irvin Bailey, what used to captain our hockey team back in the days when the Petes was making them all say uncle, has win a cup as the most popular player on Mister Smythe's Maple Leaves. That oughta suggest to the folks what has been asking all season "Wot's the matter with Bailey?" that the answer to their question is "Nothing." If you look up the figgers you'll see that Mister Bailey is leading his team in scoring for the 3rd year in succession, that he's rung up a better scoring total than last year, and although he ain't at the top, he's well up on the league list. Any bird what can step into the big show, get more scoring points each year than any of his teammates, lead the league in his 2nd year, and cop a popularity cup in his third season, ain't got nothing much matter with him.

Locally they ain't much to report since my last. The baseball situation is just where it was a week ago, although it's likely that the Peterborough Ball Club moguls will call a public meeting in the near future and put it up to the ball fans whether they want to continue in sr. ball this season. This berg has had a senior ball club ever since Mister Jake Solomon organized the Central loop eleven years ago, and a lotta folks would kinda hate to see no srs. operating this summer, feeling it would be a black eye to drop outa the major loop. At the same time financing a senior club these days ain't exactly soft, what I mean. With plenty baseball in other seriouses during the week and the customers hiking out for the fishing haunts in their cars Sat. afternoons, the patronage ain't what it used to be. Well, Mac, if anything's to be done it'll hafta come soon.

Anyway if all the old guard retires they is going to be some mighta lively golf round these parts this summer, for the ball tossers is threatening to wear plus 4's and smite the little pill round the pastures. Fore, and I don't mean maybe!

Well, Mac, I guess Bobby Jones and Wally Hagen will worry, eh? Meanwhile, keep your dog tied up or it'll cost you jack.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

DEMPSEY WILL BOX CARNERA AT CHICAGO IN SEPTEMBER

PROMOTER AND SCRAPPER.

NEW YORK, March 15.—In a day featured by a great deal of everything and very little of anything the metropolitan mitten marts yesterday produced the semi-weekly bulletin on a Jack Dempsey come back.

According to two junior members of Primo Carnera and Co., the Man Mauler has definitely decided to do business with their concern. The transaction will take place at Soldiers' Field in Chicago early in September.

Dempsey will appear in the dual role of promoter and contestant. It seems that Manassa Jack has dropped $50,000 in promotion ventures around the Windy City and has reached the conclusion that a comeback is the only reliable method of getting it back.

Considered Schmeling

Before settling on Carnera Dempsey gave a few thoughts to Max Schmeling, his German double, according to William McCarney. He went so far as to talk it over with Joe Jacobs, the senior member of the Schmeling managerial menage.

While he was considering Schmeling his old pal, Billy Duffy, happened in, and Bill had a much better idea. Dempsey knows he would be a short-ender against Schmeling, whereas there is some room for optimism against Carnera. Duffy is the American representative for Carnera and Duffy finally carried the day.

So it is all fixed for Chicago early in September at the present writing. Walter Friedman, Carnera's American adviser, and Pete the Goat Stone, Carnera's American public relations counsel, are so confident the match will take place that they have turned down an offer to meet Kayo Christner at the Garden.

"Why stop for chicken feed when whe have a $2,000,000 fight only six months away" they said.

ALEX SURE HE WILL WIN 10 GAMES IN BOX

Counts on O'Doul and Klein to Supply Necessary Punch on Offensive.

FIT AS A FIDDLE.

Veteran Hurler Back to the Club He Started With Twenty Years Ago.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. Mar. 15. Back with the Phillies, the club he started with twenty years ago, Grover Alevander, one of the greatest pitchers the game has seen, is talking about "taking his regular turn in the box this season. He is forty-three years old, but says he can't believe it, he feels so good.

"I go better pitching every four days," Alexander told International News Service here as he gave his old soup bone a workout while several rookie pitchers stood behind him and watched him bend 'em over. "I can't see this business of ten days' rest. It's no good for me."

Alex did not want to predict how many games he would win this year but finally he said "ten games at the very least." He asked how could he help it with O'Doul and Klein rattling the ball against the fences and knocking in runs.

Lot Of New Faces

"Lot of new faces" commented Alexander between pitchers. "Why there isn't an active ball player in either league to-day who was playing when I broke in with the Phillies in 1911."

Alex said that one of the "stand out" players to him was old Honus Wagner.

"He was a great shortstop" said Alexander. "He would dive for the ball, come up with it in a cloud of dust and the first thing you'd see was that the runner was out. When Wagner got on first he stood flat-footed on the bag, but before you knew it he was safe at second."

Alexander said he was a great admirer of the pitching of the late Christy Mathewson. He related how he saw Mathewson hook up with Earl Moore of the Phillies in a pitching duel in which Moore beat him, 2 to 0. Alexander was in the bull pen in center field watching the great Matty work and he said "he sure had it."

Reminiscing some more, Alexander praised the old Chicago Cubs as "real ball players." He thought Frank Chance, their leader, was a wonder. He recalled that the first ball pitched to Outfielder Frank Schulte rattled off the right field fence so quickly Alexander didn't believe the ball was hit. He said the Cubs' pitchers, Brown, Overall, Pfeister, Ruelbach, Ritchie, and Cole were as good as he ever saw on any club.

His Greatest Feat

Asked if his greatest pitching feat was when he went in against the New York Yankees a few seasons ago to retire the side, ending the game by striking out Lazzeri, he replied negatively, adding:

"I think the best game I ever pitched was in that little old park in Boston against Cy Young. I was just starting, he was ending up his great career. They got one hit off me, a swinging bunt to third, and I won, 1 to 0. Hans Lobert singled with a man on second in the ninth inning. I thought I'd never get a run. That was in 1912, the last year Cy pitched."

Discussing his famous strike out of Lazzeri, old Alex laughingly admitted he wasn't a bit nervous in that tense inning. "Say, I knew Lazzeri was more anxious than I was" smiled Alex. "When he hit at a bad one, I fed him one that was worse. When he swung at that I gave him one still worse and it was over. That was all there was to it."

Alexander has been appointed as the "boss" of the Phillies' pitchers by Manager Burt Shotton. Youngsters, and even the veterans have been asking Alexander, whose pitching knowledge they respect, for "pointers". They not only talk to him about pitching on the field but come to the "old head" in the hotel lobby. A grand fellow personally Alexander is always willing to oblige.

WINGED WHEELERS WIN IN OVERTIME

Advance in Allan Cup Series By Beating Last Year's Runners-up.

MONTREAL, March 15.—After two overtime struggles, Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, senior amateur hockey champions of Quebec, won the provincial championship and the right to represent the province in the Allan Cup playdowns when they defeated St. Francois Xavier, intermediate titlists, 1 to 0 last night. The score came in the third overtime period.

The two teams played a scoreless draw in their first meeting, and three overtime periods of their second meeting failed to break a 1-all tie. Last night they were ordered to play until the match was decided, and it was not until they were half way through the third overtime period that the deadlock was broken. Record-breaking crowds attended all three struggles.

An experiment recently conducted to determine what effects music would have on them revealed that they reacted favorably to the strains of quiet music, but grew angry when jazz was played. MEMORIAL CUP GAMES TO-NIGHT

Ottawa Rideaus Meet Montreal While Toronto Tangles With Soo.

TIGERS IN CAPITAL CITY.

TORONTO, March 15 (C.P.)—Hamilton Tigers, Senior representatives of the Ontario Hockey Association, journeyed to Ottawa last night, where they meet the Shamrocks, Ottawa and district champions, in the first of a two-game series, in the first round of the Allan Cup playdowns. The return will be played at Toronto, Tuesday, March 18, having been advanced 24 hours on account of an indoor track meeting being staged in Hamilton on the 19th.

It has been many years since the Ottawa champions advanced into the Eastern Canada final at the expense of the O.H.A. titleholders. The latter have a process of elimination which makes it certain that none but the fittest shall survive. Naturally it is the cream of the province that makes the annual excursion to Ottawa and this year there has been no exception—Tigers being worthy champions. However, this factor never daunts the boys from Canada's hockey centre, and they are quietly confident of turning back their rivals.

Two Memorial Cup games will be played to-day. At Montreal, Ottawa Rideaus will attempt to wipe out a one-goal deficit and advance at the expense of M.A.A.A. The latter team defeated the Capital City youngsters on their own ice by a two to one count, and are favored to meet the winner of the West Toronto-Sault Ste. Marie series in the Eastern Canada final.

The game will be played in the afternoon. Montreal displayed the most finished hockey at Ottawa, but lacked the sustained speed of the Rideaus, who would have made things warm for the Montrealers had they used more combination.

At Toronto, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, champions of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, make their 1930 debuit in Southern Ontario, in the first game against West Toronto, Ontario Hockey Association titleholders. The second game will be decided Monday and the winner on the round will clash with either Ottawa or Montreal for the right to travel West for the Canadian championship.

The battles of the boys from north and south are always a feature on the Winter's sport program and this year should not be any exception with the tense interest aroused in the recent series between the Junction Redmen and Niagara Falls for the O.H.A. title.

Sault Ste. Marie, coached by Doug. Hickson, a former Toronto boy and pupils of Bill Hancock, mentor of the Westenders, have been in Toronto more than a week drilling on Toronto ice for the games while they watched their rivals, West Toronto, play the crucial tests with the Cataracts. The Greyhounds figure they have a royal chance to stop West Toronto, being rested up for the games, while the Junction team has just emerged from a gruelling grind of five hard games.

RUGBY RULING BONE OF CONTENTION

JOHN DE GRUCHY

HEAD OF THE CANADIAN RUGBY UNION WHOSE DECISION REGARDING THE ABOLITION OF THE ONSIDE PASS HAS CAUSED A NATION-WIDE CONTROVERSY

Some sports in Canada are hopelessly divided and rugby is two of them. The onside pass as an experiment in Canadian rugby proved highly successful as far as the west was concerned. According to sport scribes it created some real gates for the western games, and gave rugby in the west a much needed impetus. In the east it has been much slower in taking hold but in some quarters progress was noticeable. Finally the O.R.F.U. decided that they would accept either the Canadian or American code in its entirety. Now the C.R.U. have decided that the Canadian championship games will be played according to the Canadian rules that other rules may be adopted on application for all but the Canadian playoffs. The decision seems to satisfy the east but the west has raised the cry that the ruling has almost eliminated their chances of winning the Grey Cup. The fact that the west can use the onside pass helps them along as far as their games during the season are concerned, but they maintain that when the playoffs are contested they will be at a disadvantage in not being able to use it.

ASSOCIATION QUINTET BEATS CLOCK MAKERS TO COMPLETE SCHEDULE WITHOUT A LOSS

Winners to Take Possession of Gordon Cup While Westclox Will Hold Harvey Trophy.

JUNIOR CHMPIONSHIP.

Senior School Girls Defeat "Y" Intermediates 20-4 to Capture Industrial Cup.

Triumphing over the Westclox by the score of 25—8, the "Y" Seniors won the championship of the Peterborough Ladies' Basketball League at the Y.W.C.A. last night. They retained a spotless record without a loss during the season, and will take possession of the Gordon Cup.

The Westclox will put the Harvey Cup on the mantel for a year as runners-up in the Seniors. Their only loss in the second half of the schedule was to the Seniors last night.

Last night's bill also saw the championship of the Junior section decided. The Industrial Cup will go to the Senior School Girls as a result of a decisive 20—4 win over the "Y" Intermediates.

A large crowd lined the sides of the small Y.W.C.A. gymnasium to witness the two championship matches as well as two other contests between the "Y" Elementary and Wohelos and the De Lavals and St. Paul's squads. Much interest has been taken in the league activities throughout the season.

Feature Battle

The clash between the Seniors and the Westclox was the feature of the evening. Although heavy odds were on the Seniors, due to their previous performances in the season, interest ran high in the game on account of a rumored improvement in Hec McLeod's Westclox aggregation.

In the first half the Clockmakers displayed some of their best defence work of the season and some bright forward work as well that made their chances seem bright, but the smooth combination of the Seniors was too much for them. Viola Marvey and Isobel Davidson broke through again and again for successes, despite the industrious work of Dorothy Webb and Sheila Keown on the Westclox defence. The score at half time was 13—4.

In the last session the Clocks tired somewhat of their good work and fell out of sight, although they never gave up the struggle. Davidson and Harvey combines brought the Senior count to 25 when the final whistle brought the match to an end while the Westclox total rested at 8.

The teams:

"Y" Seniors—V. Harvey, I. Davidson; centre, I Chambers; guards, H. Jackson, J. Allin, M. Holmes.

Westclox—L. Kingdon, M. Mortimer; centre, B. Scott; guards, D. Webb, S. Keown, F. Fever, C. Mason.

The Senior School Girls took an early lead in their game with the "Y" Intermediates in the Junior section and maintained it throughout.

Smart Basketball

Helen Cole nicked the first basket for the School Girls shortly after the first tip-off and then followed up with an additional point on a free toss. Evelyn Armstrong goth a basket and made the score 5—0 for the School Girls at the end of the first quarter. As a result of free goals by Eva Beatty and E. Elcombe, the count at half time was 6—1.

Helen Cole was the big scorer for the School Girls in the second half. She bagged 10 points. Lahring Parsons and Marjorie Lang brought the Intermediates' final score to 4, while Howie Macdonald's squad ran up to 20

The teams:

"Y" Intermediates—Forwards, L. Parsons, M. Lang, G. Pakenham; centre, V. Davidson; guards, M. Burns, E. Beatty.

Senior School Girls—J. Harvey, G. Burns, D. Roger, G. Cunningsham; centre, H. Cole, E. Armstrong, K. Lang, O. Elcombe.

A contest in the Junior section of the league between the Elementary squad and the Wohelos proved somewhat dull. Nothing was at stake in the game. The Elementaries showed decisive superiority to the tune of 16—6.

Three quick baskets excuted with smartness by Hazel Bradley got the Elementaries a six-point lead early in the game. Hazel Foster and Jessie Pattison registered to bring the half time total to 12, while Margaret Simpson hooked the only counter for the Wohelos.

In the last half the Elementary squad was no so successful. They got 4 points on two baskets by Sybil Ecobichon. The teams:

Elementary—Forwards, S. Ecobichon, H. Foster, A. Janeway; centre, J. Pattison; guards, D. Roberts, G. Roseborough, M. Deannard, L. Ellis.

SAINTS MEET DE LAVALS

The St. Paul's squad tangled with the De Lavals for another lob-sided demonstration of the cage game in the senior section of the league. Neither team was in the running as far as honors were concerned.

The first half was closely contested. Arleigh Comstock opened the score for St. Paul's with a free shot but Edna Forster followed with a field goal. Clare Patterson and Maizie Cowan, on the Saints' forward line, each got another ringer before the session ended.

At the end of the first the score was 5—2. In the last stanza St. Paul's played a brilliant defensive and offensive game. They ran in 14 points while the De Lavals got 2 more to bring their count to 4. The teams:

St. Paul's.—Forwards, M. Cowan, C. Patterson; centre, A. Comstock; guards, E. Morrow, S. Jackson.

De Laval—Forwards, E. Forster, D. Irons; centre, M. Archambault; guards, K. Buckley, H. Resko.

PORT ARTHUR SEXTET TO TRY COMEBACK FOR THIRD TIME

Look Upon Winnipeg Elmwoods as Biggest Obstacle in Path to Glory.

STRONG AS EVER.

PORT ARTHUR, March 15.—(Canadian Press).—Thrice amateur champs of Canadian hockeydom, Port Arthur's perennial puckmen are striving to label as false the old saying that "They never come back." Right now, their chief obstacle is the Winnipeg Elmwood team, titleholders in Manitoba for 1930. But the Thunder Bay loop-winners are not dismayed.

At the start of this season Port Arthur had every reason to be down-hearted. Inroads of professional teams and other amateur clubs had taken away all but four of the players who brought the Ports their third Canadian title last season. One of the surviving four—cagy old Wilf L'Heureux—hung up his skates for good. And then there were three.

But the Ports have come through a tough schedule and today they're still fighting. To win honors in the Thunder Bay loop required all-season vigilance, sturdy battling against Fort William and Fort Frances, and a heart-racking play-off triumph over the border-line team from the Fort. Yet the hardest task of all was to rebuild over the ruins of last year's team.

Square-chinned "Phat" Wilson—born in Port Arthur 35 years ago—was the only surviving regular. Norman Friday and Bobby McCranor were the other two who remained from the battered 1929 brigade. So the Ports' bosses scoured the fertile lakehead minor ranks, even made a sally or two over to Fort William, and lo another team with a chance for a title.

Defensively, the Ports are now as strong as ever they were—and craftier than ever since bald Bill Brydge left Wilson alone on defence and turned pro'. "Phat's" new mate is a remade forward—but a player who knows what to do, and when—and how. He is Frank Hacquoil, whose craftiness on left wing for Fort William in the historic 1927 final against Toronto 'Varsity earned him as sobriquet 'The Hawk."

Hacquoil and Wilson form a rearguard dangerous on the rush and unusually clever in solving the system of an opposing attack. Back of them is Gordon Hacquoil, nephew of Frank. Graduate of junior ranks, young Gordon has proved fast and careful—a valuable addition to the team's defensive ensemble. As sub goalie, Alf Dupuis, another Fort William lad, is listed on the roster.

The make-up of the front lines is a long call from the Creighton-Barton-Harvis combination that did the attacking last year—and then went over to the pro's. But hockey followers will perhaps remember that last year, too, the Ports' offensive trio was looked on as a long call from the forward lines which had gained two previous titles from the tricolor.

Defensive craft and smooth industry on the attack is built into the 1930 forward string of Friday, McCranor and Doug Hall. Friday and McCranor have profited from their senior experience of last year and Hall has made a successful debut into the top layer. Each of the trio is an adept at the art of hickory handling.

Rangy Broks Dafoe, up from junior circles, faces off for the second line. Flanking him are two speedy little Johnnies—Salonen and Bates—most bothersome wingmen in the lakehead circuit. Jerry Strachan is the last member on the lengthy forward line list. The team's coach is blonde Al Pudas who played right wing with the first Port Arthur title team in 1925, and who, since then, has performed on more pro' sextettes than most folk can remember.

As a unit, the Ports are looked on by lakehead fans much as last year's team was considered—a lot better than most folk figure and good enough to cop another Allan Cup.

SPECTATOR DIES AT HOCKEY GAME

League Championship Game is Postponed Following Death.

SUFFERED HEART ATTACK.

IROQUOIS, Ont., March 15. (Canadian Press).— The hockey match between Morrisburg and Cardinal teams to decide the championship of the St. Lawrence league was halted at the end of the second period last night owing to the death of a spectator. Both teams scored a goal in the second period after a scoreless opening and excitement was at a high pitch when John Suffell, lockmaster at Morrisburg, slumped in his seat with a heart attack. He died within a few minutes.

The game was stopped out of respect for the widely known man who had died, and will be replayed tonight.

Morris, secretary; Miss Hazel Fanning, treasurer.

The executive is composed of the following members: The officers of the year, the past president, Mrs. Reg. H. Turner, Mrs. R. M. Waddell, Mrs. W. H. Hill, Mrs. M. Comstock, Mrs. A. W. Turner, Miss F. Gladman and Miss E. Morrow.

Mrs. H. Beal is convenor of the Social committee, with Mrs. J. A. Robinson, Mrs. W. Garrow and Mrs. Ed. Carr. Mrs. A. W. Turner is convenor of the Games committee, Mrs. D. S. Clark, Miss F. Gladman and Miss Helen Munro.

The dinner held in the grill room was a very enjoyable gathering, attended by twenty-eight of the members of the Curling Club including one of the past presidents, Mrs. C. E. Jamieson, of Napanee, who came up for the annual meeting. The decorations of the table were quite unique and very effective. Arranged in a T form, the head table was done with a miniature rink which represented the formation of the rink playing for the first trophy of the Club, the Gibson award. Miniature figures representing the winning rink were placed in positions occupied by them during the contest, and included the skip, Mrs. W. Hill, the vice skip, Mrs. Reg. Turner, the second stone, Mrs. F. J. A. Morris, and the lead, Mrs. W. Garrow. Opposing this rink was the defending quartette, composed of Miss F. Gladman, skip, Miss Hazel Fanning, Mrs. J. A. Robinson and Mrs. E. F. Mason.

Mrs. Reg. Turner in Charge

Additional decorations of the very attractive tables were silver candelabra with green lighted tapers, their holders being large simulated roses, also silver vases filled with rose tulips and place cards and favors in the form of wee curling stones.

Mrs. Reg. Turner, president last year of the Ladies' Curling Club presided at the dinner tables, and arranged the decorations which were extremely interesting and evoked much complimentary comment. The toast to The King was honored in the usual fashion by the singing of the National Anthem, and was followed in the usual fashion by the singing of the National Anthem, and was followed by a toast to "The Curling Game" proposed by Mrs. J. Forbes Allan and responded to by Miss C. Littlefield.

Later, in the upper ladies' parlor, the business meeting was held, followed by an hour of bridge, when prizes were won by Mrs. J. F. Allan, Mrs. Angus Richardson and Mrs. C. E. Jamieson of Napanee.

The prizes were donated by Mrs. C. G. Graham, Mrs. F. J. A. Morris and Miss Helen Munro.

The business meeting was featured by the report of the Nominating committee the presentation of prizes for the curling games and the reports of various officers, including the secretary, Mrs. F. J. A. Morris, the treasurer, Miss Hazel Fanning, the convenor of the Games committee, Miss Helen Munro, the convenor of the Social committe, Mrs. W. Oke, and the representative of the L.O.C.A., Mrs. W. H. Hill.

Children CRY for it

It may be the little stomach; it may be the bowels are sluggish. No matter what coats a child's tongue, its a safe and sensible precaution to give a few drops of Castoria. This gentle regulation of the little system soon sets things to rights. A pure vegetable preparation that can't harm a wee infant, but brings quick comfort—even when it is colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance.

And don't forsake Castoria as the child grows older. If you want to raise boys and girls with strong systems that will ward off constipation, stick to good old Castoria; and give nothing stronger when there's any irregularity except on the advice of a doctor. Castoria is sold in every drugstore, and the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE OLD TREE.

"Fine weather!" puffed Uncle Wiggily as he hopped to the top of a hill and looked about him. "Fine weather! A good, blustry March day! Makes you feel good to be alive! Ho! Ho!"

The rabbit gentleman gave a loud laugh and flung his paws about, reaching around and clapping himself on the back while his hind pawss danced a little jig on the ground which was swept bare of snow on top of the hill, for the wind was blowing.

"Don't you like this weather?" asked Uncle Wiggily of an Old Tree that stood on top of the hill. "You seem to be having almost as much fun as I am, Old Tree, waving your branches around that way. Isn't it fine weather for March?"

"Please don't talk to me!" sighed the Old Tree in a sad voice. "I am much better off left alone!"

Uncle Wiggily came out.

"Hoity toity!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "What's the matter? Did some one step on your toes or didn't you get anything in your stocking for Christmas, though Christmas is so far back in the past, now, that you can't be sorry over that."

"No, it isn't about Christmas," said the Old Tree.

"Then why are you so cross?" asked the rabbit gentleman. "Why don't you join in with me and be jolly. I know you can't dance for your feet, or roots, are deep down in the ground. But at least you can be jolly with your branches. And from the way you are waving them I thought you were happy. But from the way you talk—"

"I shall never be happy any more," went on the Old Tree. "As for my branches waving, it's the March wind blowing them. I can't help it."

And then as the March wind blew harder and howled in glee, the Old Tree seemed to toss its branches about more wildly than before, as if it were dancing upside down. And it was so funny that Uncle Wiggily gave a chuckling laugh, twinkling his pink nose.

"I don't see anything to laugh at!" spoke the Old Tree in a growling sort of a voice.

"You would if you had a looking glass," said the rabbit. "But come! What's wrong with you?"

"Everything!" sighed the Old Tree. "I am not much longer for this world and I hate to think of the time when the March wind, or perhaps a September gale, will blow me over, break me all up and it will be the end of me. Alas! I and my trunk are nearly ready to go!"

"Nonsense!" cried Uncle Wiggily in his jolliest voice. "You look like a strong tree, good for many years yet of March winds and September gales. What's wrong with you?"

"Look on the other side of my trunk," said the Old Tree.

When Uncle Wiggily hopped around, he saw that one side of the tree had rotted away, leaving a great, hollow place. And the rabbit knew enough about trees to feel sure that what this Old Tree said was true. It would soon fall or be blown down by the wind, most of the heart inside having rotted away.

"But still you have something to be thankful for," said Uncle Wiggily. "Come, cheer up!"

"What have I to be thankful for?" asked the Old Tree. "I am of no more use in the world. I doubt if I shall even have any leaves in the spring. No, my life is over. I'm ready for the woodpile."

"Stuff and nonsense!" chuckled Mr. Longears. "Why, you are going to be useful right here and now!"

"How?" asked the Old Tree.

"The Bob Cat is coming up the hill after me," whispered the rabbit. "He saw me come up here but just now he doesn't see me because I am behind you, but he'll soon be here and see me. However, I am going to hide myself inside your hollow and there I shall be safe. May I?"

"Oh, yes, crawl in my hollow if it will do you any good," said the Old Tree. Uncle Wiggily jumped in and burrowed down in the dry, fluffy punk of the rotten wood. There he hid and when the Bob Cat came sneaking up the hill he couldn't find the rabbit.

"I wonder where Uncle Wiggily went?" snarled the Bob Cat. But the Old Tree never told of hiding the bunny in its hollow. And when the Bob Cat had gone away, Uncle Wiggily came out.

"Never again say you are of no use in this world!" said the rabbit to the Old Tree. And after that it was happier, dancing its branches in the March wind. And next day some little bunny rabbits played house in the hollow tree, making it happier than ever.

Needless Suffering

The next time a headache makes you stay at home—

Or some other ache or pain prevents your keeping an engagement—

Remember Aspirin! For there is scarcely any sort of pain it cannot relieve, and relieve promptly.

These tablets give real relief, or millions would not continue to take them. They are quite harmless, or the medical profession would not constantly prescribe them.

Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain. To colds that might so easily be checked; neuritis, neuralgia; to those pains peculiar to women; or any suffering for which Aspirin is such an effective antidote.

You need not hesitate to take Aspirin. It is safe. It is always the same. It never depresses the heart, so use it as often as needed; but the cause of any pain can be treated only by a doctor.

COUNTY HEALTH UNITS WANTED

M. P. Would Have Gov't Sponsor Plan For More Efficient System.

PROVE GREAT SAVING.

TORONTO, Ont., March 15.—(C.P.)—Expensive but efficient and proven health management will be provided for rural Canada if the Dominion Government decides in favor of the County Health Unit Plan, it is claimed by proponents of the plan. Recently, a motion of H. E. Spencer, United Farmers of Alberta member for Battle River moved in the house of commons that the government "should take into consideration the advisability of making grants to the provinces equal to one-third of the cost of the establishing such health units as may be organized. Approval was given to the motion. Proponents of the plan say it would save more in cold cash, as well as in the lines of health, than it would cost.

The 'County Health Unit' is a small, full-timed department of health, operating in a rural and semi-rural area, to perform the same services in the interests of health that the Medical Health Department of a big city performs in a big sphere. According to the plan upon which Mr. Spencer based his motion, the cost of such units would be borne equally by the Dominion, the province and the municipalities in which they would be located.

Splendid success has crowned the efforts of these units in the province of Quebec, which has 17 of them in operation. The health unit in Beauce County was established in 1925. During 1926 there were 643 deaths in the district from general causes. In 1928 this figure dropped by 156, to 487. Similarly, infant deaths were reduced from 213 to 160; deaths from tuberculosis, from 56 to 51, and deaths from contagious diseases, from 86 to 27. Statistics, indicating the reduction of disease generally, are not yet available, but a study of the death rate makes logical the assumption that this too must have been comparatively important.

Three other health units were also established, following the one in Beauce County and, in all three cases, similar excellent results have been obtained.

In detail these were as follows:

Health Unit.

St. Hyacinthe and Rouville: General Mortality, 1926, 559; 1928, 425. Infant Mortality, 1926, 150, 1928, 124.

Lac St. Jean: General Mortality, 1926, 625; 1928, 512. Infant Mortality, 1926, 254; 1928, 215.

Deaths from Contagious Diseases.

St. Hyacinthe and Rouville Unit: 1926, 46; 1928, 19.

Saint Jena and Iberville Unite: 1926, 26; 1928, 14.

What is the "County Health Unit" system at present operating in the province of Quebec? It consists in the establishment, in a county or in two small neighboring countries, of what might be designated as a "Bureau of Health in Miniature", composed of a full-time medical officer, two or more public health nurses, a sanitary inspector charged with the enforcement of the health regulations and with the education of the municipal officers, together with a secretary to handle the clerical work of the office which is generally located in the principal town of the country. The whole population of the country is thus submitted to constant supervision on the part of this staff. Health education is intensively carried on, a considerable amount of propaganda work is done continually, and not a single municipality escapes the attention of the officers of that unit.

The medical officer covers all the parishes, meets there the civil and religious authorities, maintains cordial relations with local doctors, give public lectures (announced the preceding Sunday by the cure in the pulpit—has friendly talks with mothers on the necessity of pre-natal post-natal and pre-school hygiene, visits the school and looks after outbreaks of infectious diseases.

The nurses examine the school children and refer those defective in any way to the family physician; they give the teachers instructions in hygiene which they, in turn, pass on to their pupils; they go directly into the homes of the people to make them understand the necessity of following the golden rules for clean and healthy living, they advise young mothers how to protect their babies or babies to be, etc.

The sanitary inspector visits the municipal enforcement of the health laws, looks after water supplies, sewage, nuisances, sees that quarantine is observed in case of contagious diseases, etc.

The secretary attends to the office work, handles correspondence, answers queries, keeps records, and, one important matter, collects from all the ministers of the worship, the birth, marriage and death certificates, makes corrections on them, if necessary, takes a copy of each, and sends them to our Division of Vital Statistics in Quebec.

COUNTY HEALTH UNITS WANTED

M. P. Would Have Gov't Sponsor Plan For More Efficient System.

PROVE GREAT SAVING.

TORONTO, Ont., March 15.—(C.P.)—Expensive but efficient and proven health management will be provided for rural Canada if the Dominion Government decides in favor of the County Health Unit Plan, it is claimed by proponents of the plan. Recently, a motion of H. E. Spencer, United Farmers of Alberta member for Battle River moved in the house of commons that the government "should take into consideration the advisability of making grants to the provinces equal to one-third of the cost of the establishing such health units as may be organized. Approval was given to the motion. Proponents of the plan say it would save more in cold cash, as well as in the lines of health, than it would cost.

The 'County Health Unit' is a small, full-timed department of health, operating in a rural and semi-rural area, to perform the same services in the interests of health that the Medical Health Department of a big city performs in a big sphere. According to the plan upon which Mr. Spencer based his motion, the cost of such units would be borne equally by the Dominion, the province and the municipalities in which they would be located.

Splendid success has crowned the efforts of these units in the province of Quebec, which has 17 of them in operation. The health unit in Beauce County was established in 1925. During 1926 there were 643 deaths in the district from general causes. In 1928 this figure dropped by 156, to 487. Similarly, infant deaths were reduced from 213 to 160; deaths from tuberculosis, from 56 to 51, and deaths from contagious diseases, from 86 to 27. Statistics, indicating the reduction of disease generally, are not yet available, but a study of the death rate makes logical the assumption that this too must have been comparatively important.

Three other health units were also established, following the one in Beauce County and, in all three cases, similar excellent results have been obtained.

In detail these were as follows:

Health Unit.

St. Hyacinthe and Rouville: General Mortality, 1926, 559; 1928, 425. Infant Mortality, 1926, 150, 1928, 124.

Lac St. Jean: General Mortality, 1926, 625; 1928, 512. Infant Mortality, 1926, 254; 1928, 215.

Deaths from Contagious Diseases.

St. Hyacinthe and Rouville Unit: 1926, 46; 1928, 19.

Saint Jena and Iberville Unite: 1926, 26; 1928, 14.

What is the "County Health Unit" system at present operating in the province of Quebec? It consists in the establishment, in a county or in two small neighboring countries, of what might be designated as a "Bureau of Health in Miniature", composed of a full-time medical officer, two or more public health nurses, a sanitary inspector charged with the enforcement of the health regulations and with the education of the municipal officers, together with a secretary to handle the clerical work of the office which is generally located in the principal town of the country. The whole population of the country is thus submitted to constant supervision on the part of this staff. Health education is intensively carried on, a considerable amount of propaganda work is done continually, and not a single municipality escapes the attention of the officers of that unit.

The medical officer covers all the parishes, meets there the civil and religious authorities, maintains cordial relations with local doctors, give public lectures (announced the preceding Sunday by the cure in the pulpit—has friendly talks with mothers on the necessity of pre-natal post-natal and pre-school hygiene, visits the school and looks after outbreaks of infectious diseases.

The nurses examine the school children and refer those defective in any way to the family physician; they give the teachers instructions in hygiene which they, in turn, pass on to their pupils; they go directly into the homes of the people to make them understand the necessity of following the golden rules for clean and healthy living, they advise young mothers how to protect their babies or babies to be, etc.

The sanitary inspector visits the municipal enforcement of the health laws, looks after water supplies, sewage, nuisances, sees that quarantine is observed in case of contagious diseases, etc.

The secretary attends to the office work, handles correspondence, answers queries, keeps records, and, one important matter, collects from all the ministers of the worship, the birth, marriage and death certificates, makes corrections on them, if necessary, takes a copy of each, and sends them to our Division of Vital Statistics in Quebec.

SECOND MODEL MADE.

It is learned that a replica of the model locomotive 4600 now on view in the C.N.R. ticket office, is being constructed in Winnipeg for exhibition in Great Britain.

The model is a masterpiece of mechanical perfection, is reputed to have cost $3,000, and it is further rumored that it was constructed by one man—formerly a book agent.

Tested to a capacity of 150 lbs. to the square inch, the boiler is as sturdy as that found on many passenger engines. It can, of course, be propelled by steam, but for demonstration purposes the wheels are kept in motion by electricity.

THE DIVORCE BILL

(By E. A. PECK, M.P.)

The Examiner has received the following letter from E. A. Peck, M.P., representative for Peterborough West.

"Your reference to the recent vote on the divorce court for Ontario bill states that:

"The voice of this section of the Province was not expressed in the House of Commons when the bill (above mentioned) was defeated."

"If the inference to be drawn from this statement is that there is any strong view of the Peterborough West Riding in favor of the bill, I can only say my attention has not been called to it, and consequently I feel free to give effect to my personal ideas in this respect.

"I am by no means satisfied with the present system of divorce but feel reluctant to press upon the province of Ontario a measure which if adopted would be binding upon us for all time, unless varied by Imperial or Dominion legislation. The substantive parts of the bill are as follows:

"1. The law of England as to the dissolution of marriage and as to the annulment of marriage, as that law existed on the fifteenth day of July, 1870, in so far as it can be made to apply in the province of Ontario, and in so far as it has not been repealed, as to the Province, by any Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom or by any Act of the Parliament of Canada or by this Act, and as altered, varied, modified or affected, as to the province by any such Act, shall be the law of the province as to dissolution of marriage, and as to annulment of marriage.

"2. The Supreme Court of Ontario shall have jurisdiction for all purposes of this Act."

"I do feel that we should have a court to deal with marital matters in the Province; that is to say, a court which will endeavor to do justice to the offended paryt by providing for alimony, division of assets, the custody of children, etc. But I am not in favor of giving to separated parties the privilege, whether guilty or innocent, to re-marry.

"Holding that view I shall oppose the bill in its present form, unless I can be convinced that the majority of my constituents desire me to take a different position."

IF YOU CANNOT EAT
and enjoy your meals, you can be sure that the activities of your stomach are below normal. The truth is that
YOUR STOMACH NEEDS STRENGTH
and its only means of securing that strength is through the nerves that feed it. A weak stomach has weak nerves. Weak nerves are often the result of spinal derangements which may have resulted from a fall, strain or from sitting in an unnatural position. This derangement can be corrected by CHIROPRACTIC SPINAL ADJUSTMENTS
and normal nerve force will be restored to the tissues of the stomach. When this is accomplished, your stomach will be capable of digesting food and you will be able to enjoy your meals as a normal person should.

CALGARY, Alta, March 17. (Canadian Press). Heads of the Solloway-Mills brokerage firm treated shares and money of clients as their own, it was claimed by Crown Prosecutor A. L. Smith, K.C., at the preliminary hearing to-day of Isaac W. C. Sollway and Harvey M. Mills. The two executives are charged with fraud and conspiracy in connection with brokerage dealings.

The Crown Prosecutor said Solway and Mills had not made any efports to make purchases for clients, but had notified clients that purchases had been made when this was not the case. He stated evidence would be given that Solloway directed the scheme of operations in Calgary; and that Mills made frequent visits to Calgary in 1928 and was here constantly in 1929.

Five Charges Laid

Mr. Smith explained that his intention was to proceed with the charge dealing with conspiracy to refraud; in all five charges have been laid against the brokers. Crown Counsel stated that defence had consented that the evidence in the conspiracy charge, laid under section 44 of the Criminal Code, apply to the other charges.

The western incorporation of Solloway, Mills and Company was operated under Dominion charter, Mr. Smith said to Magistrate Sanders. Operations were begun in Calgary in April of 1928. Assets have very considerably increased of late and ran into millions of dollars at last available report.

Mr. Smith said it was essential

$3,000 is Fee Set To Burn Building

NEW YORK, N. Y. — United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle announced to-day that he had obtained the confession of a professional incendiary who for a fee of $3,000 guaranteed the complete destruction" of a store or shop. Seven merchants whom Mr. Tuttle said Fisentein named as "clients" also faced indictments as a result of the "racket." The total amount of insurance involved was estimated by some newspapers to be $500,000.

LOTTIE NUGENT SHOWED PROFIT IN STOCK DEALS

But Peterborough Girl Held on and Was Wiped Out.

LETTER DELAYED.

Might Have Salvaged Some if Notice Came Earlier.

TORONTO, March 17 (C.P.). — A letter delayed through the time taken to adjust accounts following the taking over of a brokerage firm by an assignee, cost Miss Lottie Nugent over $2,000, and is given as a possible reason for her taking her own life through illuminating gas at her home, 353 Huron Street, a week ago. She was found dead in her room. The chief coroner decided an inquest will not be held.

On March 12, Miss Nugent, who came from Peterborough, received a letter from N. L. Martin, chartered accountants, which notified her that she should pick up stocks from them, to pay a balance of $4,421.27, within six days.

The letter listed the stocks that she should pick up as 100 Mandy, 100 Abana, 2,000 Old Colony, 200 Chemical Research, 1,000 Amulet and 1,500 Nordon.

Had Large Profit.

The stock account of Miss Nugent showed that she had started to dabble in stocks early last year and had paid in a total amount of cash of $3,100. Up to the end of October, she had quite a wide margin of gain, and could have sold. But she held on and in the crash her margin was wiped out and she went into debt.

On January 28, the firm with whom she was dealing went into the hands of an assignee. Had she sold out her holdings at that time she would have had a gain, instead of owing over $4,000. But the fact that the letter reached her March 12, through no fault of the assignee, because it took that time to adjust accounts, she lost over $2,000.

NO PARKING WAR SATURDAY NIGHT CREATES STORM

Augry Motorists Storm Police Station in Response to Summons.

WARNING IS GIVEN.

Parking Areas Outlined—Chief to be Lenient No Longer.

A half hundred Peterborough motorists on Saturday night stormed and eddied about the sergeant's desk in the Police Station. Some were merely surprised and came to learn what it was all about; others were peeved and out-and-out angry and gave vent to their ill-humor with pointed remarks to the officer on duty. Words were tossed back and forth, but the officer calmly straightened matters out. The motorists were advised that the police were going to put teeth in the city's parking by-law.

At the Police Commission Saturday afternoon, Mayor Denne declared that the city's parking laws were being flagrantly broken and that it was next to impossible to drive a car through the business streets on a busy day. He said something must be done about it.

That same evening something was done. Chief Newhall put his whole night staff to the job of checking up on parked cars. Between forty and fifty cars were given tickets, ordering the driver to report immediately at the Police Station. There, the parking bylaw was explained to them.

Huge Grey Wolves Seen at Kingston

KINGSTON, Ont., March 17 (C.P.)—Two large grey wolves were seen loping along the ice of Little Cataraqui Bay last week, only a mile from the city limits.

At this time of year wolves are common in the northern parts of the country, but it is the first time in years they have come so near a city.

Another Hard Blow to Birth Control; "Seven Come Eleven," Hardly but Almost

WHITESBURG, Ky., March 17. (C.P.) — The Chris. Back home must be the end of the route for Mr. Levi Stork, and like all good peddlers he refuses to return home without disposing of all his wares.

Yesterday he lowered the fifteenth bundle of hale, husky humanity down the chimney at the Chris Back home, and the fourteenth and the thirteenth.

Triplets, all boys.

Cause for excitement in any family, but not at the Chris Back home. You see the same thing happened last April. Triplets, then, too, and well and hearty.

Mrs. Back, 37, stands on her record of six children in eleven months, which is the height of something or another.

Five Generations Hold Reunion

The photograph here shows five generations of the Oakley family, who have recently gathered together at 489 Roxton Road, Toronto, for one of their periodic re-unions. From left to right—Jane Gooch, aged 74, born in New York, and married in Toronto, is the great-grandmother of the child in arms; (in rear) Caroline Oakley, daughter of Jane, born in Toronto, grandmother of the baby, who is Neil Marsh Oakley, son of Neil and Isabel Oakley, born 1930 in this city. Neil Charles Oakley, father of the child, and son of Carolina, who resides in Halifax, N.S.; and Jane Bormuth (extreme right front), aged 92 years, born in Belfast, Ireland, coming to America in a sailing vessel in 1842. H. C. Stabler Passed Away Sunday

Second Child Attacked by Police Dog; Thick Clothing Saves Serious Injury

Another police dog has made a savage attack upon a small child. A ten-year-old boy was riding his tricycle on Hunter street in East City on Saturday afternoon, when, without warning a large dog charged madly upon him. The lad was bitten on the thigh, the dog's teeth going through many layers of clothing, which prevented the bite from being serious.

The dog was examined by Dr. T. Johnston, veterinarian, the same day and no indications of madness or rabies were found, but the animal will be kept under strict watch for a period of ten days. The owner stated that the dog had been tied by a chain, but had escaped and this was borne out by the neighbors, who told police of seeing the dog secured in the yard.

SOLLEY FACES SERIOUS COUNT

Appears on Attempted Murder Charge—Remanded Eight Days.

FARMER MAY RECOVER.

LONDON, Ont., March 17. (Canadian Press).—Alexander Herbert Solley, aged 38, a West Nissouri township farm hand was charged with attempted murder in connection with the shooting at midnight of James Henderson, East Nissouri farmer and a former employer, when he appeared in County Court here to-day. Solley was arrested shortly after the shooting.

Henderson's condition remains unchanged to-day and his physicians state he has a slight chanee to recover.

Solley told police he was in love with Henderson's 20-year-old daughter and asked to be allowed to see her before being taken to jail. He was refused permission.

Went to See "Sick Horse"

Solley, according to the Police report, called at the Henderson farm and asked Mr. Henderson to lend him the .22 rifle to shoot a racoon, then he called him out to the barn to "see a sick horse." There Henderson was shot in the back. According to the police Solley went to a neighbor's, where he has been living since he ended his 18 year period of employment with Henderson.

TWO ORDAINED TO PRIESTHOOD

Peterborough Young Men Receive Holy Orders in Rome.

ARE STUDYING THERE.

Two Peterborough young men who have recently completed their theological studies in Rome were on Saturday ordained to the priesthood of the Roman Catholic Church. They are Rev. J. Vincent Masterson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Masterson, 23 Park Street, and Rev. Stephen Coffey, son of the late Mrs. Coffey and of Mr. Coffey, now of Toronto, and formerly of Pearl Avenue, this city.

Interviewed by The Examiner this morning, Mrs. Masterson said she had received word from Rome of the ordination, although details of the ceremony are lacking. Vincent, the eldest of three sons, received his early education at the Sacred Heart School, graduating from there at the age of 11 years and entering St. Peter's High School, after which he studied for two years at St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto. He and Mr. Coffey have been in Rome for the last four years, with the object of entering the priesthood and of later taking their D.D. degrees. The examinations for their degree will be held later in the year after which they will both return home.

Mrs. Masterson was unable to state definitely the date of their arrival in Canada, but thought it would be some time during the coming summer.

Rev. Father Masterson is 23 years old and his two brothers Leo and Herbert are employed in the city.

BRIEF ILLNESS ENDS THE LIFE OF CITY BUILDER

"Harry" Stabler Was Peterborough Resident of Finest Type.

SOUGHT TO SERVE.

An Ideal Employer of Labor and Earnest Churchman.

Henry C. Stabler died on Sunday in his 77th year after a brief illness, and one of the finest characters in the city is now only a memory.

Born in Smith township in the year 1853, the late Mr. Stabler came to this city when 17 years old to learn the carpenter trade, later becoming a building contractor and playing a large part in the growth of Peterborough from a small town to its present status as a thriving industrial city.

He was twice married but had no children of either marriage. His first wife was a Miss Elizabeth Fife of Hastings, and the second wife Mrs. Martha Jane Campbell of this city. Both having passed away some years ago.

Mr. Stabler retired from business twenty-five years ago, since which time he redoubled his efforts in church work. This work was very dear to his heart and his many friends testify to the sincere and lovable nature with which he was abundantly blessed, and which he put into every activity with which he was associated.

He was also secretary of the Charity Board, an office which he held for many years.

The offices he held in George

CORONER HOLDS SECRET AUTOPSY AFTER FUNERAL

Evidence of Medicine Used For Horses Found in Imbecile's Stomach.

ANALYSIS TO BE MADE.

Aged Father Feared For Son After His Own Death—Had Been Nursed 30 Years.

SIMCOE, Ont., March 17. (Canadian Press).—An inquest will be conducted on March 28 into circumstances surrounding the death last Wednesday of Lewis Blakney, aged 35, who has been mentally unbalanced since the age of five.

Funeral services for Blayney were conducted from his home in Cherry Valley last Thursday. The cortege then proceeded to the cemetery chapel where prayers were said and the mourners dispersed, unknowing the casket was never lowered into the grave. Instead the body was returned to a Waterford undertaker's establishment were Dr. E. S. Copeman, performed an autopsy. He reported to have found evidences of a medicine used for animals. This has been sent to Toronto for analysis.

Doctor Refused to Sign

Dr. Copeman, who was the family physician for Walter Blayney, 78, father of the imbecile, said the first he knew of the younger Blayney's death was on Thursday when funeral directors brought him the death certificate to sign. He declined to do this.

Dr. Copeland, according to information received last night, was called to the Blayney farm recently and was told that Walter Blayney was himself in fear of death and that he was anxious about the future welfare of his son Some teeth extractions and the administration of an anaesthetic were talked about, it is said, but the physician left without giving any treatment.

KING PAYS VISIT IN FINE HEALTH TO ART DISPLAY

Court Will Move to Windsor to Buckingham Palace Before Easter.

PREPARE FOR BUSY SEASON.

Possibility of General Election Casts the One Dark Shadow Over Affairs.

LONDON, March 17 (By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent). — "Britain's Sailor King" is now reaping in health the fruits of his training in the navy and of many a day spent hunting in the winds of the great, open moors.

His Majesty yesterday visited the exhibition of the British Institute of Painters. The Queen only had been expected to attend, and the presence of the King, together with Prince George, brought prolonged cheers from thousands of subjects. The King's good health was obvious.

The Court will remain in Buckingham Palace until just before Easter. It will then remove to Windsor and it is expected that Their Majesties will be at Windsor when the twentieth anniversary of their accession to the throne is celebrated on May 5.

Prepare for Social Season

Preparations for the London season are now being pursued vigorously. There are grounds for believing the season will be one of the busiest ones of modern times, and that it will equal most of its forerunners in brilliance. The one dark shadow over the social firmament of the summer is the possibility of a general election.

The most suitable time for an election—should one be held this year—is a matter of much debate. There are several reasons why the Prime Minister is said to be anxious to avoid a mid-summer appeal, yet if he waits until Autumn he is faced with the fact of an Imperial Conference, called for October.

FINED FOR "HIGHGRADING"

HAILEBURY, Ont., March 17. — (C.P.)—Fines of $20; and $100 respectively, with costs in each case of $21, were imposed in Police Court here on Elias Ruismaki and Onni Siro, who pleaded guilty to charges of "highgrading." More than five pounds of silver ore were found in Ruismaki's trunk when it was searched in Cobalt.

WILLIAM AND PAUL MILLER DIE TOGETHER CORONER DECIDES INQUEST UNNECESSARY.

Trapped in Burning House Making Hurried Search For Family Valuables — Both Were Unmarried.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., March 17. — William and Paul Miller, two brothers, resident at Musclow, Monteagle Township, a northern portion of Hastings County, were burned to death early on Saturday morning, according to meagre reports from that district.

Their little home in the bush took fire and after rescuing their aged mother and sister, they were trapped in the burning house when they went back to retrieve some valuables.

The fire started in the roof of the home. Dr. Lumb, coroner of Bancroft, investigated and considered an inquest unnecessary.

The men were bachelors, aged 35 and 38 years and had just recently moved into the neighborhood.

MATZOS BROUGHT IN FOR PASSOVER

Unleavened Bread is Baked in Palestine With Flour From Homeland.

Much Sentiment Attached.

The Jewish community of the city will have Palestinian Matzos for the Passover Feast, which falls on April 13th, according to an announcement from the Zionist organization. Matzos is the unleavened bread which Jews all over the world use during the week of Passover to commemorate the Jewish exodus from Egypt in Biblical times.

The local Zionists have imported a supply of Matzos, baked in Palestine with flour grown on the soil of the Jewish national homeland.

There is an unusual sentiment attached to eating Matzos from Palestine because it is at Passover, more than at any other festival, that the Jew remembers the land of his fathers.

Passover prayers recount the tale of Jewish suffering in Egypt until led out of bondage by Moses. These supplications are also inextricably bound up with the hope that the Jews possess a national homeland.

PETERBOROUGH HEALTH ASSOCIATION

ENGLISH RACER DOES 198 M.P.H. IN PRACTISE RUN

Two Fast Runs Tried Saturday With Beach and Visibility Poor.

DON IS PLEASED.

May Attack Record To-day if Conditions Are Favorable.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Mar. 17. (Canadian Press).—Kaye Don, British contender for the world's automobile speed record, sent his powerful Silver Bullet machine over the ocean speedway here Saturday at a clip of 198 miles per hour in a practice run under poor weather conditions.

The driver, who expects to make an official assault upon the record of 231 miles per hour early this week, put his racer through two fast runs at low tide Saturday afternoon, with the visibility poor and the beach in only fair condition.

On his first trip south down the course, Don reached a speed of approximately 150 miles per hour, and on his return pushed down the accelerator to attain a pace of 201 miles per hour. The official timing apparatus was not set up for the test runs, but Don announced afterward that his tachometer showed those readings.

"The machine handled beautifully and did everything I wanted it to," said the driver, after his car had been towed back to the garage. "I was surprised that it managed so easily. I had not intended to do quite the speed I did, but I could not resist the opportunity to give it a thorough test. The acceleration is terrific, and I am very, very pleased with the whole thing."

Don may shoot at the record today if conditions are favorable.

GANDHI SILENT AS BAND RESTS

Intense Indian Sun Affects Aged Leader—Requires Leg Massages.

BLOOD NO MONEY NEEDED.

ANAND, Bombay, India, March 17 (C.P.).—Mahatma Gandhi, the Indian Nationalist leader, passed to-day in silence as he and his 79 devotees rested from their grueling four days' march in behalf of Indian independence from Ahmadabad to the sea.

The Mahatma has maintained silence one day each week for years, conveying his wishes by means of signs and the written word. It is a self-disciplinary measure the Nationalist leader imposes on himself, and, he insists, to his great benefit.

To-morrow morning he and his procession of fellow Swarajists will continue on their way to Jalapur, on the Bay of Cambay, where in defiance of the British monopoly, they will manufacture salt, thus inaugurating their campaign of civil disobedience to the British Crown.

The intense Indian sun has caused the 61-year-old leader considerable discomfort during the long marches. It was necessary here to revive him by cold compresses applied to his head, while his legs were massaged with ointment.

Addressing villagers at his last resting place, prior to reaching here, he said: "Money alone will not win independence. If money could win I should have secured it long ago. What is required therefore is your blood."

TEN FOR ONE IS HAWKER'S BOAST

Farm Produce in Plentiful Supply on Local Market Saturday Morning.

A conjurer with a hoarse voice and a mystic charm offered to change one dollar bills into tens on the market Saturday morning. He had a large crowd of watchers, who eventually purchased some of his keen-edged razors.

Maple syrup ran freely on the market. Several vendors had it for sale at 70 cents a quart.

Potatoes were generally priced at $2.10 a bag, with one dealer holding out for $2.25.

Hay was $18 a load, apples 35 to 60 cents a peck and pork 20 and 22 cents a pound. Live Barred Rock fowl were selling at $2 apiece.

In the basket section, eggs were priced at 28 to 30 cents a dozen, butter at 40 cents a pound, cream at 30 cents a quart and chickens at 35 cents a pound, with hens at 30 cents.

Mahatma Gandhi, Indian revolutionist and mystic, who, with 70 volunteers, commenced a dramatic march to Jalapur to open a campaign of civil disobedience to the British Government.

LIQUOR EXPORT BILL TOPS LIST

Expected to be Ready for Senate by the Time That Body Reconvenes.

DIVORCE TO RE-APPEAR.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 17 (C.P.)—With the bill to amend the Export Act in order to stop liquor clearance on shipments destined to the United States, already adopted in principle by the House of Commons when it passed second reading without a division on Friday night, speedy progress on the measure is expected this week. The bill is now before the House in committee, where it is to be considered clause by clause. The bill has only a preamble and three clauses which are not of a construction likely to cause much contention. Unless it meets unexpected obstacles, it will have received third reading and gone on to the Senate by the time that body reconvenes on March 25. The interest in this important and more or less international question will then shift to the Upper Chamber.

Next in interest to the liquor clearances is the question of divorce. The House of Commons last week defeated the bill sponsored by J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg) by the slender majority of one vote. This bill would have made it possible to inaugurate a divorce court in Ontario. William Irvine (U.F.A., Wetaskiwin) will give notice of motion to have the bill put back on the order paper to stand again for second reading. This is expected to bring on another close and exceedingly interesting division in the House this week.

Debate Continues

The debate on the amendments to the motion to go into supply which has already taken up most of the time of several sittings of the House has not yet been concluded. It constitutes a drive on the part of the Conservatives against the application of the Australian trade agreement to New Zealand.

There has never been a direct trade agreement between Canada and New Zealand but the advantages extended to Australia by a trade agreement with Canada were also made to apply to New Zealand by an Order-in-Council passed by the Canadian Government. This allowed New Zealand butter to enter Canada under a one-cent-a-pound duty instead of four cents, the general tariff. The Conservatives claim this is ruining the dairy industry in this country. They want steps to be taken at once to rescind the Order in Council. The Government agrees that steps will be taken as soon as possible to negotiate a new agreement with New Zealand but insists that no change be made in the existing arrangements until a pact has been decided upon.

FARMER'S WIFE IS ARRESTED ON CRUELTY CHARGE

Mrs. Earl Gould Denies Scrubbing Young Girl's Back With Lye.

HUSBAND KNOWS NOTHING.

Woman Will Appear March 21—Allowed Out on Bail.

SIMCOE, Ont., March 17 (Canadian Press). — Arrest of Mrs. Earl Gould, of anessa, was effected over the week-end by Provincial Police. She was charged with doing bodily harm in connection with Anne Matthews, 16-year-old domestic, who is in a hospital here frightfully bruised from head to foot and with severe burns on her back caused by lye.

Mrs. Gould was admitted to bail before Magistrate Gunton. The bond was furnished by her husband, and she will appear for preliminary hearing before the Magistrate on March 21.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Rodwell, of Waterford, with whom the homeless girl sought refuge when life at the Gould home became unbearable, stated the girl was in a terrible condition when they took her into their home. She had left the Gould home and staggered eight miles over the railroad ties to the Rodwell home, where she had been employed for two years.

Nerves Bad.

Mrs. Gould stated her nerves had been the sole cause of the occurrences at home. "Anne was a good girl," she said, "and we treated her as one of the family. She stole some things though, and I told her I was going to write to Mr. Carter of the Children's Aid Society about it. She begged me not to, so I didn't."

Mrs. Gould denied having scrubbed the girl's back with lye. "Oh no, I never did that," she protested, "but I did pour some lye water over her."

She stated she was willing to do anything within her power to make amends. Mr. Gould, husband of the woman, and prosperous farmer of the district, said he knew nothing about the treatment suffered by the girl.

TO-DAY IS DEAR TO SONS OF ERIN

Memories and Associations of Emerald Isle Awakened in Thousands of Hearts.

1,557TH ANNIVERSARY.

To-day is according to the best Irish hagiographic authorities, the 1557th anniversary of St. Patrick, the patron saint of the Emerald Isle, dear to every Irish heart, and to none dearer than to the son or daughter of Ireland living away from its shores.

It is therefore no surprise that the day and the memorie sit awakens, the suggestions it suggests, and the things it represents should be sacredly and fondly cherished by every Irishman and Irish woman.

This observation is natural, indeed laudable, and quite consistent with the most patriotic loyalty to the land, which for the time being is home and dwelling place. A man's affection for his dear old mother does not antagonize his love springing from any other tie, even that of husband and wife. It only ennobles and sanctifies it. While Canada, the best home under the sun is dear to those whose native or adopted hime it is, still Ireland is dear to Irishmen as the land of their birth and ancestry. It is dear for the memory of its fertile soil, its landscape green as the primal slopes of Eden, its waters bright as crystal. It is dear to the Irish heart for its history—as the centre of missionary enterprise, whence radiated the light of Christianity, illuminating not only the British Isles, but many of the dark places of Europe, with a persistence and potent influence which has made Ireland its centre, one of the most religious countries in the world, whether one has regard to the stern Presbyterianism of the north, or the more warm and soul-steeping piety of the south. Though the streams from the central fount have widely diverged in form if not in broad, vital essentials, it does not seem extravagant to ascribe the deeply religious character of the Irish race as a whole to the plain, primative Gospel planted by the first Bishop of Ireland.

It may be regarded as unwarrantable to say that no section of Ireland, territorially or otherwise, has a monopoly of interest in St. Patrick, as Ireland's patron saint; but who, in view of what St. Patrick has done to make Ireland what it is, will deny to every Irishman, whether he be of Antrim or Cork, a right to claim an interest in St. Patrick. In no country in the world, outside the bounds of Erin can Irishmen, though different creeds and religious impulses warm the same blood, unite more justly than in Canada, where the most flourishing material conditions obtain and the most perfect equality of civil and religious liberty exists. "All praise to St Patrick" and "Erin go Bragh."

Groom Takes Sick: Wedding is Failure

LONDON, March 17 (C.P.) — For more than an hour on Saturday anxious relatives waited for the appearance of O. K. Barclay, at the home of the bride-to-be where a minister was ready to solemnize the marriage of the couple. No one could locate the bridegroom, so the wedding ceremony was postponed

Later in the afternoon the bridegroom arrived at his home, the victim of amnesia and complete nervous breakdown. He was unable to remember what had occurred and could give no explanation of his condition. He is under the care of a physician, and the marriage has been delayed pending his recovery.

FINAL TRIBUTE TO COL. BARKER

Funeral of Canada's Great Airman Expresses Nation's Sorrow.

MEMORABLE SCENE.

TORONTO, Ont., March 17 (Canadian Press). — The years faded, the war returned with its heart-throbs, its sadness, and its exaltation as Lieut.-Colonel W. G. Barker, V.C., one of Canada's wartime aces, was buried here on Saturday. The funeral was a mighty scene. Thousands upon thousands of people lined the route and thousands were moved to sobs as they watched the passing of a soldier's bier and heard the slow, sonorous strain of the Dead March in "Saul."

Six planes droned overhead dropping the petals of roses. Fifty airmen from Camp Borden headed the cortege, marching with arms reversed, and the grief of comrades on their faces. A firing party and the band of the Toronto Scottish Regiment followed, and after them the coffin. It was draped in the Union Jack and carried on an aircraft tender and trailer.

Immediately after the coffin came five men, who like Colonel Barker had won the V.C., the Empire's supreme award for valor. They were R. M. Geary, V.C., Thomas Holmes, V.C., W. R. Rayfield, V.C., Colin Barron, V.C., and E. H. Robson, V.C.

It was a two-mile procession Officers and men were there from the Toronto Garrison, the Canadian Machine Gun Corps, and there were representatives of at least a score of regiments. The Province was represented by the Lieutenant-Governor, the Hon. W. D. Ross, and by Premier Ferguson and members of the Cabinet. The Dominion Cabinet was represented by the Hon. James Malcolm, and the Hon. Dr. J. H. King. Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, Chief of the Canadian General Staff, attended on behalf of the Department of National Defence, and Major-General R. C. Ashton and Colonel Claude H. Hill represented the local Military District.

Fifty thousand persons stood in tribute, lining block after block. Barker to them meant the heroic youth of Canada who fought and flew, taking their chances, day after day, gay and uncomplaining, during the tense years of war. He had survived countless conflicts and had brought down more than fifty planes of the foe, yet he was doomed to die in peace time, though he died in his element—the air.

The slow and stately cortege came to the cemetery. The comrades of the famous airman took his flag-draped coffin upon their shoulders, and slowly mounted the steps leading to the mausoleum. The Air Force men shouldered their rifles, and three volleys spoke. A bugle sounded, and with its last notes came the rattle of musketry in the "present arms."

Out of a sunny, cloudless sky came a plane, flying close to earth to rain rose petals on the coffin. With a great whirr it droned away, its duty done.

The spell was broken. The crowds began to dissolve. Traffic, stopped for more than an hour, resumed its way. It was over. Canada had buried her Barker, but a gallant soul lives on.

AGED COUNTESS TAKEN BY DEATH

Will Be Buried Beside Her Husband, Earl of Coventry, Who Died Four Years Ago.

MARRIED 65 YEARS.

LONDON, March 17. — (Canadian Press).—Death of the Countess of Coventry yesterday four days after the decease of her husband, the ninth Earl of Coventry, awakened sympathetic emotions not only among her friends but among the public.

It was more than a coincidence that the aged lady—she was 87—followed her husband so speedily. Within an hour of her bereavement she was saying: "I do not wish to live any longer" and took to bed almost at once with evident consciousness that her wish would be granted.

She was not ill, her physicians said; she merely lost the will to live since she was separated finally from the man whose companion she had been for 65 years. Their mutual friendliness long had been a matter of remark in their social circles.

"Always try to appreciate one another's point of view and never quarrel" the Earl gave recently as the golden rule of a happy married life. Both seemed to find it easy to follow.

They are being buried to-day side by side in the family vault at Croome Court, Worcester.

PRIMO DE RIVERA SUCCUMBS ALONE DURING HIS EXILE

Sudden Heart Attack Strikes Great Spaniard in His Paris Hotel.

HAND STRETCHED FOR HELP

Had Planned to Leave for Germany the next day—Diabetic Sufferer.

PARIS, March 17 (C.P.)—Muguel Primo de Rivera Y Orbaneja, Marques De Estella; Spanish Grandee and for seven years Dictator of Spain, died yesterday in the modest Latin quarter hotel where in the eighteen-nineties he spent what he always considered th happiest days of his life as a student at the Sorbonne.

The former Dictator was stricken by an affection of the heart and died alone in his room at 11 a.m., less than seven weeks after relinquishing the supreme power in Spain.

Death broke his voluntary and temporary exile in Paris with the rapidity of a stroke of lightning. Primo's hand was stretched forth to reach an electric button to summon his valet. His broken reading-glasses lay beside him.

May Have Had Premonition

Perhaps the former Distator had a premonition of impending death, for as he kissed his daughters Carmen and Pilar early yesterday, he said, "Very well, go attend Mass. I feel much better and am going to dress, but be sure not to return too late."

Mindful of his request, the young women went to his room on returning from church and found him lying dead.

He died on the very eve of his departure for Wiesbaden, Germany, where he was going to take the cure for diabetes.

BUFFALO ARTIST IS UNDER GUARD

Letters Reveal Affection For Indian Woman Held For Wife's Murder.

THREATENS TO TAKE LIFE.

BUFFALO, N.Y., March 17 (C.P.)—Lodged in jail as a material witness in the case involving the slaying of his wife by two women who are charged with murder, Henri Marchand, artist of the Buffalo Museum, was being closely guarded last night in the Erie County Jail after he twice had threatened suicide.

After Justice Thomas K. Noonan of the Supreme Court had set bail at $25,000, Marchand was transferred from a cell at police headquarters to the county jail.

The latest development in the case came with surprising suddenness yesterday when three letters Marchand wrote to Lila Jimerson, one of the principals in the case, were revealed to the District Attorney. Scrutiny of the letters indicated warmth of affection between Marchand and the Jimerson woman, authorities held.

Marchand then was brought from his studio in the museum to Moore's office, where the questioning began. Toward the last of the conference Marchand suddenly shrieked, "I'll kill myself, I'll kill myself," his words being heard through the corridors of the City Hall's second floor.

DOCTOR'S TIMELY ADVICE ENDS THREATENING COLD

People Here Find Hospital Method Pleasant for Home Use—Relief Surprisingly Quick

Choosing the quickest way to end colds is no longer mere guess work in vast numbers of Peterborough homes. For hospital physicians have named the best of different widely used methods tested for head colds, coughs, and chest colds — in extreme hospital cases as well as in home use.

Miss Ruth Curtis, for example, was treated for a severe cold which started in her head and began spreading rapidly. Taking a tip from a doctor whose office was across the hall, she began to fight the cold with a pleasant spoonful of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral every 15 minutes for the first hour or so, then once every hour. Relief began with the first pleasant dose of this hospital certified remedy. By night she was able to sleep comfortably without coughing or forcible breathing. By morning her temperature had been reduced from 100 degrees to normal. Examination showed that Ayer's Pectoral had cleared up all trace of the threatening cold.

Cases reported daily in this paper by the attending physician show that Ayer's Pectoral gives surprisingly quick relief—then rapidly drives out the cold. Pectoral is featured by A. G. Harris and all Peterborough druggists.

USES TIE TO TAKE LIFE.

TORONTO, Ont., March 17. — (C.P.).—William A. Stewart, 24, of Fergus, hanged himself with a neck tie Saturday night in a cell of a local police station. He was found by a policeman in a dying condition. On arrival at a hospital he was dead. He had been arrested a few hours previously on a charge of breach of the Ontario Liquor Control Act.

SLOAN HANGS MAY 20

SYDNEY, N.S., March 17.—Emmett Sloan, self-styled bond salesman of Montreal, was last week sentenced to be hanged on May 20 for the murder of Blois Rehmberg, who died from injuries received at the hands of Sloan on February 8 last. Sloan was sentenced to death by Judge Ross. He was convicted of the murder on March 6.

"—with all his worldly goods"

HERE, in this old strong-box, so long guarded and locked, is his "estate" . . . the "worldly goods" which he has bequeathed to her.

One by one her adviser takes out the temptingly engraved certificates and examines them. One by one he lays them down with a sorrowful shake of the head—

Slowly the truth dawns upon her. Those wonderful purchases that were to make them rich . . . independent. These speculations that were to lead them to fortune . . . many of them now are WORTHLESS!

But at the bottom of the box there lies an unpretentious document, which suddenly she recollects. It cannot have depreciated. It must still be safe and sure . . .

She reaches in and draws forth his Life Insurance Policy.

Amid the wreckage of thousands of estates, Life Insurance stands as the final and enduring refuge in time of need.

It is the one investment no man can afford to be without.

PAPER READ ON AGRICULTURE

Havelock Junior Institute Holds Regular Monthly Meeting.

DISTRICT NEWS.

HAVELOCK, March 17. (Examiner Correspondence)—The regular meeting of Havelock Junior Institute was held at the home of Edna Haig, Wednesday evening, March 12. A large number of members were present, the president, Miss Johnston in the chair. A communication from the district convenor on agriculture was read, and on motion Miss Longmuir was appointed branch convenor on agriculture.

Mrs. Coates who had been invited to become a member of the Junior organization, was present at the meeting, and having been asked to see about a play, to be put on by the society at a future date came prepared to talk the matter over with the girls. No play was definitely decided on but two were chosen as suitable for the number in the society who would likely be willing to take part. One of these will likely be definitely decided on later. A committee was appointed to act in conjunction with Mrs. Coates in selecting the play.

While the girls meeting was in progress, the Junior Agricultural Society, the boys organization meeting, was being held in another room. Hugh Buchanan is president and presided at the meeting. There was a large turnout of the membership on this occasion, probably on account of current rumors that an extra good program was to be given. In the absence of the Secretary, Austin Wilde, the president appointed J. R. Bedford, secretary pro tem. Minutes of previous meeting were read and approved.

Seed Testing

The members were notified that in order to improve the quality of seed, the department will test any seeds submitted free of charge. Those wishing to avail themselves of this offer are to leave a cup of their grain with the secretary, or forward to the Department of Agriculture. The idea is to improve the quality of grain, especially wheat, grown in Ontario. The matter of the expenses of the delegates to Cobourg came up for discussion, and on motion it was decided that the society pay expenses. These were not official delegates, but had given a fine report of the convention, so the boys decided their expenses should be paid. The president and secretary were appointed a delegation to Peterborough, with expenses paid, for the purpose of arranging for debates with other branches of the organization.

A letter was read from the Department of Agriculture regarding the judging competitions to be held this summer at Keene. The boys were urged to compete in these competitions.

It was moved by Wm. Longmuir and Harold McQuigge that Donald Buchannan be appointed to wait on the Belmon Council, and ask free use of the Belmont Town Hall for the society's meeting. An amendment by C. McMullen and B. Keene that Isaac Anderson be added to that committee.—(Carried).

Moved by Grant Seeney, seconded by Carmen McMullen, that Jr. R. Bedford and William Longmuir be appointed to act on refreshment committee for next meeting.—(Carried).

The business being concluded, the two societies merged for the social side of the evening, and the following program was much enjoyed. This is the first program of the series of which the winners are to be treated by the two losing groups.

Opening chorus, "Tip Toe Through the Tulips", Group one.

Piano duett, "Sleigh Ride", Edna Haig and Jean Anderson.

Playlet, "Taking the Census", Harold McQuigge, census man; Alma Martin, housewife; Harry Anderson, J. R. Bedford and Wm. Longmuir, children.

This is an exceedingly funny little sketch, and the volubility of the housewife and the gawky makeup and actions of her children, excited a great deal of laughter

Trio, instrumental and vocal, "Sleepy Valley", Miss Jean Anderson, Messrs. Harry Anderson and Fred Bennett.

Reading, "Irish Superstitions" Miss Alme Martin.

Chorus, "And Still They Fall in Love", Group one.

Mrs. Coates and Mrs. Hubel, president of the Women's Institute, were the two judges, appointed to judge the three programs, and if the standard is maintained by the other groups they will have to hustle. A pop corn scramble and friendly chat brought the delightful evening to a close.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, March 17. — Wheat snapped back on Saturday after continued recessions and marked up gains of 1¼ to 1½ cents for the day. Evidently improved export demand brought about a better state of conditions on the Winnipeg Exchange. Pit trade was fairly active and most of the business was done at higher levels, despite a fractional opening decline.

Shippers entered the cash wheat market, bringing with them improved demand. Cash interest in coarse grain was confined to oats and low grade barley for the East.

Cash prices—

Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.02½; No. 1 Northern, $2.02¾; No. 2 Northern, 99¾c; No. 3 Northern, 95¾c; No. 4 Northern, 90¾c; No. 5 Northern, 84¾c; No. 6 Northern, 65¾c; feed, 54¾c; track, $1.02¾c; screenings, $5.00 per ton.

Oats—No. 2 C.W., 51¾c; No. 3 C.W., 43¾c; extra No. 1 feed, 43¾c; No. 1 feed, 41¾c; No. 2 feed, 39¾c; rejected, 35¾c; track, 46½c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, March 17. — Lower prices in butter, eggs and potatoes featured last week's Monteal produce markets. Potatoes dropped 10 to 20 cents a bag, eggs 2 cents a dozen and butter ¼ cent a pound. The cheese market continued steady and poultry prices were unchanged.

New Brunswick Green Mountain potatoes were quoted at from $1.40 to —per 90 pounds in bulk, in car lots ex-track here. Trading was dull and supplies plentiful.

Eggs ranged from 36 cents a dozen for fresh specials to 30 cents for fresh seconds. Wholesale butter quotations averaged 33¼ cents a pound. To the retail trade solids were 37 cents and prints 38 cents a pound. Cheese was steady at 19c to 19½c a pound for Westerns, and 18½c to 18¾c for Easterns.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 17.—Sharp upturns in corn prices Saturday, resulting largely from sudden curtailment of receipts, did much to rally the wheat market and counter-balance early wheat losses. Reports that Kansas, the banner wheat State, had failed to receive more than a few showers counted also as an offset to previous advices indicating that drought dangers to the winter wheat crop southwest had practically been averted. Buying support from farm board allies was likewise effective in rescuing the wheat market from declines.

Closing quotations on corn were strong at nearly the day's top level, 1-2c to 5-8c above Saturday's finish. Wheat closed irregular, varying from 1-2c net decline to ¼c advance, with oats ½c to ¾c up and provisions showing a 7c to 30c drop.

WAS IN RUNDOWN CONDITION

Thanks Bon-Tone for Quick Relief

MRS. A. KIDNEY

"A few months ago," states Mrs. Agnes Kidney, 285 Waverley Road, Toronto, Ont., "I started to go all to pieces physically. I guess my system was all rundown. My blood didn't circulate properly and my limbs continually went to sleep and I would have to exercise them to restore circulation. I suffered with very severe headaches most of the time. My nerves were terribly weak and nights I felt worse and the pain from those dizzy headaches was almost unbearable. My stomach was out of order and gas would form after eating and crowd around my heart and make me feel miserable in general. I tried about everything in search of relief but with no luck and as a last resort I started taking Bon-Tone. Although so far I have only taken three bottles I am beginning to enjoy life once more. My stomach trouble is entirely corrected and I enjoy my meals now as my food digests as it should and doesn't form gas. My nerves are stronger and my blood circulates now as it should. I am not troubled with those awful headaches and in fact each day I feel better and stronger than the previous one. I am keeping on with Bon-Tone as I believe it is a great mistake to stop taking a medicine just as soon as it gives you results—I shall continue a while longer and believe my troubles will be permanently banished."

Will your body stand the strain? Build up with Bon-Tone. Lay a foundation for Health! With every dose of Bon-Tone you take, your body derives the benefit of fourteen of Mother Nature's roots, leaves, barks and berries. Bon-Tone sets your bodily machinery in motion.

WEDDING BELLS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, March 17. — A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Scriver, on Wednesday evening, March 12th, when Violet Clarine, youngest daughter of O. A. The bride's only attendant was little Miss Betty Spooner, who acted as flower girl and was dressed in pink silk net and crepe, and carrying a basket of spring flowers. The death of Mrs. David Ward took place at her home on the morning of March 7, in her eighty-eighth year. The late Mrs. Ward had been failing in health for some time prior to her death although she was only three weeks confined to her bed when death took place. She had resided all her life in this community and therefore enjoyed the respect of a host of friends. A woman of sterling character and loyal friendship she died a Christian death because she lived a Christian life. She was a staunch adherent of the Presbyterian faith and at the time of her death she was a sixty-seven year old member of St. Peter's Presbyterian church.

The funeral service was held from her late residence on Saturday morning, and was conducted by her minister, Rev. T. G. Marshall. Interment was made in Lakeview cemetery.

Her death is mourned by her step daughter, Mrs. Sharpe, Madoc, as well as other relatives and a wide circle of friends.

Among other things puzzling the state department girls are the knee-length leggings worn by the well-dressed British woman office worker as a protection against the cold and slush. The American trim, silk-sheathed ankle and a bit more, has not yet bowed to the elements.

TORTURED BY ARTHRITIS

Montreal War Veteran's Terrible Ordeal

BUT KRUSCHEN BROUGHT RELIEF

Here is a dramatic story of how a Canadian War Veteran underwent the terrible tortures of Arthritis and Neuritis. Faced by a lifetime of agony he tried Kruschen on the advice of a friend. Relief came from the first bottle—but read his own story:—

244, St. James Street, Montreal.

"I have been a great sufferer with Neuritis and Arthritis since the late Great War and I have suffered tortures. I was recommended by a friend of mine some time ago to try Kruschen Salts and the first bottle did me the world of good. I have been taking it continually and I am glad to say that now I am able to get to my work in comfort. No sufferer should be without Kruschen Salts. They are a boon and a blessing to all and worth their weight in gold. I strongly recommend them to all sufferers." F. J. FIELD.

Arthritis and Neuritis—like Rheumatism—are caused by excess deposits of Uric-Acid crystals in the body. Kruschen is Uric Acid's deadliest foe. These wonderful Salts contain Uric Acid solvents—which dissolve the painful crystals and sweep them from the body. Furthermore, Kruschen prevents them from forming again. That is why Rheumatism and allied complaints cannot exist in the system which gets the "little daily dimeful."

FREE TRIAL OFFER

If you have never tried Kruschen—try it now at our expense. We have distributed a great many special "GIANT" packages which make it easy for you to prove our claim for yourself. Ask your druggist for the new "GIANT" 75c. package.

ON THE RIGHT TRACK.

The warning of the local Fish and Game Association that residents who buy bass, maskinonge or pickerel will be prosecuted is timely and necessary.

It is self-evident that if there were no market for the sale of these fish there would be far less illegal fishing, and the association is wise in striking at the people who buy game or semi-game fish in defiance of the law and of the damage they are causing to the fishing resources of this district by their encouragement of law-breaking fishermen.

Probably many persons guilty of this offence have never stopped to think that they themselves as well as the seller are liable to be heavily fined, and the announcement of the association's decision to prosecute all offenders may do much to remedy the situation.

All sportsmen and all citizens who recognize the value of the fishing in this district as a tourist-puller should support the local organization in its campaign of conservation, the success of which means much to everybody.

That support can best be given by an unanimous refusal to purchase district-caught fish, thus wiping out the local market for illegal sales and removing the incentive that is responsible for the greater part of the illegal fishing that threatens the destruction of our fishery reserves.

THE SALE OF NATIVE WINE.

An Indian resident of Peterborough County called at The Examiner office on Saturday to complain that the new regulation providing for the sale of native wine only under permit would deprive the Indians of this Province of the privilege, he said, they have been exercising of securing this beverage from the wineries or wine shops.

If, as this complainant alleges, Indians have hitherto had no difficulty in securing plentiful supplies of native wine that condition furnishes another powerful argument for the placing of Ontario wine under control.

Our laws are supposed to prohibit the sale of intoxicants to Indians; yet here we have an Indian declaring that his people, presumably ever since the introduction of the Ontario Temperance Act, have been able to secure, without any restrictions, a wine with a very high alcoholic content.

The amendment introduced by the Attorney-General, which has had its second reading, will, of course, put a stop to this practice, for henceforth native wine will be sold only to permit-holders and Indians are not permitted to secure permits.

On this account, as well as because it puts a very powerful beverage under the same control as other intoxicants, the new measure is a very important step toward better conditions.

It should be welcomed, not only by temperance advocates, but by those who believe in the liquor control system and want it to be given a fair chance.

WHY NOT GIVE THE FACTS?

The suggestion has been brought forward frequently that the annual report of the Liquor Control Board should disclose what portion of the sales for the year were made to tourists in order that a naccurate idea might be obtained of the amount of money spent by Ontario people on liquor.

There is a widespread feeling that the amount purchased on non-resident permits is out of proportion to the actual number of such permits, and that the thousands of visitors who flock into this Province each summer are responsible for a large percentage of Ontario's liquor bill.

This impression will be strengthened by the second annual report of the New Brunswick Liquor Control Board, which shows that 65 per cent. of the sales were made in the tourists months of the year—justifying the conclusion that the purchases made by visitors were accountable for the difference between the totals for the summer months and those of the rest of the year.

There does not seem to be any reason worth bothering about why the Ontario Liquor Control Board should not be instructed to give each year the amount of sales made on resident and non-resident permits respectively.

The information would be of value and interest to the people of this Province, and its publication surely could not produce any injurious effect.

It is difficult to understand the persistent refusal of the Ontario Government to furnish data on this and other aspects of the Government sale of liquor.

LIQUOR EXPORTS.

Despite predictions that the Opposition would oppose the Premier's bill to stop liquor clearances to the United States, the measure has passed its second reading without division.

The only attack made by Hon. R. B. Bennett, the Conservative leader, was on the ground that the Government had been unnecessarily slow in deciding to bring in its legislation.

However that may be, the majority of Canadians will approve of the attitude now taken, regarding it as a movement that relieves this country the odium of the charge that we are partners with rum-runners in a conspiracy to defeat the laws of the United States.

We will lose a few million dollars of revenue as a result, Sir Henry Drayton and the Liquor Control Board will have a difficult task in keeping supplies out of the hands of would-be rum-runners, and so far as helping to dry up the United States goes the new policy may be a complete failure, but the one big fact remains—that the legislation restores to the Canadian people their self-respect.

Whether or not our neighbors would have adopted a similar attitude under the same set of circumstances—a point raised by those opposed to the change—is another matter; we at least have done the right thing, the decent thing, the neighborly thing—and Canadians generally should feel the better on account of it.

"The old fear of big business is passing," says a distinguished economist. That's true! What people now fear is bigger business. — New Orleans Times Picayune.

INDIVIDUAL INDIFFERENCE.

The chief thing that sincere political leaders have to combat is individual indifference to public affairs. When the people are keenly interested in any subject and when the great proportion of them take the time and trouble to study a matter and cast their ballots, democratic institutions are safe. When, however, the public grows so careless that only a small minority figure in the voting records, then almost anything may happen. A comparatively small group of voters, with a real interest in so doing, can take advantage of a situation of this kind and actually "put over" projects or ideas that may be against the public interest and that may not represent well-considered public opinion at all. This is the thing that must be guarded against. This is the thing that cannot happen when public interest in matters political—federal, provincial and municipal—is well sustained. That is why, as we have said, it is so encouraging to note the efforts that are being made to stimulate political interest, particularly among the young men to whom we must look to guide public affairs a few years hence. We use the term "young men" advisedly because the fact remains that though they have the vote, women in general are not nearly as interested in public affairs as are the men. Around election time, of course, one finds women, old and young, actively participating in campaign work. Ordinarily, however, it appears that the average woman is not greatly interested, and this is not to be wondered at when one remembers that universal suffrage came into being only a few short years ago and that it is still far from being a world-wide fact. Not for one moment, of course, do we suggest that women's political organizations should not be formed. Some of them are already in existence and doing good work, and we hope that there will be many more of them. For many years to come, though, it is likely that the responsibility of political leadership will rest with the men. Certainly this is the indication now. —Border Cities Star.

IN PRAISE OF SPECULATION.

By and large, no one is taking a chance just now. That's why business is slow.

The moralists and the politicians have had their way. They have for the moment slain speculation. Stock prices back and fill. Commodity prices just back. Business lags.

There is a direct relationship between the death of speculation and the sickness of business.

Wheat and cotton prices would be higher to-day if the speculators, who usually carry the crop, had put their usual billions in it this year. Prices would not have dropped so giddily had there been the usual wicked bears in the pit, covering their winning bets.

But we have slain the speculator in commodities. Congress has bedeviled and frightened him. The Farm Board is in the market. And while many a wheat trader and cotton trader has the nerve of John W. Gates, he just won't buck the Treasury and Senate.

In Wall Street the Federal Reserve Bank has slain the dragon speculation. It proposes to keep him dead, so the board hesitates to cut its discount rate further, delays pumping money into the market by purchase of bills and securities.

Well, if we may be so bold, a little bull market in stocks right now would be endurable. General business would perk up again under its influence. The stock market used to be the barometer of business. It is more than that now; it is an essential tool of business. Business is financed largely by the stock market to-day.

Beyond all this: speculation is a creative force in American business. This country was discovered, explored, conquered, developed, by men who took a chance. We are a venturesome people. We make prodigious bets—that a streak of rails from coast to coast will pay. It did. That people will buy a new toy, the radio. They did. That Florida lots and Iowa farms will go up forever. They didn't. And so on.

Was Mr. Couzens investing or speculating when he put a little money into Henry Ford's dream? Was A. T. & T. investing cautiously when it bought Lee De Forest's funny little three-element vacuum tube?

"But," says the moralist, "these things are constructive; these are not the same thing as betting that wheat will go up a cent a bushel, or steel stock a dollar a share."

We are not so sure about the distinction, but let that pass. The point we want to make is that you cannot have the one without the other. We want the kind of man who will make business bets. We must have him. Well, then, we must let him bet.

An orgy of gambling like the one that ended in October, does immeasurable harm. Excess is always evil. We know all the arguments against wild bull markets on the scale that sucks in the scrubwoman and the bank clerk. We have pointed them out, and forcefully, we think. We exhorted the business man to take his eyes off the ticker and focus them on his job. We subtract no word from all that sound advice.

But an orgy of conservatism, is, perhaps, worse. Controlled, and it can be controlled, in its place, and it has a place, speculation in stocks, in wheat, in cotton, in what you please, is important to the health of business.

It would be well to let down the bars a bit, and quickly.—The Business Week.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The worst feature about the battle of statistics over the wheat situation is that while it goes on Canada is selling no wheat.

The Canadian Gladiolus Society is offering prizes for the best Canadian seedlings, and suggest as names those of four well-known knighted Canadians. Evidently the society is indifferent in regard to support from the Toronto Star.

The Detroit Free Press says with considerable truth that some of the wets talk as though they had several drinks and some of the drys talk as though they needed them.

Provincial raids on the Dominion Budget have all failed to reach their objective. The Budget might as well be brought down and thus give the members something new to talk about.

Quebec and Ontario maple sugar producers are not likely to find anything sweet in the fact that the United States Senate has refused to reconsider its decision making a 100 per cent. increase on maple sugar and maple syrup.

A Montreal firm has contracted to buy 250,000 tons of Russian coal. It is a pity that Canadian money should be sent over to keep Russians at work when it could be used to provide employment for Canadians.

It's a great comfort to go back to the home town and find out your old chums haven't done so well, either. —Life.

A Thought

LONELINESS

Alone we live; alone we suffer and die, and sympathy can avail us as little as hate. Your sympathy is powerless to avert one pang of the pain which tears me, for sympathy is but the stretching of hands across an impasable gulf. Even love resembles less the blending of clouds upon the blue, than the sad vigil of neighboring stars. We are companions one to another, we are affected by the nearness or distance of the loved one, but never, ah! never do we touch.

What To-day Means To You

"PISCES."

If March 17th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to noon, from 4 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. and from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. The danger periods are from 6 a.m. to 8 a.m., and from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m.

There will be an acceleration of activities on this date, and things will move forward at a rapid pace. It should be a memorable day for sports. There will be considerable travel—mostly of a business nature.

The child born on this March 17th should be able to pass a high intelligence test at an early age. It will be highly strung and nervous and should not be pushed in its work or studies. It will have sufficient talent to pursue an artistic career.

You have an extraordinary nature in your reactions to things. There is no one who chould be "bigger," braver or sweeter tempered in time of trouble and storm. At such times you should up at your very best—not then do you grumble and fret, you are in your element, and all your reserve forces are in action. When you are up against things, you do not allow your spirits to drop, you "buck up" and you stimulate others to do the same.

You are not, however, so pleasing as a fair weather companion. When there is peace and calm, you become bored with everybody and everything, and you grouse over trifles. When you are travelling at full sail, you are inclined to be a rather arrogant and indifferent friend and associate. You cannot be depended upon to be the same both to-day and to-morrow. Success is your undoing, and praise and flattery are inclined to give you a "swelled head." Presumptious and obstinate actions are often your undoing.

It may be almost said that you never worry, and you do not suffer from many forms of fear. You are a born gambler with your life and you take many chances. Luck is usually with you, but it does not always accompany you on your voyages of adventure. Experience will be your best teacher.

THE GREENE MURDER CASE

By S. S. VAN DINE

The Story thus far:

Philo Vance, with a hobby for solving mysteries, becomes interested in the Greene murders from District Attorney John F. X. Markham and Sergeant Ernest Heath, of the Homicide Bureau are called in after the fatal shooting of Julia Greene and the wounding of her younger sister, Ada. Old Tobias Greene had been dead about twelve years, and left his fortune to his widow, a helpless paralytic, on the stipulation that she occupy the old Greene mansion with five children, Julia, Chester, Sibella, Rex and Ada, an adopted daughter, for twenty-five years. Dr. Von Blon, the Greene family physician, phoned headquarters about midnight, and Heath responded, finding the two women, one dead and the other unconscious—both shot. Snow had fallen during the early night and a set of footprints besides Dr. Von Blon's led to and from the front door of the Greene mansion. Vance had questioned Chester Greene, the servants, old Mrs. Greene, as well as Sibella and Ada. The latter, says that she woke in the dark, and although she heard nothing, felt a presence in her room, and when she rose encountered an uncanny hand, and then a shot which wounded her. Later Chester Greene is found shot dead seated in a chair, in his room, with a look of consternation and horrow on his face. Again footprints are found to and from the entrance door of the mansion, and investigation shows that the prints fit a pair of high arctics thrown carelessly under a bookshelf in Chester's room. An interview of the family and servants reveals nothing except that the cook has had some former personal relation with old Tobias Greene. Markham and Vance are baffled. Vance is convinced that some member of the family is at the bottom of it, but there is not a clue to follow. He cultivates the acquaintance of Sibella and Ada and they drive with Dr. Von Blon to a spot overlooking the Hudson. Sibella suggests it as a good place for a murder and Ada is upset by the flippant remark. Ada comes to Markham's office and informs him that Rex Greene knows something he has not told, Markham determines to find out what he knows and Ada over the phone asks him to come to the office, telling him to bring something that she has found. Five minutes later the word comes that Rex has been shot in his bedroom. Dr. Von Blon is in the house at the time Rex is murdered. But he is with Sibella and there is not a single clue to the crime. Von Blon's intimacy with Sibella rouses Vance's curiosity. Vance finds the goloshes which were worn through the snow outside the house at the time of Rex's murder. There were no footprints leaving the house. The murderer is still inside.

CHAPTER 23.

(Tuesday, November 30, 2 p.m.)

Markham and Vance and I had a late lunch at the Stuyvesant Club. During the meal the subject of the murder was avoided as if by tacit agreement; but when we sat smoking over our coffee Markham settled back in his chair and surveyed Vance sternly.

"Now," he said, "I want to hear how you came to find those goloshes in the linen-closet."

"I'm quite willing to unburden my soul," smiled Vance. "It was all so dashed simple. I never put any stock in the burglar theory, and so was able to approach the problem with a virgin mind, as it were."

He lit a fresh cigarette and poured himself another cup of coffee.

"Perpend, Markham. On the night that Julia and Ada were shot a double set of footprints was found. It had stopped snowing at about 11 o'cloc,k, and the tracks had been made between that hour and midnight, when the Sergeant arrived on the scene. On the night of Chester's murder there was another set of footprints similar to the others; and they too had been made shortly after the weather had cleared.

"Here, then were tracks in the snow, approaching and retreating from the front door, preceding each crime; and both sets had been made after the show had stopped falling when they would be distinctly visible and determinable. This was not a particularly striking coincidence, but it was sufficiently arresting to create a slight strain on my cortex cerebri. And the strain increased perceptibly this morning when Snitkin reported his discovery of fresh footprints on the balcony steps; for once again the same meteorological conditions had accompanied our culprit's passion for leaving spoors.

"I was therefore driven to the irresistible inference, as you learned Solons put it, that the murderer, so careful and calculating about everything else, had deliberately made all these footprints for our special edification. In each instance, d' yo see, he had chosen the only hour of the day when his tracks would not be obliterated by falling snow or confused with other tracks." * * Are you there?"

"Go ahead," said Markham. "I'm listening."

"To proceed, then. Another coincidence attached to these three sets of footprints. It was impossible, because of the dry, flaky nature of the snow, to determine whether the first set had originated in the house and returned there, or had first approached the house from the street and then retreated.

"Again, on the night of Chester's demise, when the snow was damp and susceptible to clear impressions, the same doubt arose. The tracks to and from the house were on opposite sides of the front walk; not a single footstep overlapped! Accidental? Perhaps. But not wholly reasonable. A person walking to and from a door along a comparatively narrow pathway would almost certainly have doubled on some of his tracks. And even if he had failed to superimpose any of his footprints, the parallel spoors would have been close together.

"But these two lines of prints were far apart; each clung to the extreme edge of the walk, as if the person who made them was positively afraid of overlapping. Now, consider the footprints made this morning. There was a single line of them entering the house, but none coming out. We concluded that the murderer had made his escape via the front door and down the neatly swept walk; but this, after all, was only an assumption."

Vance sipped his coffee and inhaled a moment on his cigarette.

"The point I'm trying to bring out is this: there is no proof whatever that all these footprints were not made by some one in the house who first went out and then returned for the express purpose of leading the police to believe that an outsider was guilty.

Uncommon Sense
By John Blake

THE DANGER OF DEPENDENCE.

"There is an insidious disease of the body which takes the form of pressing buttons and lolling back in a chair to await the result."—W. K. Stanton.

This disease might be called "dependentitis". It is as common among executives as among their employees.

It leads to failures and near failures, and destroys the faculty of self-reliance which is one of the most important elements of success.

George McManus, the cartoonist, expressed this condition in a long-continued and popular series of cartoons under the title of "Let George Do It".

I have known many men of real capacity, who, as soon as by their own efforts they arose to places which enabled them to employ others, began to loll back and "press buttons", and soon became practically useless.

It is necessary, of course, to depend on others at times. But the practiced executive never depends on them to the extent of doing nothing himself.

He consults with them, works wth them, plans with them. But his mind is as busy as theirs, and he does not dismiss a task from his thoughts merely because he has passed it along to somebody else.

Now and then I have known of a boss who got along for years simply because he was fortunate in having men under him who knew their jobs and who did them efficiently.

But always there came a time when such a boss had to do something on his own account, and if he was a chronic "depender" he was unable to do it, and disaster followed.

Every man is expected to know his own business as thoroughly as his opportunity and capacity will permit.

But knowledge without use is soon lost. And even the well-trained man must keep his own wits working, no matter how good a force he has under him, or there will come a time when he is unfit to hold his job and will lose it.

Aladdin was able to rub a lamp and get an all-powerful spirit to do for him anything he wanted done.

But there are no modern Aladdins. And the people that are summoned by the touch of a button are far from powerful genies.

There must, of course, be dependence, but it can be easily overworked, and constantly is.

There can be little doubt that the button-pressing habit is getting too common, and that the people who, after pressing the button, "sit around and wait for something to happen" are due for a long series of disappointments and ultimate disaster.

"COMING TO TERMS WITH OURSELVES."

Monday.

"Belief in Ourselves."

SCRIPTURE

Memory Verse: "Having accomplished the work which thou hast given me to do" (John 17:4).

Read: John 17:1-8.

MEDITATION

Accepting ourselves does not mean a sad resignation to the limitations of our life, but a happy and joyous belief in ourselves. It is faith that we can make out of ourselves something that is eminently worth while. It ought to be a matter of pride. that there is only one of our kind. A plumber who was working for a philosopher remarked: "You must be some particular about your job for when you called they sent me." Thi degree of self valuation is, of course naive, but a high regard for one's self is a part of the Christian point of view. For the Christian believes that there is some work to do, some place to fill for which God sends him or can use him. Great, happy souls feel that life is a divine appointment. This was Jesus' experience.

PRAYER

We rejoice, our Father, in Thy summons to become fellow workers with thee. Help us with clear eye to see the tasks that Thou hast set before us, and with a sincere heart to pursue them. Forbid that we should miss our opportunity through unwillingness to do our own work. Amen.

RANGERS PLAN RECRUIT CLASS

Sergt. Sam Calladine Will Be In Charge Along With Capable Instructors.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT.

To give recruits for the Peterborough Rangers an opportunity to become acquainted with elementary infantry drill, a recruit class is to be established at the Armouries next Tuesday. Sergt. S. Calladine will be in charge of the class, and capable instructors will be provided from the qualified N.C.O.'s of the Battalion.

The class will be held on Tuesday and Friday nights and will run concurrently with the regular parades of the Battalion, which begin on April 1. As recruits become proficient in the work, they will be taken on the strength of the various companies.

A quiet recruiting campaign has been under way during the past two months and the officers commanding companies report great success in their efforts. The possibility that the Battalion will shortly have a waiting list is evident. All present recruits and prospective recruits are expected to be present next Tuesday, the opening night of the class.

Prospects are bright for a local camp this summer in addition to the training in the Armouries. The officers are planning to take the Battalion on a holiday trip. Arrangements as to place and date have not been completed, several invitations having been received from various places, but none accepted as yet.

Recruiting will definitely close the first week in April, and all who are intending to join up are urged by the Battalion authorities to join up at once in order to ensure admission this year. After the Battalion strength of 30 is reached the recruits will have to wait for vacancies.

Comment on Morning Stock Markets Over Biggar and Crawford Wire.

The Toronto market was quiet again. Steel Company of Canada "Common," discounting a favorable decision, rose to $48. The New York market was irregular on the opening but showed resistance to selling. In the second hour stocks moved higher with outstanding strength in A. M. Byers, Vanadium and American Can. The Steels and Oils were also higher.

JUDGMENT FOR COMMON STOCK

Courts Uphold Claims Against Steel Company For $5,000,000.

A JUDICIAL "MELON."

TORONTO, Mar. 17.—With two of the five judges dissenting, the first divisional court at Osgoode Hall to-day dismissed the appeal of the Steel Company of Canada and all its holders of preference stock from the judgment of Mr. Justice Orde on August 25 last, which held that the holders of common stock were entitled to all the dividends in excess of seven percent per annum which had been paid on the preference stock since the inception of the company in 1910 until the split in the shares at the end of 1928.

Because of the fact that the dividend disbursements on the preference stock in that time were estimated at the hearing of the appeal to have exceeded those paid on the ordinary shares by from $40.00 to $45.00 a share, the decision of the court to-day means that the steel company will have to pay to its holders of common stock approximately five million dollars.

MINE MARKET IN DOLDRUMS

Little Change in Copper Situation Both at Home and Abroad.

GRANADA'S SHARES CALLED

TORONTO, Mar. 17. (Special to Examiner.)—The doldrums into which the mining has fallen as the result of the withdrawal of public attention and the application of cash trading regulations to a game which in the past, has held all the thrills of playing a "long shot" were still in evidence to-day. There is some talk around the street, however, that marginal accommodation may be again extended on some of the better class lower priced stocks.

There is little change in the copper situation buying both in New York and abroad remaining small and hand to mouth. Only a slow and moderate increase in the average rate of the buying is expected during the next few weeks as the question of price levels is still very much in the air.

Granada's new shares, which are being exchanged on the basis of one new for every ten old held, were called for trading on the Standard to-day and opened at $1 bid. The bid and asked prices at closing time last Saturday were 10½ to 12 cents on the old stock. Mill construction at the property is reported to be going ahead and while the company is understood to be out of funds, the President, R. C. Gamble, has been financing the work himself.

Dome mines has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents payable on April 21, 1930, to shareholders of record March 31. A well grounded rumor is heard that the plan for the new mill has been definitely decided upon and that construction will be started within the next month.

Metals Production Co., successor to Colorada United Mines, owning a group of 43 gold claims in Bolder county, Colorada, 45 miles from Denver, is reported to be considering the listing of its stock on the standard. A 150 ton flotation mill is said to be erected.

Lowery Pete Production.

Lowery Pete is producing steadily, but Imperial Oil officials state that figures will not be made public until the end of the month early production always shows fluctuations and before official reports are made a sufficient period is allowed during which more accurate tests may be made. Unofficial reports of production have been running between 400 and 575 barrels a day indicating that the well is considered quite satisfactory. Within the next six months the concentrator on the Amulet is expected to be pretty well tuned up and in service due to the indicated necessity for storing the zinc concentrates for the present and looking to copper for income, there is a tendency to forego advance estimates of the probably margin of profit to be realized. Actual performance during the next few months awaited as a more definite guide.

Some activity in the shares of Peterson Cobalt which have been moving between ten and fifteen cents and were up a fraction above the latter figure early to-day, is said to be due to a pool operation as there appears to be no special news from the property. There is a possibility that the company's interest in White Lake mines may be drawing some attention to the operation.

BRIEF ILLNESS ENDS THE LIFE

Street Church were very extensive, and in the current annual report of that church he is shown to have occupied the following offices at the time of his death: Steward, for the term ending December 31st; session, elected for life; member of the trustee board; representative on the Central Charitly Board, and also a member of the Men's Bible Class under A. Stuart, teacher.

J. J. Hartley, who is invalided at his home on Antrim street, speaks of Mr. Stabler in the highest terms, from a knowledge born of a lifelong association in business. He referred to the late Mr. Stabler as a fine type of man and a "square dealer."

"He came to visit me ten days ago," added Mr. Hartley, "and his kindly and cheerful personality was always quite a tonic in any sick room. He seemed to be in fairly good health at that time," and Mr. Hartley said he was very grieved to hear of his passing.

Mr. Stabler leaves one brother, William of this city, having been predeceased by his four other brothers, James, Joseph, Henry and John. His four sisters, Mrs. Nathan McIlmoyle, Mrs. William Nichols, Mrs. Robins, and Mrs. William McIlmoyle, predeceased him some years ago.

The funeral will be held from his late residence on Tuesday at 2.45 p.m., with his pastor, Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, officiating, and his remains will be laid to rest in Little Lake cemetery.

WHEAT PRICES STAGE ADVANCE

Moderate Export Business and Gains at Liverpool Account For Upward Move.

ON WINNIPEG MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 17. (By the Canadian Press.)—Wheat prices vaulted upward almost three cents in the first hour of trading on the Winnipeg Exchange to-day. Trading became active as the price, battered downward for weeks, began to mount. Moderate export business overnight and gains at Liverpool were the only reasons to which the rise was attributable.

Cabled advices intimated that large decreases had been noted in wheat supplies en route to England and that the continent had taken much larger quantities.

May was up 2½ cents at $1.07 3-8, July and October were 2½ cents better at $1.09 3-8 and $1.10½.

STRONGER TREND ON MINE MARKET

Nevertheless List Retains Listless Aspect Which Has Marked it For Several Years.

FEW STOCKS ACTIVE.

TORONTO, Ont., March 17. (C.P.)—Though a slightly stronger trend was in evidence on the mining market during the early session to-day, there was little improvement in general trading. The list retaining the listless aspect which has marked it for several weeks. A few individual stocks displayed activity but they stood out in contrast to the dullness of the balance of the board rather than through any really important individual action.

The higher-priced stocks were somewhat irregular. Nickel easing 35 to $33.35 on light demand. Boranda moved up 15 to $39.75, but Hudson Bay was down a like amount to $12.10. Dome and Teck Hughes were higher at $8.25 and $6.25, but Vipond dropped 3 to 95.

Wheat Stocks Score Gains At Chicago

CHICAGO, Ill., March 17. (C.P.)—Despite rain in Kansas wheat prices here advanced early to-day owing to sharp upturns in Liverpool quotations. Liverpool reported British stocks of wheat decreasing, and said Argentine sellers had withdrawn from the market. Opening 5-8 A 1 3-8c up, Chicago Wheat futures scored additional gains later. Corn, oats and provisions showed strength also, with corn starting ¼ A 2c higher, and afterward keeping near the opening prices.

Steel of Canada Is Only Feature Stock

TORONTO, Ont., March 17. (C.P.)—The bulk of that portion of the public which at this time last year was actively participating in the day by day struggles of the market, is now on the sidelines and paying but scant attention to the sluggish milling of stocks and speculators in the market ring. The turnover on Toronto Stock Exchange this morning was about the lowest of the year and is truly illustrative of the general apathy. The predominant sentiment, with wheat selling far below what it was last fall and with unemployment at a comparatively high level, is bearish. Those with an eye to the long term pull are picking up the better grade stocks on recessions and companies in which special developments are pending or which are bringing out an attractive yearly statement are lifted to higher levels but the market as a whole is stagnant.

Apart from Steel of Canada common there was scarcely a change of note on the Toronto Market this morning. Nickel eased off around midday, some of the oils yielded a very small fraction but against these losses were the same type of gains in Noranda, Brazilian, Massey-Harris and a more pronounced rise of 2 points in C.P.R.

NO PARKING WAR SATURDAY NIGHT

their name and address taken, and they were warned that a second offence would mean a fine.

Motorists Put in Place

It was learned from the Chief this morning that Saturday's episode was only a beginning of the campaign to keep the city's business district free of parked cars. He asked the co-operation of the motoring public in assisting the police in controlling traffic problems.

There is a district in the city where the parking laws are in force. This extends from Sherbrook street north to McDonnel street and east from Bethune street to the river.

In this area there is no parking on the streets longer than twenty minutes. Parking is allowed on the east side of the streets running north and south and on the south side of the streets running east and west, but this must be angle parking. On the west and north sides of the streets no parking is allowed, and the motorist must not angle to the curb; passengers may be set down and the car allowed to stand only the few minutes that it requires to make a purchase in the store in front of which the car is stopped.

The Market Square and other areas in the centre of the city are available as parking places, and the motorist may now park on the street with the expectation of finding on his return a neat ticket adorning its windshield.

Mr. Wallace is succeeded here by M. J. Wootten, who was formerly manager of the Sun Life at North Bay.

Communism to Fail, So Noble Predicts

PORTLAND, Ore., March 17. (Canadian Press).—Grand Duke Alexander, grandson of Czar Nicholas I. nephew of Alexander II, and cousin and brother-in-law of the late Nicholas II, today predicted that Russian Communism would fail and declared that Russia's 150,000,000 people "are ruled and fed upon by a central group of 1,000,000 bandits who have built up a remarkable exploitation machine."

IRISH LOAN FUND HOLDS SURPRISE

Those Who Contributed to De Valera's Scheme to Get 58 Cents on Dollar.

SUBSCRIBED 1919 TO 1921.

NEW YORK, March 17. — In the spirit of St. Patrick's Day, Supreme Court Justice Peters has accepted a recommendation giving 58 cents on the dollar to those supporters of Irish freedom who contributed to the $6,000,000 loan fund subscribed here from 1919 to 1921.

Those who contributed to the fund toward Eamon de Valera's hope of a republican Ireland will get about 25 per cent. more than they expected when, three years ago, Justice Peters directed three receivers to turn back the $2,500,000 remainder of the fund to subscribers and not to the Irish Free State.

Of the original 309,000 subscribers there are only 131,322 accepted claimants, based on 160,705 subscriptions, and aggregating $3,643,108.

With 3,000 cheques a day leaving the offices of the receiver, the distribution will take two months.

Justice Peters, in approving the fifth report of the receivers, closes the work of three years, during which a large clerical force carried on a heavy correspondence in an effort to dig up those who in 1919 contributed to the fund.

Stays allowing subscribers to present their claims were given up to January 23. Many subscribers were workers with shifting addresses. Others had died.

Justice Peters allows each subscriber about a cent less per dollar than was expected a month ago.

YOUNG MEN HEAR JOSEPH WEARING

First of Series of Meetings Held at Y.M.C.A. Sunday Evening.

The first of a series of five Sunday night supper meetings was held at the Y.M.C.A. last night when a group of 36 association members and young men of the city heard an address by Joseph Wearing. In other years, similar gatherings have attained great popularity.

The gatherings are of a religious nature, but are designed to attract young men of all denominations.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

Interest centres in the Sudbury Basin meeting next Tuesday due to the growing belief that stockholders will be made acquainted with the management's plans for the development of the Vermillion Lake property. It is pretty well assured that a new compay will be formed to develop this deposit, with Sudbury Basin holding an interest commensurate with the value of the property. In some quarters it is heard that Treadwell Yukon will have a finger in the new company. Treadwell is now carrying out metallurgical tests on the ores from their adjoining property and are making excellent progress in developing a proper system to treat the complex lead, zinc, copper and precious metal ores. The company has already developed a selective flotation process that is yielding progressively better results. Treadwell is in an advantageous position to both develop, mine and mill Sudbury Basin's ores and, if a satisfactory arrangement can be worked out, it would not be surprising to see the former company holding a large interest in the proposed subsidiary. In the meantime, stockholders are counting upon being given some information in this regard at the forthcoming meeting.

With a diamond drill hole down 900 feet and with Sherritt Gordon at work on both sides of their property where latest developments are said to have been the most important since work was started, directors of the Cold Lake Mining Company announce the suspension of the development campaign. This comes as a result of the assignment last week of the brokerage firm of Mowat and MacGillivray. Directors are unable to state just when work will be resumed but it is understood that negotiations with new interests may be opened in the near future with a view to resuming mining operations on the property.

Latest word on Baltac is that the cleaning out of the hole by means of building up heads of gas is continuing in an effort to get the well clear of mud and debris so that a more accurate idea of actual conditions may be gained. Officials have not yet stated what the future policy will be.

A deal is now underway whereby Ritchie Gold Mines, operating one of the more advanced properties in eastern Kirkland Lake, will secure further finances for the continuance of a development campaign. The funds will be raised by the issuance of further stock. The company's annual meeting will be held soon and directors hope by that time to be in a position to give shareholders information regarding new financing. The Ritchie property has been developed down to 500 feet and a considerable volume of work has been carried out underground. Results are understood to have been encouraging. Previous to this the property was thoroughly drilled. Drilling results were excellent and decided the management to develop the property to depth. Ritchie ties on to the Murphy Mines on the west.

The four producing wells of the Home Oil Company are now producing about 1,600 barrels daily, which is worth about $1,700,000 annually, equal to almost $2.00 per share gross. The company is paying dividends at the rate of $1.00 per share per annum. The Nos. 5 and 6 wells are making good progress and should reach the producing horizons before mid-summer.

JEWISH FAMILIES CRUELY TREATED

Winnipeg Girl Relates Tale of Suffering at Belkin-Barish Conspiracy Trial.

OFFERED 15 ACRE FARMS.

ESTEVAN, Sask., March 17 (C.P.)—Miss Rebecca Buchalter, 24, employed in a Winnipeg furrier establishment, testifying in the Belkin-Barish conspiracy case here Saturday related the experiences of six Jewish families, including her own, who came to Canada in the Spring of 1928 under the auspices of the Jewish Colonization Association. She stated that instead of the 160-acre "ready-made" farms promised each settler by agents of the Association in Poland they were told on their arrival in the Estevan district colony that they would have to accept fifteen acres.

Simon Belkin, of Montreal, executive secretary for Canada of the Association, and Harry Barish, Wapella, colony administrator, are undergoing preliminary hearing before Provincial Magistrate Walter Martin on a charge of conspiracy to defraud Wolf Horn, who came from Poland in 1927.

Many Went to Cities

Miss Buchalter testified that so disappointed and chagrined were the settlers on reaching their desination that two of the families within a fortnight left the district and sought employment in the cities, while a third family left some months later.

She described hardships the party suffered on the way from Winnipeg to Estevan, declaring they were herded together like sheep and were supplied with no food for a day and a half. Belkin, she said, personally was in charge of the party and when they complained of their treatment, he gibed at them, saying, "You think you're going to Palestine. You're going to Siberia." He added, she said, that the men could work in the Estevan coal mines and their wives and daughters could be servants and washerwomen.

Voice of the People

FAVORS DIVORCE COURT.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—We must all thank Mr. Peck, M.P. and The Examiner for letting us know that they prefer the rapidly-increasing plague of divorce as at present constituted rather than a court of law. Let me tell them that the reason divorce has increased in Canada at such a tremendous rate is that it is almost impossible for the innocent party, if a woman, to get justice. The wife usuallly has no money and I have time and time again seen a wife sacrificed to the hatred and cruelty of the husband who held the purse-strings. A court of law would greatly reduce the number of divorces because it would do justice. A court of parliament is ridiculous. The Senate committee hears the evidence but it is the House of Commons committee that is the jury and the judge and decides upon the evidence, and it is in the Commons that the bill is brought in to end it. Now to say that you are opposed to divorce and therefore vote to continue it and in its worst form as in voting against the Bourassa motion to abolish it, may please people who don't know any better or have axes to grind, but nobody else. It is because of just such hopeless work as in this case that with all our immense prosperity the mass of the people are going down hill. It is their own fault.

J. H. BURNHAM.

COMMENTS ON MR. PECK'S LETTER.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir: — Mr. Peck's failure to be present in the House of Commons to state his opinion or to vote upon one of the most important bills introduced into the House cannot be disposed of by the alibi he gives The Examiner in Saturday's issue.

The Federal member states he is in favor of Divorce Courts but he is not in favor of the right of the parties, whether innocent or guilty, to re-marry. In this opinion he is in opposition to the leaders of his Church, the Anglican Church in Canada, and in England, and the Episcopal Chuch in the United States.

However, if Mr. Peck does not believe in the right of either parties to re-marry, why did he not attend the House of Commons, and move such an amendment to the bill introduced, instead of being absent, and not votting ,or even being paired?

Shortly after he voted in favor of the retention of divorce as the records show in his vote against the Bourassa Bill.

Peterborough, a very important and well known centre of population, was not only, not represented in Parliament, but her representative dodged the issue.

In view of the fact that Mr. Peck voted against reducing the postage from three cents to two cents the reduction of the income tax and the reduction of taxation on imported automobiles over $1 200.00 in value of 10%, which has saved the Canadian people hundreds of thousands by 10%, which has saved the Canastand why he absented himself from the Divorce Bill vote without showing where he stood.

The only answer seems to be that he was anxious to avoid what he thought might be an unpopular decision, no matter which position he took.

Financial News and Briefs

A Special Service to the Examiner

TORONTO, March 17. (Special to Examiner.)—The financial statment of the Mount Royal Hotel blasted all hope for a payment on the scrip certificates for the immediate future. Earnings after all prior reductions and preferred dividends were only equal to about ¾ of 1% on the total par value of the scrip outstanding. In the reorganization of the capital structure of the company the holders of the old 8%, preferred stock were given a new 6%, preferred, and a scrip certificate of $25 par in lieu of back dividends. According to the provisions payment of the scrip was not to be made before January 1, 1930, and then no more than 5% each year, with the 5% cumulative. In January last the secretary wrote holders intimating that earnings might be sufficient to warrant a payment but gave no assurance as to this. Directors in bringing down profit made much heavier provision for depreciation in 1929 than in 1928 and after making payment of preferred dividend there only remained surplus for the year of approximately $13,000. Not only was the allowance for depreciation from profit $100,000 in excess of that of 1928 but an additional $80,000 was provided out of surplus, or $400,000 all told against $220,000 in 1929. In connection with depreciation the views of the directors are substantiated by the auditors who say in their certificate attached to the balance sheet that in their opinion the provision for depreciation is inadequate.

Carlings Meeting.

The adjourned annual general meeting of shareholders of Carlings Breweries Ltd., will be held in London this afternoon when those in attendance may hear further of negotiations that have been taking place for a change in control. At the previous meeting no business was transacted, the meeting being adjourned promptly to permit of the closing of negotiations and it is now intimated on the street in Toronto that some changes will take place in the directors elected to-day. A financial statement covering the year ended December 31, 1929, will likely be presented and this will also carry a good deal of interest for the company stock holders as no action was taken in the matter of the annual dividend payment of $2 since the close of the fiscal year. Unofficial reports have been heard of substantially lower earnings but the extent of the decrease will not be known until the profit and loss account is made public.

that the intricacies of marginal trading should be known by the court and gave a brief outline of this method of trading.

"We intend" said Mr. Smith, "to show that at no time was there any reality to the deals carried on, but that so-called sales were merely 'wash sales.'

Selected Days at Random

"We have selected at random one day in each month since the accused began operations in Calgary and taken a stock at random and we purpose to show that actually took place in the office of the company.

"On May 1 the company actually bought one share of Okalta preferred and the remaining 21 shares show no confirmations to their clients were placed in the "house account."

"The company confirmed to a client, J. Windsor, the purchase of nine shares on Okalta, which, as shown by the books of the company, never were actually purchased.

Windsor, having ostensibly purchased the shares on margin, later had them closed out, and on the same date the books show a sale to Mr. Jesinsky, who was actually operating for the accused as account number one under the name of the Dominion Oil Exchange.

THE TREND TOWARD "FOREIGNS"

RECENT easing of money rates in practically all the financial centres of the world has already exerted a stimulating influence on the bond market.

WOMAN IS VICTIM OF BRUTAL THUG

Chicago Killer Robs Body of Republican Election Judge.

CLOTHING TORN.

CHICAGO, March 17.—Her skull crushed by heavy blows, the body of Mrs. Ida M. Doyle, 61, a Republican election judge of the second ward, was found early Sunday in a passageway at 2969 Wentworth Avenue. It was scarcely half a block from the woman's home, 2950 South LaSalle street.

Her torn clothing and bruised hands were mute evidence of a futile struggle. Her purse, which had contained a few dollars and the cheque she received Saturday night for her work on registration day, was missing.

A gold band wedding ring, torn from her finger but evidently cast aside by the killer as he fled, was found in a nearby yard.

Mrs. Doyle had lived in the ward for 53 years, and had been an election judge since 1927. According to officials, there had been no political trouble, and the murder could in no way be ascribed to that as a cause.

Several hours later the body of John (the Billiken) Rito, gangster and racketeer, was found floating in the north branch of the Chicago river.

Wrapped in a blanket and trussed up with wire—a prayer book and a rosary in a coat pocket and the hands folded as in prayer— Rito's body showed traces of torture, stabbing and a beating. A wire loop had slipped its mooring on the river bottom and a coroner's physician said he had been in the water about two weeks.

There were two bullet wounds in Rito's head.

Until recently, "The Billiken" was chauffeur and bodyguard for Ted Newberry, north side aly of George (Bugs) Moran, bitter foe of "Scarface Al" Capone.

Newberry's followers were left leaderless when he fled several weeks ago after the discovery of two machine guns, trained on his apartment from a building across the street, hastened Newberry's departure. Police believe he fled to Toronto, Ont.

Rito's death was seen by police as another episode in the battle between Moran and Capone for near north side liquor trade.

Continuing their regular round-up, police arrested 800 in the over-Sunday activities. Of these, 150 possessed criminal records and egiht were carrying revolvers.

P.C.I. STUDENTS AID UNIVERSITY FUND

Concert in Behalf of New Queen's Scholarship.

A movement has been undertaken in the city by interested groups, to raise funds to provide a Queen's University travelling scholarship for women as a memorial in honour of the late Dr. A. E. Marty, who was the first woman inspector of schools in Ontario, and who died in South Africa last year following a heart attack while engaged in exchange work with one of the South African school inspectors. The memorial would also include Dr. Marty's sister, the late Miss Sophia Marty, who was with her in South Africa, and died on the steamer shortly afterwards, en route to Canada. The late Miss Sophie Marty was a former member of the teaching staff of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

An entertainment in aid of this scholarship fund was presented in St. Andrew's Sunday School auditorium on Friday evening by students of the Third Form of the Collegiate Institute. R. F. Downey, who is president of the local Queen's University Alumni Association, was in the chair. The pupils were trained by Miss A. Howson of the P.C.I. staff.

The program took the form of a repetition of the entertainment presented by the P.C.I. Literary Society a short time ago, and was mainly concerned with scenes from the early life of the city, enacted with much skill and interest by the cast of youthful performers. Portraits and sketches of the early founders of Peterborough, were given and several scenes centering around Government House were also presented.

The program opened with a selection by the P.C.I. orchestra, followed by a vocal solo by Isabel Weddell; a cornet solo by Harold Wilson and a brief account of the early history of Peterborough, by Bert Munro.

Adam Scott Scene

Those taking part in the scene where Adam Scott comes for the first time from Port Hope to select a site for his mill, were Albert Chase, Alfred Pooley, Reg. Hunter, William Todd, H. Cunningham and A. Worsencroft.

The playing of a piano solo by Robert Maybee and a violin solo by Maxe Warne, intervened, also some views of Peterborough in its early days, with sketches by Henry Shepherd. Those taking part in the portrayal of portraits and sketches included Donald Lillico, Fern Rahmel, Albert Chase, Bertha Inch, Edward Brown, William Boddy, Dorothy Routly, Harold Wilson, Jean Wilson, Ruth Sutton, Virginia Deyell and Ruth Harrison, Isabel Cragg in portraying the character of Isabella Valancy Crawford, Peterborough's pioneer poetess, gave some interesting quotations from her poems and also spoke on Peterborough authors. Descendants of the city's pioneers were delineated by Laura Edmison, Alan Eason, Jack Allison and Reginald Hunter.

Taking part in the scenes from Government House in the early days were Hugh McCullough, Stuart Mackey, Ivan Hagerman, Jack Allison and Fern Rahmel. In the scene, the dialogue was prepared by Mary Kirkwood, Fern Rahmel and Thomas Thomson. The epilogue which closed the performance was given by Bert Munro, while Irish songs were sung as an interlude by Isabel Weddell, Jean Wilson, Barbara Watson, Constance Legon, Grace McCannan and Jean McKone.

"Oh, isn't that man's profanity terrible?"

"Certainly. I know several words that would sound more effective."

WRONG ADDRESS TO FIRE DEPARTMENT

Chief Gimblett Urges Care in Telephone Calls.

Answering a fire call shortly after two o'clock Sunday afternoon members of Peterborough Fire Department arrived at 140 Mark street, only to find that their services were not required. The call had come in through the telephone exchange. The operator said that the number given her was 140 Mark street. It was later discovered that there had been a small fire at 308 Lewis street, in which it appears that in starting a fire in the stove, flames blew out and slightly injured husband and wife. The former was burned on the hands and the latter on her legs. Fire Chief Gimblett, who was on the scene, in his car, rendered first aid.

The above incident stresses the necessity for giving a fire alarm in clear concise tones. Do not leave the phone until sure that your message has been correctly received at the Fire Hall. Often a call comes in to the department in which an excited person will merely yell "fire," and then leave th task of locating the scene of the blaze to the telephone operator or the men on watch at the Fire Hall. In such cases the time lost may mean the difference between saving a building and in having it reduced to a mass of cinders.

When ringing in an alarm, state the nature of the fire; as for instance if only a chimney fire, it is not serious enough to warrant the turnout of the whole outfit. For anything more serious, ring in a call from the nearest fire call box. There is one near your house. Get its location fixed in your mind, and in the event of fire, keep cool and collected. Once having been assured that the Fire Department have the call in hand, leave the rest to them.

WEDDING PARTY WAS TURNED INTO STONE

Belief of Peasants Who Live Near One of Nature's Oddities in Macklenburg.

BERLIN, March 17 (U.P.) — In a primeval forest near Buetzow in Mecklenburg stand four groups of stones, the peculiarly regular placing of which has for generations puzzled the more astute inhabitants of the neighborhood. In reality the stones are huge slabs of granite, arranged in four perfect circles of seven stones each, while off to one side stands an extra granite block that apparently is related to the others. Three of the circles are contiguous; the fourth is located at a considerable distance from its counterparts.

In the belief of the peasants of the districts a wedding took place on this spot many centuries ago and, because of their wanton and godless festivities the members of the wedding party were turned into stone. They were thus stricken when dancing in four groups; hence the four circles of granite slabs.

Science, being less romantic or at least less superstitious, has now placed quite another interpretation on the presence and extraordinary arrangement of these stones. It is the opinion of scholars who have devoted themselves to the task of seeking a solution of this woodland puzzle that the granite blocks were set up about 3,000 years ago by aboriginal Mecklenburgians. This odd device, the scientists say, was used to measure the months and the seasons; in others words, it is a prehistoric calendar.

There are 28 stones in the four circles (three of which, however, have been removed, though the holes in which they once rested are still visible), and from this it has been adduced that the stones represented the 28 days of the lunar month. In the principal stone of the widest circle there are 13 rectangular holes in a straight lines from the top of the slab to its base. These 13 holes are thought to represent the 12 moons—months—of the year. Thus 13 months of 28 days each make up a year of 364 days, the extra stone standing by itself probably taking the place of the 356th day of the year.

Other peculiarities have been discovered by the research workers. Thy have found that the device may also have been used as a direction finder inasmuch as the principal or largest stone of one group points south with uncanny precision and the principal slab of another circle faces west with similar exactness. Then, too, the scholars have found that a line drawn throught the centers of the three circles leads directly toward the point on the eastern horizon at which the sun rises during the winter solstice, the beginning of the new solar year.

While this and other evidence uncovered appears convincing to the lay observer, it must be remembered that the findings of the scientists are based on pure hypothesis and therefore can not be accepted as conclusive; so, after all, it may be true that the granite blocks are actually wedding guests who were turned into stone by angry gods displeased with their orgies.

Hatry Must Serve His Full Sentence

London March 17. (C.P.) — Clarence Hatry, stock promoter, has been denied leave to appeal from a sentence of fourteen years imprisonment arising from his recent conviction on irregular financial operations.

Hatry, in his petition, contended that the sentence was too severe, but Lord Chief Justice Hewart, in dismissing the appeal, said, "the true conclusion is that this sentence is not a day too long.'

The Lord Chief Justice in addition said that the sentence would date from to-day instead of the date of conviction, Jan. 24.

Hatry was not present during to-day's proceedings.

OLD BOYS BEAT REGULAR SQUAD

P.C.I. Quintet Nosed Out By Two-point Margin of Three Overtime Periods.

FINAL COUNT 34-32.

In a scrap that ran into three overtime periods, the P.C.I. basketball squad was nosed out by a 2-point margin by the Collegiate Old Boys at P.C.I. on Saturday afternoon. The score was 34-32.

Displaying marked superiority over the Old Boys in team play, the garnet and grey boys took an early lead and at the end of the first session the score stood at 14-9, with the Old Boys still in the rear. In the second, the P.C.I. lads came out as strong as ever, but met a better-organized defensive and a more dangerous offensive. But they managed to keep one jump ahead of their opponents, due to the clever efforts of Carlos Routley, the speedy forward, and Howie Macdonald at centre.

With but a minute to play, the P.C.I. held a lead of 2 points. The score was 26-24. Dribbling the ball down the right side and across, Bim Sturgeon sunk the basket which tied the score. The whistle found the deadlock unbroken.

In the first five minutes' overtime, Routley bagged a field goal, but the count was again evened by Sturgeon. Sturgeon and George Huffman nicked two goals to bring the count of the Old Boys to 32 in the second five-minute period, while Macdonald, with a field goal and a free goal and Routley with a free toss did the same for P.C.I.

The third overtime had all the aspects of a deadlock when Sturgeon did the trick for the visitors with a picturesque overhand shot over his shoulder from the corner.

The teams:

Old Boys—Forwards, G. Huffman, R. Sturgeon, M. Latimer; centre, Russel Kitchen; guards, J. Greenlaw, J. Cooper.

P.C.I.—Forwards, C. Routley, J. Wolstenholme, W. Ward; centre, H. Macdonald; guards, N. Stanger, L. Glover.

Referee—Arthur McLeish.

Concert by Pupils of Miss Mary Harstone.

An interesting recital by piano pupils of Miss Mary Harstone was held on Friday evening in the Sunday School hall of St. Andrew's United Church, with a large attendance of parents and friends of the children taking part.

The recital took the form of a meeting of the Harmonious Music Club, with the president, Bill McPherson, in charge. "O Canada" formed the opening, followed by the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by the secretary, Helen Heffernan, and the explanation by the president of the aims of the club. NEWEST FASHIONS REMINISCENT OF OTHER DAYS

COSTUME JEWELRY HAS ITS DARK SIDES

By Frances Page:

Copyright, 1930 by Style Sources

NEW YORK, March 17. (U.P.) — In line with the "touch of black which is mentioned as the contrast note in a number of accessories this spring, jewelry is showing a decided disposition to introduce black with color or black with white.

While the daytime styles are usually mentioned as designed to accompany printed frocks introducing a bit of black, they also are susceptible of exploitation to complete the delicate pastel monotone costumes for spectator sportswear later on. The black for day-time usually unites with color, and appears as galalith, crystal, or other of the spring compositions, while the genuine semi-precious or the simulated semi-precious stones such as chalcedony, chrysoprase, or rose quartz contribute the color. It is noted that the blues, the greens and the blue greens are especially liked in combination with black.

For the town afternoon costume, of formal feeling, genuine semi-precious combinations, such as black amber with clouded amber, or onyx with turquoise are smart. Sometimes a tracery of pearls accents the contrast.

Black with white combination are promoted for evening wear; extremely rich effects in onyx set in gold filigree with genuine crystal, or with pearls, are especially well thought of and carry a double appeal, for they are favored by the older woman as a type familiar to her earlier in life, and strike the fancy of the younger set as a dashing novelty. Crystal plaques and pendants, etched by hand are seen on multiple strands of tiny jet beads, or necklace of larger jet beads.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

SELFISH FEARS.

Fear is not voluntary. Children do not enjoy being afraid and they will avoid what causes fear whenever they can. But they have a way of using fears, of actually creating fear to serve their own ends.

A little boy had been the only child in the family for five years. Then a baby sister was born and the mother and father and relatives rejoiced greatly. The little boy seemed a little grave about the whole affair but showed no other indication of jealousy. But he began to make demands upon his mother that he never had made before.

He had been in the habit of going to bed very cheerfully. His mother gave him the little assistance he needed and his father or grandmother, whoever happened to be handy, escorted him to his room, tucked him in and turned off the light. That was all that was necessary for the child to slip off into a long night' restful sleep. This was changed.

"I want mother to come to bed with me."

"No you don't. You said good night to mother. She is busy. I'll put you to bed and you'll be all right."

"No. I'm afraid. I'm afraid to go to bed without my mother. She must come to bed with me."

Must. Mother was to be obliged to come to bed with him. Why? Because he was afraid. Of what? Lots of things. Mother must come. And he raised such an outcry that his mother came rushing to his side. He sobbed hysterically that he was afraid, afraid, and that she must stay with him.

Now began a long series of fears. He He couldn't go into the yard to play because he was afraid. Nor to the store on an errand. His mother must not go out without taking him with her because he was afraid to stay alone. Any attempt to force him to do as he usually did ended in his having a crying fit or a tantrum. Mother must stay with him. He was afraid.

By now he was a timid child, covering at every shadow, starting at every sound. He was perfectly miserable and made the entire household uneasy. The fear that he had conjured up to hold his mother's attention had gotten the upper hand of him and he was truly afraid of the vague ideas that haunted him.

When such a thing happens we have to re-condition the child. He does not know that he is using fear to hold his mother close to him. Nor do we tell him so. It is sufficient that we know the cause of the fear. We do our work indirectly as possible. The five year old child can be helped greatly through the kindergarten class. Association with children who have been successfully weaned from the infantile stage of mother care will help the undeveloped child to emerge from his bondage.

We begin to teach the child to help with the baby who is really the root of the trouble. We try to interest the older child in doing little services for the younger one. It is natural to love those dependent upon us and once we know ourselves superior in any way to the object of our jealous fear we lose the fear. Force and scolding are useless. We have to work wisely and gently and undo the mischief that a lack of foresight has wrought.

Brown wool in a checkered weave makes this smart coat which Martial and Armand sponsor for sports wear.

BROWN IS POPULAR COLOR FOR SPORTS WEAR.

Brown continues to be one of the popular colors of the season, and no where is it better than in sports wear, particularly when as smartly interpreted as in this coat of a checkered weave in brown wool. The French woman chooses some such coat as this one for the brisk morning walk which is a part of the ritual of her existence, wearing with it a one piece dress or a hand-knitted sweater and skirt. I have designed such a one in brown wool, pleating the skirt across the front, and trimming the bodice with a series of bands of the material set on below a yoke.

MORE ABOUT LOW BACK PAIN.

As I walk along the street and see from time to time, men and women with the lower part of their back held in a stiff position—no bend to it,—I feel almost certain that they are, or have been suffering with low back pain, lumbago and sciatica, as it is called.

And a great many more of these cases are lying at home or in hospital, some kept free from pain by means of drugs, and others in plaster casts or other supports.

Now most cases of lumbago or sciatica can be traced to an infection from teeth or tonsils, others are due to injury and others, owing to the shape of their back or spine, begin to have trouble when they get to a certain age, or perhaps put on weight over the abdomen.

I have suggested, in speaking before of this low back pain, that if the pain came on gradually, was worse at night, walking seemed to relieve or "loosen up", that the troubles was likely due to infection. If however, the pain came on only by exertion, that the individual was free from pain if he could get into a certain position on a chair or in bed, that the pain was likely due to injury or to some abnormal condition or position of the bones or joints in lower back.

After making sure it is not due to infection, that is removing bad teeth or tonsils, draining sinuses and gall bladder, an X-ray should be taken to see position of bones and joints.

The 'wing' of the last spinal bone in the lower back may be resting on the hip bone below it, and actually forming a new joint there.

This last spinal bone of lower back may be slipped slightly forward due to weakness or to heavy adbomen drawing it forward. Or it may slip somewhat to either side.

All these "wrong' positions of this last bone change the relation of things so that the nerves supplying that region are pressed upon by surrounding structures.

In severe cases where supports have failed, an actual 'splint' of bone is placed at this joint between the last spinal bone, and the bone between the two hip bones, which prevents movements or any slipping, and pain disappears.

I spoke of Drs. Hibbs and Swift's 150 cases in which 110 were completely cured, 21 cases improved, and 19 unimproved. Dr. F. A. Chandler, now reports 28 cases in which 15 showed excellent results, 9 were good, 2 fair, and 2 failures.

Don't suffer with low back pain. Try the support methods first, and if not successful the operation is worth risking. All of the above operative cases were of many years standing.

FALSE IMPRESSIONS

Seeking various information concerning the cost of living, location of city, etc., a resident of Newville, Pennsylvania, gives further evidence of the distorted impressions which people south of the border have of this great Dominion.

"Are employees generally paid in U.S.A. or English coin? is one of the questions, which will doubtless make an appeal to the strong sense of humor possessed by all dwellers in this "cold and barren north country" as the Americans picture it.

The above instance is on par with the tale told of a certain well-known cowboy movie star right from Hollywood, who was visiting in Alberta in search of "bold, bad men" of the Canadian West. He was very impressed by the sturdy and picturesque bearing of one of the Forestry Rangers, but more so by the man's yarns of imaginary encounters with grizly bears. Feeling that the man would be a decided asset to the personnel of his studio, possessing all the attributes of the traditional cowboy villain, he induced him to sign a contract for film work, and took his "prize" back with him to the States. The villain did not live up to expectations, and the last that was heard of him, he was selling real estate in Seattle. The moral would seem to be, seek ye elsewhere for the wild men, who sport six-shooters—preferably Chicago.

5TH PETERBOROUGH TROOP

Well, fellows, any of you who have delayed joining our troop should not put it off any longer. You're missing a real good time every Tuesday evening you're away. And, remember, our motto is "Be Prepared"; so come prepared for plenty of opportunities to gain some practical and useful knowledge; enough exercise to please anyone and an evening closed with a camp-fire of rousing songs and Scout yells. Last Tuesday's meeting opened at 7.15 with flagbreak. The Patrols were then dismissed to their corners for instruction, during which A. Rose and K. Riches passed their Tenderfoot tests. Five minues "P.T." and a lively game of "mounted catch" kept the troop alert for the signalling instruction that followed. A fast game of handball was next on the program and the combination developed would have turned the manager of any hockey team green with envy. Scouts W. Ford and L. Barry were then invested into the great Brotherhood of Scouts.

To a friend, Miss Gordon is said to have admitted that the marriage was to take place in April. Mr. David Gordon of Chatham, a cousin of Miss Gordon, and Mr. Rowley A. Miss Gordon's answer when questioned on the subject herself was, "I do not even know the man!"

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

THE YOUNGER readers, especially, will be interested in todays article, in which it is told how to make those dainty lingerie bands which are so attractive.

• • • • • • •

Lingerie bands are accessories which every woman who delights in having dainty accessories for her bureau drawers, will want to possess.

• • • • • • •

And if you want to make a gift to your best girl friend who is leaving the community, lingerie bands would be very attractive and would be a very suitable one, indeed.

• • • • • • •

One thing about such a gift is that you can make it cost just as much as you like; expensive, if you wish, or practically nothing!

• • • • • • •

But in either case, they must be dainty and beautiful, or they are valueless as far as the ornamental features are concerned, and, of course, we want them to be valuable.

• • • • • • •

Attractive lingerie bands are made of a length of ribbon at one end of which is a ribbon and lace buckle. There is no prong to this buckle.

• • • • • • •

It is really nothing more nor less than a circle, or oval, cut from cardboard and covered with the ribbon. Around the outer edges of the buckle a ruffle of narrow lace edge is sewn.

• • • • • • •

Then when the band is in use, the ribbon is drawn through the opening of the buckle after its length has encircled such underwear as you wish to keep together in a neat pile.

• • • • • • •

Wouldn't these bands make delightful prizes for a woman's bridge party? I think they would be charming and if the maker likes, she can embroider or letter in paint the words "gowns" "slips", etc., on the different ribbons.

• • • • • • •

Be very careful to see that the buckles have openings large enough so that the ribbon can be kept straight when run through them. This is very important in that the size of the pile around which the ribbon is used, will not always be the same size and if you wrinkle it, much of the attractiveness of the band is lost.

• • • • • • •

I have read of lingerie bands being made of left-over pieces of lingerie silk, cut in strips and a rolled hem made along the edges. If the silk is of a delicate shade, the bands will be just as dainty as when made of ribbon.

• • • • • • •

If you wish to make something just a little different, you might try making a "rainbow band", by using two or more colored strips of silk.

• • • • • • •

The edges that are to be joined together must be finely hemmed and then fagotted together with crochet silk, or the pieces can be joined with a flat felled seam. A bow of ribbon may be used instead of the buckle.

• • • • • • •

If you like doing fine sewing and embroidery work, no doubt you can think up a great many novel ideas concerning the making of these lingerie bands. And if you happen to make your bands in a way which you think much more attractive than any other you ever saw, perhaps you will write and tell the rest of us.

• • • • • • •

A rosette of gathered silk or lace makes an attractive finish for the ribbon in place of the buckle, and it is wise to have a strap under the rosette so the end of the ribbon after surrounding the lingerie can be run through it and thus hold the pile of lingerie sufficiently firm.

Wreckage in Montauban After French Floods

France has not seen such devastation since the war as is revealed by the slowly subsiding waters which flooded 800 square miles in the south-west. The floods, due to heavy rains, and the melting snow, were the wrost in the history of the country. More than 400 lost theire lives, some 200 or more are still missing, and 10,000 were rendered homeless in the flood that created damage estimated in the millions of francs. Renewed downpour of rain again threatens the stricken district. The photograph here shows a view of one of the streets in Montauban, after the waters had receded, giving an idea of the havoc wrought to buildings in urban areas.—Copyright, 1930, Pacific and Atlantic Photos, Inc.

A LITTLE GIFT FROM IRELAND.

(Contributed by Lucinda).

"Here, grandma, here's a present, it has come a distance, too;
'Tis a little pot of shamrocks, and it comes addressed to you.
Yes, all the way from Ireland, and the cards mention more—
They were gathered at your birthplace, on the banks of Avonmore."

"From Island! Do you tell me? O, darling, it is true
Acushla, let me feel them—and you say 'twas there they grew?
Why, I can scarce believe it, is it really what you say?
From my birthplace in old Ireland, poor Ireland far away."

"I'm old and stiff and feeble and in darkness, God be praised!
Yet Katy, how it stirs me, how my poor old heart is raised.
To feel it here so near me, the soil that gave me birth;
The very clay of Ireland; let me kiss the holy earth.

"These blessed little shamrocks, I can't see them, yet I know,
They bring me back the eyesight of the happy long ago,
And gleaming through the darkness comes the vision that I love,
The dear green fields of Ireland and the sunny sky above."

"I see as once I saw them, when a gril like you I stood
Amid the furze and heather; there's the chapel, hill and wood;
There's the abbey clad with ivy, and the river's winding shore,
And the boys and girls all playing on the banks of Avonmore."

"God bless the little shamrocks, then for calling back the scene,
The beauty of the sunshine, the brightness of the green;
Through long, long years to see it and to see it all so plain.
Ah, child, I'm sure you're smiling, but I'm feeing young again."

"And though I'm truly thankful for the blessing that God's hand,
Has brought me, Katy, in this great and happy land.
I can't forget the old home, 'midst the comforts of the new,
My heart is three parts buried where these little shamrocks grew."

ENGLISH LANGUAGE IN USE ON MORSE

Operators Revert To It As Medium of Conversation Over Wirless Sets.

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Mar. 13.—"When two vessels cannot exchange passably intelligible messages in either of their own tongues, they revert to English." Information on the part taken by wireless operators in the recent heavy weather on the Atlantic was being casually imparted to a group of acquaintances by the wireless man of a 10,000 ton freighter, as his ship discharged her cargo of molasses of a Saint John dock. "Japanese and French steamships, for instance, employ pidgin English as a medium of conversation through their wireless sets," he continued "The English language has become universal, as far as the Morse code is concerned."

"Freight boats of this class usually carry a single tube receiving and transmitting set, with note magnifier," he said, explaining the work of the wireless operator on shipboard. "The magnifier is really an auxiliary tube that is rarely needed. Come up to my cabin and I'll show you."

He showed them. The snug little room was replete with shining dials, levers, wires and other apparatus. In the corner was a sinister-looking cabinet which was pointed out as a "direction-finding set." The operator fitted a pair of earphones to his head and adjusted another on a member of his audience.

"Hear that?" queried the operator, as the receiving set evinced signs of waking to life.

"That" was a musical, intermittent sound, and it prompted the visitor to remark that it bore a singular resemblance both to the chirping of a bird and the drone one hears when taking chloroform.

"That's a broadcast from England, explained the guide. "The fellow over there is sending out stock quotations in Morse."

After a few moments of manipulating the dial in a futile attempt to pick up more stations, the operator removed the earphones.

"If it were night just now, I could have got you all sorts of concerts and other programs such as ordinary radio sets receive. I can get the American broad casting stations at night when the ship is 1,800 miles out on the Atlantic. About that distance, the stronger European plants, such as those at Deventry, Eiffel Tower, Paris, and German cities become audible.

"We sometimes hear distress signals when the weather's as bad as this," he continued. "I got three on the trip here, but they were too far away to respond to. Ships of every nation flash 'held' in the same way—S.O.S. Even the Japanese do, although when communicating with their fellow-countrymen they have to use a code adapted to their alphabet, which is written in signs like the Chinese."

Belleville Intermediates Swamp Orillia 72-28

BAY OF QUINTE CITY QUINTET SWAMPS ORILLIA BASKETEERS TO COP PLACE IN THE PLAY-OFFS

Northerners Unable to Beat Smart Combination Efforts of Belleville Team.

VERN WEIR STARS.

Local "Y" Senior Girls Meet Visiting Contingent in Preliminary Round.

The Belleville intermediate basketeers swamped Orillia by the count of 72-28 in a [illegible] game at the local Y.M.C.A. Saturday night and won a place in the Provincial final play-downs. The game was ordered as a result of Orillia's triump in the Simcoe league and the Quinte's squad's success in the Eastern section.

A large gallery of local cage enthusiasts were on hand to witness the play-off as well as a preliminary contest between the Peterborough Y.W.C.A. Senior girls' aggregation and a Belleville girls' contingent, which the locals put in the bag by the score of 14-4.

At no time during the scrap did the Simcoe boys have a chance. They were unable to beat the smart combine efforts of the Quinte entry which resulted in one close-in shot after another. Their own shots were in most cases forced from well outside the free-throw line and their marksmanship was not good enough to overcome their offensive weakness.

Vern Weir Stars.

Vern Weir, known to local sport fans as second sacker on the Belleville Nationals, was the chief factor in the Northerners' undoing as far as scoring went. He displayed the outstanding speed and accuracy of the evening. First class support by the rest of the squad played a large part in most of his successful tries. Buck in guard position was a key man on their attacks as well as defense operations. In summer he holds down centre field position on the Deloro baseball squad.

The height and trickiness of Allan, centre, was the Orillia aggregation's best hope. He bagged 12 points during the clash, making several of his baskets on long shots that drew applause from the fans. Stephen and Merkley worked hard but their ball carrying wasn't good enough to beat Walters and Buck.

Both squads played a five man defense and four-man offense game, using the individual check system. The contest was fast to watch.

Fouls Plentiful.

Personal fouls were plentiful and both entries suffered. Matters looked worse than ever for Orillia in the middle of the second half when Merkley was sent to the showers on four offenses and left only five men to carry through the game, only one spare having been brought down. Walters, the husky defence man, was sent off at the same time for four fouls but the eastern lads were not short-handed.

Belleville hooked two field goals in the first two minutes of play and ran rings about their opponents. To stop the rush, the Orillia team called a two-minute cessation, following which they hooked their first when Stephen passed to Allan who dropped it in from near centre. Allan repeated to tie the score, but the play continued in the lakeshore squads' favor. By the end of the session the count was 32-15 with the Belleville men well in the lead.

An improved defence on the part of the Easterners in the last period allowed only five baskets to be registered against them. Three free tosses also helped to bring the Orillia total to 28. Faulkner and Armstrong tallied 20 of the 40 points scored by the other line-up in the closing set-to.

The teams:

Belleville — Forwards, Armstrong, McFee; centre, Faulkner; guards, Walters, Buck; alternates, Davison, Weir, White.

Orillia—Forwards, Stephen, Merkley; centre, Allan; guards, Sarjeant, Carter; alternate, Whitton.

Referee—W. Sniderman, Toronto.

The exhibition clash of the Belleville and Peterborough girls on the bill was a more balanced contest. Superior basket tossing was the only means by which the locals managed to gain their ten-point margin of victory in the 14-4 count.

Viola Harvey and Isobel Davidson bagged three baskets each for 12 points for the Petes and Irene Chambers, centre, got the other field goals. From the opening tip-off the Petes were forced to work hard and fought a large part of the battle in their own territory as a result of the smooth combination attacks of Peg Redfern and Clare Cruji. The visitors took many shots but tough breaks prevented scores in many cases. The Petes shot most of their counters from long range.

Three periods were played. The homesters blanked the lakeshore lasses 4-0 in the first. Viola Harvey got both baskets.

A delay was occasioned in the second period when Jeanette Allin, guard for the locals collided with her check and was out above the eye. By the end of the period the Lift Lock crew had acquired six more points due to the handiwork of Davidson, who sunk two field goals, and Marvey, who got two free tosses. The visitors' total was still zero.

Dribbling down the right side from centre in the last session, Mary Melchior tagged the first success of the visitors. Thirty seconds later Clare Cruji followed her example and in practically the same manner sunk another. That was the last score for the Quinte girls, but Davidson chalked up two more field tosses for the locals.

The teams:

Peterborough—Forwards, V. Harvey, I. Kingdon, I. Davidson. M. Holmes; centre, I. Chambers; guards, H. Jackson, J. Allin, F. Fever, E. Beatty.

Belleville—Forwards, C. Crudji, M. Melchoir, A. Ross; centre, M. Redfern, R. Stevens; guards, S. Melchior, L. Melchior, V. Hobson.

Referee—Arthur McLeish.

Galt and Guelph Will Play Off For Honors

TORONTO, Ont., March 17 (Canadian Press). — There will be no semi-final series in the Canadian Hockey League play-offs. This was decided on Saturday night when Galt Terriers defeated Brantford Indians, 3 to 1, while Kitchener Dutchmen beat the league-leading Guelph Maple Leafs 7 to 5. The Terriers' victory, however, nullified the Kitchener team triumph, as it maintained the six-point margin between Galt, the second place team, and Kitchener, the third place holders. Kitchener had to be within four points of the second place team to qualify for the play-offs.

The play-off between Galt and Guelph will start at Kitchener on March 18, owing to poor ice conditions at Guelph. The second contest will be staged at Galt on March 20, and the third at Kitchener on the 22nd.

The final standing follows:

	P.	W.	L.	T.	F.	A.	Pt.
Guelph	30	17	10	3	114	84	37
Galt	30	15	12	3	39	106	33

Having his yard nicely stocked with logs Mr. McGrath will be a busy man for the next few weeks. He is assisted by Pat Lemoire, Beecher Hogg, Jim Balantyne, Frank Beaver and Orrie Robins. It is evident that the local farmers appreciate having this combination mill in the vicinity which means a great saving and convenience to the farmers.

YANKEES TEAM HE MUST BEAT OPINES MACK

Shawkey Camp Gets Visit By Last Year's Champion's Pilot.

SHOWERS HALT ACTION.

Lean Leader of American League Club Fears Chisox as Dark Horse.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 17.—Connie Mack walked into the dining room of the Yankees' hotel at luncheon time on Friday, thereby sponsoring the lone bit of excitement of a rainy day at the training camp. Up to nine o'clock that evening, when they took in the sidewalks, it still constituted the main event of an otherwise drab and soppy day. Through the feed bag exercise at noon the Yankees rmained closer to Connie of the A's than they were able to get all last summer, and this may be an augury of better things in the months to come.

Connie is over here with his A's, or at least with a large porportion of those chastisers, to play a two-game series with the Boston Braves. But one of those rainstorms which cause so much consternation and bewilderment to the local Chamber of Commerce had set in with the wee sma' hours of the morning, according to some tourists who arrived late, after the town had gone to slumber.

Just a Washout.

At any rate, the rain was still falling when darkness began to operate along Florida's west coast early last Friday evening, and the game between the A's and the B's had skidded to the records as a washout.

The same rain that fell alike on world champions and tail-enders played no favorites. Second place ball clubs also were forced to forego any operations in the open-air, which meant that the Yankees got their exercise in attempting to finesse at bridge, fill belly straights at poker, or meld a century or two at pinochle. Not a bat was waved in the camp of Mr. Shawkey's ambitious rookies and high salaried vets.

Scribes Swamp Him

Whereupon the ambitious scribes surrounded Mr. McGillicuddy, the man who knows more about finishing first than any other gent in the American League. They thought that perhaps the angular leader might see some hope for the return of the Yankees to the heights where pennants wave in the breeze. Such a vision by one so expert at first placing would read well to the home folks of Manhattan and The Bronx, though perhaps causing some furrowed brows along the banks of Schuylkill.

Connie said not so. He has no such message of cheer for the fans along the Hudson and the Harlem. As Cornelius views the standing of the American League Clubs—come October— the A's will have it. He didn't promise that Ehmke would again start the first game of the world series, but it appeared from his conversation that he is again looking forward to take a few slams at some national league team, just as he slammed the Cubs.

What about the Yankees?

His Chief Worry

Oh, yes, the Yankees. That is the team which Mr. Mack says the Mackmen will have to beat. They will also have to beat six others to get into the world series but Connie was speaking of what he rates his chief worry, if any. He believes that the Yankees will finish second and he figures a good second.

But they pay off no more on a good second than they do on a poor second, so the improvement or lack of it, is of no concern. Connie cannot figure that Cleveland, the sensation of the 1929 campaign, is going to climb beyond the point reached last season. Nor did he specify that any clubs, other than his own and Bob Shawkey's would be found higher than the Indians.

Mack feels that he has improved his club since the season closed and everybody seemed more than satisfied then that the A's were good enough. The remarks about the added strength brought no lusty cheers from Bob Shawkey who has figured it out that Connie needs strength about as much as an onion.

Mack did not outline the complete order of finish as he sees it, but he did mention the White Sox as the "dark horse" and there were no wrinkles of a smile to indicate that he was trying to unleash a joke. He believes that Donie Bush will iron out certain difficulties and get the Sox on the upward trend.

INDIANS CLINCH TOP POSITION IN KING LOOP

Double Victory Over Week-end Gives Cleveland Undisputed Possession of First Place.

FINAL STANDING.

Niagara Falls Forces Bisons to Travel at Stop Speed to Secure Victory.

TORONTO, Ont., March 17. (Canadian Press).—A double victory over the week-end which concluded their scheduled games in the International hockey league, brought to the Cleveland Indians undisputed possession of first place at the top of the league standing from which they cannot be displaced. On Saturday night the leaders trounced the Hamilton Tigers, four to three and followed this up with a hard earned victory over Detroit Olympics, two to one. In the other week-end match, Buffalo Bisons clinched second place by defeating Niagara Falls four to three.

The Indians met with much opposition before recording their double triumph. The Tigers refused to be beaten until the final gong had sounded and although they were three goals behind starting the last period, they rallied splendidly to knot the count. Cleveland got the winning goal with less than a minute to play.

More than 14,000 witnessed Sunday's struggle at Detroit. The Indians played a waiting game, letting the Olympics carry the play to them for two periods. The score was deadlocked one-all starting the final session, but it didn't stay that way long. Alex Gray, Cleveland centre, tricked the Detroit defence cleverly to notch the winning marker just two minutes after the start. Bobby Connors, Detroit's aggressive centre player, scored in the last 15 seconds of the game, but the officials ruled the puck had bounced into the net off his chest and the tally was disallowed.

Falls Forces Bisons

The last place Niagara Falls sextette forced Buffalo to travel at top speed to secure a victory. The winners tied the score near the end of the period and clinched the game half-way through the last on Ronnie Martin's goal.

Hamilton travel to London tonight to play the second last scheduled game of the season. The Panthers are tied with Detroit for third place, and as the Olympics have the better scoring records, London must at least secure a tie with the Tigers in order to gain the third place honors.

The standing follows:

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
Cleveland	42	24	9	9	125	78	57
Buffalo	42	26	12	4	102	67	56

Detroit	42	21	12	9	120	74	51
Windsor	41	19	14	8	116	90	46
Hamilton	41	9	24	8	93	121	26

HAMILTON TIGERS HOLD THIRD PERIOD RALLY OF SHAMROCKS TO CAPTURE FIRST GAME 3-2

Stellar Goal-keeping on Part of Howard Marsh Accounts For Win.

RIDEAUS BEAT M.A.A.A.

West Toronto Takes Two-goal Lead in First Game With Sault Sextet.

TORONTO, Ont., March 17.—(C.P.)—Securing a three goal lead in the first two periods, Hamilton Tigers, Ontario Hockey Association Senior champions, defeated Ottawa Shamrocks, Ottawa and district champions, three to two, in the first of their two game series in the Eastern Canada Allan Cup semi-final at the capital Saturday night. In the last period the Tigers played carefully, conserving their energy for the second game at Toronto on Tuesday. At the same time Shamrocks unloosed a stirring rally which netted them a brace of goals, but the tieing marger would not come, due mostly to Howard Marsh's splendid goal-keeping.

To-night Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, Senior champions of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, meet Truro Bearcats, Maritime champions, in the first of their two-game series. In the other Eastern Canada semi- final, the second game will be played on Wednesday, the winner on the round qualifying to meet the Hamilton-Ottawa series winner in the final.

Victory For Ottawa.

Two Memorial Cup games were played over the week-end. At Montreal, Ottawa Rideaus, a speedy, well-balanced team, possessors of that fighting spirit capital city sextettes are noted for, defeated Montreal A.A.A., there to one, in the second contest of their semi-final series and will now meet the winner of the West Toronto-Sault Ste. Marie semi-final.

Montreal beat the Rideaus two to one, in the first game at Ottawa and were favored to win the series. The issue was in doubt until half-way through the third period of Saturday's game; Paul Marion, elusive Ottawa forward, settled the doubt with his cleverly executed goal which gave his team the round, four to three.

Secures Two Goal Lead.

Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, champions of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, did not find large artificial ice surfaces to their liking at Toronto Saturday night and went down to defeat, five to three, before West Toronto, Ontario Hockey Association champions. It was the first game of their series. The second will be played to-night.

It is expected the Sault will show to better advantage in the deciding tilt for besides the handicap of artificial ice, they were obviously a bit off-color in the first game, probably due to their long lay-off while waiting for the O.H.A. championship to be decided. The Northerners showed flashes of speedy skating and natural stick-handling ability, which would indicate they will be a hard team for the leg weary Toronto team to overcome if they recover their true form.

The Belleville Y.M.C.A. basketball team demonstrated that they must be reckoned with in the hunt for Ontario intermediate basketball honors by defeating Orillia on the local "Y" floor on Saturday night, 72-28. Orillia was never a match for the Quinte team. Verne Weir, star second sacker of the Nationals, was highest scorer, and Buck, former centre fielder for the Deloro ball team, did some great defensive work.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association will be held in Kingston on April 18, Good Friday. Peterborough has not sent a representative to the annual meeting of the provincial body for the past few years and the local league has as yet appointed no one as a delegate to this one.

A mixture of youth, speed and aggressiveness will be relied upon by the Ottawa Senators when they sally forth in quest of the Stanley Cup in the National Hockey League play-offs. The Senators previously were known as a team with a close-knit defence, but in their climb to the position of world championship contender they have developed a flashy attack built around a team of veterans young in years. Unless there are some shifts in the present standings the Senators will cross sticks with the New York Rangers in the play-off for third position.

Many Canadian observers are selecting the Senators to win the world's professional hockey championship, figuring that the teams that have flashed to the front in the regular games will crack in the playoffs and the Senators will climb in to victory.

Lacking the stars that shine on the Boston Bruins, the New York Rangers or Les Canadiens, the Ottawa sextet has dwelt on team work, and they are now one of the prettiest passing combinations under the big top.

Both O. H. A. teams in the Dominion playdowns appear to be sitting pretty in the present round, following victories Saturday night. Hamilton grabbed a 3-goal lead in the early stages of the game in the capital against the Ottawa Shamrocks and then withstood a terrific last period attack to win by 3-2. West Toronto showed too much class for the Soo Greyhounds and had little difficulty in winning 5 to 3.

West Toronto and the Soo play again to-night and Hamilton and Ottawa tangle in the Toronto arena to-morrow night. West Toronto will meet Ottawa Rideaus in the next round. The Rideaus won over the Montreal A.A.A. Juniors 4-3 on the round by a 3-1 win Saturday night.

In the senior playdowns the winner of the Ontario-Ottawa series will play the Quebec-Maritime winners in the Montreal Forum on Friday night, and the same teams will play again a week from to-day in Ottawa or Toronto. If Hamilton wins over Ottawa this second game will be in Toronto.

The rumor that the Toronto Playgrounds would not sponsor any baseball leagues this summer was denied recently by S. H. Armstrong, director of the playgrounds. Leagues will again be operated in every section of the O.B.A.A. and indications are that there will be many teams in the various sections. The Elizabeth playground teams have already called reorganization meetings.

St. Lawrence Teams In One-goal Tie Game

IROQUOIS, Ont., March 17 (C.P.).—The Morrisburgh and Cardinal hockey teams battled to a one-goal draw here Saturday night, and another game is necessary before the champions of the St. Lawrence League can be declared. Both goals came in the second period. Boyce netting for Morrisburgh, while Rombough shot the Cardinal tally.

ARREST FOLLOWS SHOOTING

LONDON, Ont., March 17 (C.P.)—James Henderson of West Nissouri township, was brought to Victoria Hospital in a dying condition early to-day with a bullet wound through the abdomen which perforated a kidney. Provincial Constables Wharton and Alfred arrested Alex. Sallee, hired man of Walter Downham, who is alleged to have shot Henderson after a quarrel. Sallee is said to have borrowed Henderson's revolver recently to shoot a coon.

NEW CHAMPIONS BLANK LOSERS BY 6-0 COUNT

Winners Over Toolmakers on Round 8-1 to Cop Trophy For Second Time.

MECHANICS OUTCLASSED.

Draftsmen Give Stellar Display of Smart Combination and Finished Hockey.

The Drafting Room won the championship of the C.G.E. Shop Hockey League last Saturday at the Oshawa Arena, when they vanquished the Tool Room No. 2 team 6-0 in a rather one-sided contest, which gave them an 8-1 margin in the two-game series for the trophy. This victory gives the Draftsmen the championship for the second consecutive time, they having defeated the Office last year in the finals at Toronto.

The Toolmakers were distinctly outclassed on the large ice surface by their opponents, who showed speed, team work, and a finished style of playing that resulted in a regular barrage of shots being hurled at Hollingsworth in the Tool Room citadel. This goalie played a splendid game, and despite the lopsided score, showed to advantage, being called on to block almost five times as many shots as Kearns in the Drafting nets.

Smart Combination.

The Drafting forwards, Meagher, Thornton, and Rooke, resorted to combination practically throughout the whole of the game, and were able to get their shots away from close-in. Mowry, playing on the forward line for the Toolmakers, teamed up well with Milliken and Graham, while Connors was also often in the limelight. Howe and Davis gave a finished exhibition of stellar defence work for the winners, and any shots that sifted through this pair were carefully handled by Kearns.

The teams:

Drafting Room — Goal, Kearns; defence, Howe and Davis; centre, Meagher; wings, Rooke and Thornton; alternates, Allin, Palmer, and Masterson.

Tool Room No. 2—Goal, Hollingsworth; defence, Connors and Griffin; centre, Earle; wings, Graham and Milliken; alternates, Mowry, Hughes, and Craig.

Referee—"Waddy" Kenneally.

WINNIPEG ELMWOODS ARE SPEEDY SEXTET

Every Member on Team Whirlwind on Ice—Wade Through Strenuous Season.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 15.—(By Canadian Press).—Youth is seeking an ample serving at the Allan Cup hockey table as Winnipeg Elmwoods joust with Port Arthur in the western hockey play-offs. The team from over-the-river suburb rates as one of the youngest squads that has ever represented Winnipeg in senior hockey company. Nearly every man is still in his early twenties.

Yet the Millionaires, as the flashy Elmwood sextette is labelled, have shown increasing steadiness as this season has worn on. Only continued fight through a strenuous city schedule brought them the Winnipeg title. And a two-game come-back was necessary to snatch the Manitoba honors out of reach of the stubborn Souris Seniors, representing the province's out-of-town hockeyists.

Every member of the Elmwoods played last year in the speedy "Big Four" commercial loop which operated in Winnipeg. Two of the forwards stepped with the Elmwood Juniors, who won the western title in 1929.

Just one man, though, has had previous full-season senior experience—Jimmy Foster, as capable a goalie as has donned the padded leather in Winnipeg for years. Foster, who went to Brandon to break into senior ranks, came back to Winnipeg to shine in fast commercial hockey. Ever since he played with 'Varsity juniors five years back, he has been the mainstay of the defences with which he worked.

Both Tony McDonald and Joe Rivers, rugged defense men, did a lot of playing before crashing senior ranks; years ago the pair played junior for Winnipeg squads. McDonald, whose defensive style is reminiscent of the rugby at which he is particularly capable, journeyed out to Melville, Sask., for a part of a season in hard-going play. Rivers, brother of Gus, of Montreal Canadiens' roster, has worked into an effective mate for McDonald. Both share generously in the offensive play.

A touch of veteranship is contributed to the forward line by Norb Malloy and Harry Neil, young wingmen, who, withal, are older than their mates. And "Scotty" Jackson, tow-headed centre star, gives the starting string just the necessary youthful vivacity and punch.

Malloy, who gained most of his training down around Kenora and Fort William, toiled in commercial hockey in Winnipeg for the past two years; his best assets are an accurate shot and uncanny ability to work into system play. Husky and hard, Neil is an untiring back-checker and dangerous on the attack. Jackson's debut into senior has been accompanied by unexpected scoring talent which makes him the most dangerous of the team's forwards.

Monte Muckle and Walter Monson, at right wing and centre, are the pair of Grad's from Elmwood's junior brigade. Each has plenty of speed and boring-in capacity and both team up smoothly with Art Pattenden, chunky left-winger. Though the Munson-Muckle-Pattenden trio is rated as the second-string line, their appearance on the ice signals no manner of weakening in the squad's attack or defence.

Development of the Millionaires into a team of really senior calibre is due in great part to the competent mentorship of wily "Steamer" Maxwell. The jovial and ofttimes caustic pilot took hold of the squad when it had not the slightest resemblance to a Manitoba title possibility. Maxwell's greatest achievement was in coaching the famed Winnipeg Falcons of ten years ago.

LARRY GAINS BEATS ITALIAN CHAMPION

MILAN, Italy, March 17.—Larry Gains, of Toronto, defeated the Italian heavyweight champion, Roberto Roberti, on points in a ten-round bout here last night.

FAMOUS ACQUATIC STARS MARRY ON SATURDAY

Joe Wright, who flashed the slight and dark blue colors of the Argonaut Rowing Club to victory in the Diamond Sculls at Henley, England, two years ago, was married on Saturday, March 15th. His bride was Martha Norelius, who carried off most of the swimming prizes at the Olympic Games of 1928, and came back with a sparkling victory in the women's section of the fourth Wrigley Marathon at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, last fall. The happy couple are seen in the photographs here.

Gregalach New Favorite in Grand National Derby

LONDON, March 17.—(C.P.)—With Easter Hero under treatment of a tendon strained and his entry in the Grand National doubtful, Gregalach, his runner-up in the betting, sprang far into the lead. And now Gregalach, who suffered from stiffness a week ago, is again under a cloud. Running in a steeple-chase at Hurst on Saturday, Gregalach failed even to place. It was a trial handicap of three miles and three furlongs and so hardly a fair criterion on which to estimate performance in the National. Yet the owner of the gelding, Mrs. M. A. Gammell, was plainly disappointed. She intimated after the race that the horse would be examined thoroughly to determine his fitness to run in the National and there are rumors that Mr. Gemmell intends to dispense, at least for the time being, with the services of Ted Leader, Gregalach's trainer.

PICTORIAL GOLF

RECOVERY SHOTS THAT ARE SIMILAR.

There are two shots in golf that are quite similar. Playing out of a sand trap and getting out of long grass. The stroke is very much the same inasmuch as we must make sure to hit well beneath the ball in order that it may be extricated.

The ball in most cases must come straight out so any attempt to gain a considerable distance is usually followed by disaster. The one essential thing to remember is to secure a firm footing and proceed clowly with the back swing. If we do not hurry in our preparation or in making the shot we will fare better as this is a play that calls for rare judgment. Better safely out than to take chances of not getting out in the first attempt.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S KITE.

"Have you a piece of paper, Nurse Jane?" asked Uncle Wiggily one morning when the March wind was blowing hard around his hollow stump bungalow. "A good, strong piece of paper?"

"Yes, here is some that the groceries came in," answered the muskrat lady housekeeper handing it to the rabbit gentleman.

"And now a bit of string, if you please," went on Mr. Longears.

"Goodness! You must be going to wrap up something!" squeaked Nurse Jane. "Is it a present?"

"No, it's a secret!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. "I'll tell you after a while."

This made Nurse Jane very curious, as all muskrat lady housekeepers are. So, after she had given Uncle Wiggily the paper and string she watched him go out on the back porch, where the wind didn't blow quite so hard, and there Nurse Jane saw Mr. Longears fastening together some slender sticks. Around the edges he tied the string and then on the string and sticks he pasted the paper.

"My goodness! He's making a kite!"

Fastening together some sticks.

exclaimed Nurse Jane. "Of all things, and him getting to be an older rabbit every day of his life! He never will grow up! Making a kite! Well, I know the wind blows stronger in March than at any other time, so I guess Uncle Wiggily wants to fly his kite while the wind is best."

She watched the rabbit gentleman a little longer and saw him finish making the kite, which was the kind that goes up without a tail to wag at the Man in the Moon.

"Tra, la, la!" sang Uncle Wiggily as he went hopping over the fields with his new kite."

Mr. Longears was very happy and jolly. Not that he was so crazy just about flying a kite, but it pleased him to make one, for then he knew he hadn't forgotten the things he learned when he was a small boy rabbit, hopping about without any tall hat on his head.

"If the kite flies well I'll give it to one of the animal boys to play with," thought Uncle Wiggily as he reached a wide, open field across which the March wind swept in blustry gusts.

"A fine day for flying a kite!" said Uncle Wiggily to himself. "I wonder how my friend Old Hollow Tree is feeling in this wind? Quite jolly, I hope I'll stop around and see him, and perhaps nestle down inside him after I get this kite up."

Uncle Wiggily had gastened a long string to his kite. He laid the paper toy down on the ground, walked off a little way, unwinding the string, and then, feeling the wind just right on his pink, twinkling nose, the rabbit gentleman began to run. He supposed that the kite would sail up into the air, tugging at the string, and then would sail just beneath the clouds. But, instead of this happening, the kite slid along the field, tangling in the weeds and almost breaking the string.

"Oh, dear me!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "This is too bad! I should have somebody to hold the kite up off the ground for me before I try to run with it. I wonder who will hold it for me!"

"Ho! Ho!" suddenly cried a growling voice. "I will not only hold the kite, but I'll hold you! That's what I'll do! I'll hold you!"

Out of the bushes jumped the Bob Cat with his silly little tail.

Oh!" said Uncle Wiggily. And again: "Oh!"

"I guess I surprised you, didn't I?" snickered the Bob Cat.

"Surprise is no word for it. Not at all!" said Uncle Wiggily, sort of hurt like and indignant. "But that's to be expected."

"What are you trying to do?" asked the Bob Cat.

"Fly a kite," answered the rabbit—gentleman. "But it tangles in the weeds It won't go up without some one to hold it."

"Well, you can stop your kite flying for to-day," snarled the Bob Cat. "I'm going to take you off to my den."

"Oh, surely not before I've flown the kite to see if it's a good one before I give it to some boy," cried the rabbit. "Let me fly the kite, please!"

"All right!" howled the Bob Cat. "Go on, fly your kite once, and then come with me."

"But I need some one to hold the kite before I can fly it," Uncle Wiggily explained. "Will you do it, please?" he asked politely.

"Yes!" snapped the Bob Cat. "Go ahead." So he took hold of the kite by the sticks. Uncle Wiggily picked up the bundle of string. He unwound a lot more of it, hopping away off down the field. And then, instead of running with the kite, and trying to get it up, Uncle Wiggily broke the string, stuffed what was left of it in his pocket and hopped home to his bungalow, leaving the Bob Cat with his silly little tail there in the field holding the kite. And he may be there yet for all I know.

"Of course, I lost the kite to the Bob-Cat," said the rabbit after it was all over. "But I can make another kite and if the Bob Cat had eaten me—well, that would have been the end."

BABY SCALDED.

Glass Bottle Burst in Mother's Hands.

A peculiar accident occurred yesterday when Keith, the eleven months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. V. Boorman, 55 Hunter Street East, was scalded badly about the face and neck, when a glass bottle burst in the hands of his mother and the hot fluid it contained splashed over the baby.

Mrs. Boorman was in the act of pouring boiling water into a glass bottle when the bottom fell out. The little baby toddled over to its mother just in time to receive most of the contents on its face and neck, which were painfully scalded.

Dr. W. A. Baker was summoned and dressed the burns, pronouncing them to be painful but not dangerous.

KING'S WHARF.

Horses sold at from $90 to $157. Brood sow, $47. Hens, 90c each. Geese, $3 each. Oats, 91c per bushel. Barley, 76c per bushel. All forms of public opinion are represented in the large press room of St. James's palace. One newspaper carried on page one a story headed "trained seals" signed "by one of them" explaining that the difference between a "trained seal" and a reporter was that the former speculated on news and the reported got it.

However, a survey of personalities reveals that some of the world's best known reporters and writers are at each press conference. Most of of them, it is noted, are men who have spent half of their lives in the newspaper profession. The American correspondents generally are far more youthful than those representing European newspapers.

Reichsbank Head

Mr. Howard is a former president of the McMaster Debating Union, and so opposed his alma mater for the first time.

Caisson Bearing the Body of Late W. H. Taft

The photograph here shows the caisson bearing the body of the late William Howard Taft, former President and Chief Justice of the United States, slowly winding its way through the Capitol grounds on the way to the Arlington National Cemetery in Washington, D.C., where it was buried with full military honors. In the distance may be seen the dome of the Capitol, where the late jurist was inaugurated as United States President some twenty-one years ago.

SCHOOL CONCERT.

Pleasing Entertainment Given Under Auspices of King Edward Association.

A very pleasing entertainment was given under the auspices of the Home and School Association of King Edward School on Friday evening to an appreciative audience. The president, Mrs. J. J. Pollock, was chairwoman for the evening and presented the following splendid program: Vocal solo, "Danny Boy," Mrs. G. H. Cutmore, who responded to an enthusiastic encore; Miss Aileen Rose was the accompanist; "a Chorus," by the pupils of Mr. Bolton's room, also called for an encore; Miss Eileen Schoales delighted everyone with her charming rendering of "He was there and so was I," also her encore, w "St. Patrick's Story"; the real story of St. Patrick was interestingly told by Miss Doreen Elliott; a piano solo by Miss Aileen Rose, also elicited an encore.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. Bolton, principal of the school, whose topic was "Co-operation of Teacher and Parents." Mr. Bolton dealt with many pertinent questions of equal interest to teachers and parents, stressing specially that more attention be paid to the "defect" slips sent out by the school doctor. Mr. Bolton wished to assure the parents that no letters sent to them were in the nature of complaints, but simply in the spirit of co-operation. In this he invited that they reciprocate, if in any way they felt that he, as principal, could improve the relationship existing between teacher and parents. "Lack of sufficient sleep" was another important note in his address, in which Mr. Bolton maintained that less than one-third of the children in his school get enough sleep. This was a question which only the parents can successfully manage. Throughout his address it was clearly evidenced that co-operation was the sincere aim of the teachers and principal of King Edward School.

Mrs. Pollock thanked the speaker for the deep interest he has taken in the association and their work, and introduced the next number, a solo by Miss Phyllis Rome, "Springtime." Miss Millyard was accompanist; an encore was generously given. Miss Helen Barry sang "The Indian Love Call," with violin accompaniment by Mrs. Haggart, while Mr. Willis assisted at the piano. Mrs. Haggart contributed a violin solo, which was much enjoyed. Mr. Willis was accompanist.

The National Anthem brought to a conclusion this very successful program.

A sale of home-made candy was conducted by Mesdames Hubel and Groombridge, adding a very nice sum to the treasury, as well as aiding in the scheme of St. Patrick's decorations by their lovely candy boxes.

Delicious refreshments were served by the committee in charge, with Mrs. Cooke the convenor, and tea was poured by Mrs. Bolton.

"RED" ATHEISTS PREPARE PLANS

Will Make Intensive Assault Against God and Churches in Easter Week.

NATIONS PRAYING.

MOSCOW, March 17. — (C.P.) — While millions in other lands prayed yesterday for Russia's legions of Christian faithful, the militant Atheist Society of Russia prepared for a more intensive assault against God and the churches during the approaching Easter period.

All Moscow's churches were well attended at services yesterday, the government having at on time attempted to prevent individuals from freely taking part in their religious rites.

Most Christians here, however, see a dark future for their faith if the government continue sto carry out its present plan of forbidding the teaching of a religious faith to those under the age of 18.

They say that if this is enforced it literally spells the doom of the church in Russia. No person may enter the Communist pary unless he forswears God and religion.

Since agitation abroad against the government for its anti-religious views has assumed such imposing proportions throughout the world, there has been a perceptible change in the atheists' plan of warfare against the church.

The bride, who wore a gown of sand-trimmed melano blue crepe romaine, black hat, sand stockings and black shoes, carried a bouquet of Easter lilies and sweet peas, and entered the church with her brother-in-law, Mr. M. R. Harrison. Her only ornament was a white gold necklace, the gift of the groom. Miss Alma V. Curtis, R.N., was maid-of-honor, and was attired in a dress of beige lace, with hat and shoes to match, and wore a corsage bouquet of yellow daffodils. Mr. Sherman Blewett attended the groom.
The groom's gift to the bride's attendant was a compact, and to the best man cuff links.
The wedding march was played by Mr. F. Stevens.
After the ceremony the wedding party partook of a very dainty luncheon at Austin's Tea-Rooms.

CARPET DESIGN MAY COST $1,000 EXPERT RELATES

E. James, Designer For Brinton Carpet Company, Gives Address.

DETAILS OF WORK.

Spoke to Lyceum Women's Art Association Here.

"Carpet Designing" was the subject of the very interesting address given to members of the Lyceum Women's Art Association by E. James, designer for the Brinton Carpet Company, when his talk was illustrated by a showing of some very beautiful rugs, about fourteen in number, that included Persian and Indian, Axminster and Super-Sarouk examples.
Mr. James also showed his designs in stages from the outline on point paper to the finished colored design ready to be taken to the weaver. These designs sometimes cost as much as one thousand dollars to make, but can be used many times.
One interesting example was the design used for the Brinton rugs ordered for the Royal York Hotel in Toronto, in the Tudor roses and crown. Mr. James has been complimented on a special design for a Spanish rug sent to a Vancouver hotel and he is also designing a rug recently purchased for Rideau Hall in Ottawa. He is constantly receiving new ideas for rugs, sent from the Continent, and to these adds his own original ideas.
Mr. James, who has been for the past eighteen years with the Brinton Carpet Company, commenced his studies in the old country at the age of fourteen years. He gives a large amount of credit for his training to an uncle who was a clever artist and did a great deal of commercial work also. He emphasized the necessity of accuracy in detail in his work, as one mistake may cost a great deal to rectify and designs which require to be done over again entail a great deal of time.

Skill Required

"Very few people have any idea of the many different processes and the highly skilled labor required to produce the carpets which are in general use" said Mr. James. Carpets contain graded yarns, woollen and worsted and cotton jute, while the famous Super-Sarouks also contain mohair and require very careful blending of materials, for manufacturing and appearance.
A knowledge of freehand drawing, shading and blending of colors is required in a designer of carpets, also skill in painting on point paper and copying long repeats of border. The study of styles is essential. "The older type of carpet ran to red roses and green leaves, ribbons and lacework then there came the type we called impure or mongrel, in conventional patterns of either floral or figure work.
"The Indian style used to be very popular, with severe lines and angles, no curves, very strong color effects and sometimes animals. Flat effects, with few but strong colors and sometimes distorted animals, were used in this type of carpet.
"The Japanese style has been enormously popular in late years, as it lends itself admirably to latter-day shades in ground colors, a very important attribute in a carpet. I think myself most of the success of the Japanese carpet is due to the exceedingly pretty chintzing that is used in the bold outline of flowers and motifs and which gives a bright and sparkling effect.
"The Turkish carpet with its rich red ground stands apart from other styles and does not allow of the liberties taken with the always popular Persian carpets that form an endless study with their many different colors and designs. Many large manufacturers have built up fine reputations with their reproductions of famous old Persians.
"If you have noticed a few new floor coverings in some of the modern buildings, very rich in effect not too light but of moderate death, and have wondered where the idea originated, this may be Spanish, which is not very popular and is only used where special colorings are required."
Mr. James went on to give some interesting information about the methods used in designing borders and in considering fabrics, which are chosen carefully in accord with the drafting follows for the formation of the cloth. He also outlined in detail some outstanding characteristics of various makes of carpets, illustrating his points by the rugs on view.
The speaker was introduced by the president of the society, Mrs. W. Blackwell, who also voiced a hearty appreciation of his interesting talk, at its close.

BEST ASSET OF CANADA IS HER POWER SUPPLY

In That and in Mineral Development Lies Hope For Future.

A FINE ADDRESS.

Cyril T. Young Reviews Canadian Conditions For Rotary Club.

That Canada's greatest asset and chief hope for the future was her resources of water power, with the development of her mineral wealth coming next in line, was the emphatic statement of Cyril T. Young, F.R.G.S., and Director of Development of the Canadian National Railways, whose rapid fire review of Canadian development before the Peterborough Rotary Club at to-day's luncheon held the close attention of the members.
Mr. Young, who was introduced by Rotarian V. R. Henry, used a specially prepared fourteen-foot map of Canada and a number of interesting charts to provide the Rotarians with an interesting and comprehensive summary of Canadian conditions as the members have been privileged to hear.
The speaker intimated that Canada was making a mistake in attempting to pyramid agriculture in the face of the fact that only fifteen per cent. of the country was fit for successful farming. Rather, her future lay in diversified industries, in the pulp and paper development, in the field of minerals, more particularly in Hydro-Electric development, which offered the greatest promise of success inasmuch as only one-sixth of the available water powers of the Dominion were at present being used. By means of a chart, Mr. Young showed that while the population of Canada has only increased by 100 per cent. since the beginning of the present century. New industries had developed 700 per cent. and her water power development had increased by 3,300 per cent.—a remarkable showing that was made more significant by the fact that every horse-power developed meant employment for 385 people. The speaker was certain that ultimately Canada's water power resourses would be developed to their utmost, a condition that he predicted would mean a great deal to Peterborough.
He was most enthusiastic as to the prospects before Canada's mining industry. This was, he pointed out, a mineral age and Canada, with the richest ore in the world available, was bound to move forward with great strides. Mr. Young quoted interesting statistics to show the enormous progress made in Canadian mining since the beginning of the century and could see nothing ahead but a far greater development in the direction, with at the same time a correspondingly greater growth in water power.
Dealing briefly with the wheat situation, Mr. Young advanced a theory for present conditions in the fact that the world consumption of white bread was falling off, while at the same time European and other countries were increasing their production of wheat. This in view of the vast exports of Canadian and American farm machines to those countries was not to be wondered at. The people who purchased them did so to use the machinery, not to let it rust, and the result was a large increase of foreign-grown grain to compete with the Canadian article. Under such circumstances the speaker questioned the wisdom of attempting to pyramid agriculture when other fields of Canadian development offered far greater hopes of success.
Rotarian R. F. Downey, in expressing the thanks of the club, declared that Mr. Young's address was one of the finest the club had heard.
It was announced by Rotarian Bolton that the Radio Four of Belleville would supply the entertainment at Rotary's Ladies' Night, which will be held on Tuesday evening of next week.
Rotarian James Juby called attention to the inter-city meeting which will be held on March 31.
Rotarians Dr. N. D. Buchanan and Lou Potvin, who have just returned from a trip to Porto Rico, gave an interesting report of their reception by Rotarian Herb. Brown, who is a weekly visitor at the Peterborough Rotary meetings during the summer.

NO WAR THREAT WITH DOMINION

Detroit Newspaper Welcomes New Liquor Export Bill.

NEIGHBORLY GESTURE.

DETROIT, March 17.—Under the caption, "A Neighborly Gesture," The Detroit Free Press says editorially to-day:
"The Government of Canada has carried its bill to stop clearing liquor for the United States through second reading; and if it carries the bill through to the Royal signature, as there is every reason to believe it can and will do, Canadian brewers and distillers will find the official link in their $30,000,000 liquor business with this country broken, and the Government itself will be out of pocket an annual revenue amounting to $15,000,000. Seldom has the Government of one country made so handsome a gesture to another.
"With all due respect to the opinions of the late Lord Curzon, we have no hesitancy in saying that a war with Canada over the liquor question is both unthinkable and impossible. Witness the course which the I'm Alone case has taken. Ardent drys in States so remote from the border that they have to get out a map to find where Canada lies might be willing to take a poke at the Dominion; but they would have to march over the bodies of the border States to do it.
"Apparently Mr. Mackenzie King, a personal abstainer and a friend of amicable relations with this country, seized the first opportunity to introduce legislation as agreeable to a large element in Canada as to himself, which did not endanger his party's tenure of office. The effect of the measure will be the same whatever his reason for delaying its introduction; but it would have come more gracefully if it had not been ushered in by reflections upon the law enforcement efforts of previous Administrations in Washington, which seem to have been as fruitful, if not so noisy, as the efforts now being made.

Wily Pet Rooster Proves Efficient As Burglar Alarm in Boarding House

ATLANTA, March 15. (C.P.) — Mrs. Mary Ivey, and those who room at her boarding house may sleep securely hereafter. "Tramp," her pet rooster, that crows at dawn or most any time for that matter, routed a robber last night and will continue to keep vigil while they slumber.
Mrs. Ivey, who keeps a flock of fowls in order that her boarders might have chicken on Sunday has been missing prize pullets. She feared that the head of her flock would disappear likewise and so locked him in the kitchen last night for safe-keeping.
In the wee hours of the night, "Tramp" crowed, not one time, but many times. This was unusual for he is a retiring sort of rooster whose custom it was to crow with moderation. Mrs. Ivey bestirred herself to investigate.
She hurried to the kitchen to find her pet still crowing, with wings a-flapping. One window was raised. She peered through it in time to see a man fleeing around the corner of the house.

Italy Holds to Parity Demand

STIMSON FAILS IN FRANCO-ITALIAN CONVERSATIONS

Australian Delegation Books Passage For Home on April 12.

MUSSOLINI CALLS MEETING.

Fascist Grand Council Will Discuss London Naval Conference.

LONDON, Mar. 18. (C.P.) — The Italian delegation to the Naval Conference was reported to-day to have held firmly to its stand at the outset of the Naval Conference for naval parity with France.

United States Secretary of State Stimson, undertaking the role of mediator in the Franco-Italian dispute in an effort to solve the problem which is threatening the outcome of the conference had a conversation with Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy this afternoon.

His discussion in an effort to effect a compromise between Italy and France was reported to have achieved nothing excepting to get from the Italian Foreign Minister reiteration that Italy wants naval parity with France.

Home Passage Booked

Hon. James E. Fenton, Australian Minister for trade and customs and delegate to the Naval Conference announced to-day that the Australian delegation had provisionally booked return passage for Australia for April 12.

Grand Council Meets.

ROME, March 18 (C.P.). — The Grand Council, supreme organ of the Italian Fascist State, will be called upon to consider the progress of the London Naval Conference at its meeting here this evening in the Venezia Palace, with Mussolini himself presiding.

The first item on the Grand Council's agenda for this evening—it usually convenes at 10 p.m., Rome time (4 p.m. E.S.T.)—is a report, presumably submitted by the Fascist Party's secretary, Deputy Augusto Turati, on the situation of the party itself and the organizations controlled by it. According to the latest published figures, the party proper now includes 1,176,883 individuals.

After the review of the party's forces in the kingdom, the Grand Council will take up the internal and international situation, the latter covering, among other things, the London Conference and the recent visit of the Austrian Chancellor, Herr Schober. The reporter on both these topics will undoubtedly be the Duce.

PRINCE OBTAINS ELEPHANT FILMS

Prefers Not to Shoot Unless He Has Worked Hard in a Stern Chase.

TRAILS WHITE RHINOS.

MASINDI, March 18. (C.P.)—Despite terrific heat the Prince of Wales has walked long distances the last few days to film elephants in their natural haunts. He obtained splendid pictures of elephants at close quarters in the thick bush of the Albert and White Nile districts.

Sir W. F. Gowers, Governor of Uganda, returned to-day from Butiaba and said that the Prince had completely shaken off the effects of his recent malaria fever.

The Prince has done no shooting, preferring to operate his motion picture camera. At one place he had an opportunity of bagging a big tusker but he merely took a film saying he did not care to shoot animals if he had not worked hard in a stern chase.

The Royal camp has moved further down the Nile and will soon proceed to a rhino camp, where the Prince hopes to snap white rhinoceros. Then the party will move to the Congo, visiting the Pygmy country.

Returning from the Congo, the Prince expects to do some shooting in the Mongalla district during the trip down the Nile to Khartoum. It is possible that he will fly from Khartoum to Cairo.

PREMIER FAVORS DEPOSIT OF $200 FOR CANDIDATES

Claims it Will Aid in Keeping Communistic Element Out of Elections.

SINCLAIR OBJECTS.

Bill Extending Life of Parliament to Five Years Gets Second Reading.

TORONTO, Ont., March 18. (Canadian Press).—There has grown up a Communistic element. It is our duty to prevent them from getting into a position of ascendency in the province" said Premier Ferguson in the Ontario Legislature yesterday in speaking to second reading of his bill to amend the Election Act which demands that election candidates must provide a $200 deposit.

Premier Ferguson added his Government intended to see such an element is kept out, saying he had received three objections to this section from Labor organization.

"I do not think it is a general protest" said Premier Ferguson. "I believe leading men in the Labor movement are just as anxious as we are to supress that movement. For that reason, we cannot at this stage be too particular and too careful to prevent that sort of people creeping in."

Premier Ferguson pointed to an instance at Sudbury where an individual from Toronto, without interest in that riding, had secured nomination papers in order to express extreme views.

Sinclair Has Objections

W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal Leader, in objecting declared the deposit was an additional burden while the removal of the vouching clause restricted the franchise. The vouching cause removes the opportunity of having a voter's name added by being vouched for. Mr. Sinclair felt it was a blow at rural voters in taking away the right to vote even though their names are not on the list.

BOMBAY, India, March 18. (C.P.)—An unconfirmed report from Lahore to the Times of India, to-day, said that a plot against the life of the Governor of Punjab, Sir Geoffrey de Montmorency, had been discovered.

It was said that when the Governor's car crossed the bridge over the River Ravi between Lahore and Sheikhupura, a youth was noticed running across the bushes near the main road. A police inspector suspicious, overtook the youth, and then searched him, finding a revolver, a live bomb, and some chemical constituents of explosives.

WORKERS MAKE OWN DECISIONS IN WAGE STRIKE

Will Ballot on Rejection or Acceptance of Lord MacMillan's Proposals.

ADVISED TO ACCEPT.

Union Believes Conditions in Textile Industry Not Favorable For Resistance.

(By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, March 18.—Ballot papers have been issued to the textile workers on the question of the acceptance or rejection of the proposals for a new general agreement on wages based on the report made recently by Lord Hugh Macmillan's after thorough investigation. Lord Macmillan's recommendations were published on March 7th, and suggested retention of the present basis of wages but the cutting in two of a recent wage increase and reduction of an extra "cost of living allowance."

The executive of the National Union of Textile Workers, the largest society in the trade, advises its members of its opinion that "the present is not an opportune time to resist these proposals." The decision of the workers will be reported to the executive on Saturday and communicated to the employers on Monday.

The Union executive admits the proposed reductions are drastic but adds the unions were anxious enough to follow out the award of 1925, when the decision favored them greatly, and they should now be just as ready to adopt Lord Macmillan's recommendations when they favor the employers."

GANAND, Bombay, March 18. (C.P.)—Leaving behind one of their number who was stricken with small pox, Mahatma Gandhi, and his fellow Swarajist devotees, left here at dawn for the next village, Napa.

They are en route from Ahmadabad to Jalalpur where they will manufacture salt in violation of the British monopoly and begin a campaign of civil disobedience which they hope ultimately will bring Indian independence.

The Mahatma was said to be greatly fatigued from his four days of marching, although refreshed by his halt here Monday and day of silence. Reports that he was suffering from rheumatism were denied.

While here Gandhi refused permission for one of his devotees to visit his home nearby in Baroda, although the man promised to return in the evening. Gandhi asked his followers: "How can we go home now?"

He is being detailed in jail and given a special treatment, since he refused release on bail.

QUEBEC, March 18 (Canadian Press).—Practically without comment, the Quebec Legislative Assembly last night put through the bill to incorporate the "Beauharnois Railway Company." The Opposition has been blocking the bill for the past three weeks. When the bill was moved for third reading, there was a call of "on division," but when Premier Taschereau called for a formal vote this was dropped and the bill went through unanimously. Two Airmen Killed In Airplane Crash; Left Toronto 9 a.m.

Pilot and Radio Operator Are Instantly Killed in Crash in Air Mail Plane on Shore of Long Lake 30 Miles North of the City of Kingston.

AIRPLANE FELL FROM GREAT HEIGHT
IDENTFICATION OF BODIES DIFFICULT

Airmen Were Forced Down By Bad Weather Near Napanee But Took Off Again Shortly Afterwards—Plane Was a Travelair Cabin Machine Owned by Canada Airways.

KINGSTON, Ont., March 18 (Canadian Press). — Henry Simoneau, pilot, of Montreal, Que., and P. Robinson, radio operator, thought to be also of Montreal, were instantly killed just before noon to-day when the Toronto-Montreal air mail plane crashed on the shore of Long Lake, three miles from the village of Parham, 30 miles north of this city. The plane fell from a great height with terrific force. Machine and bodies were so badly mangled that identification for a time was impossible.

The plane was a Travelair cabin machine and was owned by the Canada Airways of Montreal, and registered as "C.F.-A.J.O."

Awaits Investigation.

Only meagre reports are available early this afternoon. The bodies have been taken to the village of Parham. Dr. K. B. Saddaby, coroner, of Sharbot Lake, has taken charge pending the official investigation.

The plane left Toronto at 9 o'clock this morning with a full load of air mail for Montreal. It is reported it was forced down by bad weather near Napanee this morning, but took off again shortly afterwards in a northeasterly direction.

W. F. Good, a resident of the district around Long Lake, was the first on the scene after the accident. A tremendous noise as the plane crashed attracted Good's attention as he was working in his sugar bush a short distance away, he told the Canadian Press this afternoon. The plane was partly on top of the ice and partly submerged, when he reached the scene. The engine was under the ice while the wrecked framework lay on top of the ice. The occupants had apparently been trapped in the cabin. Immediately summoning aid from Parham, the bodies of Simoneau and Robinson, in a mangled condition, were removed from the wreckage. Every bone in their bodies appeared to be broken, he said.

Two mail bags were found in the wreckage of the plane, but were in perfect condition. It is not thought there were more bags aboard.

The spot where the plane fell is on Long Lake, 250 feet from shore, on ice that is 19 inches thick. The water at this point is about 13 feet deep.

Conditions Were Bad.

KINGSTON, Ont., March 18 (C.P.).—Myer Hershorn, 1485 Bleury Street, Montreal, owes his life to-day to the fact that the ill-fated plane did not call at Kingston as intended. Hershorn had arranged to be a passenger on the plane and was to have boarded the machine here. The plane, however, took a northern route and crashed when apparently coming into Kingston to pick up Hershorn.

Captain Free of the Kingston airport, when spoken to by the Canadian Press this afternoon, stated conditions locally for flying were bad this morning. He had word from Toronto early in the day asking the weather conditions. This presumably came from Pilot Simoneau.

Nothing further has been learned of the accident, though officials from Parham are now at the scene. The plane, it is learned, was almost completely demolished.

MONTREAL, Que., March 18—Officials of the Canadian Airways Company, when informed by the Canadian Press of the airplane accident near Kingston said they were without information about it. They said they had a pilot named Simoneau in their employ, and that one of their planes should have been in the neighborhood of Kingston at the time the crash took place to-day.

Henri Simoneau, the pilot, of Quebec City, and P. Robinson radio operator, Montreal, were only recently employed by the Canadian Airways, Limited, operators of the air mail service between Montreal and Toronto, it was learned from officials of the company here.

Simoneau is recalled here as the pilot of the mail plane which crashed in flames at St. John, N.B., about three weeks ago. Both men were unmarried.

DIVORCE BILL IS AGAIN DISCUSSED

William Irvine Claims Last Vote Was Very Unsatisfactory.

WANTS DECISIVE DECISION.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 18. (C.P.). At the opening of this afternoon's sitting of the House of Commons, William Irvine (U.F.A., Wetaskawin) moved that the bill to provide a divorce court in Ontario, defeated last Friday night by one vote, be put back on the order paper and stand again for second reading. Mr. Irvine said the vote taken last Friday night had been unsatisfactory.

"I may say the vote was unsatisfactory, not only to myself but to the House of Commons," Mr. Irvine stated, "and from what I have read the vote was unsatisfactory to the country."

Country Wants Decision

It was not a definite decision which the Commons had rendered when the measure was defeated on second reading, he proceeded. The country, Mr. Irvine asserted, demanded a "decisive decision on this divorce question."

He went on to point out that the vote which defeated the bill on second reading had been small, as only 157 members had voted out of a total of 245.

"I do not wish to reflect on members of the House who were not present," said Mr. Irvine. It was reasonable for the members not to have expected the discussion on the bill to terminate so soon as it did. Many members were therefore not back in the House in time to vote.

There was also the question of pairs. Many members who had to be away from the House of Commons had arranged pairs, which, in some instances, had been broken. He did not criticize such action but thought it was a question on which the pairs should have been honored.

"So Mr. Speaker," he said, "I want a decisive decision. If the bill is defeated, we who advocate it can then turn our attention to other efforts." Mr. Irvine said the measure was not a "party" one.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, thought the present motion was "unusual." If technically, he continued, Mr. Irvine had the right to move reconsider the bill, then assuming the measure was again defeated, another motion for reconsideration might be made and this practice continued during the session.

CHINESE BANDITS SLAUGHTER 2,000 IN LONE VILLAGE

Town is Looted and Plunder Carried Into Kiangsi Mountains.

NO RESISTANCE OFFERED.

Magistrate of Kingfu Sends to Nanking For Military Aid.

SHANGHAI, March 18 (C.P.). — Bandits and Communists, said delayed Chinese reports received here today, attacked and captured Fuan, a town near Kianfu, central Kiangsi Province, massacreing all Fuan officials and 2,000 men, women and children.

After slaying the populace, continued the reports, the bandits looted the town, carrying their plunder into the mountains of Western Kiangsi.

People Badly Frightened.

The outrage was reported by the Magistrate of Kingfu. He said the people of Fuan were paralyzed with fear and were afraid further to oppose the bandits, who were depicted as subjecting Kiangsi Province to a merciless deluge of robberies and wholesale killings. The massacre was said to have occurred a month ago.

The Magistrate appealed to the Nationalist Government at Nanking for military assistance.

Old Officers Are Re-elected at Annual Election of Chamber of Commerce.

3RD CONSECUTIVE YEAR.

James Dutton was unanimously re-elected to the presidency of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce at the meeting last evening of the newly-elected board of directors, thus entering on his third consecutive term as president.

Nominations were then called for the office of president for the year 1930, and it was moved that Mr. Dutton be re-elected.

F. D. Kerr, K. C., and C. S. Cummer were also re-elected as vice-president and treasurer respectively.

In voicing his appreciation for the honor done him, Mr. Dutton spoke of the Chamber as the City's Chief Suggestive Organization, and made reference to the friendly relations and the fine spirit of co-operation existing between the city's administrative body, the City Council and the Chamber.

J. J. Turner and Mr. Kerr responding, pointed out that while a certain amount of honor had been done to Mr. Dutton they felt that still greater honor had been extended to the Chamber of Commerce by his acceptance to office.

French Senator Says War Risks Remain

POWERS FEAR WAR AND WILL REMAIN ARMED

Claims France Ceased to be European Continental Nation, and Now is Inter-continental.

MAKES CRITICAL ANALYSIS.

Situation on Sea or Land Does Not Justify Lazy Optimism.

PARIS, March 18.—(C.P.)—Warning that the world of to-day faces the same risk of war as preceding epochs was issued to-day by Senator Henry Berenger, in a report to the French Parliament.

The report was submitted in behalf of the Finance committee on the budget of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and reviewed the external politics of France which M. Berenger insisted has ceased to be a European continental nation and has become inter-continental.

Analysis League of Nations.

After affirming that all countries are forming international political systems M. Berenger made a critical analysis of the League of Nations, the Young Plan, the World Court, the project for a United States of Europe and the London Naval Conference.

He concluded that if inter-continental politics sought the consolidation of peace, it was not necessarily a symbol of peace and that the crisis was found in the fact that democracies, while wishing peace, feared war and that, though wishing to disarm, they remained armed.

"Neither on the sea where several imperialisms are opposed to one another, nor on land where Central and Oriental Europe are far from being consolidated, does the situation justify any lazy optimism. With its double determination oft-time affirmed of peace and dominations, our age contains as many murderous risks as those which have gone before."

M. Berenger told Parliament that France's foreign affairs budget jumped from 20,000,000 francs in 1914 to 280,000,000 francs in 1930, trebled taking into account the reduction in the value of the franc. He said this was due to the normal evolution of the policies of France which, since the Great War has "passed from a continental to an inter-continental plan like all the other great powers." Senator Berenger is a former Ambassador to the United States.

FRENCH SECURITY PACT ABANDONED

Britain and U. S. Refuse to Give Further Guarantees—Turn to Franco-Italian Problem.

AWAIT TARDIEU.

LONDON, March 18 (C.P.) — The naval conference has virtually rung down the curtain of a Mediterranean "Locarno" or treaty of mutual security guarantees. The United States and Britain are against the giving of more security guarantees. The pact which France wanted in return for any reduction of her present naval figures, will not enter into the naval conversations any more. There is a chance, however, it may be raised again when the League of Nations' Preparatory Commission on Disarmament meets at Geneva in the summer.

The London conversations will now turn on the Franco-Italian difficulties. The conversations continued today when various proposals were explored, but no solutoin was found. None is expected before Premier Andre Tardieu returns from Paris next Saturday. He will then spend another week-end at Chequers, the British Prime Minister's country home in the Chiltern Hills.

EGG IMPORTS ARE MENACE TO DOMINION

Tories Point Out Difference of 5 Cents Between Canadian and U. S. Tariffs.

RADIUM DISCUSSED.

Dr. Cotnam Urges Dominion Gov't to Move Towards Nationalization of Supply.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 18. (Canadian Press).—The House of Commons wandered away from the order-paper yesterday and devoted practically the entire sitting to a discussion of eggs. The discussion arose on a motion of H. J. Barber, Conservative member for Fraser Valley, calling for adjournment of the House to discuss "a definite matter of urgent importance." Such a motion if the speaker considers that the subject warrants it, takes precedence over all other matters of business.

Mr. Barba urged upon the House "the necessity for immediate action being taken by the Government to prevent the dumping of eggs from the United States and other countries upon the Canadian market." His motion was finally withdrawn, but not until a variety of views with respect to it had found expression.

B. C. Members Object

Support for Government action to prevent dumping of eggs into Canada was given by several of the British Columbia Conservative members. The difference between the Canadian tariff of three cents against American eggs and American tariff of eight cents against the Canadian product, was stressed. Gradually the debate became general. Ontario Conservatives supporting the British Columbia convention, while some of the Liberals from the Prairies opposed it.

Hon. James Malcolm, minister of trade and commerce, asserted that egg prices in the United States were considably lower than those in Canada. He expressed the opinion that excessive duties resulted in strenuous domestic competition, which might be more serious than foreign competition. The failure so far of the poultry interests to press their application for higher duties before the Tariff Board would indicate that the situation was not very acute. Ninety-nine percent of the Canadian market was supplied by Canadian producers.

Radium Discussed.

Immediate action on the part of the Dominion Government with a view to the nationalization of the supply of radium in Canada was urged in the House of Commons last night by Dr. I. D. Cotnam (Cons., Renfrew North). The object of the resolution, he explained, was the provision of an adequate supply of radium under Government control. It should be divided up and placed in convenient centres throughout the country. Around each radium centre a bureau of cancer research might be built up. Co-operation between the Federal and Provincial Departments of Health could be arranged.

CAR OVERTURNS ON STEEP HILL

Havelock Party Narrowly Escapes Serious Injury.

SKIDDED ON ROAD.

HAVELOCK, March 18 (Examiner Correspondence).—A party of Havelock people marvellously escaped serious injury Sunday afternoon when the car in which they were riding skidded on the ice of a dangerous hill, nose dived over an embankment and then somersaulted, coming to rest with its wheels in the air.

Driving the car was Mrs. Fred Wrightly, of Havelock, and she was accompanied by her husband, his mother, Mrs. John Wrightly, the two Wrightly children, Douglas and Madeline, and Mrs. M. Kirvy, a visitor here from the West. Mrs. Fred Wrightly received a blow on the head which partly stunned her. Mrs. Kirvy suffered a fractured wrist and an injured leg, and the whole party was severely shaken and received minor cuts and bruises.

The car was being driven over a hill near the Devil's Elbow, about five miles north of here, on the Stoney Lake road, when it skidded near the crest on the ice and veered sharply to the right, striking the railing. The car then swung to the left and nose-dived over the embankment coming to rest after a somersault.

This hill is known to be dangerous, and only a half hour earlier Hugh McArthur had found it impossible to negotiate.

BRITAIN HALTS SUB BUILDING

Finances Available For Three More Undersea Craft if Parley Fails.

NEW SAFETY EQUIPMENT.

LONDON, March 18 (Canadian Press). — Regardless of the apparent failure of the naval parley to deal with the submarine issue, Great Britain has halted its submarine building program, Right Hon. A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, revealed yesterday when he tabled the naval estimates.

While Britain is not prepared to disarm without common action on the part of other Powers, the Government will wait to the last possible moment before deciding on new construction, the House was told. The total naval estimates are $20,000,000 lower than last year.

Should the parley fail finances are available for the construction of three more submarines, Mr. Alexander said.

He disclosed that successful tests of new safety apparatus had caused the Government to place orders for equipment of all undersea craft with the new devices.

KARL G. LECH DIES SUDDENLY

One of City's Oldest Business Men Passes Away During the Night.

71 YEARS OF AGE.

Karl Gustave Lech passed peacefully away early this morning at his late residence 513 Hunter Street W., at the age of 71 years.

He was one of the oldest business men in the city, having been actively engaged in fur manufacturing here since the age of 14 years. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Lech, and was born in Montreal, from which city his parents came in the year 1861, at which time the deceased was two years old. The foundations on which the present thriving business is built were laid in those early days by the late William Lech, who commenced business on the site of the present McWilliams Hat Store. A few years later a change of location was made and the business was transferred to a store on the site of the Dominion Bank, after which operations were again transferred to the present store situated at 413 George Street. Mr. Lech had conducted his business at this location for the past 59 years, and was at business right up to the time of his sudden demise.

On August 14, 1886, he married Christina Shand Menzies, daughter of the late Thomas Menzies. Besides his widow he also leaves two sons, Keith G. and Cyril K. Lech, and one brother, William E., all of this city; four sisters, Mrs. E. E. Graham of Peterborough, Mrs. F. G. Gnaedinger, of Valleyfield, Quebec, Mrs. E. F. Walter, Westmount, Quebec, and Mrs. Paul Stoeving of Mamaroneck, N.Y., to whom the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community will go out at this time.

In his younger days Mr. Leck was an athlete of some renown, having been a sculler, figure skater, and a swimmer.

He was a member of St. John's Anglican Church and also of the Royal Arthur Lodge, A.F. and A.M., Number 523, under whose auspices the funeral will be held on Thursday from the family residence, 513 Hunter Street West, at 2.30 p.m. The service will be conducted by Rev. E. R. James, after which the remains will be laid to rest in the hallowed family plot in Little Lake Cemetery.

MINER IS KILLED THREE HURT IN SHERRIDON FIRE

Boarding House of Sherritt-Gordon Mining Company is Razed.

$20,000 DAMAGE.

Two of Injured Men Rushed to Hospital by Plane—120 Men Homeless.

THE PAS, Man., March 18.—(C.P.)—Fire which swept through a Sherritt-Gordon Mining Company boarding house at Sherridon early yesterday destroyed the $20,000 structure, burned to death George McKenzie, aged 38, a mine worker, and seriously injured three men.

Dozens of others are being cared for in the hospital at the Sherritt-Gordon mine.

Two of the seriously injured men were rushed to St. Anthony's hospital here by airplane. Jack Moar of the Western Canada Airways, flew the party down in record time. The two men here are Stewart Paul and Sam David. They will recover. They were burned and then injured in a jump from the third storey of the building. At Sherridon, the third injured member of the mining staff, a man named McMasters, is being treated for an injured back and serious burns.

Hundreds looked on as the big structure was destroyed. Within two hours the building had burned to the ground. Other company houses were being used this evening to accommodate the 120 men who were made homeless. An investigation into the cause of the fire is under way.

MANY PERISH AS OIL FIRE BURNS RIVER STEAMER

Only Ten of Over Thirty on Passenger List Are Rescued.

CAPTAIN REFUSES TO LEAVE

BOGOTA, Colombia, March 18. — (C.P.)—More than a score of passengers, and many of the crew of the river steamer Bucaramanga, lost their lives yesterday when the boat's cargo of petroleum caught fire in dock at La Dorado, on the Magdalena river. The ship was destroyed.

Only 10 of a passenger list thought to number more than 30 were rescued.

Other steamers in La Dorado harbor stood helplessly by, afraid to come to the rescue because of the explosive nature of the Bucaramanga's cargo.

Captain Velez, one of the first to reach deck, tried to get the lifeboats lowered away. When he saw that it was impossible to save his boat he refused to leave it and was burned to death.

La Dorada is a small port, about 450 miles upstream from the mouth of the Magdelena.

EDISON PROMISES TO MAKE RUBBER

Will Have Production From Golden Rod Ready Within Five Years.

WORKS 14 HOURS DAILY.

FORT MYERS, March 18 (C.P.).—Thomas A. Edison expects to stay in harness of busy life until the machinery has been completed for the production of emergency rubber from golden rod, which soon will be planted on a large scale at the Henry Ford plantation near Savannah, Ga.

The 83-year-old inventor said yesterday he expects to continue working an average of 14 hours a day until his latest and "toughest" problem is solved.

"Give me five more years and the United States will have a rubber crop which can be utilized in less than 12 months time," said Mr. Edison. He added that he guarded his health by strict diet and protection from inclement weather. He will remain in Florida until about June 15.

Although Mr. Edison does little of the actual labor in his laboratory now, he inspects his golden rod daily and can furnish his staff enough ideas in an hour to keep the assistants busy for a week.

SON SUPPORTS FATHER'S STORY IN SIMCOE CASE

Says Doctor Was Not Asked to Give Imbecile Man an Anaesthetic.

OTHER FACTS DIFFER.

Medicine Given Had Been Administered on Several Previous Occasions.

SIMCOE, March 18. (C.P.)—Another phase of the Blayney case at Cherry Valley was heard yesterday when Delmer Blayney, brother of Lewis Blayney, who died last week under what have been termed mysterious circumstances, declared vehemently that the statements attribued to Dr. E. S. Copeman of Simcoe with respect to the part played by the father, Walter Balyney, in the death of his son were at variance with the facts. Delmer Blayney stated unequivocally that his father had never suggested that the doctor administer an anaesthetic to the imbecile man, nor that he should extract his teeth.

His father, he said, had simply given the son three teaspoons of medicine for the purpose of stopping a convulsion. He had done this on numerous occasions.

PREMIER FAVORS DEPOSIT OF $200

Earl Hutchinson (Labor, Kenora) said Labor was objecting, declaring it was retrograde legislation.

Premier Ferguson said such deposit was no burden to any man occupying a position in the community but would remove a type of public nuisance.

Second Reading Given.

Mr. Sinclair, while approving the principle felt elections should be at fixed times, but that the bill should not apply until settled by the people.

Amendments to the Liquor Control Act went through committee without objection.

Hon. H. C. Nixon, Progressive leader, filed the following notice of motion, that in the opinion of this House the development of the St. Lawrence to provide hydro-electric power and deep navigation between the Great Lakes and the Ocean, should be undertaken without unnecessary delay. This House is further of the opinion that the work should be carried out in cooperation with our friendly neighbor—the United States."

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, March 18.—As very few shipments of eggs were received in the city on Saturday, the local market was unaffected, as far as prices to shippers and retailers were concerned yesterday. The quotations to country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, remained at 26c to 27c for extras, 24c to 25c for firsts, and 22c for seconds. Retailers were quoted 34c for extras in cartons, 32c for extras loose, 30c for firsts loose, and 27c for seconds loose. Brokers were moving very few yesterday at prices ranging from 29c to 30c for extras, 27c to 28c for firsts, and 25c to 26c for seconds, graded eggs, free cases. It was expected that business would pick up, as far as shipments from country shippers were concerned, on Tuesday, and that there would be a change in prices.

Butter

The butter market held firm at the same prices as quoted Saturday. Creamery pasturized, No. 1, was quoted at 33¾c to 34c to shippers; 38 scoring, No. 2, 33c to 33¼c; and 37 scoring, No. 2, 32¾ to 33c. The price to the retail trade was unchanged.

Cream

Churning cream went slightly lower. Special was quoted at 38c only; No. 1, 37c, and No. 2, 34c. Previously there was a spread in the prices; special, 38c to 39c; No. 1, 37c to 38c and No. 2, 34c to 35c.

Cheese

The cheese market was steady at unchanged prices and a good demand.

Potatoes

The potato market was firm at prices quoted Saturday.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, March 18. — Indications that the local butter market has reached a price bottom were evident yesterday, as a firmer tone was felt. Improvement in demand was noted by dealers, although prices were unchanged. Further indications that prices would remain steady to higher were the [illegible] in spite of heavy arrivals of New Zealand butter last week, prices decline but ¼c, and the most of the New Zealand butter has been received for the season. Wholesale prices continue at 33¾c to 33¾c a pound, with retail quotations steady at 37c and 38c a pound.

Cheaper eggs prices went into effect here, making prices 10c a dozen cheaper than on the same day last year. Fresh specials were quoted at 36c to 37c a dozen; fresh extras at 35c; fresh firsts at 33c; and fresh seconds at 30c a dozen.

Potatoes opened the week steady at unchanged prices, and the cheese market was practically inactive.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 18. — Wheat moved sharply upward in price yesterday and held stubbornly to gains, despite downpours over Kansas and other States where moisture has been needed. Advances were associated largely with reduction of Liverpool stocks of wheat and curtailment of arrivals at all British ports, as well as withdrawal of Argentine offerings abroad and cleaning up of distress holdings at Winnipeg. Furthermore, the United States wheat visible supply total yesterday showed 2,168,000 bushel decrease.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ⅝c to ¼c a bushel higher than Saturday's finish. Corn closed ⅜c to 1⅞c up; oats, ½c to 1c advance, and provisions at a rise of 15c to 25c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, March 18. — For the first time since new low-level records were set up last week, wheat prices scored a substantial gain on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday. At the close quotations were 1¾c to 1½c ahead. News, pointing to improved export demand joined with a rise at Liverpool to boost prices.

Trade volume was good, and the market was strong throughout, mounting more than 3c per bushel to its high point before dropping back on reports of rain in the dry Southwest States. Broomhall reports told of decreased on-passage wheat for Britain, and suggested that foreign buying might resume if the Winnipeg futures market continues to advance.

Cash wheat offers were few, and little business was done. Low-grade oats and barley continued in fairly good demand.

EGG IMPORTS ARE MENACE

The resolution was still under discussion when the House adjourned.

In stressing the importance of radium treatment, Dr. Cotnam explained that cancer was on the increase in Canada and had already displaced tuberculosis as the chief contributory to the death toll.

To treat cancer properly, $35,000 worth of radium was needed, said Mr. Cotnam. Such an expenditure was beyond the reach of most physicians.

A system would be worked out under which poor patients could be treated at the radium centres free of charge. Those of moderate means could be charged a nominal fee, and wealthy patients a more substantial one.

Commission to Investigate.

As a preliminary step Dr. Cotnam suggested the appointment of a commission composed of eminent medical men, and possibly some laymen, to investigate the whole matter, confer with the Provincial authorities and make recommendations to Parliament.

It was his hope, said Dr. Peter McGibbon (Cons. Muskoka) that the discussion of this subject would reach the people throughout the country, so it would convey some hope to the 10,000 people now suffering from cancer.

There was an appalling increase in the death rate from cancer in Canada. The rate in the province of Ontario, for instance, had advanced from 54.8 per 1000 deaths in 1902 to 99 in 1929.

Hon. J. H. King, Minister of National Health and Pensions, said that if 16½ grams of radium were purchased it would only cost $750,000, and this amount divided among the provinces would mean a small sum for each. This was a matter, he stated, which should be dealt with by the provinces and the discussion was one which should have taken place on the floors of the various legislatures.

Mr. King was still speaking when the House rose at 11 o'clock and the resolution goes to the bottom of the list.

FUR FARM FENCE IS AGAIN HIGH LIGHT OF CONTROVERSY

Company Directors Willing to Offer Every Assistance to Settle Difference

ON EMILY CREEK.

(Examiner Correspondence)

KING'S WHARF, Mar. 18. — A meeting to decide the right of the Emily Fur Farm to fence certain waters on Emily Creek, was largely attended by local residents and numerous official representatives, included amongst which were the following: W. C. Moore, chairman; W. W. Staples, M. L. A., of Lindsay; Leslie M. Frost of Lindsay, representing the Fur Farm, Professor McKay of Toronto, R. McIntosh, Bobcaygeon; Reeve Ashmore of Emily; Rev. Father Galvin of Downeyville and Professor McLeod of Toronto.

The question at issue was whether the farm management have the right to fence part of the Creek and whether the creek is navigable for maskinonge if so would the fences prevent them navigating the river.

The importance of the decision to the directors of the farm is apparent and the hope was expressed by the very large gathering that the Fur Farm will be retained in the district.

No decision was reached at the meeting held last Friday and it is quite probable that the matter will receive further consideration at another meeting in the near future.

Mr. Frost for the Fur Farm said the owners were ready to co-operate with the Fish and Game Association and would put gates at either side of their property to provide for the access of the fish. He further stated that if the farm prospered, the directors would be prepared to spend from two to three hundred thousand dollars on this work.

Professor McKay thought Emily Creek favorably suited for maskinonge spawning, whilst R. McIntosh thought the fencing of Emily Creek would mean the fencing of many other places like it, all over the Kawartha Lakes.

An objection to the Fur Farm putting in gates for the fish was raised by R. Pardy and Reeve Bottum of Bobcaygeon was of the same opinion and thought the creek should not be fenced.

Rev. Fr. Galvin said that the Fish and Game Association should try the fencing method for a few years. Thus giving it a fair trial, and in this contention he was supported by Reeve Ashmore. A few words in favor of the fencing were also voiced by J. C. O'Leary.

The farm was organized about a year ago under the directorate of President Walton Wade; vice president Robert Hicks and manager Edwin Ruthven. The property consists of 940 acres and about $35,000 has already been spent in fencing it, contrary to the views of the Fish and Game Association.

The program which was in the hands of the pastor, the Rev. J. F. Everson consisted of the following numbers: "Onward Christian Soldiers" and prayer by Mr. Everson. A Jubilee choir sang, "O Canada," "The Tale of a Shirt" and "Massa's In the Cold, Cold Ground." Accordion selection by Elwin Yanch. A reading, by Lois Campbell; a solo, by Mrs. Everson, "Only One Daisy Left"; reading, Francis Pringle, "Farmer John"; the Jubilee choir then sang, "A Negro Medley", "The Iceman's Song"; "Long, Long, Trail," and "L'il Liza Jane"; a reading, Eddie James, "A Negro's Lecture on Locomotion"; solo, Mr. Kemp; mouth organ instrumental, Gerald DeMore; a dialogue entitled, "From Down East" was given by Mr. Kemp, Miss Ora York, Mrs. J. F. Davison, and Mr and Mrs Everson This was well given and much enjoyed, having plenty of humor and revealing the moral that one cannot always judge the moral worth of folk by their dress or outward appearance "Day Is Dying In the West", and the National Anthem closed the program. The ladies of the congregation served a delicious lunch of cake and sandwiches. Half the proceds of the concert will be devoted to repairs around the parsonage and the balance will go into the general church fund.

Kathleen Mavourneen.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 18 (Examiner Correspondence).—St. Patrick's Day was fittingly observed here yesterday when the four-act Irish comedy, "Kathleen Mavoureen," played to a crowded house at the Regent Theatre. The presentation was under the auspices of St. Mary's Parish.

The play was one that gave scope for all classes of acting. From the heavy villain to the country youth, talent shone forth from a well-drilled cast.

The plot was simple in character and lent itself to fine dramatic effore. The country girl with the ardent lover who is wooed by the rich squire. The dream which shows her future as the squire's wife, her attempted murder by her husband, and the rescue by her lover. Then the squire's death and her lover led away to face the hangman. And the awakening from sleep to find it was all a dream.

Takes Part Well

Mrs. James Black starred in the leading role as Kathleen O'Connor. From the happy country girl to the broken hearted woman, she held the attention of audience in every sphere of expression. In dramatic interpretation, Mrs. Black proved herself more than an amateur.

Playing opposite her was James Black, cast as Terrence O'Moore, the lover. He showed himself a fine actor in scenes gay and sad, and carried through his part a vein of delightful Irish humor. Bernard Kavanaugh, the country squire and villain, was played by Elie Brunelle, and proved a villain worthy of the name. A heavy role from start to finish, it was played to perfection. Mrs. G. O'Sullivan, as his sister Miss Dorothy Kavanaugh, also proved her worth as her brother's friend and accomplice. A difficult role at all times, Mrs. O'Sullivan portrayed the lady villain to a nicety.

Father Cassidy, the parish priest, was played by Jack Anderson, and showed the dignity and seriousness of his position to advantage, while Mrs. P. J. Kelly, as the maid Kitty O'Laverty, did some fine acting in the portrayal of her character. William Brennan was cast in two roles, David O'Connor and the jailer, and as both showed to advantage. Black Rody and Red Barney, Leo Bush and William Callaghan, were the necessary evils in the story, and played the parts of ruffians exceptionally well. Jack McAvoy, as Bill Button Cop, was the funny boy, and kept the audience merry with his wit and acting.

The play was quick of action and presented with a smartness that was worthy of professional talent. Between the acts, two delightful Irish songs were sung by Marie Crossen, which brought a hearty encore to which she responded. Miss Rosina Clarke also pefformed two splendid dances, the Kerry Dance and the Scottish Hornpipe, and was encored on both occasions.

Accompanists for the evening were Mrs. D. Kerr, Mrs. J. Benor and Miss M. Anderson.

ALLAN CUP HOLDERS DEFEAT ELMWOODS

Port Arthur Scores Thrilling Overtime Victory in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., March 18. — Ambitious for a fourth Canadian title in half a dozen years Port Arthur's senior hockeymen to-night fought their way into the Western Canada final. The Allan Cup holders won their way into the last Western series by eliminating Elmwood Millionaires of Winnipeg, champions of Manitoba. The score last night was 2 to 1 in overtime.

Two neck and neck struggles were waged before the Thunder Bay League winners were able to set aside the Manitoba threat to title hopes. A week ago at Port Arthur the squads tolled for 60 minutes without a score in the first match of a series of two. Last night the Ports were a goal behind in the first session, even-up in the third, and ahead by a victory counter in ten minutes of extra play.

BOYS WINNERS IN C. E. CONTEST

Girls of Lily Lake Society Entertain Boys at Banquet.

MEMBERSHIP INCREASED.

The attendance contest which was held by the Lily Lake Christian Endeavour Society was brought to a fitting close last night by a splendid banquet held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Steinkrauss, Jr., who kindly loaned their spacious home for the occasion.

The contest was won by the boys, they having had a majority of about 20 points over the girls. At the start of the contest, the members were dividede into two groups, the girls in one and the boys in the other, the contest to extend over a period of six weeks. At the end of that time the losers were to provide a banquet and program for the winners.

About fifty guests sat down to the tables which were attractively decorated in colors of green, yellow and white, and partook of a delicious supper. Ferdinand Rowland, acted as toastmaster and the following toasts were given: "The King"; "The Ladies" proposed by Arthur Hancock and responded to by Miss Helen Stuart; "Our Society" proposed by William Saunders and responded to by Miss Katheryn Rowland; "The Gentlemen" proposed by Mrs. William Steinkrauss and responded to by Harold Middleton; "Our New Members" proposed by Miss Mary Middleton, president of the Society, and responded to by Mrs. Clarence Ferguson.

After supper games and contests in charge of Miss Helen Stuart and Ferdinand Rowland were enjoyed and suitable prizes were awarded to the winners. A vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Steinkrauss for her kindness in permitting the members to hold the banquet at her home and the evening concluded with singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

The object in holding the contest was to stimulate new interest and to increase the membership. As a result, the Society's membership has been increased by about 25.

MUNICIPAL INCOME TAX.

A bill before the Legislature proposing to give municipal councils the power through a two-thirds vote to refrain from collecting municipal income tax should receive enough support to carry the measure.

There has been a strong pressure of public opinion in a number of Ontario cities for the abolition of the municipal income tax, and despite the fact that the law required this tax to be collected, several municipalities have consistently refused to comply.

The bill now introduced will leave it up to the municipal councils themselves to decide whether or not they want to make an income tax levy upon their citizens, and thus will legalize the action of those municipalities which in the past have declined to collect.

It is rightly a matter that the municipalities should settle, and there should be no objection to the bill becoming law.

There has been no uniformity under the old system, so that those cities opposed on principle to the municipal income tax might as well be given the legal power to refrain from imposing the levy.

They have been doing this without authority, and the Macaulay bill merely makes legal a practice that has been followed in defiance of the regulation.

THE PARKING REGULATIONS.

Motorists who have been ignoring the regulations in regard to parking on down-town streets where the practice is forbidden have no reason to complain of police activity or of having been called upon to report at the police station.

The rules have been in force for a long period, and those who have been parking in defiance of the city regulations and have been "getting away with it" should feel satisfied that they escaped without a fine.

The police department announces that from now on the regulations will be rigidly enforced.

They should be in the general interest; they were passed because it was felt that they would contribute to safer driving conditions and save congestion in the business area, and they should be given a fair chance to show that they will function as was expected when they became law.

Reasonable motorists will co-operate with the authorities in the enforcement of these anti-parking rules; as for the other kind they will have to be shown that the law has "teeth," and that those who defy it are following a practice that promises to be expensive.

The regulations should be either enforced or repealed, and so far there has been nothing to suggest a powerful argument in favor of the latter course.

BARRING OUT BOGUS CANDIDATES.

Premier Ferguson's bill requiring a $200 deposit from candidates aspiring to the Legislature, to be forfeited if the candidate fails to secure one-half the votes polled for the winner, is being favorably received by Ontario newspapers.

Nobody would care to see obstacles placed in the way of legitimate candidates, but the last election showed the necessity of some curb upon irresponsible persons who for the sake of publicity or to put over Communistic propaganda would offer themselves as candidates so long as no expense was involved.

Under the law as it stands any person who can secure the names of one hundred electors on his nomination papers can become a candidate—a condition that in the last campaign caused a number of unnecessary elections and put the Province to that much extra expense.

The deposit requirement will put an end to that sort of thing.

Persons with a Red axe to grind or a little personal vanity to serve are likely to think twice about rushing into a campaign in which they have no chance on earth to succeed if they know that they are certain to lose $200 in the attempt.

No one should shed any tears over the barring out of bogus candidates, publicity hunters and apostles of Sovietism.

THE OUTLOOK FOR THE NON-ACADEMIC CHILD.

In connection with a study recently made by the Social Service Council of juveniles in penitentiaries, it was ascertained that every one of the forty-eight boys studied had been misfits in school. Only eight of these boys were in any way mentally retarded and in only one case had the boy passed into high school. In the majority of cases the boys wanted to be trained mechanics or to work with machinery in some way. They did not find that any attempt had ever been made, either in the public school, reform school or provincial jail, to meet this desire. These boys had served 101 years prior to their commitment to the penitentiary. They were all committed before their twenty-first year. They are now serving a total of 223 years. This tragedy is costing our Province and Dominion in excess of $175,000.00.

In a report from the city superintendent, Ontario Government Employment Office, the following facts were ascertained:

1. During the year there were 1,258 new registrations divided as to their qualifications: factory workers, 70 per cent.; office workers, 20 per cent., and in various trades, 10 per cent.

2. The proportion who have not passed their entrance is 60 per cent.

3. The proportion who have passed their entrance but who have not gone to high school is 20 per cent.

4. The proportion of boys who have received their junior matriculation is 3 per cent. Those who have received their senior matriculation would be about ½ or 1 per cent.

5. The proportion of boys who have trouble in the way of continuous employment is about 20 per cent.; 15 per cent. being those who have no further than a lower school education; 4 per cent. having received high school education of from one to four years.

All matriculants with the exception of one case have continued in the positions they have obtained. Only through slackness in firms with which they were connected were they let out, owing to the employers having to decrease their staffs.

There are various reasons why these boys do not continue to stay in the positions which they have received. One case is that of a boy whose quick temper lost him several good positions; another whose ambition does not reach further than his board being paid for one week. There are also several cases of boys who have had to give up good positions through the brutal attitudes of their employers. A number of cases fall down on jobs because of carelessness or lack of interest caused through a small wage with no immediate chance of an increase. There are several cases of boys whose minds have not been any too well developed, thus depriving them of the same chance of employment as the boy whose mind functions normally. These latter are very difficult to place.

THE WHEAT OUTLOOK.

The Montreal Gazette takes a very gloomy outlook of the prospects for the export of wheat when navigation opens on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence. It says: "A survey of the situation, including contact with the key men of the grain and shipping trade, reveals prospects that are anything but bright. Some rays of sunshine which would pierce the prevailing gloom over the industry, and chase away the shadows reflected on other basic lines of the country, are eagerly looked for, but the goods simply are not there. The facts are that not a single full cargo of grain has been booked for the opening of navigation out of the port of Montreal, and that only a small amount of liner space has been chartered, a total of five loads, amounting roughly in all to one thousand tons, a mere bagatelle."

The explanation is that Europe, which ordinarily takes Canada's surplus wheat, has been practically boycotting Canadian grain for the last several months, and continues taking only small quantities. In the meantime, ocean freight rates for the transportation of grain are at distress levels, being approximately at the same height as at the close of last year's season, when they were reduced in an effort to get business. Approximately, according to the authorities, about 211,000,000 bushels of an exportable surplus are waiting for markets abroad. Vessels looking for return cargoes are thus disappointed. At the same time, a sharp controversy has arisen in Winnipeg owing to the action of the Manitoba Legislature in guaranteeing the bank loans to the Canadian Wheat Pool. Mr. W. Sanford Evans, a prominent grain statistician, and a member of the Legislature, declared that, "in my opinion the ills of the world wheat trade are due to the policy and operating methods of the Canadian Wheat Pool."

This charge has been sharply refuted by the officials of the pool, who declare that it has not been guilty of attempting in any way to dominate the wheat markets of the world. It had merely refrained, they asserted, from dumping Canadian wheat on the market at a time when the Argentine product was being freely exported, thereby averting a disastrous collapse of the wheat market. If Canadian wheat had been placed upon the market in larger quantities it is almost certain that according to the inexorable law of supply and demand, the price would have dropped to lower levels than it has already reached. In view of these economic facts, it is difficult to see how the Canadian Wheat Pool deserves the severe criticisms made against it by Mr. Evans in the Legislature. It is undoubtedly a precarious situation, and all that the people of Canada can do is to await the outcome with courage and confidence.—Brantford Expositor.

WHAT GANDHISM MIGHT MEAN.

It is premature to say that Mahatma Gandhi's passive resistance movement has failed, but it is evident that his Indian countrymen are not taking up the idea enthusiastically. Bad as their lot may be, which is mainly due to centuries of superstitious beliefs and practices of an almost unbelievable kind, and which no amount of enlightened rule can eradicate, it would have been a great deal worse if the British had never entered India. The British have succeeded in abolishing the suttee by which widows threw themselves on a funeral pyre, and it has knocked a big hole in the child marriage system as well. But it will take generations to eliminate other cruel and degrading practices which are part of the psychology of the native and which he does not want to surrender.

It is almost universally admitted that if the British left India the Mohammedans would joyfully proceed to massacre the Hindus. And the Afghans would joyfully descend from the hills to massacre both.

But there is another enemy that would destroy India from within if the British service were withdrawn. That is disease.

India is a land peculiarly subject to epidemics. The unenlightened native cares nothing whatever about sanitation. Any Anglo-Indian could tell of unprintable horrors if asked to do so. It is only the British medical service in India that keeps pestilence at bay. And little more than at bay, because the native is utterly indifferent.

On the first day of Gandhi's march twenty-five of his followers were stricken with smallpox and three of them died. Who took care of them? The British, of course.

If India had self-government the medical service would fall to pieces. Gandhi himself preaches the doctrine that British doctors and surgeons are instruments of the devil and that no true Indian will have anything to do with medicine or surgery. They must resort to the witch-doctor if they want to be cured! Yet, he himself, when stricken with appendicitis some years ago, got a British surgeon to operate upon him!

Take away the British medical service and the population of India would be almost extinguished in a few years from smallpox and other diseases.

That, if nothing else, is a powerful reason against Home Rule in India.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Cyril T. Young, director of development for the Canadian National Railways, declares that Canada's greatest hope for the future is the development of her water powers—a prediction that means a great deal to Peterborough.

The Ontario Legislature had better stage a little excitement or it will be completely crowded out of the newspapers.

The Russian Soviet has forbidden religious education of persons under eighteen years of age, offering another reason why Communistic activity in this country should not be given a chance to get started.

If the Ku Klux Klan has not yet learned that public opinion in this country will not stand for the administration of justice to be taken over by a secret society, the Attorney-General should consider the advisability of further charges arising out of the Oakville case.

Apparently the divorce question is not creating much of a stir in Peterborough. So far The Examiner has only received communications on the subject from two contributors, both of them chiefly interested in the political aspect of the subject.

Many a chap has thought he had a girl on his string," says ironical Irene, "only to find out he was roped."—By Gettier.

A Thought

THOUGHT.

Thought moves like lightning, but our thinking must be transformed into action before it can set the world on fire.

What To-day Means To You

"PISCES."

If March 18th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m., from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m., and from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., and from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m.

There will be a "mixed grill' of events on this date, most of which will be either pleasing or profitable in character. Very favorable influences hover over homes and home-life. A thoroughly good time for health.

Children born on this March 18th will have happy-go-lucky natures and they will follow the roads of least resistance They will learn easily, but will not make thorough and careful students. They will have extravagant tastes.

You are usually credited with sound judgment, not only in business, but in all relationships of life. You will never acquire wealth or success by some daring stroke. On the other hand, you are destined to be fairly well fixed by dint of plodding and saving. You might acquire more by being a trifle venturesome and not quite so close-fisted

You are not without artistic instincts and are passionately fond of good music and high-class literature, although by no means a highbrow. Social entertainment makes no appeal to you. Your interest lies in the home where, free from interruption, you can quietly amuse yourself.

Little worries and petty annoyances do more to disturb your equanimity than the big blows of adversity. When the latter enters your life, you square your shoulders, grit your teeth, put your back to the wall—and fight. When, however, a trifle goes wrong, you go to pieces, and lose a grip of yourself. You are not very mindful of your health, and, even though you may be robust, the human machine is a complicated one, and needs overhauling from time to time. Your love attachments will be drab, rather than highly emotional.

Uncommon Sense
By John Blake

YOU ARE ALWAYS AT SCHOOL.

I feel sorry for the little fellow who looks forward so eagerly to the time when he will not have to go to school any more.

I know how he feels. So does everyone who has been a schoolboy, particularly a good many years ago when education was given much less intelligently than it is now, and when often, in the "back districts", the teachers were almost as ignorant as the children, and quite unfitted for their important profession.

The school we must all attend never "lets out".

If we mean to keep up with the march of events, we must always be at school, always learning lessons, most of which are more difficult than any ever contained in a grammar or an arithmetic

The great laboratories where scientists work are merely schools, and the lessons are never-ending.

Business is a continuous school, with something new to learn every day.

The world does not stand still. Not only must we steadily learn, but we must be continually unlearning what we learned before.

You remember that first motor car you ever saw—a high-wheeled, clumsy contraption with tires that would hardly last a hundred miles, and with motors that were never sure to keep going or even start.

While they were in use, engineers were at school and working hard at their lessons, with the result that to-day a car you can buy for a few hundred dollars is more dependable than the car which twenty-five years ago cost five or ten thousand.

That was the result of continuous schooling in mechanics, in strength of metals, in lubrication and the development of highly and surely explosive gasolines.

And while we have been progressing mechanically through schooling we are progressing, more slowly perhaps, in the science of government, and in the solution of the staggering problems of reducing poverty and fighting disease.

For every useful mortal on this earth the school bell is constantly ringing and the summons to long hours of lessons constantly comes.

But the school is so interesting that those who attend it need but few vacations and really enjoy their "home work", provided they have that thirst to learn and to "find out" which is back of all progress.

We may be disappointed, when we grow up, to find that school is always in session. But it cannot be helped, so we might as well make the most of it.

And after all, to the well-regulated mind, the school supplies a wider interest and really better mental entertainment than can ever be found in playing hookey, which many people do, from the School of Experience.

So keep your books under your arm. You will need them all as long as you dwell on this earth.

THE GREENE MURDER CASE
By S. S. VAN DINE

"And, on the other hand, there is evidence that the footprints actually did originate in the house; because if an outsider had made them he would have been at no pains to confuse the issue of their origin, since, in any event, they could not have been traced back farther than the street. Therefore, as a tentative starting point, I assumed that the tracks had, in reality, been made by some one in the house—I can't say, of course, whether or not my layman's logic adds luster to the gladsome light of jurisprudence!—

"Your reasoning is consistent as far as it goes," cut in Markham tartly. "But it is hardly complete enough to have led you directly to the linen-closet this morning."

"True. But there were various contributory factors.

"For instance, the galoshes which Snitkin found in Chester's clothes-closet were the exact size of the prints. At first I toyed with the idea that they were the actual instruments of our unknown's vestigial deception. But when, after they had been taken to headquarters, another set of similar tracks appeared to wit, the ones found this morning—I amended my theory slightly, and concluded that Chester had owned two pairs of galoshes—one that had perhaps been discarded but not thrown away. That was why I wanted to wait for Captain Jerym's report: I was anxious to learn if the new tracks were exactly like the old ones."

"But even so," interrupted Markham, "your theory that the footprints emanated from the house strikes me as being erected on pretty weak scaffolding. Were there any other indicants?"

"I was coming to them," replied Vance reproachfully. "But you will rush me so. Pretend that I'm a lawyer, and my summation will sound positively breathless."

"I'm more likely to pretend that I'm a presiding judge, and give you sus. per coll."

"Ah, well." Vance sighed and continued. "Let us consider the hypothetical intruder's means of escape after the shooting of Julia and Ada. Sproot came into the upper hall immediately after the shot had been fired in Ada's room; yet he heard nothing—neither footsteps in the hall nor the front door closing. And, Markham old thing, a person, in goloshes goind down marble steps in the dark is no midsummer zephyr for silence.

"In the circumstances Sproot would have been certain to hear him making his escape. Therefore, the explanation that suggested itself to me was that he did not make his escape."

"And the footprints outside?"

"Were made beforehand by some one walking to the front fate and back—And that brings me to the night of Chester's murder. You remember Rex's tale of hearing a dragging noise in the hall and a door closing about fifteen minutes before the shot was fired, and Ada's corroboration of the door-shutting part of the story?

"The noise, please note, was heard after it had stopped snowing—in fact, after the moon had come out. Could the noise not easily have been a person walking in galoshes, or even taking them off, after having returned from making those separated tracks to and from the gate? And might not that closing door have been the door of the linen-closet where the galoshes were being temporarily cached?"

Markham nodded. "Yes, the sounds Rex and Ada heard might be explained that way."

"find this morning's business was even plainer. There were footprints on the balcony steps, made between 9 o'clock and noon. But neither of the guards saw any one enter the grounds. Moreover, after the shot had been fired in Rex's room; and if any one had come down the stairs and gone out the front door Sproot would certainly have heard him.

"It's true that the murderer might have descended the front stairs as Sproot went up the servants' stairs. But is that likely? Would he have waited in the upper hall after killing Rex, knowing that some one was likely to step out and discover him? I think not. And anyway, the guards saw no one leave the estate.

"Ergo, I concluded that no one came down the front stairs after Rex's death. I assumed again that the footprints had been made at some earlier hour. This time, however, the murder did not go to the gate and return, for a guard was there who would have seen him; and, furthermore, the front steps and the walk had been swept. So our track-maker, after having donned the galoshes, stepped out of the front door, walked round the corner of the house, mounted the balcony steps, and re-entered the upper hall by way of Ada's room."

"I see." Markham leaned over and knocked the ashes from his cigar. "Therefore, you inferred that the galoshes were still in the house."

"Exactly. But I'll admit I didn't think of the linen-closet at once. First I tried Chester's room. Then I took a look into Julia's chamber; and I was about to go up to the servants' quarters when I recalled Rex's story of the closing door. I ran my eye over all the second-story doors, and straight-way tried the linen-closet—which was, after all, the most likely place for a transient occultation. And lo! there were the galoshes tucked under an old drugget. The murderer had probably hidden them there both times before, pending an opportunity of secreting them more thoroughly."

"But where could they have been concealed so that our searchers didn't run across them?"

"As to that, now, I couldn't say. They may have been taken out of the house altogether."

There was a silence for several minutes. Then Markham spoke.

"The finding of the galoshes pretty well proves your theory, Vance. But do you realize what confronts us now? If your reasoning is correct, the guilty person is some one with whom we've been talking this morning. It's an appalling thought. I've gone over in my mind every member of that household; and I simply can't regard any one of them as a potential mass-murderer."

"Sheer moral prejudice, old dear." Vance's voice assumed a note of raillery. "I'm a bit cynical myself, and the only person at the Greene mansion I'd eliminate as a possibility would be Frau Mannheim. She's not sufficiently imaginative to have planned this accumulative massacre. But as regards the others, I could picture any one of 'em as being at the bottom of this diabolical slaughter."

"COMING TO TERMS WITH OURSELVES."
Tuesday
"Our Unpublished Selves"

SCRIPTURE

Memory Verse: "Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart" (I. Samuel 16:7).

Read: I. John 3:1-6.

MEDITATION

By looking on the heart God sees what men do not see. Every man, likewise, sees within himself what no other man can see. For he sees his unpublished self that eludes the public eye. Down under our commonplace, conventional selves, are selves that are not common place. There are hidden glories in a man that he has not yet revealed. He walks among men a prince in disguise. He is better than any man knows. This knowledge of what he is and strives to be gives him courage and self-respect and satisfaction.

The final basis for self-acceptance is unshaken confidence in one's own integrity and endeavors.

PRAYER

O Lord, we thank Thee for the ideals and purposes that Thou hast implanted in our hearts and that make us better than we appear to be. Make us loyal to the inner voices, give us the joy of a good conscience and the comfort which belongs to those who have striven to be true. Amen.

IN DAYS GONE BY.

TEN YEARS AGO
MARCH 18, 1920

The newsprint shortage has struck The Examiner and it has been found necessary to reduce the size of the paper today to eight pages, leaving out considerable advertising so as not to curtail the news matter to any extent.

The staff of The Examiner are indebted to G. Walter Green of the Westend Greenhouses for the gift of a large pot of shamrocks which is thoroughly appreciated by all members.

A rather amusing case was heard before His Honor Judge Huycke this morning when one man sued another for the sum of one dollar, which he claimed as the price for feeding defendant's horse. It turned out in the end that plaintiff had sued the wrong man and judgment was awarded in favor of defendant. Plaintiff not only lost the amount he had sued for but the costs of the proceedings also.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
March 18, 1905

Last night the fire, water and light committee of the council met and considered the question of a new fire hall, and it is probable that in the near future a definite proposition will be made to the council on this question by the committee. The members of the council seem to be of the opinion that it is advisable to erect a new fire hall, and also to purchase a new and more powerful engine.

CAR HITS CULVERT—THREE DIE.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 17. — Three persons were killed and three others are probably fatally injured in an automobile accident on the Washington-Baltimore Boulevard near Savage, Md., late last night. The three were killed almost instantly when the machine in which they were riding, travelling at a high speed, crashed into a culvert, and was split in half. The dead are Ralph Matthews, George Posey, and an unidentified woman, all of Baltimore.

LIVESTOCK TALKS OPEN IN BELMONT

Sessions Will Continue in Various Centres During This Week.

VALUABLE IDEAS GIVEN

The first two of a series of ten meetings to be held in the county this week for the discussion of better livestock and cheaper crop production were held in Belmont Township Hall yesterday afternoon, and Wildman's School, S.S. No. 7, Asphodel, last evening. To-day similar meetings will be held in Stewart's Hall, Otonabee, in the afternoon, and S.S. No. 2, 4th Line of Smith, in the evening.

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons and evenings the meeting will be held respectively at the Township Hall, Warsaw, and School House, S.S. No. 3, North Monaghan; Asphodel Town Hall, Westwood, and Harmony Hall, Douro; Otonabee Town Hall, Keene, and Orange Hall, Selwyn. The afternoon meetings begin at 2 p.m., and the evening meetings at 8 p.m.

Sponsored by the local branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, the meetings are in connection with a campaign being staged throughout the Province in an effort to popularize the idea of more economic production of crops. The topic of livestock was deemed worthy of inclusion in the discussions at the meetings in this district on account of its great importance locally.

Ross Martindale, a successful farmer in Haldimand County, will address each meeting as he did at the first two yesterday, and lead a discussion on such subjects as improvement of seed, fertilizers, weeds, and tillage. Matters pertaining to breeding and managment of cattle are to be handled at each meeting by W. P. Watson, field man for the Ontario Livestock Branch. At each gathering the program will be the same.

All farmers are urged to attend by the Department officials. There is no admission fee.

GUAGE OF CONDITIONS.

Gross additions to the plant of the Bell Telephone Company amounted to $30,529,000 last year, according to a statement in the annual report. This figure exceeds the previous year's outlay by approximately $8,000,000. Such continuous expenditures by the Bell Company, and the demand for service, may be taken as a fair guage of the country's prosperity.

LIGHT WEAKNESS AT LIVERPOOL ACCOUNTS FOR THE RECESSION

Grain Suffers Fractional Losses in Moderate Trading Session.

CHICAGO FOLLOWS SUIT.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 18. (By the Canadian Press.)—After a promising rise from debased levels yesterday, wheat prices reacted to-day at the opening of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange and suffered fractional losses. Slight weakness at Liverpool and doubts of export business overnight caused the recession. Trading was in moderate volume.

May wheat was 1-8 to 5-8 cent down at $1.06½ to $1.06. July dropped 3-8 cent to $1.08 to $1.08 1-8 and October was at 5-8 to ¾ lower at 109 to 109¼.

CHICAGO PRICES DOWN.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 18. (C.P.)—With rain or snow general throughout the domestic winter wheat belt, wheat prices turned downward to-day after some upturns at the start. Initial transient gains were ascribed to reports of prospective reduction of spring wheat acreage both in Canada and the United States. Opening unchanged to ¼ higher, wheat futures receded afterward to below yesterday's finish. Corn, oats and provisions displayed strength, with corn starting ¼ A 5-8 up, and subsequently rising further.

Celebrates To Old Erin And Is Fined $10.00

The close feeling that one local Scotsman has for the Irish was related in Police Court this morning.

Picked up on Romaine street at 11 45 last night in a joyful state of intoxication, this man faced a drunk charge.

"I guess I was celebrating St. Patrick's Day too much," he said.

"But you don't come from Ireland—you're a Scotsman," stated Chief Newhall.

"Yeh, I know, but I've been there lots of times," was the reply.

"He was outside of a house on Romaine street late last night, making a fearful racket," declared the Chief.

"We were only serenading him."

"They wouldn't let him in the house, Your Worship, and phoned for the police."

"Them's the kind of friends, you have," exclaimed the man indismay.

"It wasn't your Irish friends that phoned—it was the people across the street."

"Aye, that's all right then," said this Scotsman, and he paid his $10.00 fine for celebrating St. Patrick's Day with a smile.

OSHAWA'S TAX RATE IS SET AT 47 MILLS

New Collegiate and Debenture Maintenance Blamed For 5 Mill Increase.

OSHAWA, March 18.—The 1930 tax rate here was set last night at 47 mills, an increase of five mills over last year.

The increase, decided upon in a tense session of the City Council, was brought about through costs of the new Collegiate and Vocational School, the Mayor explained. He observed that strictest economy must be maintained in capital expenditures this year to relieve the city's burden.

The five-mill increase constitutes a three-mile raise in Collegiate and Vocational School rates, a similar increase in the general rate, these softened by a one-mill decrease in the public school rate.

FARMER'S WIFE IS ACQUITTED IN SHOOTING CASE

Judge Carpenter Prefers to Believe Mrs. Sharpe in Preference to Husband.

WIFE SAYS SHOT ACCIDENT.

Sharpe Made Attempt to Take Gun to Shoot Himself He Testifies.

HAMILTON, March 18. (C.P.)—Mrs. Josephine Sharpe of Troy, was honorably acquitted to-day in the county court by Judge Carpenter, on a charge of shooting her husband, Alex. Sharpe, last January, with intent to do bodily harm.

His Honor stated he preferred to believe the accused's evidence and made comment on the folly of a man who would load a rifle for dramatic effect in an argument with his wife.

In the witness stand the husband swore that his wife shot him following a quarrel as to whether or not she would accompany him to market. He testified that he had contemplated shooting himself and that some moments after his wife took a rifle away from him; she pointed it at him, and warned him to come no closer. Then, Mr. Sharpe said the gun was discharged and he fell to the floor.

Mrs. Sharpe on the stand in her own defence, testified that she did not point the gun at her husband deliberately and that the shooting was accidental. She said her husband had threatened to kill himself and her too.

In passing judgment, Judge Carpenter said he was unimpressed with Mr. Sharpe's evidence.

WINNIPEG WHEAT HOLDS ITS OWN

British Purchases Via Vancouver Are Confirmed—Friendly Tone.

CASH DEMAND MODERATE.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 19 (C.P.).—For the third day in succession to-day, wheat prices resisted the downward press of values that has ruled so long of late. Closing quotations on the Winnipeg Exchange were 3-8 to ½ cent higher for the day. Pit trade was not large and business was not of an important nature, but absence of selling pressure allowed quotations to mount.

May recorded a 3-8 cent gain to $1.07, while July and October were up by ½ cent at $1.08 7-8 and $1.10 1-8.

Export business seemed dull following heavy business yesterday in which the wheat pool and a large independent exporter were prominent sharers. Broomhall cabled confirmation of British purchases of Canadian wheat, mostly via Vancouver. Market sentiment continued friendly in tone.

Demand for cash wheat was moderate but light offerings prevented business from being anything but meagre.

LONDON, Ont., March 18 (C.P.)—Miss Jean Nelson, of Base Line Road, this city, was killed on No. 2 Highway near Chatham this morning when a car driven by her father, George Nelson, collided with a transport truck, according to a report to Provincial police here.

LACK OF INVESTMENT FUNDS MAY CURTAIL ACTIVITIES

Recent Stock Subscription For Manitoba Basin Not Sufficient to Carry on Operations.

VENTURES LTD. REPORT.

TORONTO, Mar. 18. (Special to Examiner.)—The difficulty experienced in raising funds even for the more advanced prospects is becoming acute, and it would appear from present indications that the coming season's development activities will be greatly curtailed as a result. It is reported that Manitoba Basin, which recently appealed for subscriptions from shareholders at a price considerably above the market, received a number of applications for stock, but not enough to permit continuation of operations for more than a short time, and the directors have decided to return the money in full.

In view of the fact that work has not been resumed at the Cobalt property of Peterson Cobalt, the street is attributing the activity and strength of the company's shares to its substantial interest in White Lake Mines. Asked to-day if there was an announcement pending to explain the movement in the stock which has practically doubled its market price during the past week, an official of the former company stated: "We are not saying anything about it just at present."

Ventures, Ltd., Report.

The general meeting of Ventures, Ltd., has been called for March 28, in the King Edward Hotel, and the annual report will be forwarded to shareholders early next week.

The loss which was sustained in the fire which destroyed No. 3 dormitory at Sherritt Gordon mine and resulted in the death of one man and injury to several others, was fully covered by insurance, officials of the company state, and will in no way interfere with the development of the property. Work will proceed without interruption.

The annual report of Consoldiated Smelters should be issued sometime during the next two weeks and will contain a full account of the companys drilling operations in various parts of the Dominion. The report is awaited eagerly by shareholders of Big Missouri and Coast Copper as well as Smelters particularly those of the former company which has been subjected to considerable wild rumor since the annual meeting.

STEEL OF CANADA DROPS TO FORMER PRICE LEVEL

Strength of Oils and Slight Firming of Pivot Stocks Features Activity.

ON TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Ont., March 18. (C.P.)—Fractional price changes, the majority weighing on the side of the advance, continued strength in the oils and a slight firming of some of the pivotal stocks marked trading activities on Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Withal, however, the market was slow.

The spurt in the oils carried International Petroleum up to 22, a new high for the movement, and Imperial Oil nearly a point higher to gross 26. International Petroleum eased slightly around the noon hour, as did most of the others, although B. A. Oil less active prior, held most of its gain above 35.

Nickel moved ahead by slow degrees to once more sell above 39. Noranda was up a fraction at 40, Brazilian was firm. Ford of Canada, Gypsum, Walkers were unchanged in price. C.P.R advanced again. Consolidated Bakeries moved in response to a moderate demand, selling up ½ point to 22¼. Steels were soft. Steel of Canada was back to 45½, nearly the same level before yesterday's sudden rise. Service Stations lost nearly a point. Imperial Tobacco was more active than usual and firm just under 10.

Stubborness of Mule Has Nothing on Cow

Maybe a mule is stubborn, but a mule has nothing on a cow at times. So said two men who had dealings with one of the bovine species yesterday afternoon.

It seems that they were driving the co-boss down Park Street, one pulling on a halter and the other contributing by twisting the beast's tail. Things were moving along in fine style until the party arrived at the corner of Park and Charlotte Streets. The men wanted to continue straight down Park, but the cow decided to head out Charlotte Street in the general direction of the great open spaces. Having the right of weight, the animal proceeded to do so, and an argument ensued. The gentlemen finally got the beast headed in the right direction, but it was going the wrong way, backing up Park Street despite energetic tugging on the halter and vicious twisting of the tail.

Displaying a flash of genius, the men finally solved the difficulty. They compromised by allowing the cow to walk backwards, but they first headed her down Park Street in the direction they wanted to go.

BOARD IS PLANNING SANITARY CHECK-UP

Sanitary Inspector Reports Excellent Conditions in City's Milk Supply.

A stringent check-up on the installation of sanitary conveniences in Peterborough dwellings was ordered by the Board of Health at a meeting this morning in the City Buildings. A number of householders in the city were given orders to install sanitary conveniences as far back as a year and a half ago and have not yet compiled, despite the fact that the orders have been repeated. All will be forced into immediate action.

The Board decided to advertise for tenders for a new city dumping ground as the use of the present dumping ground has been for some time unsatisfactory. The tenders received will be recommended to the Council.

Dr. T. W. H. Young, M. O. H., reported that there is at present a slightly greater prevalency of contagious diseases in the city than usual, although the situation is in no way alarmming. There are five cases of scarlet fever, 13 of chicken pox and 1 of measles.

The report of the Sanitary Inspector on his findings in the milk inspection last month indicated excellent conditions. All the samples of milk tested showed a high standard of cleanliness.

The monthly report of the Isolation Hospital indicated that on Feb-1 there was but one patient in the hospital. It was a scarlet fever case. Three were admitted during the month, 2 having erysipelas and 1 having scarlet fever.

VICE-ADMIRAL FULLER RETURNING TO LONDON

Has Been in Charge of West Indies Naval Division During Tour.

LIMA, Peru, March 18 (Canadian Press). — Vice-Admiral Sir Cyril T. M. Fuller, who has been appointed Second Lord of the British Admiralty, intends to leave here as soon as possible for the British West Indies, whence he will depart on a cruiser for London.

Sir Cyril has been in command of the British Naval West Indies Division, which has been making a tour of Latin America.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., March 1 (C.P.)—The first thunderstorm of the season brought considerable rain and atmosphere conductive to snow removal. Much snow disappeared during the night and some of the walks and pavements of the city are dry to-day. The rain will have a decided effect on ice conditions.

ANNUAL SEED FAIR TO COME HERE 1931

Peterborough County is Included in Quinte District By Growers' Association.

The annual seed fair of the Quinte District Seed Growers' Association will be held in Peterborough next year as the result of the efforts of a delegation which attended this year's seed fair at Napanee on Saturday. The delegates were William Knox, J. B. Nelson, agricultural representative, and Thomas McIndoo of Ida, and they represented the county and district.

Since the institution of the annual seed fairs by the Quinte District Association four years ago Peterborough County has never been included in the district and the fairs have been held in various counties along the lake front. This county will henceforth be included.

The purpose in bringing the fair to Peterborough was to open up this section for the Association work and stimulate interest. The Fair will take place during the second week in March(1931.

LINDSLEY GROUP HOLDS UNCHANGED

Stocks Relatively Firm Despite Irregular Trend on Mine Market.

TORONTO, Ont., March 18. (C.P.)—Though the mining list had a more irregular appearance during the early session to-day than yesterday, stocks were relatively firm and a few important movements were in evidence. It was purely a specialty affair. However, the majority of issues receiving little attention.

Following the report that fire had destroyed No. 3 dormitory at Sherritt Gordon, the stock opened rather soft to-day but any selling was well absorbed. Officials of the company state the loss is well covered by insurance and that no interruption to development will be suffered. The Lindsleys, as a group, were practically unchanged at noon.

Though no official announcement has been made to explain the movement, dome mines moved up another half to-day to sell at $9.25 at noon, a net gain of $1.25 from last week.

A slightly better feeling seems to prevail regarding the silver situation, and while Mining Corporation held unchanged at $2.95, Nipissing was up 6 to $1.57. Cobalt Contact, at 12½ had regained 2, and Peterson Cobalt, which has been moving up under some evident accumulation, was selling around 18 for an advance of 3 at noon.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

STEEL OF CANADA DIRECTORS WILL DISCUSS COURT DECISION

Company Has Substantial Surplus Amounting to $25 a on Outstanding Common.

MAY MAKE APPEAL.

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 18. (Special to Examiner.)—Directors of the Steel Company of Canada will meet in Hamilton, Wednesday, March 26, when the action of the court in dismissing the company's appeal against the judgment of Justice Orde will come up for discussion. The action to be taken with regard to further appeal against the awarding of back dividends to the common stockholders before the prefefred participates in all over 7 per cent, paid on the common will likely be decided at this meeting. To-day the possibility of an appeal is uppermost but there is also some discussion of what manner the company will adopt in distributing back dividends should the final court sustain the judgment of Justice Orde. Steel of Canada has a substantial earned surplus, amounting to $12,042,377 at the end of 1928 or over $23 a share on the outstanding common. On the same date the company has cash assets of over $7,000,000 made up of $598,000 in cash, $1,150,000 in secured call loans and $6,122,605 in victory bonds and approved securities. Net working capital, after deduction of current liabilities was substantial amounting to $14,200,000. As there are 460,000 common shares outstanding and the amount in question is approximately $11 a share or $,000,000 the sum could be paid out in cash and still leave an excess of current assets over liabilities of $10,000,000. Another suggestion is that the back dividends be paid in stock, giving one new share of common for each four. In this way shareholders would receive a security having a market value of about $47 against the cash value of dividends of approximately $44.

Reaches New High.

International Petroleum made a new high for the movement of the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day and in the forenoon session was the most active stock on the board. In comparison with other oil companies, Pete is selling to give a favorable income return and now the danger of a heavy tariff on crude imports to the United States is over with the public is taking more interest in the shares of this subsidiary of Imperial Oil. At this date it is not thought likely the United States Government will take action in placing a heavy duty on crude imports but in the event of their doing so, International Petroleum would be well looked after as a member of the Standard Oil group. Shipments could be rerouted to give international the benefit of the most favorable markets and exports by American members of the group turned back into the domestic market.

Consolidated Baker.

The financial statement of Consolidated Baker of Canada, Limited, is due to make an appearance shortly and, as this will be the first report to cover a full twelve months since the companies were consolidated, it will reflect the corporations earnings power much better than the balance sheet as of November 24, 1928, issued at the time of the merger. This company was formed late in 1928 under the control of Ogilvie Flour Mills and operations under the one management are said to have been satisfactory. Earnings are anticipated in exceess of the $2 dividend paid on the ordinary shares of no par and, it is said, the figures for 1929 will show improvement over those of the preceding period.

HARRIS H. FUDGER DIES IN TORONTO

Former President of Simpson Company Had Attended Office Daily For 40 Years.

DIED OF PNEUMONIA.

TORONTO, Ont., March 18.—H. H. Fudger, former president of the Robert Simpson Company, and well-known Canadian philanthropist, died at his home to-day from complications following an attack of pneumonia. He was 80 years of age.

Mr. Fudger had enjoyed excellent health for the past 40 years and had daily attended his office.

One of Canada's most prominent retail merchants, Harris Henry Fudger was born in Toronto, Dec. 19, 1851, when the city had a population of only 21,000. He was educated at a grammar school at Paris, Ont. Returning to Toronto, he became associated with the Goldsmith Stock Company and later organized the Fancy Goods Company of Canada.

Expanded Company.

Following the decline of the wholesale jobbing house the enterprising young merchant directed his attention to the retail merchandising. When the business of Robert Simpson was converted itno a joint stock company, Mr. Fudger became president. Under the combined efforts of he, and C. L. Burton, his asstant, the business expanded and branches were established at Montreal, Winnipeg, Regina, Halifax and North Bay. This step necessitated the forming of a holding company, and Simpson's Limited was organized with Mr. Fudger as cairman of the Board, and Mr. Burton as president.

In 1878 he married Hannah Wickens, of Toronto, who, with four daughters, survives. A son, Richard, died in 1912.

Mrs. S. S. Ashley, president of Trinity W.M.S. presided and called on the ex-president, Mrs. L. Ashley, who briefly explained the origin and development of the movement, which has grown until it circles the globe. It is literally true that on that day "the whole round world is bound by golden chains about the feet of God." The responsive scripture lesson was led by Mrs. McMeehan.

Mesdames Reynolds, Marshall and Rivers led the sections assigned to their respective churches and prayers were offered by a number of women. During the service Mrs. Bedford sang very sweetly, "Art Thou Weary, Heavy Laden." The program this year was prepared by a Korean young woman, a world Christian.

DR. J. C. SMITH GIVES TALK

Tells Lakefield Women's Institute of Medical and Nursing Services as Organized Affair.

DOING NOBLE WORK.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, Mar. 18.—Dr. J. C. Smith gave a very interesting and helpful address at the regular meeting of the Woman's Institute held in the town hall on Wednesday afternoon, following the health program laid down for the March meeting.

Dr. Smith spoke of the health services in the large cities, where the medical and nursing services are an organized affair with provision for practically every class of patient, but especially for the very rich and the very poor. In remote district, like ours, Bancroft and such places the Red Cross is doing a noble work with its out post hospitals and nursing service. In a district like our own, a typical middle class community with no hospital there are the problems also.

In regard to a district nurse, in which the speaker understood that the Institute was interested, a certain part of her time each month could be devoted to visiting the school and the remainder to the work of the Victorian Order, visiting patients, giving advice regarding food and reporting to the doctor, regarding the variations of the patient's condition. In the townships the situation is rather different owing to the distances between the schools and the consequent travelling expenses. If the grant was not large enough to pay her full salary, it might be arranged that each home visited might contribute something. It is one of the cases where the money would be well spent and if the Woman's Institute sponsor the movement, there is great scope for their activities.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Dr. Smith for his talk. Mrs. Cameron gave a short account of her visit to the Young's Point branch where a small group of women are doing wonders and are easily putting us to shame. Mrs. Cameron urged that the local branch have an objective and work toward that and suggested that the awful need of a public health nurse might afford the necessary object for work.

Mrs. Davis reported the financial result of the card party, which showed total proceeds of $41.75, expenses $20.90. A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. J. H. Payne for her generosity in loaning dishes and tables on the night of the party.

Feeling reference was made to the death of Mrs. Ingram, who passed away since the last meeting, the first member to be removed by death since the organization of the branch three years ago.

The ladies answered the roll call with giving some simple home remedies found to be good.

Fire Alarms

This is the season for chimney fires and the local brigade responded to three alarms in two days. On Wednesday afternoon at 5:00 the brigade was summoned to the house owned by Mr. John Condon to suppress a chimney blaze. This was accomplished with damage only amounting to $10.00.

At 4.45 on Thursday afternoon they were called again for a fire at Mr. John Twist's house on Concession St. and before this chimney was extinguished another call came from Mr. D. Curtain's house on Burnham street. There was no damage at either place, in all three calls the prompt response of the brigade prevented what might easily have been serious fires as the very high winds increased the hazard.

The lecture on the trip to Scotland given under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild of Knox United Church, has been postponed till Tuesday, March 18 and not Monday the 17 as previously announced.

Rev. J. H. McCormack, who will give the lecture has a great many beautiful slides showing many aspects of Scottish scenery and many history scenes.

DUST PROBLEM DISCUSSED AT GENERAL MEETING OF LAKEFIELD RATEPAYERS

Mr. Johnston, General Manager of Canada Cement Company, Addresses Gathering.

DEFINITE EFFORTS

Activity and Importance of Plant to Village Stressed by Speaker.

LAKEFIELD, March 18 (Examiner Correspondence). — More than three hundred men and women attended the meeting of ratepayers held in the Town Hall on Friday evening to hear Mr. Johnston, general manager of the Canada Cement Company, tell of the activities of the company and its definite efforts toward eliminating the alleged dust nuisance. The Reeve, C. S. Tanner, occupied the chair, and called upon E. W. Bailey, plant superintendent, to introduce Mr. Johnston.

Mr. Johnston recalled his first visit to the village about twenty-six or twenty-seven years ago when the original plant was operating and struggling to get on its feet. The cement business in Lakefield has had quite a history, and people who were connected with the business then are still connected with it. Regarding the situation at present, the raw material is particularly good and makes a high order of product, but being inland the freight rate is high on the coal and adds to the cost of production.

Important to Village.

The importance of the plant to the village you know better than I can tell you; it plays a predominant part in the industrial life with a quarter of a million dollars a year paid out in wages. There is the indirect benefit of purchases made and taxes paid which is worthy of consideration.

It is important to the railway as $550,000 was paid last year in freight by the company. The Cement Company has developed the water power in Lakefield which is better for the village than if it was developed for use somewhere else. There has, however, developed a situation which is serious and there are several cases in litigation at present, but the speaker declined to speak on the legal points of the cases, as his visit was not directly in connection with these cases.

Insufficient Power.

At present the mill is operating only two-thirds of its capacity, partly owing to a lack of sufficient power. Nearly a year ago the matter of increased power development for future use was taken up with a firm of electrical engineers, but owing to the indefinite attitude of the citizens this matter has been shelved for the time. It is not in any sense a threat when we say that the total operating capacity of our mills all over Canada is not taxed more than 75 per cent. and the closing up of this mill would not affect the Canada Cement Co. as much as it would the village. The company has built up an organization here and would regret having to lay off men for a cause of that kind. The suggestion has been made that people would like to see the mill closed, but the speaker felt that the number was not sufficient to influence matters in any way, and he asked his hearers to use their influence with their neighbors, who feel that they have a just grievance, to have patience for a little longer. A great deal of time has been spent on this matter, and it was in November, 1928, that the company commenced to study the problem, which is not so simple as one might think; chemical engineers from California, New York, Pittsburg, and other places have been called into consultation and the company has placed three contracts, one dust collector has already been delivered and another will be delivered in April, and the largest in June; this will have a stack three hundred feet high and fifteen feet in diameter, and the speaker asked for patience in the present situation. The company want to carry on and to eliminate the alleged dust situation as far as possible, the construction engineers guarantee elimination of at least 90 per cent. of the dust, and probably 96 or 98 per cent. may be eliminated. The company has confidence in the integrity of these men, who have got results under similar but not identical conditions.

Dust Problem.

Mr. Johnston asked for a show of hands as to whether the audience ation, and practically every hand wanted the plant to continue in operwas raised, which was an assurance Mr. Johnston felt, that the people of Lakefield were with the company. When the speaker asked if there were any opposed, a voice in the rear called out, "No, if you can stop that dust."

Mr. Johnston: "We will do the best we can."

Voice at rear: "That's all we want."

Mr. Johnston: "The construction work will cost more money than all the claims and would pay them four or five times over, but the company wants to get rid of the dust and satisfy the people of Lakefield."

The Reeve expressed pleasure at having heard Mr. Johnston on the subject, for all wanted the plant to operate, and he asked information regarding the damage already done and if there would be recompense made.

Mr. Johnston stated that as these cases were in court, it would not be politic to discuss the matter.

The Reev: "What Mr. Johnston wants from the Lakefield people is co-operation, and I am sure he will get it."

Rev. W. J. Creighton stated that the majority of the audience were glad to hear Mr. Johnston speak, as it is an assurance that the company is seriously considering the matter, for there was a feeling in the village that the company was ignoring the situation, and after this meeting he was sure that the company would find the people reasonable.

W. H. Casement had listened with interest to Mr. Johnston like the rest of the audience, and was much obliged to him for coming and by his speech smoothing out the doubt as to the real interest of the company in the matter.

E. J. Millage stated that after hearing the speaker he had somewhat changed his views as to what he had intended to say. As a citizen he feels he is getting more of the dust than he feels he is entitled to. In common with the other citizens he is not opposed to the Canada Cement Company, as their operation in the village has meant more families living here, more business done, and more money in circulation. There is, however, a condition not pleasing — lawns are ruined and gardens spoiled, and the houses are gradually depreciating in value, children are not able to play outside in the hot summer days. All he wanted was fair treatment, and he did not think the company was doing all they could to prevent the dust. Mr. Millage produced a quart fruit jar full of dust which he stated was swept up after one blow on his verandah, which is 6ft by 12ft. He said: "I have the best woman God ever made, and I can't expect her to clean up that sort of thing without making some effort to prevent it."

J. Knox said that fifty per cent. of the washing at his home had to be dried in the house, and often has to be washed over again. It is hard for women who are particular so have to put up with the nuisance, and it is a dire nuisance. Mr. Knox stated that his child was suffering from bronchial trouble owing to the dust, which is a menace to health. He asked how long would it be till these dust collectors would all be in operation?

Mr. Johnston stated again that one was already in operation, one will be delivered in April, and the kiln collector will not be delivered till June, and will probably be operating by the first of August.

Mr. Knox wished that they had had this assurance six months ago, but Mr. Johnston assured him that it there was no use telling of it till they had found the cure, the engineers were studying the problem, but there was no use talking till something definite had been arrived at and a remedy found.

Mr. Knox said that having Mr. Johnston's assurance that the 1st of August will see the dust eliminated, they can put up with the nuisance that long.

J. W. Ridpath moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Johnston for imparting this information.

Mr. Casement seconded the motion, saying that Mr. Johnston had cleared the air, although he may not have taken all the dust out of it.

The audience joined in a hearty hand-clap for Mr. Johnston, who had taken so much trouble to put the matter clearly before them and to explain so clearly the problem which has arisen.

Mr. Johnston, in thanking the ratepayers, stated that he was glad he came to Lakefield and was able to throw light on the situation, and the company was going to do its utmost to remedy the grievances.

With G. G. Connell at the piano the meeting was closed with the National Anthem.

HAS BEST HEALTH IN TWENTY YEARS

"Sargon gave me the best health and more strength than I have enjoyed in 20 years and I am delighted to recommend such wonderful medicine to others.

MRS. GEORGE HORNING.

"My appetite was poor, my food disagreed with me, my nerves were in frightful condition and I was terribly rundown. Sargon strengthened and invigorated my whole system. I eat anything I want—even onions and heavy vegetables—and my digestion is perfect. My nerves are strengthened, I sleep fine and feel like a different person. Sargon Pills stimulated my liver and ended chronic constipation I have had since childhood. It's a remarkable treatment."—Mrs. George Horning, 369 York St., Hamilton.

Sargon may be obtained in Peterborough from Bond's Drug Store.

by moment, mood by mood we are determining our personality. How many women are there, who do not wish to look their best at all times. We can not all be beautiful of face and form but we can learn to dress so as to make the most of our selves. Choosing clothes is like planting a flower bed. No one wants a jumbled mass of color in one place, we usually try to arrange our flowers so they will not cry out at each other. The same may be said of choosing a wardrobe. The first thing is the color combination and the amount of money we may spend. Secondly, buy the best material possible even though it may mean fewer clothes, for the better materials keep their shape and so look well until they are worn out. Now suppose we can have but one coat, two hats and two pairs of shoes, we must choose those well, in order to get the best color system. Let us take a tweed for the coat, in tones of brown. This will give us a wide range for the entire costume, for street we could have a skirt of matching tweed, a blouse or two, making it possible to have a plain tailored efect. There are many color tones of brown from which one can choose a more elaborate afternoon or evening gown, thus keeping to the idea of the ensemble order. A new wardrobe must be up to the minute in fashion, but never extreme as extremes are of the moment only. Then as to shoes, one pair of brown oxfords for business or street wear and one pair of high heeled pumps for wear with the afternoon or evening gown, a small brown hat and a fancy hat in a lighter shade complete this costume.

In closing just a thought regarding style. The wearer has much to do with the costume. Just watch those who always seem to be perfectly dressed. You will notice they do not always follow the fashion, but have a certain style all their own, and whether you meet them at an evening party, afternoon tea or in the kitchens, their clothes seem part of them and each dress fitted for the part it plays."

Community singing completed the program. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. S. Adams in April.

Mrs. J. Bradbury and Mrs. J. Waldie, assisted their mother and sister, Miss Teressa, to serve a delicious tea, at which the favors and different articles on the menue followed the order of the Patron Saint of March 17.

A community without a vigorous voluntary civic body—the Chamber of Commerce—is like a man without sufficient vitality to do things. Such an institution represents a community's stamina and there has an important part to play in the building of a balanced community.

WHEAT AFFECTS EXPORT TRADE

Decline in Eleven Months Corresponds With Decrease in Wheat.

NO FOREIGN DEMAND.

OTTAWA, March 18.—Canada's export trade for the eleven months ending with February, 1930, shows a decrease of $219,000,000 as compared with the corresponding eleven months ending with February, 1929. Curiously enough, the decrease in exports of wheat and flour also shows a falling off of exactly $219,000,000, so that the so-called unfavorable balance of trade is entirely accounted for by the lack of foreign demand for Canadian wheat and wheat products. Wheat exports for the eleven months ending with February, 1930, were valued at only $202,000,000, as compared with $405,000,000 in the eleven-months period ending February, 1929, while flour exports dropped from $57,000,000 in the eleven-months period of 1929 to $41,000,000 in the eleven months ended with February of this year.

The tie-up in the grain trade, as everyone knows, has affected farmers, railway workers and merchants, and explains to some extent at least the temporary setback which Canada, in common with the United States and other countries, is experiencing at the present time. Total imports entered for consumption in Canada during the last eleven months show an increase of approximately $5,000,000, the figures being $1,135,638,356, as against $1,130,350,273 for the eleven months ending with February, 1929. Imports of goods entering Canada duty free showed a decrease of $8,000,000, while dutiable goods imported into this country showed an increase of $12,000,000. Exports of manufactured products from Canada continued to gain, as compared with previous years. The trade returns will tell a different story when Canadian wheat begins to move Europeward.

ELIZABETH STOREY LAUNCHES THEBAUD

Trim Two-Masted Schooner to Take Part in International Fishermen's Trophy Competition.

ESSEX, Mass., March 18.—(Canadian Press).—The Gertrude L. Thebaud yesterday was given one of the most auspicious launchings ever accorded a fishing boat at this ancient ship building centre yesterday.

The trim black, two-masted schooner, built for the express purpose of challenging for the International Fisherman's Trophy now held by the schooner Bluenose of Lunenberg, N.S., was sponsored by Elizabeth Hovey of Brookline, one of the best known girl skippers in the country. She broke a bottle of champagne across the slim bow—champagne given to Edward Storey, brother of Arthur Storey, the builder, 35 years ago.

Hundreds of persons lined the shore to watch the launching and among them many whose names are familiar wherever in the world fishermen and ship builders gather. There were Captain Manuel Dimingos of the Schooner Progress; Capt. Norman Ross of the Elsie; Capt. Pen Pine of the Storey, famous for his participation in many championship series; Howard Blackburn, who lost both of his hands 47 years ago when he crossed the Atlantic in a dory alone; Mickey Hall, masthead man in many previous races; Charlie Vino who, at 84, held that post last year aboard the Progress in a series of races, and others.

The Gertrude L. Thebaud was designed by Frank Caine. She is 134 feet, 6 inches over all, has a 9-foot water line, 25-foot beam and a draft of 14 feet 8 inches. Louis A. Thebaud of Morriston, N.J. a summer resident of Gloucester, provided $50,000 of the $73,000 total required to build her.

As the month of June, 1930 marks the 25th anniversary of the organization of Fenella Women's Institute, plans are underway for a suitable celebration of this event.

On motion it was decided to have the village sign boards painted.

A letter was read from Secretary Treasurer of Roseneath W.I. inviting Fenella W.I. to the open meeting being held in Roseneath in the early summer. This invitation was accepted.

Mrs. John Herrington gave a splendid paper on "Right Principles in Dressing."

MADOC COUPLE CELEBRATES 52ND WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mrs. Robert Bristol Hostess to Gathering in Honor of Aged Pair.

DISTRICT NEWS

(Examiner Correspondence)

MADOC, March 18.—Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Bristol celebrated their fifty-second wedding anniversary quietly on Wednesday March 12.

On Friday evening, March 7, the neighbors and intimate friends of Mrs. M. Bristol, about twenty in number, were pleasantly entertained by Mrs. Robert Bristol at their home, in honor of the birthday of Mrs. Bristol, Sr.

After a sing-song and contests had been enjoyed, in which Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. Wellman were winners, on behalf of those present Mrs. Rivers, in a few remarks, conveyed good wishes and congratulations to Mrs. Bristol, and Mrs. A. Thompson presented her with a beautiful cameo brooch. Though taken by surprise, Mrs. Bristol suitably expressed her pleasure and thanks and all joined in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and after social chat the guests departed wishing Mrs. Bristol many happy returns of the day.

W. M. S. Meeting

The W. M. S. of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church held their March meeting at the home of Mrs. George West with a good attendance. In the absence of the president the meeting was in charge of Mrs. T. G. Marshall, while Mrs. F. West, with the assistance of others, took the devotional exercises, and lesson which was very interesting as it dealt with the missionaries of today. A short summary of the Presbyterial which was held in Kingston was given by Mrs. West, and during the afternoon a delightful solo was given by Mrs. Bedford, the accompaniment was played by Miss Marian Robertson.

Hockey Club Meeting

The annual meeting of the Madoc Hockey Club was held last Thursday evening in the Fire Hall. About thirty-five were in attendance and the following officers were elected:

President—P. H. Nayler; secretary treasurer, Ken. Nichol; manager, Rev. Father Meagher; vice president, Walter Whytock.

Madoc Creamery Open

Madoc Creamery is at last an accomplished fact, and is open for business. For several years reports have reached us that different organizations were going to start a Creamery in Madoc but in all cases the reports proved false.

In January Messrs. R. H. Young and C. M. Mitchell, of Peterborough, came to Madoc and rented the building on Russel Street, formerly used as the Fire Hall, and since that time have renovated the building and installed the latest machinery until at the present they have one of the most modern equipped plants for the manufacture of butter in Ontario with a capacity for making about 25,000 pounds annually.

The butter made will be known as the M. and Y. brand butter, made by Madoc Creamery.

Mr. Young has had considerable experience in the manufacture of butter, having spent four years as plant foreman with the Campbell's Dairy Products of Peterborough.

A truck has been put on the road, driven by Clayton Tummon, which will cover a radius of thirty-five miles.

Social Evening

The members of Oakdale Rebekah Lodge gave a very delightful social evening on Wednesday of this week. Progressive Euchre was played for some time, the prizes being won by Miss Breakell and Mrs. George Sills. Refreshments were served by the ladies, after which some time was spent in music and dancing.

Eldorado W. M. S.

Eldorado W. M. S. held their regular monthly meeting and the Day of Prayer was observed on Friday afternoon at the parsonage with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. A. Empey was in charge. After the opening exercises, several of the ladies read a synopsis of the third chapter of the study book, Mrs. Holmes, Mission Band Superintendent reported eighteen members of the band with an attendance of fifteen and a promise of a larger attendance when warmer weather comes. This was considered a good report as the band has only been organized since Christmas.

The program of prayer was used, a number of those present taking part, and a feeling of worship and consecration seemed to prevail.

Swift Help For Pain Tortured Joints

Never mind how intense the agony—how inflamed and swollen the joint—just keep this in mind.

Joint-Ease, a speedy acting, penetrating emollient, is made for just one purpose—to work on joint troubles and it does the job thoroughly.

Joint-Ease is made in Canada and you can get a generous tube for 66 cents at McDermid & Jury, McDermid Drug Co., E. L. Payne, Bond's Drug Store or any drugstore anywhere with the understanding that you must get results or money back. When you rub it on to-night just notice how quickly it penetrates—how it soaks right in thru skin and flesh right down to the ligaments and tendons of the joints—right where all the trouble starts.

The inflammation is subdued—the swelling comes down—the pain stops and your stiff, bad acting joint works smoothly again—you'll wonder why you never thought of Joint-Ease before.

CHURCH BANQUET

Rev. Professor Langford, of Toronto, Speaker at Wooler Gathering.

WOOLER, March 18.—(Examiner Correspondence).—On Tuesday evening the church parlors of the United church were prettily decorated in pink streamers of crepe paper and the "banquet" tables were most attractive with pink candles in silver candlesticks with other pink decorations, and at 7.00 p.m. seventy-five young people gathered around these tables, representing youth. The speaker of the evening was Rev. Professor Langford of Toronto. The toastmaster, L. B. Davey, principal of the high school, Rev. H. B. Neal, pastor of the church, with Mrs. Neal were seated at the head table. A number of sing-songs were heartily responded to by the young people and while seated at the tables the program continued, by Mr. Davey in an eloquent manner proposed the toast to the King, responded by the singing of the National Anthem. Then in a few chosen words was the toast proposed to the church and Howard Richards in a very efficient manner responded. And Ruth Orvis responded to the toast proposed to "Youth" emphasizing the fact that youth played an important part in the world's activities, therefore it should stand the highest in honor, truth and loyalty to Christ.

Rev. F. W. Langford then presented living facts in the duties of young people, comparing the life of twenty-five or thirty years ago until now. He mentioned the first telephone he talked over. How wonderful it was, and how messages are carried by telephone, telegraph and cablegrams from coast to coast. He mentioned aeroplanes, radio, moving pictures of the educational type. The speaker feared that our young generation would not need to think if they accepted all these wonderful inventions, but let us remember it was our forefathers that did the thinking for us. And now why should this generation not exercise their brain, for the coming generations. May they not be led astray and idle their precious time away. Be true, upright and believe in God. Professor Langford's message left a wonderful challenge to the young people.

ANNE WILCOX

Dear Anne—

I am a daily reader of The Examiner and enjoy your page very much. Nyrna's letter has aroused quite a controversy and enthusiasm from all sides, and I will voice my humble opinion.

There are dictators wherever one goes. Some dictate bridge, some gossip, some dancing, some night life, some gambling, some smoking and each one in their own way thinks their own view and pleasures and amusement is by far the best. Then there is the more quiet pleasures of which many take advantage that of housekeeping, home making, reading and church work and for the more fortunate ones, travel. Personally I prefer the latter set but I would not and could not agitate trouble or condemn any one because they indulge in the former pastimes—everyone to their own liking and taste neither do I want anyone to criticize me because I love quiet and home life. Very recently a one-time school teacher said she thought me quite an old fogey because I do not as she does indulge in bridge as a pastime. Why should I when I do not see pastime in bridge, yet I would not criticize her because she does not consider the home first, etc., more important.

An adage I learned long ago is quite applicable to this controversy. It is in German:

Lasse dumann sein wehr er ist,
Dann bleibst der auch wehr der bist.

Best wishes to you dear Anne and thank you for the many fine ideas you pass along.

Sincerely,
Idlewild.

Thank you so much, Idlewild, for giving us your views on this interesting subject. I like the way you express your ideas too, for I, like you, do not like people criticizing me because I do, or do not do certain things. There are and always will be people who consider their ways correct. Do come again sometime!

Deare Anne—

What a shower of letters we have had recently and how interesting they were! It was nice to see some names that have not appeared for a long time. It only needed an attack on the hostess of our cosy Ingle Nook to bring out the loyalty of our readers and contributors. Indeed Anne you certainly must feel assured of the regard in which you are held by us women. Perfect evidence of this was given by the numbers who hastened to defend your standard.

I believe Nyrna knew what she was doing when she wrote that letter. She was planning to bring back some of our missing shadow friends and she accomplished it. Probably deep down in her heart she has many of the same views as the rest of us, believing that it does not need smoking, drinking, or other modernistic actions to constitute a happy time.

We hope she will come again and be her real self when she writes.

Ruralite.

I think Nyrna knew too what she was doing, and I have been waiting for another letter.

Dear Anne—

I am glad Doreen enjoyed my letter re "A Mother's Duty." I love to see a nice little child. Doreen wrote so nicely re her desire of doing a mother's duty. Let me say one word more to young mothers. Above all be kind. No matter what measure of justice you feel called upon to mete out to children be kind. Let your spirit be filled with kindness so that it thrills in your tones, lights in your eyes, softens and steadies your touch. Then the children will follow you as they followed the Pied Piper. There is nothing that draws them as powerfully as kindness.

Think a little. When a child plays and plays until he loses control of his nerves and begins to giggle and shout and repeat the same phrase or action until it is a weariness to the flesh, how do you feel toward him? Do you say, "This is too bad. I ought to have seen that he was doing too much of the same thing. I should have changed the direction of his thought. I ought to have changed his game so that the flow of energy would go over new channels and he would not be so fatigued. This is my fault. I must attend to this?"

What you do in that spirit will help the child. If you seat him on a chair in silence. If you send him off on a brief errand, he will accept the discipline and training in a spirit of appreciation. I do not say he will like it. Nor do I say he will submit gracefully. But I maintain that the kindness and wisdom that inspired your conduct will set the quality of his response and your work will be good and do good.

When the adolescent child overstays the hour and you sit long hours of worry and fear waiting for her or him to come home, are you breathing threats or are you saying, "Children never know the time to stop. There ought to be someone, there must be someone, whose duty it is to see that parties and dances are over in time to allow the children to get home in time. Next time I will provide against this." (Father could take child to and from party.)

If your disapproval is underlaid with sympathy and kindness. If your real thought is for the welfare of the children. If you wish to teach them prudence and wisdom, no matter how pointed your words, they will bear fruit. But if you speak speak in anger if you raise your voice and ask high heaven why you have been cursed with such ingratitude, expect nothing but the silent opposition of youth. Youth responds only to the spirit of kindness and understandings.

This does not mean that discipline and regulations and control are not to be maintained. It means that they shall be but always in the spirit of kindness and in the language of love. There is nothing soft about love. Love rises to heights of anger and self-sacrifice and service and that calls for strength beyond the understanding of littleness. Love may suffer but it is not weak. Be very kind to children and discover this power is your own.

You are doing your work beautifully Anne, you give such good helps in such a nice way. I am sending a coupon for helps, thanking you in advance.

Yours sincerely,
Lucinda.

That was just great of you Lucinda to respond again at Doreen's invitations for the mothers to write. I'm sure her child will be brought up just right, don't you? You evidently forgot to enclose the coupon, so I haven't sent any helps.

FRINGE RETURNS VIA PARIS FOR THE SPRING SEASON

By FRANCES PAGET

Copyright, 1930, by Style Sources

NEW YORK, March 15.—(U.P.).—The Paris openings brought the fringed dress again into evening fashions, with added significance attached to it since such prominent couture houses advocated it. It will be remembered that Augusta-bernard presented an effective fringed gown that became a great favorite in this country, combining as it did the slanting panels advocated by this couturiere as well as the swinging grace of fringe posed at a low line. This gown may well have exerted a definite influence thus accounting for the attention given fringed frocks now.

At any rate, the fringed gown is here, and may be said to be one of the fashions that indicates clearly the return of the vogue for trimmings. It is easy to understand this liking for fringe as a trimming, since it fits so perfectly in the mode of today. It forms capes and boleros, suggests brief sleeves, appears in flounces that wind about in spiral fashion, or tiered handings lend animation to a skirt, and also affects long swinging panels that carry out the idea of the slender, long limbered silhouette.

Since capelets are so important in evening fashions, fringe naturally plays a prominent role, serving as a border for the practically negligible cape, swinging from the shoulder to the natural waistline.

The fringed gown offers many fine points, since it is flattering to the woman of ample figure as well as the slim woman, and may be designed to cover excess pounds as well as imbue a frock with a certain sophisticated, provocative air that pleases every woman.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

LIVER CAN INCREASE IN SIZE.

Perhaps you have had the idea that the liver was just a large soft organ that simply filtered out the starchy particles from the blood coming from the small intestine, and storing them away in the form of sugar for future use. And the liver is so big that it has been able to do this without difficulty.

However, our research men have been finding that this large organ can increase or decrease in size when the need arises.

For instance any exciting emotion such as sudden noise decreases the size of the liver, whereas injecting sugar solutions into the veins causes an increase in its size.

It was found that vomiting also increases its size.

Now when you remember the tremendous size of the liver, the largest and heaviest organ, and that it holds one quarter of all the blood of the body, then you can see the importance of its ability to increase or decrease in size when necessary.

Thus if the liver decreases in sizeit means more blood available for the rest of the body, and when it increases in size there will be that much less.

And the volume of blood coursing through the vessels of the body influences the entire system—mental and physical—in that the blood is where it is needed most at any one time.

Now notwithstanding the ability of the liver to increase or decrease in size if the need arises, if you wear tight clothing, or sit or stand in a cramped or stooped position, you can interfere to some extent with the increasing or decreasing ability of the liver.

By standing or sitting erect, and taking long or deep breaths you will squeeze and relax the liver and thus help the blood to flow through it more rapidly.

It is the slowness of the flow of the blood through the liver that causes congestion there with nausea, vomiting, and jaundice, and the formation of stones in the gall bladder adjoining the liver.

So although the liver does a lot of things including this increasing and decreasing in size, you can help it by giving it more room by standing and sitting erect. Standing with head up, chin drawn in, chest out, abdomen drawn in. Sitting with back supported, and feet placed firmly on the floor.

YOUNG WIFE STRENGTHENED

After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bancroft, Ontario—"When I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I had been married about a year and my strength was leaving me on account of my condition. I was only 19 and it was my first child. My mother told me I needed something to steady my nerves and a girl chum told me to take the Vegetable Compound. I am so thankful I did because it strengthened my whole system and now I feel perfectly well and have a sweet little baby boy."—MRS. J. B. STALKER, Bancroft, Ontario.

Parisian Foibles

Madame Vallet, Creator for Mertial and Armand, feels this frock of black georgette and ecru lace succeeds in giving the impression of refinement which Paris demands.

ELEGANCE CHARACTERIZE THE AFTERNOON DRESS.

The dressy model for afternoon wear takes an important place in this season's modes, but this dressiness must be expressed by a restrained elegance, and not by gaudy colors and over-decoration. This frock is black georgette, and a very handsome ecru lace, succeeds ingiving that impression of requnement and good taste which Paris demands. Some women find an unrelieved black too trying, and like the contrast offered by lace in a light tint.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

THE NO—NO CHILDREN.

Little children come to a period of growth when they sense their power of personality. I mean by that they begin to see that they can have a part in changing people and things and doings in the world about them. They have a very vague notion about this, but it is sufficiently strong to make them long to try it out. We are born experimenters.

Speech is slow of coming into full power. Long before a child can talk in sentences he has complete thoughts. They are not clear to him because he has no words to fit them but that they are clear and definite we can see by the actions of the child. He will shake his head at his mother and say NO, NO, push aside the ball she offers him, rise to his wobbly legs, stagger across the room and get his Teddy bear. What the No. No meant was, I do not want to play with the ball. I want the Teddy bear.

No, no must stand for a whole system of thought on occasion. It is not always a sign of rebellion. More often it is but the expression of an opinion. IUne must move slowly when a child begins to make thes demonstrations and interpret them wisely. When it is clear that the child has a definite idea that he can work out to his own satisfaction, and without harm to himself, it is best to let him have that expression. But twhen he wants to do what is not good for him, then we say No, No, and stick to it.

Listen and watche before you say, No. no. The child is experimenting with the world about him and you are a large part of his world. From your actions he gathers his first experiences and from them he makes his deductions and therefore his judgments and his actions must follow. If he learns that No, No has a very definite meaning he will soon cease experimenting with it. Children are far wiser than we give them credit for being and once they make their experiment and find the unvarying result is a fact, they cease trying out that field and go to another.

Children base their outlook on things and people by what their experiences have brought them. If they find that by following your No, No they find comfort and happiness they learn to be obedient to it. If you say No, No without real occasion, if your whim, your temper, your own comfort prompts that No, No the child's experience is colored accordingly and he will obey only when he is obliged to do so and he will have no faith in you.

Take the No, No of the little child as a signal of growth. Study the tendency of that growth and if it is good let it allone. Guide it, direct it, illuminate it by delightful experiences, expand it by widening the horizon it was aiming at, encourage it by showing ways and means of applying the idea to useful and lovely ends.

You would hate to have a child who could not assert itself. You would want him to have ideas and opinions and be able to see them through. That is what his NO, NO means.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head and ear noises or are growing hard of hearing go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength) and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

CHANGES SINCE DICKEN'S TIME

Mace Adorns Nova Scotia's House of Assembly When Speaker in Chair.

WRITER ATTENDED IN 1842.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 18.— If Charles Dickens had been able to witness the opening of the Nova Scotia General Assembly on March 5 of this year he would have observed that the forms in use in the Parliament of England were even more closely copied than on the occasion of his visit to Halifax eighty-eight years ago. For this year a golden mace was borne into the chamber by the sergeant-at-arms in advance of the speaker and Lieutenant-Governor, the first occasion on which the symbol of British parliamentary authority had been introduced in a Nova Scotia legislature.

Dickens' visit to the "House opening" was on the morning of January 19, 1842, when he had six hours in Halifax before resuming his journey to Boston on the Cunarder Brittania.

"It happened to be the opening of the Legislative Council and General Assembly," he wrote, "at which ceremonial the form observed on the commencement of a new session of Parliament in England were so closely copied, and so gravely presented on a small scale, that it was like looking at West-minster through the wrong end of a telescope."

In one particular, however, the novelist would have seen a considerable difference between Westminster and Halifax, for a reversed telescope would find no miniature Upper House to-day, the Legislative Council having been abolished eighty-six years after Dickens' visit.

Had the 30 year old creator of the Pickwick Papers tarried an hour longer in Halifax he would have witnessed a memorable contest for the speakership, which Joseph Howe won by two votes over J. B. Uniake. The province was then in the throes of a fight for responsible government. Howe led the Liberals and Johnson the Conservatives, but both were at the time members of a coalition government.

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

So many of our readers have written for the help on potato recipes that I thought they might be glad to have some addtional ones which I have gathered for today

• • • • • •

Red Cross Potatoes: Season 2 cupfuls of mashed potato with salt, pepper and just a sprinkle of mace. Beat one egg yolk and stir into the mixture. Form into six balls. Put in a buttered pan. Brush well with the egg white beaten just enough to prevent its being coagulated. Make two clefts in the top, having them bisect each other as in hot-cross-buns. Brush these well with the egg and set in a very hot oven to brown quickly. Remove carefully with a griddle cake turned. Cut pimento into long thin strips and put in the clefts. Garnish the serving dish with parsley.

• • • • • •

In Paper Cups: If preferred the potato can be put into paper baking cups instead of being formed into balls. Be sure that the potato is piled higher than the cups to prevent the paper scorching when the potato browns. These potatoes are especially appropriate to serve on Good Friday and Easter.

• • • • • •

Spanish Potatoes: Mix 1 tablespoon each of minced onion celery, pimento and sweet pepper with 2 teaspoons salt. Stir lightly into 4 cups of hot milk. Pile on a dish and sprinkle lightly with minced parsley and paprika.

• • • • • •

Russian Potatoes: With a potato scoop make as many potato balls as will be sufficient for the number of persons to be served. Boil until tender but not soft. New potatoes are best. Make a nest of new cabbage cut into tiny slivers as for a coleslaw. Dress with hot Russian sauce. On the cabbage put five potato balls or three if the scoop makes fairly large balls. Sprinkle with paprika. This is a delightful potato dish to set before the family at Easter if the cabbage is formed into several nests and the balls are a trifle oval like eggs.

• • • • • •

Russian Sauce: This recipe is adapted from an old Russian sauce and is quite different from the usual Russian Sauce or Mayonnaise. Make a white sauce of 1 tablespoon of butter, 1 tablespoon of flour and 1 cup milk. To this add 1 egg yolk, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, 1-2 teaspoon grated horse-radish, ¼ teaspoon sugar, 10 drops of lemon juice and ¼ teaspoon mustard. When piping hot and just before serving, pour this sauce over the shredded cabbage and then place the potatoes on top.

• • • • • •

Candied Sweet Potatoes: With a French vegetable cutter scoop 1 quart balls from raw sweet potatoes or cut in uniform slices. Melt ½ cup butter in a baking dish Add ½ cup maple syrup and a few grains salt, and when hot add the potatoes. Shake over fire until hot and then cover and bake in oven until tender.

• • • • • •

Potato Au Milan: Whip mealy boiled potatoes to powder with a fork; add enough butter and milk to make a creamy paste, the beaten yolks of two eggs, pepper and salt. At the last whip in the stiffly-frothed whites. Heap on a well-buttered pie plate, wash over with melted butter, and brown lightly on the top of grating of a quick oven. Slip a spatula under the mound, and lift carefully to a hot platter. Serve at once.

IN PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES

AT BETHANY TABERNACLE

It is most encouraging to note an increased attendance at Sunday School, under the leadership of A. Moore and a splendid staff of teachers. This branch of the work is steadily growing, and much blessing is attending this department of the work, each Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Sunday morning the pastor spoke on a most timely subject for the Christian: namely, "The Fruit of the Spirit." By way of introduction he traced the several steps in our Christian experience from time we are under conviction of sin, then brought through to salvation, justified before God, and realizing that the end God seeks in the forgiveness of sins is the cleansing of the whole moral nature bringing every thought into subjection to Christ, which leads to the fullness of the Holy Spirit in our heart or the expanding life of sanctification, to the final result of this experience which is the manifestation of the "Fruit of the Spirit." The text is found in Galatians 5:22. Emphasis was laid on the fact that it is not the fruits of the Spirit but it is the fruit—one complete fruit. According to our text the fruit is explained by nine characteristics:

1—Love, or the queen of graces, the very essence of the fruit, the core of the Christian life. It includes our relations to both God and man and is offered as a standard of Christian perfection.

2—Joy. Certainly if we live in the Spirit we cannot be dull and morbid. Furthermore, everyone who has received God's free gift of salvation must be joyful for that precious knowledge outweighs all the trials and burdens of life. "Be joyful in the Lord Always," "Rejoice because your names are written in heaven." Joy is outward expression of an inward working.

3—Peace, a quiet of heart. All the tempests of sin quieted by peace and all doubt is expelled by this endurement of the Spirit. Jesus speaks "Peace be still."

4—Long suffering or forbearance, enduring to the end even as Christ. "Not provoked by opposition, or soured by injustice, nor crushed by men's contempt." This lofty ideal can be realized in the life of the Spirit-filled Christian.

5-6—Gentleness, not sharp or bitter, but mild, courteous, fair spoken, always tactful. Along with this is the sixth which is Goodness.

7—Faith, or trustfulness. Reference is here made not only to our faith in Christ but also fidelity in others. A willingness to trust our fellowmen, not constantly doubting every step that we fail to understand. Many are kept from the fullness of salvation because Christians failed to have faith and put trust in the babes in Christ.

8—Meekness, self repression in view of the claims of others. Self laid aside of no account in view of the claims of Christ.

9—Temperance — this has to do with our mastery over ourselves or as the Apostle expressed it "I keep my body under." It is consistency, self-control.

Even though the weather was bad, yet we praise the Lord for a goodly number out in spite of that fact. Rev. Johnson continued his studies in the Book of Revelation, finishing the final judgment of Babylon, which is covered by the 18th chapter, Babylon representing that Satanic, spiritual system which has dominated the political empires of the world even from the time of Nimrod—Gen. 10. The close of the chapter is the lamentation over the fall of Babylon on the part of earth's inhabitants while on the part of the heavenly world it is a cause for great joy for God has avenged His elect. Finally the doom of Babylon is sealed. The 24th verse giving the full reason; namely, that she was filled with the blood of Saints and Prophets.

The first portion of the 19th chapter was also studied were the scenes shift to heaven after this period of great rejoicing there comes the final consumation of that which has been the hope of the church; namely, the marriage of the Lamb. Every true Christian has his eyes turned heaven-ward seeking that day when he shall truly be united with his Lord that together they might return to earth again to reign during the glorious Millenium, which is fully described in the Scriptures. The marriage is followed by the supper and glories unknown will be revealed to us at that blessed feast.

From March 27 to 30 will be the Annual Missionary Convention on the special speakers being, Rev. John MacMillan, Superintendent of the Alliance work in the Phillippine Islands, Rev. F. Noel Palmer, Pastor of the Christie Street Tabernacle, Toronto and Rev. J. D. Williams, the District Superintendent for Eastern and Central Canada.

ST. JAMES' CHURCH.

A large congregation was in attendance on Sunday morning when Communion service was held in St. James United Church.

Rev. J. H. Dudgeon, the pastor, gave a short address on "The Model Church," speaking on the text taken from the second chapter of Acts and 42nd verse: "And they continued steadfastly in the Apostles' doctrine and fellowship and in breaking of bread and in prayer."

First mention was made of the church by Christ to Peter, who replied to his question, "Thou art the Christ the Son of the living God," and was told in return that he, Peter, should be the rock upon which Christ would build His church.

The Greek word for Christ is Corpus, meaning the body, for He is the body of the church. From this same Greek word comes the word corporation, meaning a business organization. So the church is a corporation having for its chief business the spreading of the Gospel to every nation. This should be the one great aim and object of every branch of the church.

Every corporation must have its charter from which it receives it authority. When the church takes for its charter the Word of God, it receives very clear instructions for its great purpose.

The first point of importance about this model church was that it had a creed, the Apostles' doctrine, of which it was not ashamed. Every man has a creed of some kind in which he believes. That is an essential of any church.

Fellowship was the second characteristic of this great church. This is a necessity of the modern church as well. Each member is a part of the main body, and has his own work to perform, but like the human body each part is dependent upon the other. No one person, however important an office he fills, can be independent of the other members, in a model church.

In the "breaking of bread" these first disciples were also faithful in carrying out Christ's command, which is the foundation of our communion service. The breaking of bread is done in remembrance of His body, which was broken for us, and the wine is the token of His shed blood. Too many of us take this sacrament as a matter of form, not believing or realizing that His shed blood is the only way of salvation.

The last point to which the pastor drew attention was the faithfulness with which the members of the first church continued in prayer. Prayer was a reality in their lives—as it should be in ours to-day, not only the prayers in secret places but in fellowship with others in the church and in public.

The communion service was preceded by a short season of testimony, in which a large number took part.

Evening Service.

The evening service was evangelistic in character, with the usual attractive ministry of song—led by two choirs.

The theme chosen for the pastor's sermon was Repentance, a subject of primary importance to everybody. The text, "Except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish."

Repentance does not mean joining a church. It is not keeping the Sabbath day. It is not a change of mind, for you ma ydo all these, which without repentance avails nothing. The foundation of Christianity on the part of man is Repentance. There is no substitute for it, but it is little in evidence to-day. You may spend your life in doing good to others, yet miss the real Christian life eternally.

Some look at man and the world to-day, and say "they are improved.' These are modernistic views. There may be better and easier ways of living than there were a few hundred years ago, but we doubt if the heart of man is one whit better. This is the acid test of Christianity. Education and culture are greatly stressed to-day, but they never bring man nearer to God. The human heart is the very same to-day, everywhere, that it has always been. It needs regeneration. Before God the sinful heart of an educated and cultured man is just as vile as that of the most ignorant. Repentance implies a law of transgression. When you repent you acknowledge that you have gone astray. The only way of coming back to God is through repentance. He came not to call the righteous but sinners. It is impossible to get away from God. The Psalmist said "I remembered God and was troubled." So many of us try to forget Him. We make all kinds of excuses for not coming to Christ. We think by tearing the page from the Bible which tells us of our sins we can hide them but God can look right into the innermost recesses of every heart.

We must be absolutely honest with God. We may not know and understand our own heart but He does. Come to Him saying "Search me O, God, and know my heart," and remember that repentace is the only way to Christ.

The sins of to-day are the very same sins of ages ago. Perhaps they appear in a more polished form, but the sin is the same. We may put conscience to sleep now, but when we face God our conscience will condemn us, and we will "be judged out of those things which are written in the books according to our works."

We are writing our history now, every hour of every day in thoughts, words and actions. God will not need to ask about our lives, for it is all before Him, written in the books, and the book of life.

It is time to begin thinking about eternity and to have our lamps trimmed and burning. How? By repentance, for except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish. People may get away with sin against man or the community but not with God. To Him we must answer each for his own sin. To be saved it is necessary to first acknowledge sin, and then repent.

It is while here on earth we must repent. Hell was not a place made by God. It is a place of torment, anquish and despair, and both Heaven and Hell, are eternal. We will be in either one place or the other.

There is no excuse for not being saved from sin for anyone having access to the word of God.

Investigate the stand you are taking to-day. Repent and confess. Confession must be made directly to Christ, the great high priest, who is able and willing to save to the uttermost."

The choirs under the direction of Frank Stevens, organist, sang the anthem "Soldiers of Christ, Arise." (Miller,) and "My Redeemer (P. P. Bliss) at the morning service, and the anthem by the senior choir, "O Clap your Hands Together," Turner, with the solo parts taken by Mrs. E. Kitney, A.C.A.M.

A solo "As pants the Hart,' (Spohr) by Mrs. Phillips, and "Follow On," (Cushing), by the Junior Choir, was the evening program of husic.

CHICKEN CROQUETTES

Take half a pound of chicken chopped fine or put through meat grinder, half teaspoon salt, half teaspoon celery salt, quarter teaspoon cayenne, quarter teaspoon white pepper, half teaspoon onion juice, one pint cream (or 1 cup cream). Put 2 tablespoons butter in pan and heat to bubbling, then add 2 tablespoons flour; when mixed, add slowly hot cream, pour this when well mixed over two well beaten eggs and cook in double boiler until it thickens. Add chicken. If not thick enough add finely crushed soda biscuit, as it must not be too soft to shape. When cold, take up one heaped teaspoon at a time, shape into cylinders; roll in fine biscuit crumbs; dip in egg; crumb again and let dry a few minutes or set in cool place until you desire to use them. Then fry in deep fat. Mixed dripping clarified is better for frying than pure lard.

LADIES' AID MEETS.

Members of Burnbrae Church Society Hold Jolly Initial Tea.

BURNBRAE, March 18.—(Examiner Correspondence)—The Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's congregation held an enjoyable initial tea in the school-room of the church on Friday evening. A most interesting program was given and proceeds were well over the fifty-dollar mark. One feature was old-time music by some of the violin artists of other days who have lost none of their prowess as the years roll by.

Local hockey fans were among the most ardent rooters for Campbellford at the recent hockey finals in Belleville and the Burnbrae voice was badly strained following "Buster" Whitton's winning tally.

Several good runs of sap have occurred during the past week though the weather has not been ideal as yet for the sugar industry.

Local Curlers Discuss Artificial Ice Proposition

LOCAL CLUB DECIDES TO RENEW CORRESPONDENCE WITH THE RINK COMPANY

Another Successful Season Closed at Annual Meeting of Besom Knights.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Juniors Come in For Much Praise From Senior Members—Trophies Presented.

Another successful season of curling for local knights of the besom and stane was officially closed last night at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club.

A review of the year's success was related; officers were elected; prizes and cups presented to the winning competitors; and the artificial ice proposition came in for considerable discussion. One of the highlights of the meeting was the enthusiastic manner in which the senior curlers congratulated Jack Amys' rink of youngsters in bringing the Ontario Junior Tankard to Peterborough for the second consecutive year. The provincial junior curling champs were presented with wrist watches and it was stated that if they maintained their present standard of curling the senior tankard would rest in the local club rooms in the not too distant future.

J. J. Howden was unanimously elected to the presidency of the club. Last year Mr. Howden was vice-president and he succeeds T. O. Donaldson, who was made honorary president, to the chair. It was stated that the new president was most actively engaged in the interests of the club and to him went much of the honor for the young curlers' successes. Jack Amys spoke of the valuable coaching and managing of his rink given by Mr. Howden and on behalf of the junior curlers he presented him with a pipe as a slight token of esteem and appreciation.

Officers Elected

The officers elected were:

Honorary President—T. O. Donaldson.

President—J. J. Howden.

Vice-President—Ross Dobbin.

Committee of management—H. R. Martin, J. Penrose, Dr. N. H. Sutton and Wm. Cruthers.

Representatives to the Ontario Curling Association—T. O. Donaldson and J. J. Howden.

Open bonspiel committee—W. G. Morrow, H. F. Foote, W. D. Campbell, M. B. Chenhall, J. J. Howden, T. O. Donaldson.

Auditor—H. C. Sootheran.

Honorary chaplain—Rev. Wm. McDonald.

Umpire—Angus McIntosh.

It was resolved the correspondence with the Curling Rink Company should be opened up again, since no reply had been received from the company in connection with the acceptance on the part of the club of the rink company's terms of putting in three sheets of artificial ice within three years time. The secretary was instructed to again write the company of the club's proposal.

In a short address T. O. Donaldson, retiring president, stated that the season 1929-30 must be considered another successful year for the club. The competition had been keen in all the schedules and the season had been productive of fairly good ice.

The senior membership was 155 and the financial report was favorable, receipts being $2,712.25 and expenditures $2,696.62. There were 35 lady curlers. George Robertson, Jr., read the report of the junior club which showed twenty-four members, receipts $51 and a $21 balance. W. D. Campbell read the report of the Open-bonspiel committee, receipts being $679.58 and a balance being left of $80.

Presentations Made

On behalf of the Executive committee of the club, W. D. Campbell presented Harry F. Foote, permanent secretary of the bonspiel committee, with an amber pipe as a token of appreciation of Mr. Foote's valuable services.

Rev. David Wren in making the presentation of wrist watches to the Ontario Junior Tankard rink emphasized the importance that sport played in the building of a nation and the result of clean sport upon youth. Herb. Martin made the presentation of the rink's picture to the club and he pointed out the great strides made by the junior club since its birth seven years ago and the development of great curlers from the youthful material.

The following were then presented with prizes:

Schedule Games.

COLTS SUBDUE MILLERS H. S.

Campbellford and Lakefield Tangle in One of Best Hockey Tussles of Season.

PLAY SMART HOCKEY.

LAKEFIELD, March 18 (Examiner Correspondence). — On Friday evening one of the best hockey matches of the season was played in the Lakefield Rink between the Campbellford High School and the Chaplin Colts, which resulted in still another victory for the Colts. This season has been an unbroken series of triumphs, as they have played a great many games and have never had a single defeat. There was a large attendance on Friday night, and excellent ice, and the game was fast and clean with E. H. Northey handling the bell. Wannamaker scored the first goal on a nice play, then he followed up with a second counter, Kennedy on a pass from Chappell scored a nice goal, and Wannamaker followed with a good rush and got by the defence and added the fourth counter.

In the second period Wannamaker checked the defence man and planted a swift shot in the corner of the nets. Benor followed with a counter on a pretty pass from Kennedy. Ken Oddie scored Campbellford's first goal on a rush through from centre ice, and Couch scored the second and last of Campbellford's contribution to the score card.

Wannamaker, assisted by Kennedy, scored the last goal for the Colts.

The final score was 7-2 in favor of the home team.

Visitors Outclassed.

The visitors were outclassed in speed, stick-handling, and combination, and the home team, although younger and lighter, had the edge all the way. The ice was in perfect condition, and the youngsters gave a first-class exhibition of good, clean hockey. The penalty list was small and only minor offences were seen.

"Chief" Webster was literally an iron wall goalie, Jewell and Blewett were unbeatable on defence, and Wannamaker and Kennedy were the flying wings, playing a spectacular game; Chappell, too, played his best game of the season. The home team is well balanced, and each boy is well placed, and each has shown marked improvement during the season.

The line-up was as follows:

Campbellford High School — Goal, Roy Oddie; defence, Mike Brennan and Bruce Haig; centre, Bob Polton; wings, Charlie Redpath and Ken Oddie; subs., Sinclair Comrie, Donald Couch, Don Meyers, and Ronald Richardson.

Lakefield Colts — Goal, Carson Webston; defence, Joe Blewett and Holley Jewell; centre, Robert Chittick; wings, Rod Wannamaker and Rollie Kennedy; subs., Bob Lennox, Herrick Brown, George Chappell.

GROVE VS. COLTS.

A speedy exhibition game of hockey was played on Saturday night in the Lakefield Rink between Hamblin's Colts and The Grove, which resulted in a score of 5-3 in favor of The Grove, who held the advantage practically all through. Braden Blewett was referee, and handled the game capably and with general satisfaction. The ice was in excellent condition, and the game was fast and keen and kept a large crowd of spectators interested. The first period saw each side score twice, Stuart and Carson for The Grove and Jewell and Wannamaker for the Colts. The second period was a see-saw game, with first one side and then the other making a dash, but only one score was made when Macrae ii. got past Webster's guard and landed one in the Colts' net. The third period was a hard battle and was played with no intermission, which means that in latter part the pace had considerably slackened and both sides were rather tired. Elsmley scored the first goal, and after a short interval Jewell got in a counter. Macrae i. scored the last goal of the game, which was well worth seeing, as these teams are friendly rivals, and both have a big group of fans who take an interest in the contests.

Disney, the two Macraes, Elmsley, and Stuart and Carson were quite outstanding for The Grove, while Webster, Stenner, McFadden, Jewell, Wannamaker, and Kennedy were specially good, each playing a strong game.

The line-up for the game was as follows:

The Grove— Goal, Disney; defence, Macrae ii. and Carson; centre, Macrae i.; wings, Elmsley and Stuart; subs., Macauley, Bagg, and Wright.

Colts — Goal, Webster; defence, Stenner and McFadden; centre, Wannamaker; wings, Jewell and Kennedy; subs., Adamson and Kemp.

Following the game the ice was given over to the skaters, who were there in large numbers. The Citizens' Band was in attendance and gave a splendid program of music.

SISTERS STAR AS BASKETEERS

Here are two of a kind. Both basketball stars. But they do not play on the same cage team, nor do they belong to the same club. The elder sister is Helen Hendry, titian haired leading lady of the Parkdale Athletic Club's senior team, Toronto. The other girl is her younger sister, Elsie Hendry, a 17-year-old cage player, who played her first senior basketball game this winter. She is a member of the Toronto Ladies' Athletic Club.

TRAIL QUALIFIES FOR WESTERN FINAL

Defeats Saskatoon Quakers By 3 to 1 Count, to Take Round 6-2.

SASKATOON, March 18.—For the second time in two years Trail Smoke-Eaters qualify to battle with Port Arthur in the Western zone final of the Allan Cup play-downs. The speedy team from British Columbia last night pushed Saskatoon Quakers, Saskatoon champions, out of the senior race for the Canadian title by handing them a 3 to 1 defeat, the second of the series by the same score.

The Smoke-Eaters snapped up their scoring opportunities as fast as they arrived last night. At the first intermission they had mounted their lead on the series to three goals, retained it through a brilliant second stanza when each team scored one and slipped in the odd counter for good luck in the third period.

Saskatoon—Goal, Kearns; defense, Wilson, Lake; centre, Klein; wings, Burnie, Scharfe; subs., Watkins, Downie, McQuarrie.

Referee—Carl Battell, Moose Jaw.

Judge of play—Dr. Eddie Nagle, Saskatoon.

Two Smart Combination Goals Enables M.A.A.A. to Defeat Truro Bearcats 2-0.

TORONTO, Ont., March 18 (Canadian Press).—Two smart combination goals in the second period Montreal Amateur Athletics Association, senior champions of Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, defeated Truro Bearcats, Maritime champions, two to nothing at Montreal last night. The contest was the first of a two game series in the Eastern Canada Allan Cup semi-finals.

The Maritime champions provided stubborn opposition for the Montreal sextette, who have not yet recovered from the gruelling series with the Quebec intermediate champions, St. Francois Exavier. There was no scoring in the initial frame due to the clever goalkeeping of the rival net guardian, Huggins. A relief forward, put Montreal in the van eight minutes after the start of the second session by accepting Brydson's pass and tricking the Truro goalkeeper out of position to score. Eight minutes later Huggins made an opening for Haynes and the latter skated right in to clinch the game for M.A.A.A. There was no scoring in the final period, although like the first, both goalkeepers made numerous spectacular saves.

Second Game Wednesday

The teams will meet in the second game on Wednesday night, the winner on the round qualifying to play either Ottawa Shamrocks or Hamilton Tigers in the Eastern Canada final.

Ottawa Shamrocks arrived in Toronto last night in order to have a good rest before their game with the Tigers in Toronto tonight. The Ontario Hockey Association champions defeated Shamrocks, holders of the Ottawa and district title, by three to two, in the first of their two game series at Ottawa Saturday night, but the Shamrocks are confident of overcoming the deficit and skating into the final.

Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, Northern Ontario Hockey Association junior titleholders, lacked the polish and experience of West Toronto, Ontario Hockey Association champions, and were eliminated from the Memorial Cup competition at Toronto last night. The score in the second game was a one-all tie, but as West Toronto won the first contest, five to three, they won the round, six goals to four, and will now meet Ottawa Rideaus, in the final. The first game will be played at the capital city on Wednesday night with the return at Toronto, Saturday night. Victors of this series will journey west in quest of the Canadian crown.

Play Good Hockey

The Sault youngsters played a much improved brand of hockey last night than in their previous game. At times the had the West Toronto sextette sorely pressed to hold them out and but for the fine goalkeeping of Geddes, the O.H.A. champion's classy netminder, they would probably have tied the round at least.

Canadian Play-offs Inaugurated To-night

TORONTO, Ont., March 18. — (C. P.) The Canadian Hockey League comprising teams from Galt, Guelph, Brantford and Kitchener, will inaugurate their first play off series to-night. Organized to replace the old Canadian League which has now blossomed forth to the International with three United States cities represented, the Canpro has but two teams qualifying for the championship struggle. These are Galt and Guelph. The latter finished the regular season at the top of the standing while Galt finished a close second.

To-night's game will be played at Kitchener, owing to the ice conditions at Guelph. The series will be a five game affair with the next game at Galt on Wednesday night.

LONDON COPS THIRD PLACE

Panthers Only Ontario Team Represented in International League Play-offs.

FREE SCORING AFFAIR.

TORONTO, Ont., March 18 (C.P.)—London Panthers captured third place in the International Hockey League last night by defeating Hamilton Tigers, seven goals to two. The victory placed the London team two points ahead of Detroit, fourth place occupants, and also distinguished them as the lone representatives of Ontario in the league play-offs. Teams from the United States have fought their way into the other three eligible positions, Cleveland leading the pack and Buffalo occupying second place, with Detroit bringing up the rear.

To make third place assured against Hamilton, the Panthers unloosed a wide open attack which netted them a goal in the opening period, three in the second, and three more in the final frame. Tigers scored once in the second and again in the last period. Johnny Sorrel and Eddie Rodden, London's two smart forwards, each secured an assist, to just about clinch first and second places at the head of the league scoring records.

In the play-offs Cleveland will clash with London and Buffalo will meet Detroit in the semi-finals. Dates for the contests have not yet been announced.

Windsor Bulldogs, last year's champions, wind up the schedule to-night along with the cellar occupants, Niagara Falls. The result will have no bearing on the standing of the first four teams, as the Bulldogs are five points in the rear of Detroit.

CURLING

AT MILLBROOK

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Mar. 18.—The season's schedule of games in connection with the local curling club was completed on Saturday, March 15, when R. H. Edmunds defeated, E. C. Richards in the thirteen point series for the Gillott Cup by a score of 13-9.

The semi-finals were played off on Friday night as follows:

E. S. Richards, 13; vs. Gordon Armstrong, 11.

R. H. Edmunds, 13, vs. T. H. Collins, 3.

Establishes Unique Record

Mr. Edmunds has established a unique record, for the season of 1929-30, since he figures as a winner in connection with all three trophies for which competition takes place in the local club.

His victory on Saturday gives him the Gillott Cup in the thirteen point games. He is skip of the rink which holds top place in the inter-rink competiton for the Allen Trophy; and last week he and H. J. Lancashire won out in the finals of the Scotch Doubles and so are holders of the Waddell Cup.

It is likely that the presentation of the cups will take place in the near future, when the annual oyster supper will be held as a final feature in the winding up of the curling for the present season.

As far as can be learned this is the first time, at least for many years, when the entire schedule of games has been completed in one season. Usually there have been hindrances of various kinds, delaying play, and necessitating holding over final games until the opening weeks of the following winter; this explains why the presentation of the trophies for the season of 1928-29 took place just a short while since.

The other members of R. H. Edmund's rink, who are winners with him of the Allen Cup, include: H. R. Scott, vice skip; F. H. Gray, second stone, and A. Johnson, lead. Mr. Scott is the president of the club this year.

ONION SHIPMENTS HEAVY.

PUEBLO, Colorado. (U.P.) — More breaths than ever before are going to bear the odor of onions. Shipments of Velencia onions from the Arkansas valley reached a total of 1,714 cars for the season.

WHAT PRICE SPEED

It may sound absurd but $5.00 a yard is what you have to pay to take a crack at the world's motor car speed title. At least, that is what Kaye Don the famous English driver, estimates. Something else to remember is that "The Silver Bullet," Kaye Don's speed wagon, cost $100,000, and the life of the car is approximately 20,000 yards. Kaye Don's ambition is to gain not only a world's title but to maintain the prestige of the English motor mechanics in the world. "The Silver Bullet" has a twin-engined Sunbeam of 4,000 h.p., with ice-cooling, hydraulic clutch and brakes, and an air-brake. She has been designed for the one purpose of beating the world's land speed record, and has a power-weight ratio of two to one, which is the best ever reached by a designer. Kaye Don points out that there is no limit to the power than can be produced, but it is when we come to adapt that power that we are faced with limitations. For example, one of the problems that had to be confronted in the preparation of "The Silvert Bullet," was the question of tires, and whether they were capable of that terrific speed. The stress that is imposed by such terriffic wheel-revolutions in a speed dash of that kind is enormous. The main difficulty is that centrifugal force tends to make the compressed air rush upwards—and the covers must be of abnormal strength to resist this swirl of air. Then comes friction between the sand and tread. As the speed is increased so is the strain on them and in the future the big problem will be to counterbalance the friction stress.

TRENT VALLEY HOCKEY LEAGUE CHAMPS GUESTS OF ROTARIANS

J. V. Herity, of Belleville, is Speaker for the Occasion.

TRIBUTE TO PLAYERS.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 18 (Examiner Staff Correspondent).—Honoring the champions of the Trent Valley League, the Campbellford hockey team and club were the guests of honor at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club held at the St. Lawrence Hotel. J. V. Herity of the Belleville Rotary Club was the guest speaker, and J. Thomas of Belleville was also present. N. A. MacColl occupied the chair.

Mr. Herity, in his opening remarks, paid high tribute to the hockey champions. He said that they had not only earned a well-fought victory but had brought back with them a reputation for being clean and generous sportsmen. Taking for his subject, "Rotary's place in the Community," the speaker confined his remarks to the town of Campbellford. In 1881 it had a population of 1,418; in 1891, it had reached 2,424; in 1911 the population stood at 3,051, while in 1926, the speaker said, it had reached the high level of 3,217.

Increased Manufactures.

This fact was to be noted, he said, by the increased manufactures in Campbellford. When the speaker first visited there in 1884 there were two small woollen mills, a flour mill and several saw mills. In 1926 the plants were running full time and had increased with the addition of a shoe factory, the Cloth Co. and several other concerns. But since then there has been a gardual decrease in population, as last year's census of 2,702 shows. This decrease was also noted in the town's industries. This rise and fall of population and manufactures was not confined to Campbellford, said Mr. Herity, but to all the towns and villages of Ontario. The only large centres that retained a steady increase are Toronto, Windsor and Hamilton. The reason for this was the increase in the larger centres of industries and manufactures.

Needs More Industries.

If Campbellford wished to progress it must obtain more industries, it must make itself the centre of an industrial area. Economic factors were causing he change, such as the chain stores. They were creating keen business competition in the small towns, and if the small towns wished to survive and progress they must acquire a fair share of industry and business.

"The work of Rotary along this line," siad Mr. Herity, "was to get behind the Chamber of Commerce and help to push. This could be done by the formation of an industrial committee to offer advice and assist generally. The fostering of a better feeling between the town and country was also necessary, he said. In conclusion the speaker urged upon the club the necessity of advertising the town. This could be done by the issuing of booklets that would contain all necessary information and be a credit to Campbellford.

J. Thomas figured on the program with two vocal solos that were well received.

Pickering Defeats Belleville Quintet

BELLEVILLE, March 18.—In the O.A.B.A. interscholastic semi-finals Belleville lost the second game of the round to Pickering College of Newmarket. Pickering won the round and will meet the winners of the Huron-Simcoe District.

Belleville put up a stubborn fight from the first whistle in an attempt to at least win their home game, but again the Blue and Silver defense was too strong for them to score consistently. Cather and Byrne starred for Belleville in the first half, and Maraskas went through for three field goals in the second session.

The Pickering quintet had too big a lead from their home game to be really serious about the game. The two defense players weakened once or twice unnecessarily and the forward line did not show its usual scoring punch. The game ended with the score 36—21 for Pickering, giving them the round 80—35.

Belleville—Cather, Williams, Ridley, Maraskas, Bryne (captain), Bradley, Smith, Mott, Higgs.

Pickering College—Faulds, Minchinton, McAllister (captain), Laurie, Stronach, Davison, Babb, Forster.

Referee—E. H. Walters.

Members Reach Unanimous Resolution Protesting Practice of Shooting Doe.

GAME DEPLETION.

Association to Request Government to Raise Wolf Bounty From $15 to $20.

Many important and far reaching matters of intense interest to all hunters and fishermen of this county were full discussed at the special general meeting of the local Fish and Game Protective Association, in the Empress Hotel last evening with the President, J. W. Gravestock, in the chair, supported by C. G. Graham, secretary.

The attendance was somewhat small considering the importance of the questions under discussion, but this defect was counterbalanced by the keen and lively interest which all attending members evinced in the entire proceedings.

A pleasing note was struck when it was moved that Percy Lancaster, M.P. for East Peterborough constituency, and Fred D. Craig, Editor of The Examiner, be elected honorary members of the association in recognition of signal services rendered to the association. Special mention was made of The Examiner's editorial concerning illegal sale of bass, pickerel and lunge, which appeared on Monday evening. The motion was unanimously carried.

The meeting was called following receipt of a telegram from the Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries informing the local association that the Fish and Game Committee of the Legislature will meet on Wednesday of this week, to interview hunters from all Ontario to decide:

Whether dogs shall be prohibited in deer hunting; whether doe shooting shall be prohibited; whether deer season shall be shortened; whether non-residents shall be allowed to hunt bear in spring.

All members of the association had the privilege of recording a ballot on the above subjects and it was further the idea of the meeting to appoint delegates to represent the local hunters, in Toronto. Following the discussion as to whether dogs should be prohibited in deer hunting a secret ballot was taken which resulted in an even vote. Out of twenty members present there were ten for and ten against. The chairman, who had previously stated his views on the matter, cast the deciding vote against the use of dogs, saying that there was more credit to a man who gets deer without dogs. In many cases the dogs are doing the hunting while the sportsman merely pulls the trigger.

Protest Doe Shooting

Regarding the second question as to whether doe shooting should be prohibited, there was a unanimous vote in favor of asking the Government to pass legislation to make this practice illegal. This decision was reached after very mature discussion. The general opinion was that the depletion of deer in this section has assumed serious proportions, and that it is absolutely essential to take immediate steps to conserve the wild life. Instances of the success which this sort of legislation has attained in the states of Pennsylvania and New York were cited, although it was pointed out that wolves were not at all plentiful in that section. This brought forth another long discussion and there was a great deal of criticism as to the stories being circulated which lay the blame for the partial extinction of deer to the wolves. Many members being of the opinion that such reports were greatly exaggerated and that most of the trouble was caused by unscrupulous persons killing game indiscriminately, in and out of season.

The question of shortening the deer season was left over while it was decided to ask the Government to prohibit bear hunting in the spring.

Raise Wolf Bounty

The feeling of the meeting on the question of the adequacy or otherwise or the present bounty of $15 for wolves was then taken and while it was not admitted that the wolves were causing as much damage as was alleged, still it was thought that they were a serious enough menace to the security of deer. One of the members said that he had learned from a Hudson Bay factor that a small pack of wolves was quite capable of cleaning up an entire section of deer in a very short space of time. It was unanimously decided on this question to request the Government to raise the wolf bounty from $15 to $40. It was stated that the bounty was raised once before but that Quebec Province would not come into line in this respect, with the consequence that the problem could not be dealt with satisfactorily. An effort is to be made on this occasion to induce the Quebec Government to co-operate.

It was further resolved that an effort shold be made to have the closed season for foxes fixed from March 1 to October 31.

Partridge restocking also came in for a great deal of discussion. The chairman pointing out that there was at present no open season for partridges and it was the desire of the association to have two days open season fixed each year. It was stated that closed season for partridges has been in force for the past eight to ten years but even so there is a decided scarcity of these birds. It was resolved to ask the Government to introduce Hungarian Partridges to this district. It was alleged that contrary to law several partridges are shot each year, small boys with .22 rifles being offenders along with persons of more mature years.

Illegal Trout Sale

The next business on the agenda was a statement of the policy which is to be adopted by the association concerning persons who break the game laws by selling trout out of season and it was made quite clear that it is illegal at any time to sell or purchase bass, pickerel or lunge. The chairman said that with the co-operation of the press, the distribution of warning notices and other publicity matter which had been before the public in the past, concerning this matter, enough educational work had been done and it is the intention of the association to instigate proceedings against local people buying fish from pedlars and also against the seller, who will be hailed before the court irrespective of their standing in any way. The association have made this matter very clear and it is quite evident that they do not intend to trifle with any more cases which come to their notice.

It was agreed that it would not be necessary to send delegates to Toronto on Wednesday, but that it would be sufficient to write a letter to Percy Lancaster, M.P.P., J. F. Strickland, M.P.P., and also the Ontario Hunters' Association, advising them of the decisions reached at last night's meeting.

A letter dated March 4th, a copy of which has already been sent to D. McDonald, Game and Fisheries Department, Toronto, and which contains the resolutions passed at the recent annual meeting of the Association, would, it was decided, be sent to Hon. Mr. McCrea. In it the suggestion is made that "as soon as convenient we would like to bring a deputation to Toronto so that a friendly discussion at greater length can be held." It was suggested that the delegation in this instance should be composed of C. G. Graham, Fred L. Roy, Claude Rogers, J. W. Gravestock and Mr. Black.

It was also announced that casting competitions will be held in the Armouries in April, due announcements to be made in The Examiner in time to enable all fishermen to get in some helpful casting practice before the opening of the season in May. And arrangements are to be made to bring Gregory Clarke, the Angling Editor of the Toronto Daily Star, here to give a lecture on fishing and to exhibit a motion picture film on the same subject, loaned by the railway company.

Mr. Clarke's lecture will be of interest to everybody. When lecturing in Toronto he never fails to draw capacity crowds. His wonderful speaking ability and intimate knowledge of his subject are well recognized thruoghout Ontario.

British Champion Retires From Championship Golf

LONDON, March 18 (C.P.)—J. H. Taylor, five times open golf champion of Great Britain, who enters his sixtieth year to-morrow, has announced his retirement from championship golf. He is the youngest by a slight margin of the Big Three—James Braid, Harry Vardon and himself—was the first of them to win the open and the first of them to announce his retirement.

McLarnin Demands Plenty To Oppose Jackie Fields

NEW YORK, March 18. — Frank Bruen, general manager of Madison Square Garden, arrived home from Miami yesterday, and celebrated St. Patrick's Day by attempting to sign Jimmy McLarnin for a welterweight title bout with Jackie Fields in one of the ball parks here next summer. Bruen was the last straggler from the forces that staged the Scott-Sharkey fiasco at the Florida resort, February 27

Bruen made some progress with "Pop" Foster, manager of McLarnin, but finally was stopped for the day by the Irishman's demand for 37½ per cent. of the gate receipts, the same percentage that must be guaranteed Fields, the champion. Another conference will be held this week. Foster said he had offers for a match with Fields from both Chicago and Detroit.

MAJOR BALL LEAGUE PRESIDENTS PREDICT CLOSE PENNANT RACES

Barnard Sees Improvement in All American League Teams But the Red Sox.

CRASH WON'T BOTHER GATE.

TAMPA, Fla., March 18—E. S. Barnard, president of the American League, and John A. Heydler, president of the National Iegague, are both optimistic that 1930 will be a good baseball year. As Barnard put it:

"The stock market crash won't hurt baseball. The majority of those who patronize baseball were not in the market."

Heydler and Barnard have been visiting some of the baseball training camps in Florida and what they have seen has convinced them that the pennant races this year will be warmly contested. They have not been travelling together, however.

Barnard, found chatting with members of the Detroit Tigers in the lobby of a Tampa hotel, predicted a "tight race" in the American League. He said:

"The A's have been strengthened. The Yanks are a little stronger in the outfield, but not in pitching, which is a vital point. Chicago is improved. St. Louis is just as good if not better. Detroit is a great deal better. Washington can't help but improve."

Ignores Red Sox

He made no mention of the lowly Boston Red Sox. Asked if he was confronted with any problems, Barnard answered negatively. He was asked how about the great Art Shires, baseball's "bad boy."

"Shires—oh, Shires is all right," replied Barnard. "He and Manager Donie Bush have had a thorough understanding. No one ever criticizes Shires' conduct on the field. When the bell rings he's in there playing ball."

Barnard said he likes "colorful" ball players. There haven't been so many colorful players in the last ten years, he declared. He said that if Shires "confines his color to legitimate channels" everything will be all right. Art's failing, according to Barnard, has been a tendency to "get into uncharted waters." Lena Blackburne, Art's manager of last year, might amend that statement to "charged waters."

Asked how he and Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis were hitting it up, Barnard replied: "O.K. I disagree with him occasionally but I agree with him more than half the time."

Heydler Well Pleased

Heydler passed through Tampa by automobile with a party of friends after having visited the camps of the Cincinnati Reds at Orlando and the Phillies at Winter Haven.

The National League president was greatly impressed with the batting "punch" acquired by the Reds through the acquisition of Bob Meusel and Harry Heilmann, two sluggers obtained from the American League.

Heydler regards the Phillies as one of the most dangerous clubs in the National League becaus of its tremendous hitting power. He is pleased that the internal strife on the Brooklyn club has been smoothed out.

CANADIAN CLUB HEARS C. T. YOUNG

Advancement of Canada is Illustrated By C.N.R. Superintendent.

PICTURES GLOWING FUTURE.

The dry bones of statistics that have to do with development of natural resources, a subject that might be considered alien to feminine ears, were made very interesting by the mode of their handling, when Cyril T. Young, F.R.G.S., Superintendent of Development for the Canadian National Railways, addressed the Women's Canadian Club at a meeting held yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of the Public Library. Mr. Young's manner of address was so friendly, his figures were outlined in so interesting a fashion and the facts that he presented were clothed in such attractive form, that his hearers listened with keen appreciation of what he had to say.

Mr. Young's address, illustrated by the use of a large map and charts showing the advancement of Canada in various ways, was a repetition of the talk given by him yesterday noon at the luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club, a full account of which appeared in last night's issue. It dealt with the necessity of developing the natural resources of the Dominion, with especial emphasis laid on the mineral wealth of the land, and the advantages to be derived from the furtherance of the development of "white coal," or electric power.

Mr. Young was not overly enthusiastic over the question of immigration and thought that the interest of capital in the resources of the land was of more consequence than the bringing in of a foreign element that meant additional tax on the bread line and possibly conditions such as obtain in Chicago at the present time.

"I was at North Bay on one occasion" he said, "when a train load of Galicians came in. I understand quite well now why the Apostle Paul always wrote to these people instead of going to visit them."

One point of interest brought out by the speaker was the fact that the insistence of medical men and other health authorities on the benefits to be derived from the eating of brown bread and bread made from whole wheat, and also the present-day fad among women to diet and be thin, was to a great extent responsible for the decline in the demand for wheat that is required in the manufacture of white bread, and, therefore, had a great influence on the sale of Canadian-grown wheat.

The speaker concluded with a glowing word picture of the future of a Canada with all her natural resources developed to their limit. He was introduced by the president of the Society, Miss Margaret Hamilton, who also spoke of the great interest in the address, at its close.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE MARCH WIND.

"Whee-e-e-e-e!" whistled the March wind as it blew around the corner of Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow. "Whee-e-e-e—!What fun I'm going to have!"

With that the March wind slipped beneath some last year's leaves, lying in a pile under a tree, and away the old leaves were blown as if an airship had scattered them.

"My! How strong I am!" howled the March wind.

Uncle Wiggily hopped out of his bungalow to go look for an adventure. The rabbit gentleman had put on his tall, silk hat, though it was rather early in the morning for being so stylish. And as soon as the March wind saw the rabbit's hat it howled:

"Watch me blow it off!"

Away Uncle Wiggily's hat went sailing! Mr. Longears put up his paws to grasp it, but was too late. Up in the air his hat blew and then down to the ground, where it bounced along like a football trying to make a touchdown all by itself.

"Flippsy floppsy!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "I don't want to lose my hat!" So he began to run after it as fas as he could hop.

"Where's the fire?" grunted Mr. Twistytail, the fat, pig gentleman, as he hurried out of his house.

"There isn't any fire that I know of, unless it is in Nurse Jane's kitchen stove,' answered Mr. Longears. "Ha! Ha!"

"Then, why are you running?" asked the pig.

"To catch my hat!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "The March wind blew it off and I am chasing it! See it bouncing along!"

"Well, of all things!" cried Mr. Twistytail, who was quite old-fashioned. "That March wind is very fresh to blow your hat off that way. Why don't you do something about it!"

"I am doing something," said Uncle Wiggily.

"I am doing something," said Uncle Wiggily. "I am running after my hat as fast as I can run!" and he hopped along some more.

"No, I mean why don't you do something about the fresh March wind blowing off your hat?" asked the pig gentleman. "Tell a Police Dog or something like that."

"What good would it do?" asked Mr. Longears. "Nobody can change the wind and in March it always comes fresh and strong to blow away the last of winter and bring spring and summer. I rather like it!"

"Well, if the March wind blew my hat off," grunted Mr. Twistytail, "I'd get angry and I'd do something!" And just then the March wind blew the pig gentleman's cap off his head and he was so surprised that he didn't know what to do or what to say, so he began to run after his cap, Mr. Twistytail did, just as Uncle Wiggily was running after his hat.

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" laughed the March wind. "Whee-e-e-e-e! How strong I am!" Then it bent over tall trees until they nearly touched the ground.

But at last Uncle Wiggily caught his hat, for the March wind stopped blowing for a little while, and the pig gentleman caught up to his cap. Both friends covered their heads and walked along for a little way together. Mr. Twistytail was quite angry at the March wind, but Uncle Wiggily only laughed. And the pig said:

"I'm going to look for the Police Dog and have that fresh wind arrested. I'm not going to be fooled with that way."

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" howled the March wind.

And just then, out from where he was shuffling around in the woods after his long, winter sleep, came a great, big, black, bushy bear.

"Wuff! Wuff!" growled the bear. "If there are two things I am fond of it is rabbit and pig! Oh, what a fine feast I am going to have. And how hungry I am after my long sleep!"

In another moment the bear might have caught Uncle Wiggily and the pig gentleman in his claws. But just then the March wind, feeling sorry for the two friends, blew a strong blast. The March wind blew the long, shaggy hair of the bear into his eyes so he couldn't see for a moment and then Uncle Wiggily cried:

"Come on, Twisty. This is our chance to run and get away!"

Away they ran as fast as they could go, and when the March wind stopped blowing, and the bear could get the hair off his eyes, he looked and he looked and he looked, but he could see no pig nor rabbit to eat. So he had to chew on dried leaves.

"Good for you, March wind!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "You were very kind even if you did blow off our hats!"

"Yes!" grunted the pig. "I won't have you arrested after all!"

COMEDY DRAMA ABLY PRESENTED IN GRAND OPERA

Dramatic Club of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum Presents Annual St. Patrick's Day Play.

"The Heart of a Shamrock."

Actors Held Attention of Audience Which Filled Theatre to Capacity.

(By Jeanette.)

Bright and sparkling, gay with innocent fun and tuneful with Irish melodies, "The Heart of a Shamrock," a comedy drama presented in the Grand Opera House last evening by the Dramatic Club of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum, was one of the most successful and entertaining St. Patrick Day plays in the long roster of such productions which have enlivened the Lenten season for many years, on the one day, dedicated to the patron of Erin, when Lenten regulations are forgotten and all have a chance to enjoy themselves in true Irish style.

The play was amusing and entertaining from start to finish. It was in the modern fashion, with modern dialogue, situations and costuming. The actors were Irish in heart and tongue, but the action was laid in Wildcat, Colorado, and the story centered about the desire of a wild lad to tread the primrose path and the folly of a reckless girl who egged him on. However, their whims were short lived. The good sense of the elder brother, the Rev. James O'Neil, brought the boy back to the path of rectitude, and the play wound up with a triple-barrelled wedding in the offing. The reverend gentleman was compelled to sidestep amorous couples during the last portion of the drama, and there was plenty of romantic interest in the action of the piece.

The direction throughout was splendid and bore the touch of a skilled and expert hand. J. A. LeBlanc, who acted as director is to be congratulated on the spontaneous and very natural manner in which his actors carried out their individual parts. They held the attention of their audience, which filled the Big Opera House very comfortably, and they received plenty of applause for their efforts.

Fine Cast

William Collins was all that could be desired in the role of the Reverend Father James O'Neil. His deportment and acting were excellent in the part. John Madden, as his brother, Bob, the Sheriff, and "The Shamrock", was splendid and Tom Lynch made a convincing and very likeable bad egg of a youngster brother, "Laddie" who later reformed in the most satisfactory style. Frank Morocco was a junior actor of very fine appearance as Ged—the city waif adopted by the priest. The two important feminine roles were taken by Miss Minnie Allen as a winsome Irish Rose, May, while Miss Peggy Roche was a lovely bit of femininity as Joan, a ranchman's daughter, who at first spurred Laddie on to a life of crime as a member of a bandit gang, then repented and helped him to reclaim his ways.

But the honors of the piece, in a comedy way, went to Miss Stella Brady, as Mrs. Donovan, the housekeeper, and to Ed. Leonard, as Grizzly Adams—a cattleman. They were all that could be desired in a comedy pair, and their spontaneous and delightful manner of presenting their parts won them repeated applause. They were a noteworthy couple, the lady in the trim black and white of an up to date housekeeper, with spotless white apron and an Irish fashion of weeping and smiling in turn, and the gentleman in the red jacket, checked shirt and hairy chapparals of a true rancher. They had a love affair that was quite typical and entertaining, for the lady happened to be a 'lone widow" who was willing to change her state. And they sang and danced a duett in the last act that brought down the house with its lightsome comedy and deft footwork. This duet was arranged and accompanied by Miss Margaret McCabe.

The costuming throughout was in keeping with the up to date and artistic finish to the entire production and the stage setting with furniture loaned by Gerald McFadden, was splendid. The entire action of the three short acts took place in a sitting room of Father O'Neil's home.

During the second act, Miss Minnie Allen had a very pretty, sweetly-sung solo, "Smiling Irish Eyes", and between acts, a splendid program of music was rendered. It included vocal solos in very sweet voice by Mrs. J. Dwyer and Miss Geraldine Collins, the former singing "When the Angelus is Ringing in Ireland" and "Come Back to Erin." Miss Collins sang very sweetly the favorite "Danny Boy" and "Killarney." Mrs. Percy Hooper played violin solos most attractively, giving variations of "The Last Rose of Summer" and 'Cruiskeen Lawn." Little Harry and Gertrude McDonald, small brother and sister, had a splendidly-rendered violin duett of old Irish airs, with an encore in "Killarney" and accomplishments played by Miss Berenice Flynn, while little Peggy Leonard, the tiny daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Leonard, made a hit with her recitation of "Leetle Bateese" and the piping treble of the cutely funny little song that was the encore to the enthusiastic applause which greeted the performance of the bright little mite. Ed. Leonard did some nifty footwork in his stepping to a series of Irish airs, and a comic skit was put on in splendid style by Thomas Drumm, Alex Damaio, Dan O'Brien and W. Conroy.

The orchestra of St. Peter's High School, with Miss Mary Reynolds at the piano, provided interesting Irish music between acts.

At the conclusion of the play, lovely bouquets of flowers were presented to the the ladies taking part in the evening's entertainment.

The executive staff of the play consisid of William Collins as stage manager, Murt Whaley as Master of Properties, Thomas Turcotte as Advertising Manager, Miss L. Hurley as Musical Directress and J. A. LeBlanc as Director.

DIFFICULT DECISIONS By GLUYAS WILLIAMS

OSHAWA TO GAIN IN HYDRO BILL

Peterborough Not Expected to Benefit if Assets and Reserves of C.O.P.S. Are Returned.

WAIT 13TH BILL.

It is not expected here that the Peterborough Utilities Commission will benefit if the assets and reserves of the Central Ontario Power System are returned to the municipalities of Eastern Ontario, as provided for in a bill introduced into the Ontario Legislature.

Oshawa expects to gain much if this return is made, but Ross Dobbin, general manager of the local Utilities, said this morning that it was doubtful if Peterborough would get anything even if the division of the old Central Ontario System was made.

Under that system Peterborough purchased power wholesale from the Central Ontario System while the power was retailed in Oshawa, and Mr. Dobbin thought that this might be sufficient to keep this city from enjoying a share in the split.

He stated further that the change being made in the Hydro system in Eastern Ontario to put it on the same basis as in the western part of the province was also holding up Peterborough's share in the Thirteenth bill. The cities in Western Ontario have already obtained their provisions of the Thirteenth bill, but no municipality in the east has yet received it from last year. However, Mr. Dobbin stated that it would be received here and that Peterborough's share would be considerable.

FOUR SECTIONS EVENLY MATCHED

Missionary Group Has Charge of League Meeting in Petherick's Corners.

INVITATION EXTENDED.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, March 18.— (Examiner Correspondence). — The four groups of Zion League were evenly matched as to attendance on Wednesday evening when forty-five members were out. The missionary group, with Gladys Petherick as convener, was in charge of the meeting and Mary Peake acted as leader During the business session plans were made for the St. Patrick's social evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnum on Wednesday, March 19. An invitation to visit the St. John's League, Campbellford on March 24 was accepted. Arrangements for the play to be presented here by the Mount Pleasant young people on March 26 were left to Rev. Mr. MacTavish. The total proceeds will go toward the league's piano fund as the local play group intend making a visit to Mount Pleasant later in the spring.

The program for the evening was as follows: Scripture, by the leader; prayer, Mr. William Atkinson; devotional talk, Rev. F. MacTavish; reading, Mrs. Lorne Barnum; instrumental music and encore, Misses Gladys and Cora Petherick; reading, Aylmer Petherick; topic, Laura Watson. A difficult but interesting Bible contest was won by the Japanese group.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Fry on Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance.

The young people of the local dramatic club and their friends spent an enjoyable time in skating following the Friday evening practice at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Anderson.

EATON PRIZE WON BY TORONTO MAN

Harold Savage Awarded $25,000 for Best Plans of Model Ontario Home.

239 DESIGNS ENTERED

TORONTO, March 18. — Premier honors for designing the ideal Ontario home, mainly represented in a cash prize of $2,500, goes to Harold Savage, 26-year-old Toronto architect, who submitted the winning plan in the $7,000 architectural contest staged by The T. Eaton Company Limited here, official results of which have just been announced.

It is the plan of the company to erect the new residence entirely within its new College Street store building here.

In all, ten prizes were offered and of this number seven went to Toronto, two to Montreal and one to Regina.

Second prize of $1,500 was won by Forsey, Page and Steel, Toronto; third prize of $1,000, Perry and Luke, Montreal, and fourth prize of $500, Craig, Madill and Loudon, Toronto.

The following six in order of merit won prizes of $250 each: E. M. Forbes, Toronto; Harold G. Bishop, Regina; W. F. Williams, Montreal; Harold R. Watson, Toronto; C. P. Thompson, and J. B. Sutton, Toronto; Ross Brisley, Toronto.

A total of 239 designs was submitted, and it is noteworthy that practically all parts of Canada were represented. National in its scope, the competition aimed to arouse and develop a greater interest in architecture throughout the Dominion.

The contest, which was open to all practising architects, architectural draftsmen and students resident in Canada, called for plans and specifications for the erection of an ideal Ontario home, the maximum cost not exceeding $30,000.

The Board of Assessors which selected the winning designs consisted of A. H. Chapman, president, Ontario Association of Architects; Prof. E. R. Arthur, Department of Architecture, University of Toronto; Philip J. Turner, Department of Architecture, McGill University.

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up by an Examiner Reporter

EAGER TO BE UP

James Hendley, who celebrated his 108th birthday on Saturday in St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was confined in bed with slight heart trouble, is reported to be in excellent condition and will probably be allowed to return to the House of Refuge at Lakefield within a day or so if all goes well.

The old gentleman is bright and cheerful and has been kept in bed during the past week much against his wishes. He is eager to be up and around again to putter away at the chores which are given him to keep his active spirit contented. It is with difficulty that the officials of the House of Refuge have been able to restrain him in the past from setting a pace that would be injurious to his weak heart.

TO HONOR AUTHOR'S MEMORY

In honor of the 100th anniversary of the birth of the late Alexander Muir, author of one of Canada's patriotic songs, "The Maple Leaf Forever," the pupils of the city Public Schools and the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School will sing the song on the morning of April 4.

The idea was sponsored through a motion by E. F. Reid at the last Board of Education meeting. Mr. Reid points out that Mr. Muir's contribution to Canadian patriotism in composing "The Maple Leaf Forever" was great and enduring. "For years it has been sung at all public school functions and many who have now reached their three score and ten years will recall their participation in the choruses in their early years," Mr. Reid opines. "Many also will remember the inspiration they received from the author as their teacher while resident in the city of Toronto in years gone past."

INCREASE NOTED IN RELIEF BILL

First Ten Weeks of 1930 Show Increase of $127 Over 1929.

WORST IS OVER.

Unemployment in Peterborough was slightly worse this winter than in the year previous, judging by the amount of relief given out by the city.

Arthur G. Metheral, city relief officer, said to-day that the city's relief bill for the first ten weeks of this year was $127 more than for the same period in 1929. This despite the fact that the city lost eleven "customers" by reason of the Old Age Pension Act which left nearly $1,100 to be spent for other relief.

"Still from reports coming in from other cities I am firm in the opinion that Peterborough is much better off than practically any place in the province" said Mr. Metherall. "The worst of the unemployment seems to be over and there are very few distressing cases here at the present time."

ANOTHER MILE STONE PASSED

Local Business House Starts Another Year With Good Business.

ATTRACTIVE EXHIBIT.

McBride & Franks, the Charlotte street "Factory-to-Home" Furniture dealers, are this week observing the eighth anniversary of their business birth, Established on St. Patrick's Day, 1922, they have experienced seven years of ever growing prosperity, their policy of "the customer be pleased" in all things—quality, price and service—attracting to their store a large clientage from both city and country.

Their anniversary celebration is taking the shape of a sale at which they are giving customers the advantage in drastic price reductions on the newest domestic and imported furniture, rugs, lamps and housefurnishings. This is their "practical" way of expressing appreciation of that full measure of public confidence with which they have been favored since their inception as a local business house.

These are also spring opening days at McBride & Franks, who have combed the markets for the very latest creations in the correct conventional designs in housefurnishings — lovely curtains and drapes featuring that exquisite beauty and refinement, combined with utility, the modern house wife aims to achieve when refurbishing her home. Samples of these, together with two or three pieces of modern furniture, make a very pretty display window in The Examiner building, which is attracting considerable attention and favorable comment.

With their anniversary sale going strong, and the lure of their new spring merchandise showing attracting both new and old friends, McBride & Franks' store, 224 Charlotte street, is a very busy spot this week.

It is expected that close to fifty plumbing and drain inspectors from the leading cities and towns in the province will be in Peterborough on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week to attend the eleventh annual convention of the Association of Plumbing and Drain Inspectors of Ontario being held here.

A full program of entertainment and instruction has been drawn up by Arthur G. Metherall, local inspector, and the convention will be addressed by outstanding speakers, including A. E. Earl of Toronto, W. H. Riehl, city engineer of Stratford; W. H. Meadows, chief of Plumbing Division of Toronto, D. A. Hubbell, of Oshawa, and George Fitzsimons, of Toronto. The subject of these addresses will be all directed to the improvement of drainage and plumbing and the inspectors will be told of the great advances made in the past year.

Mr. Metherall has planned that the visitors shall see the city, having included an hour's drive around the city on the program. The convention will be welcomed on Thursday morning by Mayor Roland Denne and Dr. T. W. H. Young, Medical Officer of Health. At the banquet in the Empress Hotel on Friday evening the pictures of the Trent Waterway that made such an impression at the New York Motor Boat Show will be shown by Fred L. Roy.

BROKERS SEND GOV'T INCORRECT REPORTS

Lord Balfour, Great Statesman, is Dead

NOTED BRITISHER PASSES QUIETLY IN HIS 82ND YEAR

Most Famous Incident Was His Note Renouncing All England's Post War Claims.

HAD WONDERFUL MEMORY.

Whole Nation United in Expressing Regret and Paying Tribute.

WOKING, Surrey, England, March 19. (C.P.) — The Earl of Balfour, the veteran British statesman, died here at 8.45 a.m., to-day, in a room at the home of his brother, the Hon. Gerald Balfour. A window at his bedside overlooked one of the most beautiful scenes in Surrey.

The end came peacefully to the statesman, who was in his 82nd year. He had been distressingly ill for a long time with laryngitis, and came here after an improvement in his condition to convalesce. He had several setbacks however and was never able to return to his home at Whittingehame, Prestonkirk, East Lothian.

Great Parliamentarian Career.

From the time he entered Parliament in 1874, until the closing years of his life, he figured as an important factor in British politics.

He was most famous, perhaps for the so-called Balfour note in which Great Britain renounced all post war claims in continental Europe, both from her allies and Germany, beyond what was needed to pay her own debt to the United States, and by the Balfour declaration of British policy in Palestine, which set that country aside as a home for repatriated Jews.

Premier MacDonald, informed almost at once of the Earl's death, declared: "It is the end of a long, useful life and the whole nation will unite in expressing its regret and in paying its tribute"

The Earl was 81 years old last July, and he played tennis right up to that birthday. A most notable characteristic was an almost unlimited capacity to remember. He frequently astonished friends with recollections of the most trivial incidents in his long career.

Arthur James Balfour was created the first Earl of Balfour in 1922, and holds besides the title, Viscount Traprain of Whittinghame.

King Sends Regrets.

The King sent the following message to Gerald Balfour:

"The death of Lord Balfour will evoke throughout the Empire and in many other parts of the world feelings of deep sorrow which the Queen and I fully share. It is a national loss of a great statesman, the last of Queen Victoria's ministers. I shall treasure his memory as a life-long friend, a great and charming personality, a wise and trusted counsellor."

When the end came Balfour was writing the finish pages of his autobiography in which he revealed the thoughts and opinions of the scholar all the world over knew as "A. J."

The Earl of Balfour is succeeded by his brother Gerald, at whose home he died. Lord Balfour was created an Earl and Viscount Traprain after the Washington Conference in 1921 and 1922. He was also made a Knight of the Garter, but seldom afterwards appeared in public roles.

He was President of the British Academy from 1921 to 1928 but his time was given largely to his autobiography. His last State duty was attendance as Lord President of the Council at the Privy Council held last May 10, at Craigwell House, Bognor. The King then signed the document dissolving Parliament and bringing about the general election which returned Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald into power.

SLASHING ATTACK LAUNCHED UPON HON. DR. FORBES GODFREY IN CLOSING OF BUDGET DEBATE

Liberal Leader Charges Minister With Abusing His Position.

DEMANDS INVESTIGATION.

Amendment to Ontario Budget is Defeated By 18 Votes to 87.

TORONTO, Ont., March 19 (C.P.) —Ringing down the curtain on the Budget debate of the first session of the Eighteenth Legislature of Ontario, the Liberal group stole the spotlight of interest late yesterday, when W. E. N. Sinclair, its leader, charged a Government Minister, Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, with abuse of his position as head of a department and also demanded an investigation of allegations of misuse of Northern Development funds.

Answered by Premier

Coming with unexpected suddenness, the Liberal attack, in the dying hours of the debate, captured the attention of packed galleries. His attack was picked up on his conclusion by Hon. Harry C. Nixon, Progressive Leader, and answered when Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Government Leader, stated that his charge against the Northern Development Branch would be "looked into."

The Premier's closing address conveyed the announcement that "Power is coming from the St. Lawrence and that, we hope, in the near future."

Ontario is in the market for all the power it can buy at reasonable prices, whether it is generated in the Province or not, the Premier added. Power is being sold more cheaply now than it will be in 10 years and future industries of Ontario are going to be protected by the provision of power for their needs.

The Premier denounced attacks upon the Government's highway administration, flailed members who had called its taxation a direct bur-

Crash Victim Felt His Doom Was Near

ST. JOHN, N.B., March 19 (Canadian Press). — Shocked by the tragic death of Herve Simoneau, of Montreal, Canadian Airways pilot killed in the mail plane crash at North Kingston, Ont., on Tuesday, friends here express the opinion that Simoneau had a premonition of impending disaster.

He was in charge of a mail plane which made a forced landing at Riverside near here one month ago to-day, and some time after the plane landed it burst into flames and was destroyed while the pilot was ashore.

Simoneau remarked, gloomily, at that time: "This is my second mishap since the New Year. It looks as if my luck is running out."

Simoneau was well known both in St. John and Moncton, as he had been stationed at both these points for some weeks.

He added the Canadian Government was "willing to go to any expense to deepen the channel to 27 feet on its part of the river.

CHILDREN'S AID SEEKS DAMAGES

Will Co-operate With Crown in Action Against Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gould, Vanessa.

GIRL STILL IN HOSPITAL.

BRANTFORD, Ont., March 19. — (C.P.) — The Norfolk Children's Aid Society, in a statement issued to-day, said it had been agreed at a special meeting to instruct the society's solicitor to present a claim for damages against Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gould of Vanessa, regarding the Society's ward, 16-year-old Annie Matthews, "with power to commence any proceedings which he thinks possible, and that the Society co-operate to the fullest extent with the Crown in any criminal proceedings which should be taken against Mrs. Earl Gould."

Mrs. Gould is at present under arrest and awaiting trial on a charge of doing grievous bodily harm to the Matthews girl, who was placed by the Society with Mr. and Mrs. Gould March 9, 1929. Until two months ago, the statement said, the Gould home had been visited four times and found satisfactory by the Society's agents.

The girl is at present in hospital suffering from the effects of alleged maltreatment during the past two months.

GLASSEY, LIBERAL WHIP

POPE PROTESTS PERSECUTION BY SOVIET RUSSIA

Catholic Head Sings Mass of Expiation in St. Peter's Basilica.

CANADIANS PRESENT.

Large Choir Chanting Slavic Hymns Creates Impression of Throngs.

VATICAN CITY, March 19 (C.P.) —Pope Pius XI, entered St. Peter's Basilica, the largest church in Christendom, this forenoon and said a Mass of protest and expiation for the religious persecution and the anti-religious movements in Russia.

A great crowd heard him, and listened to a large choir of Russians. Orthodox Greeks and Lithuanians chant Slavic hymns. The unexpected presence of the Russian choir produced the most profound impression on the throng inside the Basilica. The regular choir, composed of Seminarians of many nations, first sang the "Miserere." Then, after a pause, the Russian choir chanted without accompaniment their hymns asking God for help after having been driven out of their own country.

The Pontiff entered St. Peter's shortly after ten a.m., and received a tremendous ovation. A score of Cardinals accompanied him.

Among the ecclesiatics present was the Archbishop William Forbes of Ottawa, Ont., accompanied by Father O'Toole. Many plain clothes men circulated around the cathedral to preclude any incident. The cathedral doors were closed after the Pope entered.

The ceremony, announced some six weeks ago, was attended by representatives of all the Slavonic races, and by people of every Catholic country. It evolved with all the elaborate ritual attendant upon a Papal Mass. The great crowd of worshippers, estimated at 70,000, gathered long before the hour set for the Pontiff's arrival, broke into frenzied cheering the minute he appeared.

TWO YOUNG BANK BANDITS CAUGHT

Eastview Police Nab One Youth Leaving City—Both Readily Confess.

LOOT RECOVERED.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 19.—(Canadian Press).—Two young men in their early twenties were arrested early this morning as the bandits who held up the Canadienne Nationale Banque in the suburb of Eastview last Saturday. The youths taken into custody gave their names as Henry Kipp, aged 21, no fixed abode and Charles Charlebois, 20, who was staying at a Cumberland street rooming house. Police said they recovered more than $6,000 of the approximate haul of $7,000.

Chief Robert Manion of the Eastview police, arrested one of the youths as he was attempting to leave town. The other was arrested at the rooming house at 3 o'clock this morning. Hidden under the bed, Chief Manion said, was a valise containing the money. The pair readily confessed to the hold-up the chief said.

WILLIAM STEWART FACES CHARGE OF ABDUCTION

Five-Year-Old Hamilton Girl Found By Police—Man Appears in Police Court.

HAMILTON, Ont., March 19 (C.P.). —William Stewart has been charged with abduction in connection with the disappearance yesterday of a five-year-old girl while she was on her way to school.

Llewellyn Dandie reported the child known as Betty Dandie, missing yesterday, and a search was made for her. To-day she was found at Stewart's home and the abduction charge against him followed.

Police state that the child is Mary E. Miller, whose father gave her into the keeping of Stewart after her mother's death. Stewart being her uncle by marriage. Some time later Stewart gave the child to Mr. Dandie. Her father, who was living in the States, recently learned of this and is said to have come here and remonstrated with Stewart, as a result of which he is alleged to have taken her to his home yesterday.

Unrepresented by counsel, Mr. Stewart entered a plea of guilty to the abduction charge when arraigned by Magistrate Burbidge to-day. He was remanded until Thursday.

Four Members Vote For Divorce Motion

Of the six members from this district in the House of Commons four voted yesterday for the motion of William Irvine (U.F.A., Wetaskiquin) to place back on the order paper for second reading the bill to provide a divorce court in the Province of Ontario, one against it, and the other, Dr. Alexander T. Embury, Hastings, Peterborough, did not vote.

E. A. Peck, Peterborough West, voted against the moton, and the other four, T. H. Stinson, Victoria, W. E. Tummon, Hastings South, Fred W. Bowen, Durham, and M. E. Maybee, Northumberland, for the motion.

BREAK BETWEEN BRITAIN AND U. S. FLATLY DENIED

British Are Dealing With French and Italian Delegates in London Only.

LONDON, March 19 (By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—France and Italy still remain deadlocked at the Naval Conference. Conversations and negotiatons so far, it is intimated, have definitely failed to produce any solution of their problem, and no real step towards agreement is now expected until the return to London on Saturday of M. Tardieu, French Premier and delegation chief.

Meanwhile the air is filled again with rumors of imminent breakdown.

Denies Statements

To-day's communications from the conference were largely concerned with denials. An official British spokesman qualified as "absolutely and gratuitously untrue," the story printed in London that Prime Minister Macdonald had taken Colonel Stimson, the American delegation head, to task for giving a misleading impression about the negotiations between the United States and Japan. The British also describe as incorrect a statement published in Paris today that Mr. Macdonald was using the British Ambassador at Rome as a medium of parley with Mussolini.

"We are dealing with the French and Italian delegations in London, and nowhere else," said the British spokesman.

The Franco-Italian deadlock arises from the Italian claim to naval parity with France and their refusal to submit the figures of Italy's program apart from parity figures.

Most of the overseas delegates are making tentative arrangements to sail about the middle of April.

BRITISH HOUSES RECESS IN HONOR TO LORD BALFOUR

Premier MacDonald Moves Adjournment When Commons Assembles For Day's Work.

LORDS ALSO ADJOURN.

Tributes Will Be Paid By Leaders of All Parties in House of Commons.

LONDON, March 19 (C.P.) — The House of Commons sat for two minute sto-day and then adjourned out of respect for the memory of Lord Balfour.

The adjournment was moved by Premier Macdonald.

The Premier said he was sure the whole House would grieve to know that Lord Balfour had died this morning.

"I feel certain the House will wish to pay its respect to him and to do homage to his memory by adjourning at once," said Mr. Macdonald. "Tomorrow I shall take steps to allow expression of the tributes we would like to pay from all side of the House to his memory."

Former Premier Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin said that he merely wished to say on this occasion: "I am convinced that the Prime Minister has moved a resolution which will be in accord with the sentiments and feelings of the whole House."

Sir Herbert Samuel, on behalf of the Liberals, expressed the desire to associate himself with Mr. Macdonald's motion.

The Speaker then put the motion which was carried and the House rose after sitting only two minutes. There was an unusually large attendance at the time.

The House of Lords also adjourned immediately after its assembly as a token of affection and respect for Lord Balfour.

Chamberlain Deeply Touched

Sir Austen Chamberlain said: "In Lord Balfour the nation lost the finest mind that has been given to politics in our generation. We shall not look upon his like again. To me he was ever the kindest of friends and the most delightful of companions. I owe him much."

Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill paid the following tribute: "I have sustained a very keen personal loss, because I have known Lord Balfour since I was a child and always have been treated by him, in thirty years of political life, with extereme kindness.

"Through all the vicissitudes of politics the friendship with which I was honored continued. My admiration for him and delight in his company cannot be expressed. This is no time to attempt any measurement of his great career. It is deeply imprinted in the vital inner history of the British Empire during the last fifty years.

RANGOON, BURMA, March 19.—(C.P.)—More than 100 persons were injured to-day at a disturbance outside the courtroom wherein J. N. Sengupta, mayor of Calcutta, was being tried for sedition growing out of utterances made in support of Mahatma Gandhi's campaign of civil disobedience.

Thirty police were among those injured. The crowd outside the courtroom threw brick-bats at the police and the military was requisitioned to disperse them.

One prominent Indian who was sent outside the court to try to pacify the crowd was injured. It was understood the trouble arose when an Indian leading a procession struck a policeman.

GREAT SPANIARD IS BURIED

MADRID, March 19. (C.P.) Spain's "Benevolent Dictator" as former Premier Primo de Rivera was often called, was buried in a modest grave in the family plot at San Isidro cemetery to-day with the highest of funeral honors that King Alfonso and the Berenguer Government could give.

France will entertain nearly 1,500,000 foreign visitors this year, according to estimates.

HAMILTON, Ont., March 19 (C.P.)—The prayer for forgiveness that Father Pasichnyk offered for Sam Melnick is going to be answered by Mr. Ballard and myself," said Magistrate Burbide, after hearing the evidence in the charges of disturbing a religious meeting and offering violence to the officating clergymen which the Priest of Holy Ghost Catholic Church laid again Sam Melnick, a member of the congregation, as the result of the disturbance on Sunday morning last.

He fined Melnick $10 on the former charge and dismissed the latter charge.

BUDGET BEFORE EASTER

Inspector Makes Discovery While Checking Returns

J. T. White, K.C., Bares Conditions Regarding Standard Stock and Mining Exchange Before Public Accounts Committee of Legislature.

CLAIMS IT WOULD TAKE 100,000 MEN TO AUDIT ALL RETURNS FROM EXCHANGE TRANSACTIONS

Forced to Rely Largely on Honesty of Brokers in the Matter—Sinclair Barred From Placing in the Records One of Weekly Returns Made.

TORONTO, March 19. (C.P.)—That some brokers on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange in Toronto have made imperfect transfer tax returns to the Ontario Government, was disclosed to-day before the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature. J. T. White, K.C., Controller of Revenue, said that such conditions had been disclosed through inspectors working under him. It would take 100,000 men to audit properly all the returns of every transaction on Ontario exchanges, he said, adding that he was forced to rely largely on the honesty of the brokers for the tax returns.

Sinclair's Request Barred.

W. E. N. Sinclair, K. C., Liberal leader, at whose instance the collection of the stock transfer tax was investigated by the committee, was barred from having Mr. White say when and what informatoin had been transferred to the Attorney-General's Departmnt of irregularities on the part of the brokers. On the ruling of Hon. W. D. Black, the chairman, the committee split on party lines. Mr. Sinclair also was barred from placing in the records one of the weekly returns made by the exchange.

The committee after hearing Mr. White's evidence, adjourned until Monday.

MEMBER ISSUES TAUNT TO FIGHT

W. Tremblay, in Quebec Legislature, Objects to Chairman's Ruling.

"ALL TOO COWARDLY."

QUEBEC, March 19. (C.P.)—Called to order in the Quebec Legislature last night, William Tremblay, Conservative member for Maisonneuve, objected to the chairman's ruling and challenged the members, any one or all, to come forward and fight him. When they ignored the challenge, he said they were too cowardly.

Chairman Vautin, presiding when the House was in committee of the whole, had asked Mr. Tremblay to keep the clause of the Government's co-operatives bill under discussion when the member for Maisonneuve was speaking. Previously he had been called to order twice for remarks considered objectionable by the chairman.

"For too long you have tried to crush us" Mr. Tremblay said, addressing the chairman, "because of your great majority in this House."

There were cries of "order, order."

Mr. Tremblay finally sat down and there was silence for a few minutes before the House resumed the discussion.

LONDON EX-MAYOR BEATEN IN $10,000 LIBEL ACTION

LONDON, March 19. (C.P.)—The Wenige-Judd libel action ended this afternoon with a unanimous verdict for the defendant which dismissed the action brought by George A. Wenige, ex-mayor of London against Crown Attorney Albert Judd of Middlesex. Mr. Wenige had asked $10,000 damages. Costs will go against the plaintiff. The jury considered its verdict for three hours.

This is the third trial of the action brought by George A. Wenige, ex-Mayor of London, against Crown Attorney Albert Judd of Middlesex.

The action arises from a report the Crown made on an investigation of charges made by Mr. Wenige concerning alleged irregularities on the L. and P. S. Railway.

TORIES DEFEATED ON TRADE TREATY

Sub-amendment Commits Administration to Make New Pact With New Zealand.

VOTE WAS 95 TO 57.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 19. (C.P.) — Culminating a day full of interesting action, the House of Commons last night carried the government New Zealand trade treaty sub-amendment by a vote of 95 to 57, and negatived the Conservative amendment which forthwith would have had Canada sever existing trade arrangements with New Zealand.

The Government's sub-amendment, as last night approved in the House, commits the administration to the abrogation as soon as possible of present trade arrangements with New Zealand, and also the negotiating of a new treaty. Communications to that end have already been made with the New Zealand government.

The main protest against the present trade arrangement as voiced by the Conservatives in this long-drawn-out debate, has been the alleged great influx of butter from the antipodes to the injury of the Canadian dairy industry.

Liberals and Conservatives massed solidly against each other in last night's division but the Progressives and Laborites with the exception of Herbert P. Adshead (Labor Calgary) did not vote. Robert Gardiner, their leader, gave as the group's reason that they had been previously informed that such a sub-amendment as Pierre J. Casgrain moved for the government was not in order.

DR. H. H. TORY RE-ELECTED

OTTAWA, Ont., March 19. (C.P.) — Re-election of Dr. H. M. Tory, President of the National Research Council as President and approval of plans for placing the Society on a sound financial basis, featured the concluding session of eight annual meetings of the League of Nations in Canada, here yesterday.

Audience Cheers as Actor is Stabbed

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 19.—(C.P.).—An audience of 400 persons in a Bronx theatre thundered its approval as the curtain was rung down on the climax of a Chinese drama last night.

In a fierce struggle between two male members of the cast, Lester Paul, in the role of desperado of "The Love Shu Shong," dramatically thrust a knife toward Sheldon Oliver, 26.

Acting his part, Oliver sought to intercept the lunge. Failing, he received a serious wound in the left side, as a real knife had been substituted for the rubber one that could not be found. Oliver was removed to Morrisania Hospital, where his condition was said to be serious.

DIVORCE BILL IS ENDANGERED AS BLOCKADE OPENS

Commons With Vote of 104 to 87 Reinstate Measure on Order Paper.

McMillan Opens Opposition.

Repeated "Talking Out" or Deluge of Anti-Divorce Opinion May Bring Failure.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 19 (Canadian Press). — By a vote of 104 to 87 the House of Commons yesterday voted to reinstate on the order paper the once-defeated Ontario Divorce Court Bill. The measure takes its place at the foot of the list.

Quite unexpectedly, the Divorce Court Bill, thus reinstated, was called for second reading near the commencement of private bills hour last night. A move to kill it was instantly instituted by Thomas McMillan (Liberal, Huron South), who has consistently opposed the Ontario Divorce Court. His substitution motion, however, was talked out past 9 o'clock, but must first be disposed of before the original Bill, reposing at the foot of the list, can be voted upon.

Seconded by Dr. Walter A. Hall (Liberal, South Bruce), Mr. McMillan moved to strike out the resolution for second reading of the Woodsworth Bill and substitute the following: "That this House views with alarm the spread and increase of divorce and divorce applications in Canada, and, instead of providing additional means of obtaining divorce, the House should develop the encouragement and carrying on of a campaign of education for the purpose of impressing upon the hearts and the minds of the Canadian people the sacredness of the matrimonial tie and the permanent stability of the Canadian home."

Woodsworth Bill

The bill now reinstated is the Woodsworth Bill, which would take away from Parliament the handling of Ontario's divorce cases and send them instead, to a specially constituted Ontario divorce court. It was defeated 79 to 78, last week, when an error of one in the tally caused the speaker to cast a negative vote—the first vote cast by a Canadian Speaker in half a century.

Previous to yesterday's successful move to revivify a defeated measure, the advantage taken of House rules had been attempted since 1892. In that year Dalton McCarthy moved for the reinstatement of a measure and Sir John Thompson spoke vigorously against the practice. It was William Irvine (Labor, Wetaskiwin) who had moved for the reinstatement of the Woodsworth bill, which is now back before the House as a red-hot issue in the opinion of experienced parliamentary observers, there are only two things which at this stage can effect the Woodsworth Bill's defeat—a deluge of Ontario anti-divorce opinion or repeated "talking-out" of the measure during private members' hours. This last expedient would tie up all the private members' business.

DAY FELT URGE TO KILL BEFORE

Witness Stated Accused Complained of Desire While Suffering Head Pains.

WAS PERFECT HUSBAND.

THREE RIVERS, Que., March 19 (C.P.)—Andrew Day, on trial for the murder last December 16 of his wife and seven children, had been possessed some years ago of an urge to destroy his family, according to the evidence given yesterday by Alfred Cloutier, a fellow-worker of the accused in a local paper mill. Cloutier said that some time before the murders, Day had told him confidentially that when he lived in East Angus, Que., he had suffered from the homicidal obsession accompanied by violent pains in his head. He had expressed pleasure that these symptoms had disappeared, the witness testified.

Several witnesses were heard today and all were questioned as to Day's habits and mannerisms. The accused was described as a perfect husband and father, but numerous odd actions were described by his fellow-workers in the paper mill.

Liberals Make Reservation to Vote Way They Wish in Later Stages.

LONDON, Eng., March 19, (C.P.)—The MacDonald Labor Government is assured of a lease of life until the Naval Conference is finished at least. This is the interpretation by well-informed circles of the decision of the Liberal parliamentary party to-day to abstain from voting in the critical division over the coal bill Parliament on Thursday night.

Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George urged the members of his party not to embarrass the Government at the present critical stage of the Naval Conference and the members unanimously supported this. But the Liberals made the reservation that this decision does not prejudice their right to vote in whatever way they think best during the later stages of the bill.

JOHN FREEMAN IS SENT TO JAIL

Given Two Months For Assaulting Officer and Evading Arrest.

ARRESTED AT BOBCAYGEON.

LINDSAY March 19.—John Freeman, 23, of Bobcaygeon, will not be able to get married next month as he had planned for some time, because he was sent to jail yesterday morning for two months for biting High County Constable Wetherall's leg in Bobcaygeon Monday night. The charge against him read, "assaulting an officer with itnent to evade arrest," and to this he pleaded guilty and asked to be tried by Magistrate G. A. Jordan.

Freeman has been convicted of reckless driving and fighting, and since December has evaded arrest on charges of causing a disturbance and refusing to pay his poll tax. He refused summonses and failed to appear in court.

Officers say that he has been boasting that the police could not "take" him and that that was likely the reason he tried to escape them. He is a heavily built young man, although he comes but little above Constable Wetherall's shoulder. When Constables Wetherall and Porter tried to arrest him Monday night, he tried to get away but succeeded only in causing them a little discomfort by scratching and biting. They put the handcuffs on him and put him in the car, and after they got away from Bobcaygeon he was quiet when they took the shackles off his wrists.

Freeman was arrested at a St. Patrick's dance half an hour after midnight.

BOSS RACKETEER STAYS IN HIDING

Rumors From Baltimore Claim He Was Seen Boarding Miami Ship.

MOTHER'S HOME WATCHED.

NEW YORK, March 19.— Despite the viligance of many persons, including interested detectives, "Scarface" Al Capone, Chicago's boss racketeer, had succeeded up to last night in remaining hidden in the obscurity into which he vanished upon his release from prison Monday afternoon in Philadelphia.

There was one definite report of his whereabouts. Baltimore reported two men resembling Capone and his bodyguard, Frankie Cline, who was released from prison at the same time, boarded the steamship Dorchester, bound for Jacksonville and Miami, in that city this afternoon, but left the ship before sailing time.

The principal watch centred at the home of his mother, in Chicago, and in Dad county, Florida, in the vicinity of Capane's winter home, near Miami.

A reception committee consisting of ten detectives vainly awaited the underworld king in Chicago, but for their pains they had only the satisfaction of questioning a number of callers at Mrs. Capone's home.

Ralph Capone, brother of "Scarface" is in Cicero, the Chicago suburb, and is rumored to have provided a quiet hiding place there for the latter until interest in his whereabouts decreases.

TWO TORONTO YOUTHS ARRESTED IN BELLEVILLE

BELLEVILLE, March 19—After an exciting chase through the principal streets of the city early yesterday, Constable Issard arrested Sidney Godfrey 17, and John Rennie, 16, both of Toronto, in charge of a stolen car from Kingston.

The arrest was effected after a telephone call had been received from the chief of police at Deseronto, who stated that the men had broken into a gas station and had taken several gallons of gas without paying. The boys will be taken to Deseronto for trial and then turned over to Kingston authorities for car theft trial.

The boys also admitted in a statement to the Belleville police they stole a car on Saturday and for this offence they will be tried in Toronto.

TWO PILOTS END 500 MILE MUSH

J. D. Vance and Brian S. Blasdale, Marooned at Baker Lake Last Fall, Both Safe.

HAD INDIAN GUIDES.

CHURCHILL, Man., March 19.—(C.P.)—J. D. Vance, pilot for the Northern Aerial Mineral Explorations Limited, and his mechanic, Brian S. Blasdale, who were marooned in the far north many months ago, reached Churchill yesterday.

They mushed 500 miles from Baker Lake, aerial station, and were accompanied from Chesterfield Inlet by "Bob" Hicks, of the Northern Aerial Exploitation Company. The airmen were guided by two Indians, and had a dog train of three teams.

Despite the arduous tramp to the bay port the airmen and their companions were in excellent health. With train service suspended to Churchill for the winter the men still have a "walk" of more than 100 miles to reach mile 327, where they can board a train for The Pas.

EXCHANGE SEATS MAY NOT BE SOLD

Stobie and Hubb's Holdings Must Remain Untouched Till March 20.

SALE WOULD MEAN LOSSES.

TORONTO, Ont., March 18. (C.P) W. J. Reilly, registrar in bankruptcy at Osgoode Hall, to-day issued an order restraining officers of the Standard Mining Exchange from selling or otherwise disposing of the exchange seats held in the name of Malcolm C. Stobie and Alan C. Hubbs, until March 20, 1930. The basis for the order was the disputation by N. L. Martin, trustee of the defunct brokerage firm of Stobie Forlong, Limited, of claims of $51,544 filed against the estate by other members of the exchange.

SOLLOWAY, MILLS CASE WILL CONTINUE TO-DAY

Who Probed Company's Being Cross-examined.

CALGARY, Alta., March 19 (Canadian Press). — Preliminary hearing of Isaac W. C. Solloway and Harvey W. Mills, president and vice-president, respectively, of the Dominion-wide brokerage firm of Solloway-Mills & Company, Limited, will continue to-day with Kenneth Morrison, chartered accountant, still on the stand.

The heads of the brokerage firm faces five charges of fraud-conspiracy, and "bucketing," launched by the Alberta Government.

Mr. Morrison, employed by the Provincial Attorney-General Department, to conduct an investigation into the brokerage company's books, was under cross-examinaton of A. A. McGillivray, K.C., senior defence counsel, when adjournment was taken until this morning. He has been on the stand since the opening of the hearing on Monday morning.

QUEEN MARIE ABANDONS TRIP

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 19. (C.P.)—A telegram received yesterday from Palestine stated that Queen Marie of Rumania had abandoned her projected tour of the Holy Land on learning that the British Government considered that the present disturbed situation there was unfavorable for such a visit.

No British Officer Shot for Cowardice

LONDON, Eng., March 18. (C.P.) Rt. Hon. Tom Shaw, secretary of state for war, told a questioner in the House of Commons to-day that no British officer was shot for cowardice during the Great War.

He added, however, that one officer was shot for murder and desertion, and two others for desertion.

OMEMEE BRANCH HOLDS MEETING

Letter Regarding Erection of Amusements on School-House Grounds.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

OMEMEE, March 19.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The monthly meeting of the local branch of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. T. E. MacPherson on Wednesday evening with a splendid attendance of members and visitors. Mrs. Widdis, the president, conducted the meeting which opened with the Ode followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. The roll-call was answered by house cleaning hints and many new suggestions were exchanged.

Following the minutes of the previous meeting read by the secretary, Mrs. H. McGinness, several letters of appreciation were read from members who had been remembered with fruit or flowers during illness.

An invitation from the caretaker of the Omemee school, to the members to visit the school any time out of school hours was received and if the society saw fit to place any amusements on the school grounds, he would gladly give his services to erect same. Mrs. J. Palmer and Mrs. T. E. MacPherson were appointed a committee to interview the school board regarding this matter.

Miss Lila Parsons rendered a vocal solo entitled, "The Isle That's Crowned With Shamrock," in her usual good style.

Mrs. Walker of Coldwater, gave an address on the Institute motto "For Home and County", which was deeply appreciated.

A piano solo by Miss Lillian Race followed, after which a question drawer conducted by Mrs. J. Palmer was an interesting and educational feature on the program.

Community singing was indulged in after which much amusement resulted from a potato race, in which Mrs. Walker carried off the prize, a pair of salt and pepper shakers.

The president reminded all of the First Aid and Home Nursing courses which begins on Monday evening March 17th, and continues each evening for two weeks. The class is being held at the home of Mrs. Robert Wilson.

The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. C. Davis, Mrs. R. Wilson and Mrs. H. McPhee and a social hour was enjoyed.

The fire-engine and local brigade responded to a hurried call on Friday evening to the home of Mr. George English. On their arrival it was found to be a false alarm rung in by a neighbour who, it is reported, was misled by the reflection of the northern lights, which shone on the window panes.

The first thunder and lightning storm of the season occurred on Sunday evening. The storm was of some duration but was not severe in the early evening. A similar storm came up later but no damage resulted.

Mr. George Wilson has opened up a barber shop in the shop formerly occupied by Mr. D. Deyell, adjoining his residence.

RAINY LAKE PARK ANOTHER STEP UP

Is Sent to House With Public Lands Committee's Approval.

AMENDMENT TO COME.

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 19. — (C.P.) — The Nolan Bill to create a national park of the Rainy Lake watershed, was sent to the House today with the approval of its public lands committee.

As it came to the House the measure was minus an amendment designed to protect developments proposed by the Minnesota Light and Power Company on Cabro and Bald Eagle Lakes. The measure purposes to preserve existing lake levels for scenic beauty.

Representative Nolan, Republican, Minnesota, author of the bill, made the report, recommending it to the House with endorsements from the State, Interior and Agricultural Departments, from Conservation Societies, and from world war veterans organizations of the United States and Canada.

NEW PORTFOLIO TO BE CREATED

Premier Believes Ross Commission May Mean Provincial Welfare Department.

ESTABLISHED THIS YEAR.

TORONTO, Ont., March 19 (C.P.).—Statements by Premier G. H. Ferguson during the budget debate in the Legislature yesterday in connection with the present Royal Commission enquiry, headed by P. D. Ross, Ottawa, are believed to foreshadow the establishment at the Parliament Buildings some time this year of an entirely new department of "Provincial Welfare."

The new portfolio is likely, it is understood, to be entrusted to a man at present outside the Cabinet ranks.

The Ross Commission, which is now making an exhaustive survey of hospitals and their administrative systems of welfare institutions, may, said Premier Ferguson in the House, extend its investigations to the British Isles. Their report, he stated, would not be immediately available, but by the next session of the House the Government would be in a position, he hoped, to effect—either by legislation or regulation—a policy that would be of far-reaching benefit to welfare work and projects in general.

NATURAL RELIEF FOR MOST PREVALENT DISEASE

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Eaten by Millions Daily to Prevent Constipation and Anemia

Constipation has been truly described as the curse of modern life. Its poisons cause countless ills—headaches, listlessness, indigestion—often serious disease.

Yet it can be relieved and prevented in an easy, pleasant, natural way. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, eaten daily, is guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. It adds the roughage to your diet that sweeps the system clean of all waste and insures regular elimination.

This delicious ready-to-eat cereal also helps prevent and relieve anemia. Scientific research shows that it is rich in iron—nearly all of which is absorbed, building red blood and bringing the glorious color of health to the complexion.

Isn't it much wiser to relieve constipation with this healthful cereal than to take pills and drugs that only give temporary help and are often dangerous?

Be sure to add Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to any reducing diet. Doctors recommend it.

If you wish to bid goodbye forever to constipation and its companion physical troubles, just begin eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Your grocer has it. It is served everywhere—in restaurants, hotels and dining-cars. With cream or milk is one popular way to eat it. When sprinkled over cereals or soups, it adds flavor, as in cooked foods. Soak it in fruit juice. Whatever the style of eating, it is equally effective. In the red-and-green package—made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

MINERAL PRODUCTION.

Cyril T. Young, director of development for the Canadian National Railways, in his address before the local Rotary Club on Monday stressed the importance of the mining industry as a contribution to Canada's national wealth, placing it next in importance to the water power possibilities of the Dominion.

In this connection it is interesting to note that for the fourth consecutive year Canada in 1929 established a new high record in the value of her mining production, the total of $307,146,494 being returned, which was a gain of nearly twelve per cent. over the production of 1928.

Not only was the aggregate higher, but, according to official figures, new records were also set in the production of asbestos, cement, clay products, copper, gold, lime, nickel, petroleum, salt, stone and zinc.

The greatest gain was registered in the metal group with a total value of $153,194,303, as compared with $132,012,454 the year before, but fuels, non-metallics and structural materials all showed a gratifying increase.

Other interesting figures are that in 1928, the latest year for which world statistics are available, Canada produced 94 per cent. of the world's nickel, 69 per cent. of the world's asbestos, 55 per cent. of the world's cobalt, 9.6 per cent. of the world's gold and 5 per cent. of the world's copper.

These encouraging figures are proof that Mr. Young was not indulging in any guess work when he predicted that mining would play a great part in Canada's future prosperity.

A GOOD CHOICE.

The general opinion will be that the directors of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce have made no mistake in electing James Dutton for the third year in succession as president of the organization.

From Mr. Dutton the Chamber of Commerce has had virile and effective leadership during the past two years, and to that leadership may be credited the very successful service rendered to the community during his term of office.

Mr. Dutton has ideas and the energy and ability to put them over, and he has thrown himself into the responsible duties of heading the Chamber of Commerce with an enthusiasm that would not be denied.

Particularly gratifying has been the entente established between the Chamber of Commerce and the City Council, the harmonious relationship established in recent years being a very satisfactory development that is bound to work for community betterment.

There is a definite place for both organizations, the Chamber to make recommendations which it considers of value in solving municipal problems and in effecting improvements, and the Council, which is the executive body, to decide what action shall be taken.

Under Mr. Dutton's leadership the local Chamber of Commerce should have a most successful and useful year.

OLD CITIZENS GONE.

One by one the old guard of Peterborough citizenship falls as death's call creates new gaps in the rapidly thinning ranks.

Within the past few days the community has suffered a double loss in the passing of two citizens whose names were household ones.

On Sunday Harry C. Stabler, widely known as a building contractor, a church worker, a humanitarian and a veteran member of the Central Charity Board, answered the summons, and yesterday K. Gustave Lech, one of the city's oldest business men and a resident of Peterborough for nearly seventy years, also joined the great majority.

Over a period of many years these useful citizens had played a prominent part on the stage of community activity and endeavor; their influence had been felt in many circles and always for the public good.

When such men who for a space of well over half a century have moved and had their being in the thick of the community life around them pass on their going leaves their home city the poorer and their fellow-citizens depressed with a deep sense of personal loss.

The world keeps moving, new citizens come in to fill the gaps, but the centre that has had the benefit of years of association with the old guard realizes that something fine, something valuable, has gone forever.

IT IS UP TO ONTARIO.

The attempt of William Irvine, U.F.A. member for Wetaskawin, to have the Woodsworth bill to provide a divorce court bill for Ontario put back on the order paper for another second reading succeeded yesterday, and by a vote of 104 to 87 the Commons paved the way for another discussion on this most controversial question during the present session.

The question of whether or not Ontario will emerge from the argument with a divorce court depends almost entirely upon the Ontario members of Parliament and upon the people of Ontario.

The Western members, with divorce courts already functioning in their Provinces, will support the establishment of similar legal machinery in Ontario for the reason that Parliament would thereby be relieved of the work and inconvenience of deciding divorce applications; the Quebec members will just as surely oppose the Woodsworth proposal on religious grounds.

The members from Ontario will hold the balance of power between these two schools of opinion, and the issue will hinge upon how the representatives from this Province vote.

If the people of Ontario are opposed to making divorces easier to secure they had better lose no time in letting their parliamentary representatives know their views.

Unless public opinion in that regard makes itself heard with a vengeance in the near future there is grave danger that Ontario will find itself with a divorce court on its hands.

Mr. Ford says he will spend a hundred million dollars to fit students for life after they leave college. That will buy a lot of garters and hats.—Judge.

THE SAP IS RUNNING.

In the East they know that spring is here, because the sap is running in the maple trees. Quebec, Eastern Ontario, New Brunswick and the bordering States comprise the world's greatest maple sugar area. Last year the total value of maple sugar and maple syrup produced in Canada was over six millions of dollars, most of which went to increase the income of farmers who tap their trees as a side-line. The sugar output was 11,698,925 pounds, while over two million gallons of syrup was put on the market.

During the past few years there has been a great improvement in the process of making the sugar and syrup. The old open sugar kettle has been replaced by modern covered pails and rapid evaporators, and the quality of the product has been raised in consequence. Yet sugar making has not lost all its romance with the coming of modern methods. There is plenty of wholesome gaiety and fun, especially in French Canada, when young and old gather for the "sugaring off." The tramp in the woods through the glorious spring air, the tantalizing aroma from the boiling sap, and the tasting of the syrup at the point of solidification, all these still bring joy to the hearts of thousands. And Dan Cupid, we may suppose, is not entirely inactive as Pierre and Rose-Marie inexplicably become detached from the rest of the party on the homeward journey.

Before the coming of the white man, the Indians had discovered the secret of tapping the maple trees, so that the making of maple sugar and syrup is as old as the known history of the land. The excellence of these products from the point of view of their value as food is well known, but the average Canadian is not thinking of vitamins or proteins when he partakes of them. He is just having a good time.—Brantford Expositor.

THE PRODUCTION OF WHEAT.

Fair warning has been given American producers by Chairman Legge, of the United States Farm Board, that they must raise less wheat if they expect prices to be maintained at a profitable level. "No other industry in the world," he said in a message to George F. Shafer, Governor of North Dakota, "blindly produces without any attention to potential market possibilities," and he added:

"Your growers will ask how they are going to get along with a less production, but if they can get more money, and we believe they can, by raising four bushels where they are now raising five, why should they destroy the market by raising the extra bushel?"

Mr. Legge told the Governor that if American farmers went ahead with maximum production on the assumption that some way would be found to take care of it on a fair price level, they were going to find themselves mistaken. The Farm Board head seems to have gone to the root of a situation which must be giving anxious thought to officials of the Canadian wheat pools, who are holding—with financial backing of the three Prairie Governments—a huge carry-over from the 1929 crop, while prices hover around the dollar mark in Winnipeg and Chicago.

Apparently it has been demonstrated that in a year when conditions are favorable the wheat-growing countries are able to produce beyond the demands of the wheat-consuming countries. Over-production is a condition which hardly can be relieved by pooled marketing if it extends beyond one season, and in Western Canada the ordinary pool resources proved unequal to the strain of carrying the unsold portion of a single crop in a falling market. To an extent low prices prove an automatic regulator of wheat acreage, but the effect marches so far behind the cause that its usefulness largely is lost. Thus sowing in the fall of 1929 for the crop of 1930 was done before it became apparent the market was sliding down to the dollar, and if there is a big crop in Canada and the United States this year the difficulties of the situation obviously will be increased dangerously. Not until 1931 will the full effect on acreage be encountered of over-production in 1929.

Displacement of man-power by machines in Western Canada has been a factor in increasing production, and this influence is bound to grow in importance. Tractors break up new land at a rate of speed which would have amazed the pioneers who worked with a team of horses and a single-furrow plow. "Combines" which cut and thresh the grain in a single operation reduce the labor bill, but at the same time encourage production by developing a new independence of imported and seasonable workers.

The solution of this momentous problem is one for the experts, but Mr. Legge's open advocacy of reduced acreage no doubt is receiving serious study in pool quarters. The present situation also would seem to indicate the vital importance of an effort to extend the consumption of wheat, particularly in the Orient, where there is a potential market almost beyond limit; and the desirability of paying more attention to diversified production on Western farms. The farmer who raises a big crop of high-grade wheat when prices are good thinks he has a gold mine, but if he has on his hands the same production at prices which barely meet his costs he is reminded forcibly of the ancient maxim concerning putting all one's eggs in a single basket.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Parliament has been discussing the question of imported eggs, but, strange to say, nobody pointed out that that was a matter for Provincial Governments to worry about.

A Thought

HAPPINESS

"Many people marvel when I tell them that I am happy," says Helen Keller, the woman who has triumphed so wonderfully over blindness and deafness. "They imagine that my limitations weigh heavily upon my spirit and chain me to the rock of despair. Yet, it seems to me, happiness has very little to do with the senses."

Happiness is mainly a matter of the mind and heart. It we make up our minds that this is a drab and purposeless universe, it will be that, and nothing else, as Miss Keller points. But if we believe that the world is ours, we shall have joy. If we believe that we are born into this world for noble ends, life takes on a new dignity for us.

What To-day Means To You

PISCES."

If March 19th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 p.m. to 9:30 a.m., from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. and from 10 p.m. to 11:15 p.m. The danger periods are from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m., and from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Astrologically, affairs appear to be in an unsettled condition on this date and little material progress is anticipated. Impulsive acts and impulsive words may cause future regret. Success for those interested in music and art.

Children born on this March 19th will be faithful to duty, adaptable to environment, loyal to friends and enthusiastic in their work. Their dispositions will be affectionate and their tastes domestic.

An exceptional memory, combined with a healthy appetite for work, and plenty of it, are the two principal factors that contribute to the success you have already attained. You are disposed to excessive energy and would be wise to seek not only physical, but mental, relaxation and rest. In this connection, you are a very severe critic of those who do not display the same untiring zeal in their work as you do in yours.

It would be a mistake for you to toil for others. If it has not already been done, you should set out on your own where, untramelled by restrictions, you can work out your own salvation. Yours is rather a venturesome nature, and you are gifted with long vision. You alway feel, no matter what you may be doing, that you are fitted for better things, and are never satisfied with conditions as they are.

You are not lacking in self-confidence, but are not conceited —aggressive, but not pugnacious. You are not naturally affectionate, but when once you have surrendered, and given your love, you are more fervent in your attachment than those who fall easier. You could, with advantage be more considerate of others' feelings and more tolerant.

THE GREENE MURDER CASE

By S. S. VAN DINE

CHAPTER 24.

"It's a mistaken idea, don't y' know, to pretend that a murderer looks like a murderer. No murderer ever does," Vance was defending his theories to Markham. "The only people who really look like murderers are quite harmless. Do you recall the mild and handsome features of Richeson of Cambridge? Yet he gave his inamorata cyanide. The fact that Armstrong was a meek and gentlemanly looking chap did not deter him from feeding death to his wife.

"Doctor Lamson, with his philanthropic eyes and his benevolent beard, was highly regarded as a humanitarian; but he administered poison rather coldbloodedly to his crippled brother-in-law. Then there was Neil Cream, who night easily have been mistaken for a deacon; and the soft-spoken and amiable Waite. * * *

"And the women! Edith Thompson admitted putting powdered glass in her husband's gruel.

"Madeline Smith certainly had a most respectable countenance. And Constance Kent was rather a beauty—a nice girl with an engaging air; yet she cut her little brother's throat in a thoroughly brutal manner. Gabrielle Bompard and Marie Boyer were anything but typical of the donna delinquente; but the one strangled her lover with the cord of her dressing gown, and the other killed her mother with a cheese knife. And what of Madame Fenayrou—?"

"Enough!" protested Markham. "Your lecture on criminal physiognomy can go over a while. Just now I'm trying to adjust my mind to the staggering inferences to be drawn from your finding of those galoshes."

A sense of horror seemed to weigh him down. "There must be some way out of this nightmare you've propounded. What member of that household could possibly have walked in on Rex Greene and shot him down in broad daylight?"

"'Pon my soul, I don't know," Vance himself was deeply affected by the sinister aspects of the case. "But some one in that house did it—some one the others don't suspect."

"That look on Julia's face, and Chester's amazed expression—that's what you mean, isn't it? They didn't suspect either. And they were horrified at the revelation—when it was too late. Yes, all those things fit in with your theory."

"But there's one thing that doesn't fit in old man." Vance gazed at the table perplexedly. "Rex died peacefully, apparently unaware of his murderer. Why wasn't there also a look of horror on his face? His eyes couldn't have been shut when the revolver was leveled at him, for he was standing, facing the intruder. It's inexplicable—mad!"

He beat a nervous tattoo on the table, his brows contracted.

"And there's another thing, Markham, that's incomprehensible about Rex's death. His door into the hall was open; but nobody upstairs heard the shot—nobody upstairs. And yet Sproot—who was downstairs, in the butler's pantry behind the dining room—heard it distinctly."

"It probably just happened that way," Markham argued, almost automatically. "Sound acts fantastically sometimes."

Vance shook his head.

"Nothing has just happened in this case. There's a terrible logic about everything—a carefully planned reason behind each detail. Nothing has been left to chance, this very systematization of the crime will eventually prove the murderer's downfall. When we can find a key to any one of the anterooms, we'll know our way into the main chamber of horrors."

At that moment Markham was summoned to the telephone. When he returned his expression was puzzled and uneasy.

"It was Swacker. Von Bion is at my office now—he has something to tell me."

"Ah! Very interestin'," commented Vance.

We drove to the District Attorney's office, and Von Bion was shown in at once.

FARM LANDS CHANGE HANDS

Several Real Estate Deals Have Been Put Through in North Monaghan.

PRESTON FARM SOLD.

Farm lands along the Provincial highway west of the city have been attracting special investment attention of late. A number of real estate deals within sight of Peterborough indicate not only present interest in this property, but also suggest a future growth in that direction.

Some of the transfers that have been reported are as follows: The Spillsbury farm of fifty acres on the south side of the highway at the top of the water-trough hill, about two miles from the city, has been sold by the Spillsbury estate to G. Westman of Michigan.

R. Patton has sold fifty acres on the north side of the highway to W. E. Stewart of Tillsonburg.

Dr. Preston has disposed of his one hundred acre farm, known as the Dobbin property, to Norman Moncrief. This farm is on the south side of the highway, immediately west of the Spillsbury estate. It extends south from the highway to the concession line that runs easterly from Scott's corners past the old town hall.

Herb. S. Routley has bought a thirty-two acre property, including bungalow, on the north side of the highway and nearer the city, from A. Chaney, and it is understood he intends to join the suburban group that is forming in that part of North Monaghan.

Another purchase reported recently involves the twenty acres owned by Mrs. W. Blewett which has been sold to Hillard Strong, 600 Harvey street.

All these properties are comparatively close to the city, and their turn over may be regarded as an evidence that the highway itself is an asset to the adjoining farm lands, especially in the suburban section.

ENLARGE SCHOOL AT HALL'S BRIDGE

Action Necessary Due to Overcrowding of Present Building.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HALL'S BRIDGE, Mar. 19. — A meeting of the ratepayers of the village of Hall's Bridge and vicinity was held in the school house, Hall's Bridge on Saturday evening last. There was a large attendance. After some discussion it was decided that owing to the overcrowded condition of the school at the present time and the likelihood that it will be crowded for some years to come, two new rooms shall be added to the school and two teachers engaged to carry on the educational work. Up to the present, one teacher has been obliged to teach more children than was really effectively possible.

"COMING TO TERMS WITH OURSELVES."
Wednesday.
"Bringing the Hidden Self to Light"

SCRIPTURE

Memory Verse: "I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto myself" (John 12:32).

Read: John 11:32-44.

MEDITATION

Jesus does not only draw men up, but He draws them out. Freudianism talks much about our buried selves. There are dark worlds within us; but there are also bright worlds there. Buried in every man is an artist and a hero, longing for self expression. The key to these hidden selves is the imagination. With unerring spiritual etiquette, the guest of our imagination calls forth to meet him that one of all our manifold selves that mos corresponds to him in rank and splen dour. Long John remembered who he was when he heard the sound of Robin Hood's horn. When Christ stands before us, the best that is in us rises and comes forth to meet him. Standing before the tomb of habit and convention in which our truest selves lie imprisoned, He calls as He did to Lazarus—"Come forth," and the best within us hears the call and answers it.

PRAYER

O Thou, who hast written Thy law in men's hearts, we thank Thee for the image of our better selves that sweetly haunts us. Stand before us that our truer, finer nature may see Thee and come forth to dwell among men. In Christ's name. Amen.

The Divorce Question.

By J. H. BURNHAM.

In my former article I stated that while I was opposed to re-marriage and therefore to divorce, it was infinitely better to have a divorce court than the present shambles of parliamentary divorce in which justice is rarely done to the wife, who, having no means, might as well give up at once. Therefore those who voted against the court or did not vote at all and did not say how they would have voted actually voted for divorce under present conditions, instead of under just and fair conditions.

But there is a question not yet referred to in parliament or the press which some of these days will require settling and why do not those opposed to divorce proceed to answer it? Marriage in Ontario is a contract arising under statue and therefore like all contracts of such a nature subject to cancellation or annulment or even rectification, by courts of law. I am not now referring to marriage under any other conditions than those of civil law. It is impossible as all statutory laws stand at present for any distinction to be made between civil laws themselves in that respect. A civil law is always open to revision by the courts or amendment by the legislature and so therefore in the civil law of marriage. The point I wish to make, then, is this: Since a civil contract is a civil contract it should be left to courts of law for treatment. Hence the propriety of a divorce court. Where people believe it necessary to receive some other sanction for marriage in addition to the civil sanction then the undoing or correction of it is another matter altogether. While marriage according to religious belief or conscience is binding so far as one's conscience binds them, no sanction is recognised, in fact no marriage is recognised by the statute or civil law but that performed by officials mentioned in that law. it is holy so far as our laws are concerned, therefore a question of civil law and what is the objection to having it and treating it so, so long as the sacramental rite is not interfered with? The present position taken by those opposed to divorce is therefore doubly illogical. Either wipe it out altogether or treat it as it should be treated, viz.: A question of law or a question of conscience whichever we choose. One or the other. But one anyhow. What is the answer to my question?

ROAD COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED

School Loan By-law Approved at Douro Council Meeting.

TAX TIME EXTENDED

DOURO, March 19.—At the meeting of Douro Council held in the Town Hall recently, when all members were present, the Reeve, R. Bolton, and Howard Quinn were appointed a committee to wait on the Minister of Highways with a view to getting fifty per cent on township road expenditure.

By-law No. 1005 was passed authorizing the reeve and treasurer to borrow $5,000 for school purposes and on motion of William Hayes and J. Maloney, the treasurer was allowed an increase in salary of $15 per year on account of extra work in payment of work done on township roads.

The collector's time for collecting balance of 1929 taxes was extended to April 1, when all unpaid taxes will be liable to collection by seizure.

The Reeve was appointed a representative from Douro Township to wait on the County Council, Suburban Area Commission and the Minister of Highways, with the object of soliciting grants towards the improvement of river road in Douro Township.

The council then adjourned to meet on Monday, May 26, at 10 a.m. as a court of revision of the assessment rolls.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

Canadian zinc producers are watching with interest the progress of the new German process for treatment of ores containing the metal. While it is understood the process has not been applied to the commercial treatment of ores in this country as yet, it has been used with success in treatment of dump rock in the United States. The new method is known as the Waelz process and is also intended for use in the extraction of lead, tin and other metals as well as zinc from ores, tailings, and especially from poor residue and slags which hitherto could not be treated to advantage. The Waelz volatilization process has been used with considerable success in Europe, it is said, with the present plants in operation treating about a million tons of raw material per year. It is claimed the actual zinc production of the Waelz plants amounts to at least 5% of the world's total production.

Granada Rouyn's new shares made their initial appearance on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange to-day, opening at $1.00 and selling up to $1.20. The old company was capitalized at $5,000,000, all of which was issued. Old shareholders were given one new share for ten old. The company is now constructing a 100 ton mill and while the treasury is understood to be exhausted, President R. G. Gamble is personally financing the work. Granada's new capital is 1,000,000 shares, with 500,000 shares remaining in the treasury.

Directors of the Metals Production Company are considering the advisability of making application to list the stock on the Standard Exchange. The company operates a producing mine in Boulder County, Colorado, about 45 miles northwest of Denver. A 150-ton capacity oil flotation mill is on the property and the mine is otherwise fully equipped. The company has already applied for listing its stock on the New York Stock Exchange.

Lowery Petroleum, one of Turner Valley's latest producers, has been producing steadily for some time, according to latest word, but Imperial Oil officials state that figures will not be made public until the end of the month. Early production always shows fluctuations and before official reports are made, a sufficient period is allowed during which more accurate results may be known. Unofficial reports of production have been running from 400 to almost 600 barrels per day. Either figure would mean a satisfactory output.

Baltac is now officially reported as being on a production test, but no official intimation of results has been made.

HUNTS LIMITED HE AD SEARCHING FOR CHOICE MON TREAL LOCATIONS

Firm Plans to Open New Chain Stores in Quebec City in Near Future.

MONT ROYAL MEETING.

TORONTO, Ont., March 19. (Special to Examiner.)—President H. W. Hunt of Hunts, Limited, was in Montreal this week looking over locations for the opening of new stores in that city in line with the policy announced at the annual general meeting of shareholders a few weeks ago. It is understood the company has decided to open several small stores rather than a few larger ones and that a number of favorable sites are under consideration on the main thoroughfares in the eastern metropolis. Opening of new stores in Montreal will be a new departure for Hunts, Limited, as in the past the chain has been confined to the province of Ontario where several units are in operation.

Canadian Brewery.

Profits of Canadian Brewing Corporation for the year 1929 were quite satisfactory in view of the condition of the industry in the province of Ontario, but the fact that the net was not sufficient to meet the $2 dividend should prepare shareholders for a reduction in rate as intimated by officials on the occasion of the declaration of the last quarterly payment. Breweries in this province are suffering from over-production due to loss of export business and this point was stressed by the presidents of Canadian Brewing and Carling in their remarks to shareholders. The remedy appears to lie in a consideration of interests that would permit of more economical operations by closing down of high cost plants and the switching of manufacturing to more modern and up to date plants. To-day negotiations are taking place for the merger of a number of breweries of this province and an announcement can be expected in the near future.

The common shares of Famous Players Canadian Corporation were again in the spotlight this morning on the local market with a gain of over two points. Rumblings are stillheard of the possibility of attention is being given to current earnings. Directors are slated to meet in a day or so when the earnings for the first six months of the fiscal year will be placed before them. It is stated unofficially that the second quarter was the best for this period in history and that the question of publishing quarterly figures will be given consideration bu the board.

Mount Royal Meeting.

It is not improbable that the annual meeting of Mount Royal Hotel in Montreal Thursday morning will develop into an interesting session. It is well known that W. A. Mackenzie took a very decided stand against United Hotels when that company sought to include Mount Royal in the proposed hotels merger. At that time he strongly advised preferred shareholders against turning in their holdings for exchange into common of the new company. It is expected that at the meeting to-morrow he will demand an explanation why such heavy charges were made for depreciation in the 1929 balance sheet with the result that, despite earnings, the highest in history, net profit was shown scarcely sufficient to meet preferred dividends and precluding any possibility of script payment.

STANDARD EXCHANGE FAILS TO FOLLOW STOCK ADVANCES

Noranda Off at $40 Offsets Advance in International Nickel.

GOLDS MIXED.

TORONTO, Ont., March 19. (C.P.)—The mining market, during the early session to-day, showed little response to the activity evident on the larger boards. The general trend remaining irregularly lower and the volume of turnover light.

International Nickel was stronger from the opening, but Noranda, at $40, was off a few cents from last night's close. The golds, which displayed late softness yesterday, were mixed. Dome recovering 10 to $9.15 and Hollinger 5 go $8.85. Lake Shore receded a quarter to $22.50, Telk Hughes 5 to $6.35 and Wright-Hargreaves a point to $1.85.

Ventures, whose annual statement will be in the hands of shareholders early next week, was up 4 to $1.89, but Sudbury Basin held unchanged while Falconbridge eased 10c to $4.70 and Sherritt Gordon 5 to $2.60.

The oils were listless and softer, Home Oil receding 15 to $8.75, Alberta Pacific 5 to $1.80, East Crest 4 to 58, Baltac 2½ to 49½ and Wainwell a half to 6.

GOLD STOCKS HOLD INTEREST

Doubt Expressed as to How Long Present Premier Gold Policy Will Continue.

TURNER DEVELOPMENT.

TORONTO, Mar. 19. (Special to Examiner.)—With uncertainty surrounding the Base Metal situation, considerable attention has been directed in mining circles to the gold stocks and the yield which they give under present market conditions, but even the most enthusiastic dividend seeker hardly visualized a gold stock selling at four times its annual dividend rate. Premier Gold, at 95 cents during the early session to-day, just recently declared its regular quarterly dividend of 6 cents, though the tone of the annual report would lead to some doubt as to how long the policy, called by the company a return of capital, will be continued. Another stock which has been suffering under some evident liquidation is Nipissing Mines, though directors are to-day reported to have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ cper cent payable April 21 to shareholders of record March 31. The company's cash in hand, government bonds and investments, value of ore and bullion on hand and in process at the mine and mill is understood to total $3,241,320.

Arntfield Property.

At the annual meeting of Arntfield Mining Syndicate yesterday, it was stated that this Quebec Company, at least, was able to bolster up its treasury and expand its development operations in the face of the generally depressed conditions surrounding mining prospect financing. The Arntfield property is understood to be at an interesting stage and with the shaft down nearly 100 feet on the vein, the next two or three months will be of importance to this pioneer gold property in Boischatel township.

The Street hears that an announcement regarding the starting of eight new wells on promising structure in the Turner Valley is imminent. It is understood the new wells under consideration will not be offsets of present producers, but will test new areas believed to be promising but not yet proven. Such a program would constitute an important step forward in the history of the field.

A soft answer turneth away wrath and one reply of President R. C. Stanley at Nickels meeting was greeted by subdued mirth among the shareholders. Having been assured that the copper sales of the company had shown a good increase during the past few months, a shareholder asked what price was being secured for the metal. "The market price of refined copper is 18 cents a pound," was the ready answer of the chairman.

LIGHTS OUT OF ORDER

Motorists who drove through the downtown section of the city to-day found with glee that they did not have to obey the tyrannical red and green traffic lights at the Charlotte and Hunter corners of George street for on each one a sign "Out of Order" hung. Electricians were busy making adjustments to the intricate timing and contact apparatus. The lights at Charlotte however, began to function again this afternoon.

EIGHT MOTORISTS FINED IN COURT

Failing to Carry 1930 Markers Lands Motor Owners in Police Court.

RADIO DAY THURSDAY.

Eight motorists paid fines ranging from $1.00, without costs, to $5.00 with costs, in Police Court this morning for driving their motor vehicles on a public highway without having markers of the current year displayed. Many excuses were furnished. It was found that one Bethany motorist was stopped by the provincial traffic officer for displaying 1929 markers, and he had the 1930 ones in the car at the time. Having been warned to put on the new markers on the spot he complied by replacing the rear one. Further down the highway the officer nipped him again. His excuse that the road was too muddy to get under the car and replace the one in the front did not suffice, and he was fined $1.00.

Another man "was only taking the car out for a trial spin," but he paid out a fine of $3.00.

Magistrate Langley warned the motorists that they comply with the Government regulations as to markers and that in future the fines will be higher for the oversight.

To-morrow's program in Police Court calls for eleven local citizens to appear to face charges of not having radio licenses, and for Friday morning there will be more than ten dog owners up for allowing their canines to ramble contrary to proclamation of the city and neighboring townships.

Mr. Bert Easson, stage driver narrowly escaped injury. The rig was badly damaged, and one of the horses was hurt, but fortunately there were no real serious injuries.

TORONTO LIST CONTINUES ON UPWARD MOVE

Many Issues Reach New Levels for the Current Movement.

NICKEL LEADS.

Ford of Canada Also Among Stocks to Advance Under Heavy Demand.

TORONTO, Ont., March 19. (C.P.)—Continuing the advance which set in with the first of the week, stocks on Toronto stock exchange went higher this morning reaching new levels on the current movement, some of them new highs for the year. Leadership which had rested with the oil group in recent sessions switched to International Nickel as that old time favorite moved steadily upward backed by consistent demand to reach a high of 41 just after the noon hour.

Ford of Canada was taken in large quantities on the rise, breaking through its previous 1930 top when it rose fractionally above 34½, the former high made just a short time ago. Famous Players again was active and scored a rise of more than two points. Selling up to nearly 57.

The oils showed little change. B.A. oil at noon was around 36, Imperial just under 26 and International Petroleum between 21½ and 22.

Brother Takes Place

LONDON, March 19 (By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—With the death of the famous first Earl of Balfour to-day his brother, the Rt. Hon. Gerald Balfour, takes his place in the Peerage.

The new Earl is 77 years of age and has also been in politics. He held office for a long period in Conservative Ministries during the time when the Cecils, of whom his mother was one, so dominated Parliament that the House came to be dubbed the Hotel Cecil. He was Chief Secretary for Ireland from 1895 to 1900 and President of the Board of Trade from 1900 to 1905. He has been a chairman and member of many commissions.

The present Earl has the same amiable characteristics as his more famous brother, but a lack of ambition is generally held responsible for his failure to make any deep impression on the public life of the country.

He has been in retirement for years. His son, Robert Arthur Lytton Balfour, although only 28 years of age, was factor to his bachelor uncle, the late Earl.

TRACTOR OUSTS CAMEL.

PEIPING.—A scientific expedition, to shortly set out on a research trip into the unexplored section of North China, is being organized by the National Scientific Union of China. This expedition will differ from others in that its means of travelling will not include the usual camels. These beasts of burden will be supplanted by tractors.

CHICAGO GRAIN ADVANCES ON LIVERPOOL MARKET UPTURNS

Germany Buying Wheat at Rotterdam to Anticipate Increase of Import Duties.

RUSSIAN GRAIN BOYCOTTED.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 19. (C.P.)—Stimulated by a sharp upturn in Liverpool quotations and by scarcity of offerings here, Chicago wheat prices scored early gains to-day. It was reported Germany was buying wheat at Rotterdam to anticipate the increase of German import duties, and the Russian grain was boycotted. Starting ½ A 1 cent higher, Chicago wheat futures continued to advance. Corn, oats and provisions developed strength also, with corn opening 1-8 A 7-8 up, and subsequently rising further.

DELEGATION TO SEEK HIGHWAY

Minister Will Be Asked to Have Department Assume Peterboro-Lakefield Road.

PETITIONS SIGNED.

An unofficial delegation from Lakefield, Peterborough, and district will go to Toronto to-morrow to interview the Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways for Ontario, in an effort to have the Government take the Lakefield highway into the Ontario system. The party will be about 30 strong.

For some time petitions asking the Government to take over this road have been circulated in Lakefield and Peterborough, it is understood, and a large number of signatures have been secured. These petitions will be presented to the Minister to-morrow. The action has been sponsored by interested citizens of Lakefield, but it is planned to have a number of representative officials from the district in the party. J. F. Strickland, the Peterborough member, will introduce the delegation to the Hon. Mr. Henry.

The men will endeavor to show the Department that the importance of the Lakefield highway as a gateway to the Kawartha Lakes demands a better road than the county can afford to keep. The sponsors of the action believe that the type of road which the county has attempted to maintain between Peterborough and Lakefield is not suitable for the heavy traffic to which it is subjected during the year. They want the Government to virtually continue the Port Hope-Peterborough highway through to Lakefield.

At present the road is in very poor condition, although the Suburban Area Commission has endeavored to provide for the drainage of excess water in the worst spots. The greater part of the road is pitted with holes which make driving a difficult operation.

DOGS PROTECTION TO DEER HUNTERS SAYS TOM CURVIN

Noted Fisherman and Hunter Disagrees With Fish and Game Association.

NEVER CAUGHT BY DOGS.

Experienced Men Like to Hear Music of Dogs Whether They Get Shot or Not.

Commenting to-day upon the resolution of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association in which they declared their disapproval of the use of dogs in hunting deer, Tom Curvin of the Peterborough Raw Fur Company, Water street, said he emphatically disagreed with this action.

"The Fish and Game Protective Association," said Mr. Curvin, "is doing excellent work and is a great asset to this district, but I think that most of them are more ardent fishermen than they are deer hunters. From my experience I am convinced that dogs are a protection to the hunter. In Maine and Pennsylvania dogs are barred from hunting, and in those States many men have been killed while "still" hunting. If you canot use dogs, the only practical way to hunt is by "beating" the bush, sending your party out over a wide area and then working in toward a central point. That is how hunters have been killed, simply by moving in the bush or thick woods where they could not be plainly seen. They were mistaken for a deer by companions who in their excitement did not wait to make sure of what was moving ahead of them. On the other hand, if you have dogs and you are out on a runway or watch, you hear their tonguing, and you are forewarned that a deer is approaching. In fact hunting fatalities are rare in this part of the country.

Never Caught By Dogs.

It is also a fact that deer are never caught by dogs except when they are wounded, and that is when they should be caught. For still hunting you need snow so you can track deer, but in our season there is usually not more than two days of snow. And if the season were later then the water would be frozen. I believe ninety per cent. of the deer hunters of Peterborough will advocate the use of dogs. And all hunters are not game hogs. They would appreciate going back into the woods with dogs, whether or not they got a deer, far more than moping around "still" hunting that might give them their count. Experienced hunters love to hear the music of the dogs whether they get a shot or not. Any true sportsman will tell you that; of course it would be different with a game hog. I haven't missed a hunt in twenty-seven years, and have gone on hunts when I never got a deer, and sometimes not even a shot. But I enjoyed myself just as much as in other years when I got my allowance.

You hear it is said that deer are getting scare in the Kawartha district, but last Fall within thirty-five miles of Peterborough I saw more deer than in any other season since I started hunting. Our party did not get their full count but it was not because there wasn't plenty of deer. In regard to the doe law I have only shot two bucks that I recognised before I shot them, and I think that is the general experience."

Mr. Curvin said the meeting on Monday night contradicted itself in regard to the ravages of wolves. He contends that wolves are killers.

"I agree with one sentence from the report of the meeting—'One of the members said that he had learned from a Hudson Bay factor that a small pack of wolves was quite capable of cleaning up an entire section of deer in a very short time.'"

The other opinion expressed at the meeting was to the effect that most of the trouble was caused by unscrupulous persons killing game indiscriminately, in and out of season.

CALL MONEY RATE DROPS TO LOWEST LEVEL IN YEARS

Scores of Issues Whirled Up 6 to 16 Points in Early Trading.

2 MILLION SALE MARK.

Heavy Profit-taking Brings About Moderate Recessions in Afternoon.

By Stanley W. Prenosil (Associated Press Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 19.—Bullish forces continued to press their advantage in to-day's stock market as money rates dropped to the lowest levels in more than 5 years. Scores of active issues were marked whirled up 6 to 16, and with at least two score stocks elevated to new high levels for the year. Weakness of the tobacco and merchandising issues, coupled with heavy profit taking, brought about moderate recessions from the morning's high levels in the early afternoon.

Total sales in the first two hours ran close to 2,000,000 shares, or nearly 100,000 above those during the same period yesterday. But there were fewer large blocks to-day. The ticker ran half an hour or more behind the market.

Call money renewed at 3 per cent, the lowest initial change since February, 1925, and then dropped to 2 per cent. Outside money was again available at 1½ per cent, with a plentiful supply of funds available.

Renewals of selling pressure against Simmons Co., carried that issue down 4 points to 50¼, the lowest price in several years.

American Tobacco issues broke about 6 points, Liggett & Myers 2 5-8 and Reynolds and Lorillard about a point each. United States Industrial Alcohol and Patino Mines sank to new low levels for the year.

Peoples Gas was the outstanding individual feature, soaring 16¼ points to a new 1930 high at 304. Sloss Sheffield preferred scored an extreme gain of 10½ points by touching a new high at 80½, and National Biscuit (old) moved up 7½ to a new top.

VESSEL'S ENGINES BREAK LEFT AT OCEAN'S MERCY

U.S. Freighter Syros Is Asked to Lend Assistance.

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 19 (Canadian Press).—The Mackay radio station here to-day picked up an S.O.S. call from the Greek freighter Eugenie which listed her position as 200 miles north-east of Bermuda. The Eugenie said her engines had stopped and she was unable to steer.

The Eugenie's message was intercepted by the United States freighter Syros, the Mackay operator said, which is about 75 miles south of the Eugenie.

Reporting that she was drifting south-east, the Eugenie asked the Syros to come to her assistance.

The Eugenie, of 2,312 tons, is from Baltimore for Marseilles.

CANADA WIRE ANNUAL MEETING.

While no important new developments occurred at the annual meeting of Canada Wire and Cable Company held at Leaside to-day, shareholders were informed that sales of the company this year to date had compared favorably with the corresponding period last year. In fact, a slight increase in business was shown.

No action with regard to dividends on the Class "B" stock was taken by directors at their meeting. In view of the high earnings shown on the junior stock, there were expectations on the Street that dividends on the Class "B" stock would be initiated. Such action may be taken by directors at a later date.

The annual statement for 1929 was approved by shareholders and the same directors were elected for the ensuing year.

WOULD BE HUGE CONSOLIDATION.

Provided expectations in some quarters are realized, a $500,000,000 merger will evolve out of the negotiations claimed to be under way among Canadian power and paper companies, with a newsprint capacity of 6,000 tons daily. One argument put forth in favor of the ideal is that it would make conservation measures more capable of enforcement and prevent wastage through distress production of smaller and loss financially capable concerns.

It is stated that the merger will centre around Abitibi and the Canadian International Paper Co., and that Canada Power and Paper Co. might join. Another group of smaller companies, including Brompton, St. Lawrence and Lake St. John, may come together as a preliminary to joining the larger merger as a unit. In such an event, a $370,000,000 consolidation would result. The complete consolidation, if effected, would involve three fifths of Canada's output of newsprint and one quarter of the world's output.

$2,554,721,000 in Banks.

NEW YORK—The rebound in savings deposits from the low levels to which they were drawn down last Fall during the break in the stock market has carried the total of savings in banks in the New York Federal Reserve District back to new high levels, according to figures compiled by the local Federal Reserve Bank. While the volume of savings deposits still is below the levels which would have been reached had the pace of recent years continued without interruption, it has already surpassed the levels which obtained before the stock market crisis and appears to be turning sharply upward.

Deposits of thirty representative savings banks in the New York Federal Reserve District, fifteen in New York City and fifteen outside the city, totalled $2,554,721,000 on February 10 last. This compares with $2,531,037,000 a year ago and with $2,417,111,000 two years ago.

On October 10 of last year, just before the stock market decline the volume of deposits in these savings banks amounted to $2,549,265,000. In the succeeding month these savings were drawn down to $42,259,000 to a total of $2,507,106,000. The decline continued at a more moderate pace in the next month, a drop of $5,250,000 carrying the total to $2,500,851,000 on December 10, 1929. This was the lowest figure to which savings deposits in this area had dropped since December, 1928.

LENGTH OF TRADE REACTIONS.

NEW YORK.—Doubt over the predicted return of normal trade conditions with the Spring season has revived interest in the record of such other recent industrial setbacks. The general impression has been that all of them were exceedingly brief, lasting perhaps only a few months. This was true with some of them, notably that of 1927, when business reaction began late in the spring and ended in the following December. But the record of other reactionary years has varied considerably.

FISH AND GAME PARLEY IS OPENED IN OTTAWA

Clubs from All Dominion Send Representatives—Aid Provincial Associations.

OTTAWA, March 19. (C.P.) — With a view to organizing persons interested in the protection of fish and game on a Dominion-wide scale a conference is being held here to-day, attended by representatives of Fish and Game Clubs in every province. The new organization is to be called the Dominion of Canada Fish and Game Protective association. Its purpose is to co-ordinate work being carried on by Provincial Associations, assist these Associations in getting on their feet, where they are encountering difficulties and do away with certain conflicts between the game laws of different provinces which now exist.

G. A. Haydon, of Calgary, Alta., presided at the organization meeting and is slated as first president of the new Association.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Mar. 19. — Following Monday's clearance of supplies and of fifteen to 25 cents a hundredweight advance in prices, killers cattle trade yesterday morning was fairly active on light fresh offering. Sheep are very scarce and are selling firm at 4½c to 8½c a pound.

The hog market is still unsettled and packers are bidding 11 3-4c f.o.b. and 12½c weighed off cars for bacon. Settlement at these levels is expected though no tickets were marked up to 11 o'clock.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, March 19.— The local egg market appeared a little firmer yesterday, and though prices to shippers and retailers did not increase prospects were much brighter than previously due to an increased demand. As forecast a week or two ago a lower egg price to the consumer has resulted in greater consumption, and with the clean-up of American eggs on the local market things have taken a turn for the better. Country shippers were quoted for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, 26c to 27c for extras; 24c to 25c for firsts, and 22c for seconds. The prices to retailers were 34c for extras in cartons; 32c for extras, loose; 30c for firsts, loose, and 26c for seconds, loose.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 19.—Corn led all grain upward in price yesterday, and finished at virtually the top level reached. Indications were that the season's main movement of corn to market terminals has reached an end, with prospects of liberal out-shipments ahead at the opening of navigation on the Great Lakes, announcement of 1,245,000 bushel decrease of the world's wheat available supply tended further to strengthen wheat values, and so, too, did expectance of a cold wave Friday or before over domestic winter wheat States.

Closing quotations both on corn and wheat were firm, with corn ¾c to 1⅜c a bushel higher than Monday's latest figures. Wheat finished ⅛c to ⅝c up; oats, ¼c to ⅞c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, March 19. — Wheat prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday continued their labored climb up over the path down which they slid so recently. Absence of selling pressure on a friendly mart allowed values to move ¾c to ½c ahead. Pit trade was not heavy and business was not of an important nature, however.

Dullness crept into the export trade following Monday's heavy export business, in which the wheat pool and a large independent trader were prominent. Buying was scattered and came under no particular head. Broomhall foresaw better demand and steadier markets unless Argentine and Canadian sellers press unduly.

Demand for various grades of cash wheat was moderate, but offerings were few and business light. Demand from the East for various grades of oats and low grades of barley continued fairly good on the coarse grain market.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, March 19.—Wholesale egg prices remained unchanged here yesterday at from 30c to 37c a dozen. Ontario fresh eggs were being offered at 32c. for extras, 30c. for firsts, and 27c. to 28c. for seconds, while British Columbia fresh eggs were offering in a limited quantity at 32½c to 33c for extras, delivered.

Firmness was noted in the local butter market, with dealers suggesting that prices had already reached their lowest levels, and were likely to become slightly higher. Wholesale levels were ¼c higher yesterday, with quotations ranging from 33½c to 34c for finest New Zealand. The cheese market continued dull, while the potato section was slightly firmer, with prices unchanged at Monday's levels.

Junior Auxiliary of Hastings Anglican Church Takes Part in Program.

HASTINGS, March 19.—(Examiner Correspondence.) — On Wednesday evening the Junior Auxilnary of St. George's Anglican church presented a pleasing little pageant, "We'll Have Katinka," depicting the reception of a little Russian by Canadian school children.

Although Jessie Kirk as 'Gladys,' the 'grand' school girl called Katinka, who was Margaret Braithwaite, a newcomer, a Bolshevist and a foreigner. Bernice Dainard as 'Nan,' Irene Jeffries as 'Lois,' Muriel Bimrose as 'Vera' and Helen Jeffries all received her with open arms and invited her to join in their games.

Gladys finally condescended to join them in singing, "We'll Have Katinka for Nuts in May.'

As an encore the Juniors, accompanied by Muriel Bimrose, sang a suitable song, Jessie Kirk recited 'The Boyhood Home of Jesus.' Other recitations were given by Mrs Hubbs and Helen Jeffries.

Very interesting slides on the work of the Columbia Coast Mission and a story, Rip Van Winkle, were also shown.

den upon the average citizen, and brought rounds of applause from the House when he, step by step, painted the picture of Ontario of the future which will arise from the benefits of "taxation of the individual or corporation that benefits most."

Three Departments Involved

The Liberal Leader's charges encompassed three departments and went far afield in the Province. He accused Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health and Labor, with seeking a widow's support during the recent election by suggesting that more time might be spent on her claim for a mother's allowance, and produced a letter signed by the Minister issuing these instructions. He demanded a probe of an affidavit in which two men stated they had worked as farm hands on the farm of a Government Inspector and been paid in Northern Development Department cheques, and he stated two definite cases of Magistrates in Port Credit and Picton having campaigned in the interest of Conservative members while they were drawing salaries as civil servants.

On conclusion of the debate, and amendment to the motion to adopt the budget, which the Premier declared could be challenged as the propriety and which denounced the Government for compelling municipalities to share in the cost of old age pensions, was defeated by a vote of 18 to 87. It was a straight party division. Earl Hutchinson was absent and Premier Ferguson was paired with Mr. Sinclair who had been called from the House.

Allowance Cut Off

Mr. Sinclair read a letter which had received from one of his supporters, written by Hon. Forbes Godfrey, minister of health and labor prior to the election to one, Allen. The letter dealt with the case of a Mrs. Callaghan of Long Branch, Ont., stating that her Mother's Allowance had been cut off in view of certain circumstances. A note asked, "See her before the 30th, and if you can get her support for Thursday we will be able to take more time with the case."

Hon. Dr. Godfrey was not in his seat when the letter was read, and to which Mr. Sinclair added it was further playing politics with the people's money.

British politics have lost more than a statesman in Arthur James Balfour, O.M.

A personality of peculiar aloofness and detachment, he had become an institution, though it is possible that the full story of his services to the Empire will never be written. The author of "A Defence of Philosophic Doubt," "The Foundations of Belief," "Theism and Humanism," was not a man who depended on publicity, transparent cleverness or political skill for his subtle hold on public. He was credited with never reading a newspaper, on the principle that if there is anything important doing someone will tell you about it, while if there is not a newspaper is a superfluity. Similarly, he cared nothing for the recording of his own doings and achievements. It is for this reason that many of his works may go unchronicled.

Few statesmen who have been Prime Minister and have suffered a crushing political defeat can re-appear casually—and Balfour was essentially casual—in the arena fifteen years later, and still draw a crowded House. Asquith, very much of the statesman, left office and was defeated in the last years of the European War, returning after only a short interval to find himself a political nonentity devoid of all influence in an assembly where for so long he had held a foremost place. Balfour, on the other hand, after representing East Manchester for 21 years, was caught in the Liberal avalanche of 1906, and had to find his way back to the Commons via a specially-vacated seat in the City of London. Despite this, whenever in 1921 he chose to give an account of his stewardship as the chief British representative on the League of Nations he was always listened to with close attention and real pleasure. There was a fascination about the lounging, languid figure sitting unperturbed through clashing attacks on the Government of which he was a member, a figure that finally rose slowly—as though unwillingly disturbed—to the height of its long legs, and in a few minutes was sitting gloriously on the political fence with expectant friends and foes alike confounded, as in the days of the Tariff Reform controversy, or was sticking darts of incisive eloquence into the sensitive skins of his challengers.

When Balfour was roused, it was a rash man who interrupted him. During one of the debates on the attitude of the British Government towards the League of Nations, he was defending the Government's policy with vigor and conviction when Lord Robert Cecil, who had recently left the Government for the Opposition benches, interjected one of his frequent and heated suggestions that the British Government was not in earnest in the matter. "There is no occasion for my noble friend to become so excited," came in calm and ironical tones from the Government spokesman. The House roared. Balfour was addressing his own cousin, whom he knew to be sensitive to ridicule. For the remainder of the evening Lord Robert Cecil, at that time a power with the Opposition, was silenced.

In his later years, Balfour held the office of Lord President of the Council, a post well fitted to a man of his eminence inasmuch as its occupant is expected to perform a variety of important duties. In the man, however, he was identified with foreign affairs, university life, and it must be added golf and tennis. Also, in his unobtrusive way he retained to the end a close regard for the interests of the Church in Scotland.

Balfour's first close association with foreign affairs was at the age of 30 when, after four years in Parliament, he became Lord Salisbury's private secretary. Then came office as President of the Local Government Board, seven years later, the Secretaryship for Scotland, Chief Secretaryship for Ireland—a landmark in his political history—followed by a double change as Leader of the Opposition and Prime Minister for three years before the debacle of 1906. During the European War he was First Lord of the Admiralty for twelve months, and then went to the Foreign Office for three years.

Except in its later portion, his career was filled with incident and controversy. Nevertheless, there were some things for which he found no time, or perhaps it was inclination. He remained a confirmed bachelor, and though in 1909 he produced an essay on "Criticism and Beauty," it is to be feared that he had the material and not the human in mind.

Balfour will be missed in British politics because he was a man that mattered—and the more because he did not think so.

Helpless With Pain In His Back

Vancouver man thinks Gin Pills wonderful

Right in the midst of the local Horse Show, Mr. J. S. Russell, of Vancouver, B.C., was completely laid up by severe pains in the small of his back. He could not sit on a chair, let alone on a horse. "I was compelled to go to bed," he says.

Here a most awkward and painful problem was solved by a friend who advised Gin Pills, which quickly corrected the trouble according to Mr. Russell, whose letter ends—"and I was able to ride again in 24 hours. Gin Pills are wonderful."

Gin Pills positively give relief, not only in cases of severe backache, but in even more acute kidney conditions. Gin Pills soothe the inflamed kidneys and end the misery. How much better to obtain a 50c. box from your druggist than to take chances. The symptoms of kidney trouble are unmistakable—backache, dizziness, headaches, swollen joints, brick dust in urine, spots before the eyes, a burning sensation attendant on scanty or too frequent urination. BIBLE CLASS HOSTS TO SUNDAY SCHOOL

Entertaining Program Enjoyed at Social Gathering Held in Fenella.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FENELLA, March 19. — Very pretty looked the interior of the town hall on Friday evening, March 14th, with its decorations of green and purple and with the shamrock much in evidence, when the young men's class of Fenella United Sunday School were hosts to the school.

During the first part of the evening progressive crokinole was played, the prizes going to Miss Jessie Waldie and Mr. Ellis Isaace. Tossing the bean bags was also indulged in and greatly enjoyed by those participating in this old fashioned game. Contests included a fish contest, and a vehicle contest, but the premier contest was named the "Fenella Gazette," the company being divided into groups, and each group contributing a write-up on editorial and current events, social and personal, lost and found and for sale columns. The prize for this contest went to the group contributing to the editorial and current events column, although each column deserves special mention. Much original talent was displayed by the writers, and the reading of the "Fenella Gazette" proved to be one of the best items on the program.

Other items on the program were community singing, instrumental selections on the accordian and violin by C. McNaught and Gordon Sandercock. Jack Crank, president of the class had charge of the program throughout the entire evening. He welcomed the guests in a neat little speech and proved himself to be a very efficient chairman. The mothers of the boys were a capable committee, who prepared the weiner roast which was served hot to the guests by the class. Other commitees responsible for the evening's entertainment were crokinole, Floyd Murphy and Melville Macklin; fish contest, Harry Macklin and Jack Crank; vehicle contest, Alex Hodginson and Harry Sherwin; 'Fenella Gazette' contest, Frank Nill and Fred Murphy; game of bean bags, Donald George. These various committees have ever worked under the direction of their capable teacher, Mrs. John Herrington, and were accorded a hearty vote of thanks by the guests of the evening.

In the Legislature

The Ferguson Government was sustained in the adoption of its Budget by a vote of 87 to 18.

An amendment introduced by G. S. Tweed, Liberal, North Waterloo, which condemned the Government on the division of the contribution for Old Age Pensions, was defeated.

Premier Ferguson stated definitely that no portion of the gasoline tax would be given to municipalities.

W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, charged that suicides were occurring because of the uneasiness created by the Government delaying in setting a date for brokers to show their shortage sales.

Premier Ferguson introduced a bill to increase Cabinet Ministers' salaries from $8,000 to $10,000.

JESSIE ALEXANDER, ELOCUTIONIST, ENTERTAINS ST. PAUL'S AUDIENCE

Offerings Were Well Chosen and Delighted Her Hearers.

SPONSORED BY LADIES' AID.

The amazing versatility of Jessie Alexander which has brought her wide fame as an elocutionist in Canada once more held a Peterborough audience in fascination when she appeared in a recital before a large gathering at St. Paul's Church last night. The entertainment was sponsored by the Ladies Aid of the church following a St. Patrick's dinner.

With two exceptions the offerings of Jessie Alexander were chosen with regard to the proximity of St. Patrick's day and they enhanced the Irish touch that permeated the program. The several Irish pieces and a Scotch offering, "The Courtship of the Widow" provided an excellent field for her well-known dialect abilities of which she took full advantage. In a convincing manner she readily revolted from pathos to the comic during the evening.

Dr. J. J. Craig acted as chairman on the occasion. He endorsed the Ladies Aid which provided the entertainment, as the most energetic and active organization in St. Paul's and commented on its material financial assistance to the church.

Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., opened the program with two organ presentations with an appropriate Irish flavor. The first was the Overture to "The Bohemian Girl" by Balfe and the other, "The Last Rose of Summer" (varied).

Interspaced between the recitals of Jessie Alexander were also offerings by Miss Daisy Davidson, soprano, accompanied by Miss Gwen Donley at the piano. She first gave "An Irish Love Song" by Margaret Lang and "Happy Song" by Teresa Del Riego. "Fairy's Lullaby" and "Shadow March" (Robert Louis Stevenson) were then presented and finally "Nightingale of June" a waltz song by Wilfred Sanderson and "The Lilac Tree". Hearty applause evidenced the appreciation of these artists' work.

Return of Irish Exile

Jessie Alexander first selected "Dawn on the Irish Coast" a poem by John Locke depicting the return of an Irish exile to his home country after an absence of thirty years and his enjoyment once more of the sight of dawn breaking over his native land. The delicate manner in which speaker handled the poem evoked sincere applause.

"How the War was Settled" gave her a free rein to display the full powers of humorous expression which she possesses. It was a prose story which depended for its humor and color on the speaker's interpretation of the Irish brogue being a story of an Irishman giving a speech at a dinner and getting into serious difficulties through a faulty memory. Miss Alexander did it ample justice.

Reverting to a purely American theme of humor, she gave "Betty at the Ball Game" and was rewarded with the heaviest applause of the evening. "Mary Mahone" a poem by Wilson McDonald was of a more serious vein. It was a story of the dream of an Irish girl who aspired to become a poet. Artfully she presented Ruth Sawyer's story "The Turning Point" a touching story embellished with humor concerning an Irish boy in America who found difficulty in making his way but put aside temptations to take an easy way out by wrong doing. Miss Alexander's familiarity with broad Scotch enabled her hearers to fully appreciate "The Courting of the Widow" by Andrew Wanless.

Her concluding offering was one of the best received on her program. It was another story whose success depended on the Irish brogue of the teller, "Nora and the Twins" by Ben Hare.

OLD FRIENDSHIP AGAIN RENEWED

William Yelland and William Cathcart Meet After Interval of 52 Years.

ATTENDING FUNERAL.

An old friendship, the bonds of which were solidly cemented in their youthful days, was renewed yesterday, between William Cathcart of this city and William Yelland of Toronto, after a lengthy interval of 52 years.

Both gentlemen were mourners at the funeral of the late Mrs. W. G. Yelland. In conversation with Mr. Yelland this morning it was learned that this unique friendship between the two men was formed at the time they were attending Belleville Business College. They both graduated on the same day, April 5th, 1877, since which time Mr. Cathcart has travelled throughout the West. He was there at the time of the Reil Rebellion and was busily engaged in the transportation of supplies to the troops.

Mr. Yelland, an energetic and kindly type of man, reflecting on the days of his boyhood spent in Peterborough, said, "I used to live on the site where Comstock's business is now situated."

"That would be over fifty years ago," exclaimed John Comstock, in whose office the conversation took place.

"Yes," said Mr. Yelland adding wistfully, "you can make it sixty years; aye seventy years"

71 Years of Age

This statement drew forth exclamations of surprise and admiration for the speaker did not look anywhere near 71 years old, which age he proudly proclaimed he had passed and was rapidly approaching his 72nd birthday. His erect carriage and fresh youthful complexion, the merry twinkle in his clear eyes and his vivid memory for facts and figures all belied, what he proved to be a solemn truth.

He recalled the days when Peterborough was a small town. The day when he and another youthful playmate drove a bunch of cows up the then sleepy George street, free of street cars or automobiles. So quiet was the street in these days that the cows took a notion to stop in the middle of the street and survey the peaceful surroundings. The youthful driver having other intentions hurled a small stone at the flanks of one of the lazy beasts, but he added with a mischievous twinkle in his eyes, that stone went wide of the mark and hit a plate glass window, and broke it.

Mr. Yelland is still actively engaged in the Civil Service, having been in the Land Office in Toronto for 23 years.

The name Yelland is greatly respected here, and remembered with pride and affection. William Yelland's father was mayor of the town for two years and served as an Alderman for 14 years. He was engaged here in the carriage manufacturing business.

BRAVERY OF GIRL RETOLD TO BOARD

Presence of Mind of Young Girl Responsible For Saving Six Lives.

TRAPPED BY FLAMES.

The presence of mind of a young girl, whose quick thinking and action probably saved the lives of six children, was brought to the attention of the Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society, at their regular meeting yesterday afternoon in the City Council Chamber.

Helen McIlmoyle of Clarina, a girl of sixteen years of age, was awakened about half-past ten o'clock one night by the sound of crackling flames. Her father also awakened from his sleep, went down stairs with the oil lamp to investigate and did not return. The girl, realizing that fire was threatening the lives of herself and six small brothers and sisters, got them speedily to a rear window in the upper floor of the small frame house. Breaking the glass, she was able to lower the children to a snowbank below and then jump out. At present she is in Nicholls Hospital, with a lingering illness.

The account of the girl's heroism was contained in the report of the agent of the society, J. Edgar, who also reported as follows for the past month: Applications for children, 3; children brought to Shelter (not wards), 2; children returned to parents (not wards), 3; children made wards, 1; complaints received and investigations made, 7; mail received, 23; mail sent out, 49; mileage covered (approximately), 475; places visited Havelock, Hastings, Toronto, and Centre Dummer; Police Court attendance, 3; wards in foster homes heard from, 8; wards placed out, 1.

There were 17 children in the Shelter during the month of February and 14 at the end of the month.

Mr. Edgar read a postcard received from the president of the society, the Rev. Dr. Blagrave, from Phoenix, Arizona, and reference was also made to the illness of Mrs. James Fanning, a board member, and a resolution made to send flowers from the Board.

Donations and Accounts.

The following donations were received at the Shelter during the past month: Doughnuts from the Men's Club of George Street Church, 10 pails of jam from a Friend; bread, pies and potatoes from Mark Street Church, clothing from Mrs. Horn.

The accounts were passed as follows, after the report of the Purchasing Committee was read by Mrs. J. Welsh: Campbell's Dairy, $35.60; Miller & Powell, $3.00; W. J. Hopwood, $5.00; R. Denne, $6.00; Grafton & Company, $33.54; Bell Telephone Company, $2.95 and $4.10; Gordon Hudson, $36.31; Teco Store, $36.04; J. E. A. Fitzgerald, $9.00; McDonald Lumber Company, $4.44; F. C. Weber, $1.25; Adamson & Dobbin, 45 cents; John Edgar, $2.70; Darcy Foster, $6.40; R. Hall, Limited, $18.75; H. E. S. Clements, $7.50; Herb. Stinson, $4.50; Peterborough Examiner, $1.00; Total, $219.53.

At the meeting yesterday, the chair was taken by Mrs. W. H. Gibbs. Other Board members present were: Mrs. J. Welsh, Mrs. S. Newhall, Mrs. H. Nigh, Mrs. L. Yeotes, Mrs. J. J. Lynch, Mrs. C. Wiggins, Alderman Stocker, Alderman J. A. McNabb, J. Edgar, R. H. Parsons.

SOCIETY MEETS.

Mrs. A. Rosborough Hostess to Members of X. L. Mission Circle.

With a large membership present, the X. L. Mission Circle of St. James' United Church held their March meeting at the home of Mrs. A. Rosborough, 362 Simcoe street.

The President, Miss Jessie Martin, occupied the chair and an opening hymn was sung, followed by prayer offered by Mrs. Wesley Rose. A responsive service entitled "Youth in Scripture and song, proved most interesting and helpful.

Preceding the Study Book, two of the members led in prayer for troubled Russia.

The second chapter of from Jerusalem to Jerusalem was excellently prepared and presented by Miss Mabel Dulmage, who told the story of the early expansion of Christianity, illustrating her talk with many old legends.

An encouraging report was received from the treasurer, and the Benediction was pronounced.

A social hour followed during which two lively Irish contests were entered into heartily.

Dainty refreshments were served by the joint hostesses, Mrs. Rosborough and Mrs. Ernest Kitney, to whom a vote of thanks was extended.

The next meeting will be in charge of Mrs. D. Sedgwick and Miss May Welch and will be held at the home of the latter.

NEW PLANT AFFORDS 45,000 SQUARE FEET OF FLOOR SPACE

The remarkable success achieved by Marconi Radio Receivers and Marconi Commercial Transmitting and Receiving Equipment, in recent years, has resulted in present production facilities becoming entirely inadequate to care for the steadily growing demand for all Marconi products.

It has just been announced that the Canadian Marconi Company has purchased a site of 125,000 square feet of land in the Town of Mount Royal, P.Q., where work on the erection of a new Marconi manufacturing plant has already been started.

SECOND ARMOUR TROOP

The Second Armour Troop held its regular weekly meeting in the St. Luke's Parish Hall. The meeting opened with Patrol Corners until the Scout Master arrived. Flag break and patrol inspection followed. William Hepburn was also gladly taken into the Beaver Patrol. Patrol Corners were again assembled, followed by a game of Farm. This was followed by Patrol Corners and two Wolves passed their Morse Code and a Wolf and a Beaver tried for their first class signalling. Another game followed, this being "Grab the Stick" the Beavers easily winning this.

FIRST ST. JOHN'S TROOP

The weekly meeting of the First St. John's Troop was held on Friday last when there was the best turnout of the boys in the troop history.

The Scout Master opened the meeting with flag break and thus started a most successful meeting. The events of the evening took their usual course, except for an investiture ceremony.

When the evening was about half over preparations were made for an investiture. Then before those boys who had already been invested Ross Pulkinghorn and Norman Baxter took the Scout promise.

For the past few weeks the various patrols have been made responsible for a short "stunt" at the campfire and The Bulldogs under P.L. Charlie Crosgrev did their bit. Previously P.L. Millard's Buffaloes and P.L. Henry's Seals took a turn at theatrical producing without anything seriously happening.

This week also marked the "debut" of a news bulletin published by the Seals. This was quite good, containing news articles and friendly comments and criticism. Last week the Buffalos published a very useful bulletin, and next week we are looking forward to one from the Bulldogs. These are to be judged and points awarded to count in the interpatrol competition.

S. M. Garfield Johnson closed the meeting in the usual manner.

UNDER THE FLEUR-DE-LYS

This week I am including one of a series of episodes which will appear from time to time. While of course, I do not contend that these episodes are true in detail, yet they actually did happen. They make interesting reading, from several points of view.

Johnny Joins the Boy Scouts

The family roared with laughter, without malice, but just a little contemptuous. The cause was little Johnny's announcement, Johnny was one of the younger members of the family. He had no particular pride in his personal appearance, his clothes were not of the latest cut for his coat was ragged at the elbows and shiny where cuffs should be. Usually his face was not overclean, and his hair resembled a mop. In reply to his mother's question: "Where have you been" his reply, "I've joined the Boy Scouts" had caused the laughter.

There was very little difference in Johnny during the rest of the week, and the family had forgotten his important announcement.

When the meeting of the Boy Scouts took place the following week, the family were surprised to see Johnny making preparations for a wash, a thing previously unknown. But Johnny washed and attempted to comb his unruly hair, that wouldn't just stay "put." Off he went to meet with the Scouts.

Nothing great took place that week, except that Johnny asked his mother to mend his ragged coat. Then she began to take notice. A week later his mother agreed that Johnny did look "nicer." Then the rest of the family began to take notice. He became a ready servant and help to his mother; he became active and obedient. His father explained it as "Johnny was growing."

He appeared to be always handy when errands had to be done, and his ready service was often rewarded with coppers. These Johnny saved, had his hair cut, and prevailed upon his mother for a better suit and boots. Some weeks later he came home in triumph from the Scouts meeting with a parcel, which he proudly unfolded before the family gaze. It contained shirt, pants, cap, belt, and scarf, the uniform of the Boy Scouts, and to be worn on the coming Saturday.

It was a proud boy who went forth that day. The family verdict on the change was: "Our Johnny looks all right, doesn't he?" and they themselves felt elated that it was THEIR Johnny. Before Johnny joined the Scouts, the Scout movement was looked upon with something like derision. They would not go to the end of the street to see them, but now the Scout movement stands for something more than just "Playing at Soldiers." Little Johnny has taught them something of what it means.

Tramp Camps

There is no question as to the value of camp life, from a Scout training point of view, whether the camp be a standing one or a tramp camp. When the possibilities of the tramp camp are considered, its opportunities for practising pathfinding, nature study, mapping, tracking and woodcraft, it is really astonishing that so few troops or, at least, patrols undertake it. Here are a few useful hints for a tramp camp:

1.—Each boy should keep a diary of the whloe journey, day by day; this to be done properly will take at least an hour per day to write up. In the diary you should note the weather, compass directions, mileage, countryside features, animals and birds noticed and the trees and flowers.

2.—Rough maps showing the route taken should be made by each member.

3.—One member should make a collection of wild flowers, another leaves of trees, and others should note animals, birds, etc. The object of a tramp camp is to give opportunity for Scout training, and to pump health and enjoyment into the patrol.

On one of the days the patrol should be divided into two parties, and one should leave earlier than the other, leaving "signs" to show the route taken.

To prevent any mistake, each party leader would be give an envelope containing the place for the night's camp.

Here is a good routine for a tramp camp:—

6.00 a.m.—Turn out. Coffee and biscuits.
6.30 a.m.—Strike camp and en route.
8.30 a.m.—Breakfast.
9.00 a.m.—En route.
11.30 a.m. to 1.30 p.m.—Dinner and rest.
1.30 p.m.—En route.
4.30 p.m.—Tea.
6.00 p.m.—Prepare Camp.
7.30 p.m.—Write diary.
9.00 p.m.—Supper and turn in.

Now that the days are lengthening let us prepare and away to the country. Let us leave the smoky town behind us and get where the handywork of God is to be seen. Even if there be but two of you, make the most of the coming season and get away from the crowds. A "billy" bright and clean on the shelf is of little use, let it be hung over a pinewood fire. It is now close on midnight, and my imagination takes me back to a camp we once held on the seashore; I can hear the waves rolling over the pebbles, and the full moon lights up the tent sufficient to see the contentment and happiness on the faces of eight lads who have had a glorious day on the mountains, and have been nearer to the "Great Scout" than ever they have been in any church. When one remembers the experiences and the bewilderment of these lads on first viewing the wonders of nature, one cannot help but feel that Scouting is a game worth playing, be ye young or old.

I see by recent reports that the movement is growing locally. All troops are enrolling new members. So come along, boys, roll up in large numbers, and be in time for all the good things the organization is planning for the Summer.

Cheerio and Good Scouting is the wish of

CAVAN, March 19. — (Examiner Correspondence.) — Cavan farmers have very recently received their notice of responsibility in the carrying out of the Ontario Weed Control Act. They are notified that:

Every occupant of land, whether rentee or owner shall prevent the ripening of all noxious weeds. If the land is unoccupied the owner is responsible.

If an occupant neglects or refuses to do this after notice, an inspector may enter upon the land, destroy the weeds, and the cost, if not paid by the occupant may be added to taxes.

Any owner or occupant of land who contravenes any of the provisions of the Act, is liable to a fine of not less than $20 or more than $50 for each offense.

Responsibility of Municipal Councils:

Every Township and Urban Municipal Council must appoint an inspetoor or inspectors. They must also fix the amount of the remuneration and pay it.

Where a council neglects or refuses to appoint an inspector, the Minister of Agriculture may appoint an inspector for the municipality and fix the amount of remuneration which must be paid by the municipal council.

The council of a municipality shall cause to be inserted in a newspaper circulating in the municipality a notice of the appointment of the name to the provincial weed inspector and shall forward the tor, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Ontario, before February 1st of each year. Members of municipal councils, township road superintendents or township road foremen are not eligible for appointment as weed inspectors.

It is the duty of the council to see that all weeds growing upon streets or highways are destroyed at the proper time to prevent the ripening of the seed. If the council neglects to have this done, the grant to which it may be entitled under the Highway Improvement Act, may be withdrawn.

The municipal weed inspector must see that the Act is enforced on all roads, public and private property within the confines of the municipality. This includes railways, provincial highways, county roads, township roads, cemeteries, school and church properties and all private property.

The inspector is not authorized to incur expense on roads. If roads are found to be neglected, he should consult with the road authority and if necessary, the reeve of the municipality. If the neglect is not remedied, he should then report to the provincial weed inspector. In the case of rialways, notice should be given to the station master of the company, resident in the municipality.

If weeds are neglected on resident land, the inspector should give notice to the occupant and allow a reasonable time for having weeds destroyed. If this is not done in the stated time, the inspector may cause weeds, coming under the Act, to be destroyed and may charge the cost of such work against the property.

To avoid the necessity of having growing crops destroyed at or near harvest time, all township inspectors should commence their work early in the season and advise farmers on the best methods of weed control.

Noxious weeds—White cockle, bladder campion, wild oats, ox-eye daisy, Canada thistle, sow thistle, blue weed, chicory, dock, ragweed, ribgrass, stinkweed, tumbling mustard, wild carrot, burdock, hawkweeds, wild lettuces.

J. N. McGill, Millbrook, weed inspector for Cavan.

J. A. Carrol, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, is in charge of administration.

EDISON RETURNED BACKERS' MONEY

Futile Project Cost Inventor Almost Entire Fortune of $7,000,000.

Story Told After 30 Years.

WINTER PARK, Florida, March 19 —A hitherto unrelated story of Thomas A. Edison, which involved his voluntary return of $7,000,000 to those who had invested in one of his enterprises he deemed unsuccessful of achievement, has just been narrated by August Heckscher, New York capitalist. The following story was told before a special convocation of the faculty and students of Rollins College.

"In 1897 or 1899 Mr. Edison made up his mind that a very great deposit of iron ore, located between Hamburg and Sparta, in New Jersey, could be worked to advantage by means of a new and amazing process invented by him. Those men he induced to finance his ideas, spent $7,000,000. At that time this sum looked as large as $20,000,000 to-day.

At about the same time the immense deposits of iron ore now being mined in the vicinity of Lake Superior were discovered, making it impossible for Edison to continue successfully in this undertaking. When he made up his mind to that he went to his financiers, seven in all, most of them far wealthier than he, and said:

"'Gentlemen, I am sorry you are going to lose your money. Any of you or all of you who wish to send me your stock with a statement of its cost to you plus 6 per cent. added for the time you have held it will receive a cheque for that amount.'

"Although it was an unheard-of proposal, they accepted, and Mr. Edison paid each investor in full with interest, although it took practically his entire fortune."

CAFE LICENSE REFUSED

HAMILTON, March 18. (C.P.) — Charles E. Staunton, manager of the James Dwyer estate appeared with a deputation before the Property and License Committee last night, and charged that buildings near Cannon and James streets were a hotbed of vice, occupied by Chinese men, white girls and women, and were the haunt of narcotic drug peddlers. He and other deputants therefore opposed the application of a Chinese to establish a restaurant in that neighborhood. The committee refused the application.

TEMPERANCE TALK AT SUNDAY SCHOOL

Interesting Program Given in Warsaw United Church on Sunday Last.

(Examiner Correspondence)

WARSAW, Mar. 19. — Warsaw United Sunday school have had a short temperance lesson, five to seven minutes every Sunday since the New Year, except the first Sundays of each month, when they had a Missionary program.

Last Sunday was the tenth and last lesson, and the program was much longer. Mrs. Herrington has had charge of these lessons. The day's hymns were all temperance. Mr. Somers, S. S. superintendent led in prayer. The scripture lesson read responsively was from Daniel, chapter one, and verses eight to sixteen. Rufus Payne sang "Dare To Be a Daniel". Cora Crowe told the story of Daniel as a lad refusing the king's meat and applied it to temperance. Kenneth Jenkins recited, "My Body is a Temple." Mrs. J. A. Crowe recited "The Drinking House Over the Way". A group of boys sang "A Band of Boys". Mr. Sargent gave a short temperance talk on safe stimulants. Among his points were that it is never safe to give alcohol without a doctor's prescription. In case of apparent fainting or bleeding or any accident never give alcohol. There are cases where it might prove fatal, especially in cases of bleeding or some forms of unconsciousness.

The regular Sunday school lesson was then taken by classes. There were one hundred and one present. Next Sunday review questions will be given.

ROSLIN, March 19.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Harold E. Welsh on Wednesday afternoon. Seventeen members were present with the president, Mrs. Stanley Carter in the chair.

A contest was given by Mrs. Donald Leslie, "What grandmother missed."

A very interesting talk "Facts about Ontario" was then given by Mrs. Harry Sills.

There were two fancy dress parades. One representing "Comic Erratic Flappers" and the other on "Flappers of 1930" Miss Alice Wilson was given the prize for the dress of 1927, and Miss Hazel Wilson was given the prize for the dress of 1930.

A piano instrumental was given by Mrs. Grantley Burleigh. Plans were made for the April meeting which is to be held at the home of Mrs. S. Carter. The meeting was closed by singing the National Anthem. A dainty lunch was served by Mrs. H. Welsh.

CAN LIFT PIANO ALONE —HAS LOTS OF PEP NOW

"As a piano mover, I can handle a piano all alone since taking Vinol. I gained 33 pounds and lots of new pep and vigor."—Earl Bowers

For 30 years doctors have prescribed Vinol because it contains important mineral elements of iron, calcium and cod liver peptones. The very FIRST bottle brings sound sleep and a BIG appetite. Nervous, worn-out people are surprised how QUICK Vinol gives new life and pep! Tastes delicious. McDermid & Jury, McDermid Drug Store, E. L. Payne Druggist.

FAULTY CHIMNEYS ARE BEING CHECKED

City's Fire Prevention Bureau Plans to Enforce By-law.

Warning is issued by the Fire Prevention Bureau of this city, that a campaign is to be launched in a determined effort to eradicate faulty chimneys on all types of buildings.

Inspections covering the entire city will be undertaken and in all cases where defective chimneys are found notice will be given the owner and tenant, who will be required to undertake the necessary repairs. After the lapse of a reasonable time, proceedings under a city by-law will be instituted against all persons failing to comply with the order.

Fire Chief George Gimblett's annual report for 1929 which was recently submitted to the City Council goes to prove conclusively that chimney fires have predominance over any other kind of hazard. So far this year faulty chimneys and overheated stove pipes have also been responsible for 90 per cent of the calls.

It is a state of affairs which the Chief considers can and is to be remedied and a matter which is to receive prompt and drastic action.

Give Mother more time to live!

3 hours over the tub—only an hour with the Beatty. That's the difference between the old way and the new. The Beatty Electric washer gives mother time to live, time to spend with her children, time to enjoy herself. Time is life. The Beatty does the whole family washing in an hour from table cloths to dusters. It gets the clothes a lovely color, without the need of boiling or any rubbing at all. Even the deep-in dirt, embedded in wrist bands and neck bands, comes out quickly. Part of the secret is the laundry equipment we supply—6 extra pieces with each washer (3 for mother and 3 for the kids). Extra rinse tubs, a bench on wheels to carry them, drainer and hose, driers, iron and ironing table—whatever you need the most. These make a complete washing outfit which save time in rinsing, bluing, time in filling up tubs and emptying, time in drying and ironing and handling the clothes. They save as much time and work as the washer itself. They are free, with every Beatty washer.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

MANY HOUSEWIVES in Peterborough devote so much time to their household duties that they have very little to spend on their wardrobe and hence the responsibilities are shirked.

• • • • • • •

You will notice that gloves, a part of the wardrobe which is very important at this season, bring added responsibilities and must be carefully seen to if the emergencies of the social occasion are to be met in proper style.

• • • • • • •

You can make your gloves look just as fresh and attractive as you desire and if you are one of those women who desire to look well groomed on all occasions, you will spare no effort in making your gloves attractive.

• • • • • • •

In order to give washable kid gloves the more exquisite dry cleaned effect, have a supply of French chalk on hand. This chalk may be purchased in local drug stores and I believe it is very reasonably priced, too

• • • • • • •

The rather hard look given the surface by the application of soap and water is softened, if the gloves are laid in a box of French chalk and some of it is rubbed in by taking the gloves and treating them as if the chalk were soap suds and the process that of washing.

• • • • • • •

After wearing your gloves you will notice they look wrinkled and it is this you must look after. Do not allow the gloves to remain wrinkled and when you wear the gloves again, try to see that the folds with that wearing come different in place from the last.

• • • • • • •

A sprinkling of French chalk between the folds of tissue is a help except where a dark glove is likely to come in contact with it, and hence become marked.

• • • • • • •

Dark gloves are worn a great deal and their smartness appeals to the well dressed woman in this city. And, of course, you will want to keep them looking fresh at all times. A soft brush will aid in their care.

• • • • • • •

And I know you will want to keep your hats spic and span throughout the summer, so that I am going to give you a few hints on how to keep them that way.

• • • • • • •

A white felt hat can be kept fresh by inclosing in a large paper bag and dusting into the bag some powdered French chalk. Hold the bag firmly closed and shake vigorously.

• • • • • • •

After you have done this to your satisfaction, tie a string about the mouth of the bag and make a loop in the string, to hang the bag up by. Before wearing the heat, take it out, shaking it within the bag first.

• • • • • • •

Then put the hat into another paper bag and shake it to get as much of the chalk as possible from it while under cover. Lastly shake the hat out of doors, and brush it with a soft hat brush.

• • • • • • •

If a felt hat is colored, try to match the shade in powder and use this same formula for cleansing. If white French chalk must be used, brush it all out until the original color is restored after the treatment.

• • • • • • •

To restore straw hats with brims that have become mis-shapen steam the hat. Most hats have enough glue in them to stiffen again in the shape one gives them.

• • • • • • •

Brims can be ironed while damp from the steam and be made good as new, and to restore the faded colors, you might use some of the tinting agents which may be bought.

SPRING SUITS GET INTO STEP WITH THEIR MALE ESCORTS

NEW YORK, March 19 (U.P.) — The diversity in spring suits, ranging as they do from soft dressmaker types in three-piece versions, to the mannish tailored treatments, promises to put suits into high. The extent to which women will accept the extreme of the mannish idea for a spring when fashion has expressed herself as chiefly concerned with softer moods is questionable, but there seems to be little doubt that there are many smart women who understand the suit as a type to affect a business-like character entirely opposed to the clothes for the more formal hours.

However the masculine themes may be exploited, and they are scheduled to a fair share of spring business, it is logical to believe that distinguished tailoring will also have a full year.

It is the square and upstanding line of the military silhouette as adopted by English tailors and affected by smart English women which gives the newest phase to mannish tailoring for women this season. The padded shoulders are, of course, the most emphatic feature to promote as giving breadth above and accent to the slimness of waistline and hips.

In the strictly military version, the suit should, of course, have the several button closing, either single or double breasted, and should affect the strictly mannish fabrics in which London is emphasizing blues and black.

The padded shoulder idea, developed in a suit of men's wear worsted with a single button tuxedo silhouette, has created much discussion.

"Padded shoulders" suggest an exaggeration of the natural figure lines and some producers believe that if it becomes popular it may point to a revival of uniformity or a classic type in tailored fashions.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE HOLDS ANNUAL 'AT HOME' SOCIAL

Members Enjoy Jolly Social Evening—Good Musical Program.

DISTRICT NEWS

ROSENEATH, March 19. — (Examiner Correspondence.)— The annual open meeting of the Woman's Institute on Friday evening in the town hall, took the form of an "At Home" when the members and their personal invited friends enjoyed together a most delightful time. The program consisted of games, contests, readings, etc. Ten tables of progressive crokinole were played, the winners being: Lady, Miss McGee of Centenary, who received a silver jewel box, and gentleman's prize was won by George Mouncey, a silver cigarette case. Consolation prizes were given to Mrs. John Baxter and Albert Braithwaite. There were also three tables played by the children, when Lois Talling received a bracelet as first prize and Billy Halstead a Jack-knife. The music during the evening was piano selection, beautifully rendered by Mrs. C. W. Varcoe, Miss Doris Mouncey and Mrs. A. Comfort of Hamilton.

An apple guessing contest and a floral contest added a great deal of pleasure to the gathering.

Mrs. Orrie Varcoe was splendid in her humorous way in describing a few notes on St. Patrick.

The hall was very attractively arranged with green and white decorations and showed both fine art and interest of the committees in charge. Delicious refreshments were served, and the enjoyable evening was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

PAINFUL FEET.

In examining recruits for war service whose feet appeared to be somewhat flat we always had them show us their shoes.

If the shoes were worn on the outer side of the back of the heel, and the outer side of the sole, then we felt that there was really no flat feet.

In walking, the outer side of the back part of the heel strikes the ground first, the outer border of the sole follows, and then the bones in the sole of the foot spread like a fan toward the second joint of the big toe. If you take off your shoe and stocking and watch your foot as you make a step forward you will see that the foot seems to try to grasp hold of the ground.

Now there would be less trouble with the feet if there were fewer joints, but with 7 bones in the ankle, 5 in the soles, and 14 in the toes, with joints between all of them, you can readily see that it is not difficult to get a little strain or sprain of one or more of these joints.

Unfortunately many individuals get the idea at once that if the feet hurts them it must be due to flat feet and they proceed to buy arch supports.

Now pain may occur almost anywhere, in the arch, over the arch, under the arch, ball of the foot, surface of the heel, or outer border of the foot.

If your feet hurt you, before using arch supports try to remove the pain by getting off the feet as much as possible, and bath them in hot water for ten or fifteen minutes, three or four times a day. Follow the hot water with one or two minutes of cold. This increases the circulation, takes away wastes, and helps tone of muscles.

This should be followed by use of adhesive tape or bandage for a week or two. If the pain continues then you would be wise to consult a foot specialist—a real specialist.

If the pain is due to flat feet he may put you on exercises—walking on heels, walking on the toes, walking on the outer border of the feet with inner sides turned up, grasping articles with the toes, and so forth.

If these measures do not correct the condition and relieve pain, then, and not till then, should you get arch supports.

The usual method is to take a plaster cast of your feet, and have arch supports made from the cast.

So if you get to the point where arch supports must be worn, don't be afraid to wear them, as they take some of the jar off the spinal column and brain.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Strict Diets Often Unnecessary.

It is a well known fact that some foods have a strong tendency to produce excessive stomach acidity and consequently indigestion. By omitting from daily meals those foods that experience proves do not agree and limiting the diet to certain tasteless unappetizing foods, stomach troubles may in many instances, be slowly overcome. Nine times in ten, however, indigestion, gas, etc., are due to excessive acidity and the premature souring of food in the stomach. Keep the stomach clean and sweet by freeing it of this extra acid and then sufferers can eat the foods they like best and as much as they want in reason and have no stomach trouble at all. Thousands of people do this daily by merely taking after every meal a little Bisurated Magnesia, which can be had at any good drug store in either powder or tablet form. Bisurated Magnesia instantly neutralizes stomach acids, stops food fermentation and meals digest as naturally and painlessly as in the stomach of a healthy child. Stomach comforts means a lot and most folks like good things to eat. Enjoy them both by taking Bisurated Magnesia your daily after-eating protection.

TALK.

We hear much about "strong silent men", and they are greatly admired in fiction.

But most men great can talk on occasion, and often talk a great deal.

Nobody likes chatterboxes, but the person who can talk intelligently will be listened to, no matter if he talks a great deal.

It has been my good fortune to know a number of interesting persons and to have an opportunity to listen to them.

They talked intimately and at length about matters they understood, and if I did not learn a great deal from them it was my own fault.

Mark Twain, one of the wisest of Americans, used to talk a great deal to his intimates.

His biographer, Albert Bigelow Paine, told me that he was sorry he could not have included everything Mark Twain said in the book. It was most of it worth repeating, and it all would have greatly interested the general reader.

It has been my experience that the person who sits in a corner and makes no contribution to an intelligent conversation has nothing worth while to say.

Naturally one would not expect a Voltaire to take part in idle talk by chatterboxes, but when sensible conversation is going on, those who know how to talk interestingly almost invariably join in.

Do not be afraid to talk, provided you talk on some topic which you understand.

If you understand it better than others, they are always willing to listen to you.

We learn as much by our ears as we do by our eyes.

We are always glad to go to hear some celebrity, chiefly because by his talk he reveals himself.

His features are merely physical. His speech comes out of his mouth, yet it is from his brain, and through speech we get a better idea of what that brain contains than in any other possible way.

Learn to talk well and your talk will not bore people, and you will get no reputation for garrulity.

Refrain from talking much when other people want to talk. But if they show a disposition to listen, which they always will if they are interested, you can talk all you like without fear of making yourself ridiculous.

We are told that silence is golden and speech is silver, but without speech there would be no communication of thought, and without that there would be no civilization.

HAMILTON SEXTET DEFEATS SHAMROCKS ON THE ROUND 9-4; QUALIFIES FOR EASTERN FINAL

Ottawa Beaten in Second Game 6-2 Through Poor Goal-tending.

LAX HOCKEY IN FIRST.

M.A.A.A. and Bearcats Meet To-night to Decide Eastern Canada Champs.

TORONTO, Ont. March 19.—(C.P.)—Hamilton Tigers, Ontario Hockey Association senior champions, recorded another impressive conquest last night by eliminating Shamrocks, Ottawa and district titleholders, from the Allan Cup competition. The score was six to two, and nine to four on the round, as Tigers won the first game at Ottawa three to two. They will now meet either Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, Quebec champions, or Truro Bearcats, Maritime representatives, in the Eastern Canada final.

A burst of scoring broke out in the opening period of last night's game. Ottawa got the first goal and one which tied the teams on the round, less than two minues after the start. Tigers replied with a brace of markers in less than a minute to again take the lead and at the end of the session they had increased their margin five to one on the game. The middle frame was scoreless while each team tallied in the last 20 minutes.

The Shamrock's regular goalkeeper had a distinctly off-night and he was replaced by Jack Cameron starting the second frame. The former Olympic star gave a fine exhibition to hold the Hamilton marksmen to one goal.

To-night M.A.A.A. and Truro will decide which team will meet the Tigers in the final. Montreal won the first of their two game series, two to nothing but failed to establish a clear cut superiority over the Maritime champions, who are one of the strongest sextettes that ever represented the east.

Eastern Final To-night

At Ottawa, the juniors will hold the limelight when West Toronto, Ontario Hockey Association champions, meet Rideaus. Ottawa and district titleholders, in the first of a home and home series in the Eastern Canada final of the Memorial Cup competition. The return is slated for Toronto on Saturday night and the winner on the round will journey west after the Canadian Crown.

GALT BEATS GUELPH IN OVERTIME 6-5

Megaffin Tallies on "Fluke" Goal to Break Third Frame Deadlock.

TORONTO, Ont., March 19 (C.P.).—Galt Terriers, returning to the fine form they displayed earlier in the season, defeated Guelph Maple Leafs, six to five, at Kitchener last night in the first game of the Canadian Hockey League championship final. The second contest will be played at Galt on Thursday night and the third game here on Saturday night. The title goes to the team winning three games. Guelph are playing their home games here on account of poor ice conditions in their own rink.

Exciting hockey was played throughout the game. Both teams adopted the strenuous style, and although the opposing forwards were subjected to severe body-checking, they maintained a fast pace.

Galt scored two quick goals in the last half of the final period to deadlock the count at five-all after the Maple Leafs had the game apparently won. A "fluke" shot from Megaffin's stick which was deflected into the Guelph net, gave the Terriers victory late in the overtime period.

BAY OF QUINTE LEAGUE FORMED

R. A. Elliott Offers Cup For Competition in This Loop.

INTERMEDIATE BALL.

(Quinte Sun, Trenton)

Monday, Robert McKinley received a very interesting letter from R. A. Elliott of Deloro in connection with the baseball situation, and it is published herewith as being of general interest to fans of the game. It will be noticed that "a very fine cup" is available as a token of the Bay of Quinte championship.

The letter follows:

Deloro, Ont., March 12, 1930.

R. McKinley, Trenton.

Dear Sir: I have been absent from Deloro for the past week and am just in receipt of a copy of your letter to W. J. Smith and a copy of Mr. Synder's reply.

I shall indeed be very glad to be present at any organization meeting that you may have. I note the towns mentioned in your letter to Mr. Smith and might say that I think Picton would be interested and would suggest the names of Mr. Church and Mr. Welch, Point Anne (Canada Cement Company) would be interested and would suggest the name of J. H. Legate. Corbyville are also running a ball team and I had a long talk last Fall with George McCrann. Picton, Trenton, Point Anne and Corbyville would make a very nice league and very compact, so that travelling expense would be a minimum.

If a league such as this could be formed and called the Bay of Quinte League, we have at present in Deloro a very fine cup which was donated by Mr. Knox for the championship of the Bay of Quinte League and this trophy could be used.

Possibly from the above information you could start things moving and I will be glad to be present at your organization meeting.

You mentioned the towns of Campbellford, Brighton, Colborne, Warkworth, Hastings and Roseneath. These towns, I think, were in the old league called the Northumberland League.

If four of these towns could be interested, we might possibly operate it in a number of ways. For instance as a B series or as a distinct league, and any assistance that you could give would be very much appreciated.

In closing, may I again say that due to my location in Deloro it is difficult to keep in close contact with what is going on, but I am very interested and willing to do anything within my power to set a revival of Intermediate baseball in the districts you mention.

Yours very truly,
R. A. Elliott.

P.S.—The Alemite Club in Belleville have a very good team and I have tried several times to interest them in O.B.A.A. baseball. If a feeling in the district was to affiliate with the O.B.A.A. they might fall in line. Any correspondence with their club should be addressed to E. Rowsome, General Manager, Alemite Co., Belleville, or Art Young, Superintendent, Alemite Co., Belleville.

Pats Dim Calgary's Hopes of Honors

WINNIPEG, Man., March 19. (By drilled Patricias from Regina, perennial threat to Memorial Cup contenders, dimmed Calgary's hopes for the Canadian Press).—Fleet, high-a Canadian junior hockey championship here last night. In the first of a two-game series in the western semi-finals, Pats skated to a 2 to 0 triumph over the Canadians from the foothills and definitely marched into the limelight of Memorial Cup battle.

Pats will carry their lead into the second game to be played here Thursday night.

LEAFS DROP FINAL GAME

Chicago Black Hawks to Meet Canadiens in Stanley Cup Play-off Series.

COUGARS BEAT PIRATES.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 19. (C.P.) — The Chicago Black Hawks, playing brilliant hockey in the last period last night scored their first victory of the season over the Toronto Maple Leafs, in the closing game of the National Hockey League schedule. The triumph assured Chicago of second place in the American group and battle with the Les Canadiens of Montreal in the Stanley Cup play-off series.

COUGARS BEAT PIRATES.

FORT ERIE, Ont., March 19. (C.P.)—Detroit defeated Pittsburgh here last night in a National League hockey game 4 to 2. The contest was dull until the last three minutes of play, when the Cougars opened up with an attack that netted two goals.

COP PLAY-OFF PLACE.

MONTREAL, March 19. (C.P.) — Montreal Canadiens went into second place of the Canadian section of the National Hockey League here last night by defeating the New York Americans 8 to 3 here. Morenz, flashy centre star of the Canucks, was the outstanding player of the game — equalling the record of five goals scored in one game.

WORLD'S RECORD.

BUENOS AIRES, March 18 (Canadian Press).—What was claimed to be the world's record for distance and permanency in water was established yesterday by the Argentine swimmer, Pedroa Candiotti, who in 65 hours and 54 minutes, swam down river 390 kilometres (about 240 miles).

That distance separates Coya and Santa Fe.

ARSENAL FAVORED TO BEAT HULL CITY

Gunners' Defense Surpasses Record of Opponents to Date.

TORONTO, March 19. — Next Saturday old England will be in the "throes"—meaning that a large percentage of the population will show more or less agitation. It will be English Cup semi-final day. The bare announcement stirs the emotions of soccer fans everywhere. The scenes of the struggles are at Manchester and Leeds for the football association decrees that semi-finals must be played on neutral territory. Three of the teams—Sheffield Wednesday, Huddersfield and Hull City—belong to the North. The other—Arsenal—is the hope of the South.

No one, of course, can say exactly just how many people in the world of sport take a real interest in the battles of next Saturday. Five to ten millions in the Old Land, it is estimated will eagerly await the results, and there must be hundreds of thousands overseas equally interested. The games are the last act in the wild scramble for the greatest of all soccer trophies before the trek to Wembley begins—"Wembley," the magic word that thrills the smallest English lad just learning to play the game. All the reserved seats were sold more than a month ago before the sixth round had been played. The sum of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars was returned by the Football Association to would be spectators at the final on April 26 because the ground is not big enough. Two hundred and fifty thousand spectators want to see the English Cup final with the minimum charge of one dollar. Old England is still the great sport-loving nation it is claimed to be.

The Glamor of Wembley.

It will be a great disappointment to Londoners if Arsenal fails at this crucial stage, but they will roll up in battalions whether or not. The glamour of Wembley has an appeal that cannot be resisted. It is the natural climax of the football season and it does not need a great amount of "ballyhooing."

Arsenal's opponents are Hull City, whose cup prowess has created a sensation. Little was heard about this humble Second Division team until they entered the competition. In two previous seasons they had been knocked out in the first round. In their own group they had done nothing startling. Only 11 games in 29 have been won for a total of 28 points. Their forwards have shown very ordinary form at the nets, for only 42 goals have been scored. Only one team in the league shows a smaller total.

Now comes the Cup and Hull City startles the soccer world by defeating Plymouth Argyle at Plymouth—a team that has fewer goals scored against it than any of 88 playing professional soccer. This was followed by a victory over Blackpool, leading the second division at Hull. Few conceded that Hull would have a chance with Manchester City at Maine Road, but the Second Leaguers astounded the populace with a victory. The sixth round decreed that Hull City must travel to Newcastle. Surely Newcastle would finish Hull's career, it was thought, but the Fishermen forced a draw, and all the world knows what happened in a re-play.

INTERESTING TUSSLE.

TORONTO, Ont., March 19 (C.P.)—Despite the fact it was the final scheduled game of the International Hockey League season, Windsor Bulldogs and Niagara Falls battled determinedly for victory at Niagara Falls last night. The fifth place Bulldogs won decisively by a seven to three count and finished the season within three points of Detroit and a play-off berth. The defeat left the Cataracts where they were, in the cellar.

RANGERS WILL MEET OTTAWA

While Chicago Black Hawks Tangle With Montreal Canadiens on Sunday.

CALDER STATEMENT.

FORUM- Montreal, March 19. — Montreal Canadiens, by defeating the New York Americans here last night, went into second place of the Canadian Section, and will play the Chicago Black Hawks, who finished second in the American Section, a series of home-and-home games, the first to be played at Chicago next Sunday night and the second in Montreal Wednesday, March 26. President Frank Calder announced here last night.

Rangers to Meet Ottawa

The New York Rangers, who finished in third place of the American Section, will play a home-and-home series with Ottawa, third in the Canadian Section, the first game at Ottawa on Thursday and the second at New York on Sunday, March 23, Mr. Calder stated.

Although Montreal Canadiens, by their win last night, tied in points scored with their intracity rivals, the Maroons, the Flying Frenchmen are forced to take second place.

National Hockey rules state that if two teams are tied in the number of points earned, whether for first, second or third place, the team which has won the greatest number of games during the season automatically leads the other. Each team has played 4 games, and out of these Maroons have won 23, lost 16, and drawn 5. Canadiens have won 21, lost 14, and drawn 9.

More Goals

That the clamor of the hockey fans for more goals was fully realized in the N.H.L. season, which ended last night, can be seen from the fact that during the campaign just ended the ten teams scored an even total of thirteen hundred tallies. This is more than double the number scored during the previous season, only 641 goals being counted then. During the season of 1927-28 the total goals scored in the Calder loop was 845.

Commission Approves New Foul Blow Rule

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 19. —(C.P.)— The New York State Athletic Commission turned loose a murderous body barrage to-day on the evil of fouls and foul fighters.

Beginning to-day, the commissioners decided that every puncher who losses here on a foul in the future will be automatically suspended for two months for his first offense, four months for the second and six for the third. A fourth offender will receive punishment analgous to the famous Baumes law for New York criminals—a life sentence.

Furthermore, gladiators who foul will be paid in the future only for the completed rounds before disqualification.

Charlie Curtiss, the energetic secretary of the East Peterborough League, will represent that flourishing loop.

The local delegates will bear an official invitation from the Peterborough City Council and every branch of sport here, to the provincial baseball organization to hold their 1931 annual meeting in Peterborough.

If the O.B.A.A. accept this courteous invitation to assemble here next year, then they will be graciously recognizing Peterborough's outstanding position in the amateur baseball world, and also the important role that Eastern Ontario plays in the association. It is no secret that this city is a baseball stronghold and that the game thrives here as it does in few cities in the province. Last year a similar invitation was conveyed to the O.B.A.A., but St. Catharines was chosen. It is more than likely that Peterborough will be the 1931 meeting place.

A message hot off the grapevine wireless has it that the C.G.E. Tool Room team, worthy champs of the City Hockey League, have a yearning to participate in faster company next winter, and they have gone so far as to discuss the ambitious project of placing their outfit in the Intermediate O.H.A. The Toolmakers have been prominent in City League hockey for many years, and in the past dozen seasons have earned the title about eight times. But the brand of hockey required in Intermediate O.H.A. circles is another thing. One Intermediate team here this winter did not set the province on fire and its financial worries were considerable.

LACROSSE POPULAR IN UNITED STATES.

While lacrosse is languishing in Canada and in some parts of the Dominion is almost extinct, it is annually attracting legions of fresh devotees in the United States and the British Isles. The American colleges have adopted this virile Canadian game with relish, and have raised it to a major sport. The game is sweeping through the schools of the whole Eastern States, and in some colleges as many as two hundred aspirants have turned out for the varsity team, and at least twenty-five universities will be represented in scheduled matches this spring. Oxford and Cambridge will again combine to send a lacrosse team against the best teams in the States.

Port Arthur and Trail play to-night and on Friday night at the head of the Great Lakes in the final round of the Western Canada play-downs for the Allan Cup and the Canadian championship. The Port Arthur team has figured most impressively in amateur hockey since the war and their record can not be approached by any other club. On three occassions, in 1925, '26 and '29, the Thunder Bay champions won the Allan Cup and Dominion title, and they are being picked to turn back the Trail Smoke-Eaters, British Columbia title-holders, as they defeated the same team last year.

Five clubs remain in the hunt for the Allan Cup, two in Western Canada and three in the east, and the latter trio will be reduced by one this evening. In Montreal to-night the M.A.A.A. team play their second game with the Truro Bearcats. The Winged Wheelers have a two-goal lead and in all probability will emerge into the Eastern Canada final against Hamilton, O.H.A. champs.

NATIONAL LEAGUE PLAY OFF SERIES.

— The National Hockey League finished its regular schedule last night and six teams will now prepare for the post-season series for the championship. From a local standpoint the failure of the Leafs to play winning hockey was a big disappointment. Toronto hockey specialists have yet failed to put their finger on the weakness in the Leafs' machine but an effort will be made to eliminate the trouble, whatever it was, by replacing Connie Smythe as manager of the team next season.

The most remarkable thing to be recorded for posterity in the 1929-3 season is the remarkable winning record of the Boston Bruins. Last night the Bruins ended the season by trouncing the New York Rangers, 9-2, to make the world's champions' 38th victory in 44 games, the best record ever made in professional hockey.

SMELTERS NOT IN SENIOR RANKS THIS YEAR.

Due to the fact that baseball in Deloro in the past few years had ascended from intermediate to senior brand, it is naturally a keen disappointment to the fans of the Marmora-Deloro district that this summer the Smelters will not again be contenders for the highest baseball honors.

Why, then, asks a discerning Deloro fan, should not lovers of the game turn attention to the splendid young ball-playing material which cavorts in the Centre Hastings district? These lads have keenly observed the Elliott-Regan aggregations displaying their stuff. They have observed much inside knowledge of the game annually since Deloro snatched the Intermediate title from Bridgeburg at Oshawa in 1926.

Certainly in Marmora and Deloro there is much promising talent which, properly coached and given similar backing as their elders received, should make a name for Junior baseball in the Marmora district. Good opposition should be forthcoming from Tweed, Madoc, Belleville and other neighboring centres, and a healthy league might easily be established.

COTE AND BURKE SIGN CONTRACTS

Last of Toronto Leaf Baseball Holdouts Accept Terms.

NO SALARY CHANGES.

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., March 19 —All is serene in the camp of the Leafs. As expected, "Bucky" Burke and Pete Cote, last of the holdouts, gave up yesterday and were given back their uniforms. They took prominent parts in the morning's sparkling workout and yesterday afternoon signed their contracts. Jim Dunn, Vice-President of the Leafs, and Manager O'Neill loomed on and everybody appeared to be tickled pink when it was all over.

No change was made in the original contracts, so Jim Dunn said, the players accepting the club's terms, but nevertheless Burke and Cote seemed pleased with things in general and were as happy as a couple of school boys on a holiday as they hopped to the duties at hand this morning with bubbling enthusiasm. They were mighty glad to be back at work.

Now with Burke and Cote apparently pacified Steve O'Neil can begin developing an infield system, the absence of the two players from the practices the past week having retarded progress in that end of the team.

It will take some time for Burke to get down to playing weight, but even in present condition he is a lot better than some players who would take his job, as he quickly demonstrated to the doubting Thomasses to-day. Cote does not need quite as much work as his keystone pal to put him fit for the season's tolling.

The hitting of Joe Harris, Bob Petrie, Harry Davis, Fred Bedore and Art Ruble brought much favorable comment from Lol Solman, Jim Dunn and Harold Marriott as they watched for the first time their team work out. Harris rapped the ball far and on a line, and the others were not far behind the veteran in power shown. Altogether the Toronto owners were more or less surprised to find the players so far advanced in condition and warmly congratulated Manager O'Neill.

RED SOX MUST NOT BE TAKEN AS 1930 SET-UP

Boston Confident That Real Team Will Be Built on Foundation of Present Machine.

THIRTY-SEVEN PLAYERS.

President and Pilot Confident Reconstruction Program Safely Launched.

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 19.—(A.P.)—The Boston Red Sox may not win the American League championship in 1930, but they will win some games from the team that does capture the pennant and make themselves very disagreeable during the season.

The Sox have a long, hard baseball road to travel, but they may be said to be definitely on the way. President Bob Quinn and Manager Heine Wagner are convinced that the reconstruction program is finally launched. They believe that the comeback trail will have its start this year; that with a little luck the team in the making will annoy the other clubs no end, and an even more daring hope— that upon this foundation will be built a baseball machine capable of restoring to Boston the glory that was hers when the Red Sox not only dominated pennant races, but World Series as well.

Of thirty-seven players in the camp thirty-one are under thirty years of age. Eighteen are not yet twenty-five. The oldest player is Milton Gaston, a hard pitcher to beat, who is thirty-two, and the youngest Joe Cicero, a boy with a wallop in his bat, who is only nineteen. The club promises, however, to be well balanced, with a good mixture of the experience of age and the enthusiasm of youth. The pitchers have been around long enough to know what it is all about, and a raw youngster in the line-up will have an old head in baseball close beside him.

LEAFS CIRCLING FIELD IN DAILY TRAINING GRIND

These are times of stress and toil for baseball players, rookie and regular, and mightly little fun. The old timers find little novelty in the conditioning campaign, and the youngsters are usually so wrapped up in warry that they hardly know what it is all about. It is not all milk and honey, as is generally imagined, and it's a good bet that the athletes are tickling when unkinking time is over. Phil Edwards Again Leads 60-yard Sprint

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 19.—(C.P.)— Phil Edwards, running under the colors of the Hamilton (Ont.) Olympic Club, won the final of the 600-yard run in the National A.A.U., indoor title games at Madison Square Garden last night in 1.13 6-10 seconds. Eddie Roll of Newark A.C., was second and Eddie Blake of Boston A.A. was third.

O.B.A.A. BULLETIN.

The executive of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association will meet on Saturday afternoon, March 22, at 1.30 at the Carls Rite Hotel, Toronto.

One of the important amendments to the constitution to come before the annual meeting at St. Catharines, on April 5: That a new series be organized to be known as Intermediate Section B. This series will take care of all Intermediate Leagues in the smaller towns and rural districts who feel they are not quite strong enough to compete against the Intermediate League winners in the larger centres. No doubt the organization of this series will creat greater interest, and keen competition in the districts who have not the surplus of players to draw from that the cities and towns may have.

Keeping Air Cool On Trains In Summer

The Santa Fe Railway has been experimenting for several years with the problem of keeping the air cool in club, dining and sleeping cars, during the summer season.

W. J. Black, passenger traffic manager, states that at last the problem is solved. As a starter, contract has been closed for early installation of reconditioned air, cooled by a patented process, on dining cars of The Chief, the Santa Fe's extra fast and extra fare flyer.

This same process is successfully used at El Garces, one of the Fred Harvey station hotels, as well as in a number of large metropolitan hotels and theatres. Never before has it been adopted on transcontinental trains. There is absolutely no draft, the cool air being brought in overhead, with a resultant uniform temperature of 65 to 70 degrees Fahr. The Santa Fe slogan of "cool summer way" now takes on a new meaning and this added comfort will appeal to extra fare travelers en route to or from California.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SNOW FLOWERS

"Don't forget what day this is," called Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy to Uncle Wiggily as the rabbit gentleman hopped down the front steps of his hollow stump bungalow one morning to go adventuring. "Don't forget!"

"No, I won't," answered Mr. Longears, hardly thinking of what he was saying because he was wondering, so hard, about what kind of an adventure he might have. "I'll remember!"

And it wasn't until some time after that, when the rabbit gentleman was in the middle of an adventure, that he thought of what Nurse Jane had called to him as he hopped away.

First I will tell you about Uncle Wiggily's adventure, then I will tell you what Nurse Jane didn't want him to forget and lastly I shall tell you about the snow flowers.

The rabbit gentleman was hopping along over the fields and through the woods, now and then skipping across patches of snow which, he hoped, were the last flakes of the winter storms.

"I knew you wouldn't forget."

And then, all of a sudden, just when Uncle Wiggily was whistling a jolly tune through his pink, twinkling nose, all of a sudden out from behind a mulberry bush withouth any leaves for the silk worms to eat, out jumped the fox.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the Fox. "You're early to-day, Mr. Longears!"

"I wish I had been late!" thought the rabbit gentleman when he saw who it was "I wish I hadn't met you for I know what is going to happen! I'll be nibbled, I'm afraid."

"Yes, you are early, but not too early," growled the Fox, "for I am very hungry!"

The Fox walked a little closer to the rabbit gentleman and Uncle Wiggily was wondering what he could do to get away, for he didn't dare run, knowing the moment he did that the Fox would leap on him and bite him when, all of a quickness, Mr. Longears saw a big, brown rough cone from a pine tree lying on the ground.

As quick as a wink Uncle Wiggily picked up the cone, which was as rough as a nutmeg grater and, holding it out to the Fox, the rabbit said:

"Smell that!"

"What is it, a snow flower?" asked the Fox, for there was some snow near that place. "Oh, I love flowers! I'll smell that one and then I'll nibble you!"

But before the Fox had a chance to smell the pine cone and find out that it wasn't a flower Uncle Wiggily rubbed the sharp, rough thing like a nutmeg grater on the nose of the Bad Chap.

"Oh, wow! Oh, jow! Oh, Station HOWL!" yelled the Fox and his nose hurt him so that tears came into his eyes. And when his eyes were filled with tears he couldn't see to bite Uncle Wiggily so away ran the rabbit gentleman as fast as he could.

"My! It's lucky I found the pine cone and scratched the nose of the Fox with it!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily when he was safe in the woods. "This was my lucky day—my lucky day—day—Ha! What was it Nurse Jane said to me as I left home? She told me not to forget what day this was. I'm not likely to. It's Tuesday—and yet she wouldn't have wanted me to remember just that. It must be something else. Oh, I know! It's my wife's birthday and Nurse Jane didn't want me to forget to bring Mrs. Longears some flowers! It's lucky I remembered!"

Uncle Wiggily started to look around for some blossoms, but none could be see. It was getting late and almost dark. And in this part of Woodland near the Orange Ice Mountains there were no stores where a rabbit could buy flowers for his wife's birthday.

"Dear me! What am I going to do?" thought Uncle Wiggily. "My wife will be so disappointed if I don't bring her some blossoms for her birthday. Yet where can I find any now? If it were nearer spring, or summer—Ha! Wait a moment! What was it the Fox said about snow flowers? I wonder if flowers ever grow under the snow?"

"Of course they do!" cried a voice behind the rabbit. It was the March Wind speaking out of the air like the radio. "Dig away the patch of snow," went on the wind. "Beneath it you will find some of the earliest flowers of the year—the trailing arbutus. It grows in the warm leaves under the snow!"

"Thanks!" said the rabbit. Quickly he dug with his paws and there, under the snow, were the tiny pink and white blossoms of the arbutus, their sweet, spicy perfume scenting the cold air. And when Uncle Wiggily took these snow flowers home to his wife she said:

"How kind you are! I knew you wouldn't forget my birthday!"

"Of course I wouldn't!" said Uncle Wiggily, winking at Nurse Jane. "But it's lucky I scratched the nose of that Fox! Ha! Ha!"

Home Has More Danger Than Savages of Brazil

JOHN J. WHITEHEAD, explorer and lecturer, has just returned from eight months in the jungles of South America, where he was searching for traces of the lost Colonel Fawcett and his son.

Dangerous as he found the jungle, he encountered a worse danger at home. But let him tell it.

"One of the great problems of a trip of this kind is keeping in healthy condition. When we started, some of the members of the party had laxatives with them, but made wise by experience I carried Nujol. All too quickly my stock ran out. Soon I was in bad shape—what with a diet of rice and beans, lacking vitamins and green vegetables.

"When we finally got back to civilization, entertained first in Brazil and later in the United States, I became positively ill. Severe stomach pains and poor elimination made me realize that Nujol would again prove the reliable, trusty keeper of health. Sure enough, with the first bottle the trouble disappeared.

Don't think Nujol is a medicine. It is as tasteless and colorless as clear water. It brings you, however, what your body needs like any other machine—lubrication. Just as a good bath washes our bodies clean, Nujol sweeps away, easily and normally, those internal bodily poisons (we all have them) that make us feel dull and headachy and sick. Nujol cannot hurt even a little baby; it forms no habit; it contains not one single drug. Doctors and nurses use it themselves and tell you to use it, if you want to be well.

Take Nujol every night for two weeks and prove to yourself how happy and bright and full of pep you can be, if your body is internally clean. Get a bottle today at any drug store. It costs but a few cents, and makes you feel like a million dollars. Start traveling the health-road to success and happiness—this very day!

C.G.E. SOCIETY PLANS TO HOLD FLOWER SHOW

Resolution Unanimously Accepted By Directors at Recent Meeting.

AUGUST 14-15-16.

Huge Increase in Club Membership Develops During Past Year.

A three day flower show complete in every detail will be held this year by the C. G. E. Horticultural Society which will give the flower lovers throughout the city as well as the members of this organization an opportunity of exhibiting. This suggestion put forward at the regular meeting on Tuesday night was unanimously accepted by the executive who hope to make this show one of the highlights of a banner season.

Last year this society had a very successful season and staged a gladiolus growing contest among the members which created a great deal of interest as well as stimulating keen competition. The membership has increased this year to such an extent that the executive felt that the only practical means of accommodating all of the members would be an extensive flower show which would embody every feature of a major show of this type.

In August

Three hundred dollars will be given away in door prizes at this exhibition which will be held on August 14-15-16 while the prize list which is shown below has been arranged so that every person who is a member of the C. G. E. Social and Athletic Club will be permitted to exhibit while three open classes invite outsiders to prepare for the event. A package of Phlox Drummondi will be given to each member of the horticultural society with specified instructions regarding time of planting and other particulars regarding the competition for which these seeds are intended. These flowers when shown will constitute a special exhibit open only to the members.

Seeds From England

The order for seeds placed by the secretary of the club on the Ryder Seed Co. in England should arrive inside of ten days and members will be notified when they may obtain their order. Another feature which should interest society members is the fact that Mr. A. E. Prest and W. H. Young will be able to secure gladiola bulbs at a reduction of twenty per cent over the market price and at the present time have a list of the various varieties in their possession.

At a later date a complete prize list will be circulated and in the meantime C. G. E. employees who desire any information on the flower show may obtain it from any of the following members of the committee in charge: A. E. Prest, W. H. Young, A. L. Callander, N. E. Crowe, George East, Chris. Jay, George Land, H. Wilford, F. C. Roberts, Bruce Law, H. Darling or J. Pilling.

The following is a proposed list of the different classes:

THE FAMILY ALBUM—STUDS By GLUYAS WILLIAMS

(Copyright, 1930, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

H. C. STABLER IS LAID TO REST

Rev. J. E. J. Millyard Conducts Service at Residence and Grave.

LARGELY ATTENDED.

The funeral of the late H. C. Stabler, which was held yesterday, fittingly terminated a lifetime of worthwhile and honest endeavour, when a representative gathering of citizens with whom he had been associated in a business and social capacity, paid marked tribute to his memory, turning out in such large numbers that it was found impossible to accommodate them all at the service at the deceased's late residence.

The Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, who conducted the service spoke feelingly of his personal relations with Mr. Stabler, which had always been of the most friendly nature. The deceased gentleman, he said, was a man who had made a real success of life. He started out in a modest way and while prosperity is not always a true test of a man's value to society, still it possesses a certain significance. In Mr. Stabler's case no proper appraisal of is services to the community could be made without taking into consideration that he had made a success of life from a wordly standpoint.

Success had not spoiled him in any way. He was always possessed of a quiet, unassuming and humble nature—success had not tended to make him proud and ostentatious nor had it made him mean and miserly. His generous spirit and helpfulness and numerous worthwhile contributions to society were well remembered. He was a true Christian man, having experienced definite religious experiences which he never intruded on anybody but of which he was never ashamed.

He was not only a Christian, proceeded the reverend speaker, but was a churchman who sincerely believed that the church afforded a means of giving service to humanity. To church work he gave freely and his services to George street church in particular were numerous.

The preacher referred to the various offices which the late Mr. Stabler had held in this church in past years and at the time of his death, and added that as a mark of recognition the board called a special meeting and placed a resolution of appreciation on the church books also appointing four members of the board to represent George Street church at the funeral. The representatives thus chosen were: S. R. Armstrong, G. C. Carruthers, F. Brownscombe and F. McFadden.

The bearers were Messrs. S. R. Armstrong, F. Brownscombe, Alex. Stewart, H. G. Walters, Wm. J. Henry and T. M. McFadden.

The family mourners were the late Mr. Stabler's one surviving brother, William, of this city, and numerous nephews and nieces. Elizabeth Nicholls, who was the deceased's housekeeper for several years was also present at the funeral along with a countless host of other intimate friends.

Floral tributes were numerous and as the cortege moved off for Little Lake cemetery a long line of automobiles conveyed the large gathering to the graveside, where the assembly stood silently and reverently, bareheaded, under the grey March sky as the casket was lowered to its final resting place.

Restorative Treatment For Nervous Men

"Coming from a source of unquestioned authority on ailments of men, it is presumed to be infallible, while the profession generally endorse the ingredients and prescribe them. The following formula is highly efficient in loss of strength, nervous exhaustion, melancholia, anxiety, worry, dizziness, heart palpitation, trembling limbs, insomnia, thinness, cold extremities, tired "all in" feeling, and general inability to do normal everyday duties—upon which depend the success and happiness of every man's life.

Instructions for obtaining and using this treatment are simple and definite. A physician's prescription is no longer necessary, because the tablets do not contain any dangerous or habit-forming drugs. Just ask Bond or your druggist for Double Strength Erbac Tablets in sealed packages, with full directions for home use. Each package contains a 30 day treatment—which in most instances, is more than enough to prove the value of a vigorously strong and healthy body, with abundant nerve force and vitality."—J. C. G.

ARRIVAL OF NEW AMBASSADOR IS DELAYED BY FOG

Sir Ronald Lindsay Freely Gives Views on Many Subjects to U. S. Press.

NOT A TEETOTALER.

Wishes Time to Look Around Before Speaking on Embassy Permit Question.

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 19. (By Ken Clark, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent). — Sir Ronald and Lady Lindsay left for Washington to-day. The New British Ambassador to the United States was delayed aboard the Aquitania at New York for a whole day because of a flitting heavy fog which filled the harbor and made it dangerous to move the bulk of the liner through the ferry lanes and shipping.

Sir Ronald underwent this first catechizing by the United States press while the Aquitania lay at anchor in the fog. Contrary to expectations he frankly exposed his views upon such weightly matters as disarmament and the unemployment situation in Great Britain and other matters, thus demonstrating what he claimed for himself in a prepared statement to know "something about United States' ways and United States' likes and dislikes."

This knowledge was most clearly shown forth in his candid admission that he was not a tee-totaler and had not yet decided what to do about continuing or discontinuing Sir Esme Howard's determination not to issue any further permits for his staff at the embassy to import liquor. Replying to questions on this point he said, "It's not fair to plunge right into it. Whatever I do I'll be criticized. I think it is only reasonable to be allowed to look around first."

JOHN IRELAND INJURES HAND

Hall's Bridge Resident Has Hand Badly Lacerated While Piling Wood.

JOSEPH HARRIS INJURED

HALL'S BRIDGE, March 19.—(Examiner Correspondence). — John Ireland, whilst engaged with Harry Shearer, sustained a severe injury to his left hand on Thursday last. His hand was badly crushed when some cord wood, which he was handling, fell on his hand. He was rushed to Dr. Willis' office and it was found to be a fracture of the main bone of the hand. It was treated and Mr. Ireland is now able to get about, but he will probably be disabled for a few weeks.

Also Injures Hand.

A second accident occurred on Tuesday to Joseph Harris whilst he was cutting cord wood for Benjamin Irwin. Mr. Harris sustained severe injuries to his right hand. Mr. Irwin brought him immediately to Dr. Willis' office, but the injuries being too severe to be treated locally, he was taken to Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, where he is now being treated by Dr. H. M. Yelland. This is the second injury which Mr. Harris has sustained to his right hand

JESUIT MARTYRS TO BE CANONIZED

Favorable Vote on Merits of Two Miracles Places Canadian Saints on Calendar.

TORTURED BY IROQUOIS.

VATICAN CITY, March 19. (C.P.) The congregation of rites yesterday voted favorably on the merits of two miracles which had been proposed as part of the grounds for the canonization of the Canadian martyrs which is to be effected in June. It is necessary for canonizing that two major miracles be proved together with the quality of heroism in death.

With the canonization of eight Canadian martyrs in June, North America will have its first saints in the calendar of the church. All eight of the intrepid men who carried the gospel to the heathen suffered death by torture at the hands of the Iroquois, inveterate enemies of the early French in Canada. Jean de Brebeuf was the most prominent. The others were Isaac Joques, Gabriel Lalemant, Charles Garnier, Anthony Daniel Noel Chabnel, Rene Goupil and John de la Lalande.

Lord Balfour, Great Statesman, is Dead

NOTED BRITISHER PASSES QUIETLY IN HIS 82ND YEAR

Most Famous Incident Was His Note Renouncing All England's Post War Claims.

HAD WONDERFUL MEMORY.

Whole Nation United in Expressing Regret and Paying Tribute.

WOKING, Surrey, England, March 19. (C.P.) — The Earl of Balfour, the veteran British statesman, died here at 8.45 a.m., to-day, in a room at the home of his brother, the Hon. Gerald Balfour. A window at his bedside overlooked one of the most beautiful scenes in Surrey.

The end came peacefully to the statesman, who was in his 82nd year. He had been distressingly ill for a long time with laryngitis, and came here after an improvement in his condition to convalesce. He had several setbacks however and was never able to return to his home at Whittinghame, Prestonkirk, East Lothian.

Great Parliamentarian Career.

From the time he entered Parliament in 1874, until the closing years of his life, he figured as an important factor in British politics.

He was most famous, perhaps for the so-called Balfour note in which Great Britain renounced all post war claims in continental Europe, both from her allies and Germany, beyond what was needed to pay her own debt to the United States, and by the Balfour declaration of British policy in Palestine, which set that country aside as a home for repatriated Jews.

Premier MacDonald, informed almost at once of the Earl's death, declared: "It is the end of a long, useful life and the whole nation will unite in expressing its regret and in paying its tribute"

The Earl was 81 years old last July, and he played tennis right up to that birthday. A most notable characteristic was an almost unlimited capacity to remember. He frequently astonished friends with recollections of the most trivial incidents in his long career.

Arthur James Balfour was created the first Earl of Balfour in 1922, and holds besides the title, Viscount Traprain of Whittinghame.

King Sends Regrets.

The King sent the following message to Gerald Balfour:

"The death of Lord Balfour will evoke throughout the Empire and in many other parts of the world feelings of deep sorrow which the Queen and I fully share. It is a national loss of a great statesman, the last of Queen Victoria's ministers. I shall treasure his memory as a life-long friend, a great and charming personality, a wise and trusted counsellor."

When the end came Balfour was writing the finish pages of his autobiography in which he revealed the thoughts and opinions of the scholar all the world ever knew as "A. J."

The Earl of Balfour is succeeded by his brother Gerald, at whose home he died. Lord Balfour was created an Earl and Viscount Traprain after the Washington Conference in 1921 and 1922. He was also made a Knight of the Garter, but seldom afterwards appeared in public roles.

He was President of the British Academy from 1921 to 1928 but his time was given largely to his autobiography. His last State duty was attendance as Lord President of the Council at the Privy Council held last May 10, at Craigwell House, Bognor. The King then signed the document dissolving Parliament and bringing about the general election which returned Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald into power.

SLASHING ATTACK LAUNCHED UPON HON. DR. FORBES GODFREY IN CLOSING OF BUDGET DEBATE

Liberal Leader Charges Minister With Abusing His Position.

DEMANDS INVESTIGATION.

Amendment to Ontario Budget is Defeated By 18 Votes to 87.

TORONTO, Ont., March 19 (C.P.)—Ringing down the curtain on the Budget debate of the first session of the Eighteenth Legislature of Ontario, the Liberal group stole the spotlight of interest late yesterday, when W. E. N. Sinclair, its leader, charged a Government Minister, Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, with abuse of his position as head of a department and also demanded an investigation of allegations of misuse of Northern Development funds.

Answered by Premier

Coming with unexpected suddenness, the Liberal attack, in the dying hours of the debate, captured the attention of packed galleries. His attack was picked up on his conclusion by Hon. Harry C. Nixon, Progressive Leader, and answered when Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Government Leader, stated that his charge against the Northern Development Branch would be "looked into."

The Premier's closing address conveyed the announcement that "Power is coming from the St. Lawrence and that, we hope, in the near future."

Ontario is in the market for all the power it can buy at reasonable prices, whether it is generated in the Province or not, the Premier added. Power is being sold more cheaply now than it will be in 10 years and future industries of Ontario are going to be protected by the provision of power for their needs.

The Premier denounced attacks upon the Government's highway administration, flailed members who had called its taxation a direct burden.

CHILDREN'S AID SEEKS DAMAGES

Will Co-operate With Crown in Action Against Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gould, Vanessa.

GIRL STILL IN HOSPITAL.

BRANTFORD, Ont., March 19. — (C.P.) — The Norfolk Children's Aid Society, in a statement issued to-day, said it had been agreed at a special meeting to instruct the society's solicitor to present a claim for damages against Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gould of Vanessa, regarding the Society's ward, 16-year-old Annie Matthews, "with power to commence any proceedings which he thinks possible, and that the Society co-operate to the fullest extent with the Crown in any criminal proceedings which should be taken against Mrs. Earl Gould."

Mrs. Gould is at present under arrest and awaiting trial on a charge of doing grievous bodily harm to the Matthews girl, who was placed by the Society with Mr. and Mrs. Gould March 9, 1929. Until two months ago, the statement said, the Gould home had been visited four times and found satisfactory by the Society's agents.

The girl is at present in hospital suffering from the effects of alleged maltreatment during the past two months.

GLASSEY, LIBERAL WHIP

LONDON, Eng., March 19. (C.P.)—Alec Ewart Glassey, Member of Parliament for East Dorset since last year, has been appointed Chief Liberal Whip in succession to Sir William Edge. Sir William resigned this position after voting against the Liberal Parliamentary Leader in a division in the House of Commons recently in which the Government was sustained by a narrow margin.

Crash Victim Felt His Doom Was Near

ST. JOHN, N.B., March 19 (Canadian Press). — Shocked by the tragic death of Herve Simoneau, of Montreal, Canadian Airways pilot killed in the mail plane crash at North Kingston, Ont., on Tuesday, friends here express the opinion that Simoneau had a premonition of impending disaster.

He was in charge of a mail plane which made a forced landing at Riverside near here one month ago to-day, and some time after the plane landed it burst into flames and was destroyed while the pilot was ashore.

Simoneau remarked, gloomily, at that time: "This is my second mishap since the New Year. It looks as if my luck is running out."

Simoneau was well known both in St. John and Moncton, as he had been stationed at both these points for some weeks.

SNELL URGES IN U.S. HOUSE ST. LAWRENCE DEEPENING

WASHINGTON, March 19. (C.P.)—After a conference with President Hoover yesterday, Chairman Snell of the House of Rules Committee, said he urged consideration of a proposal for extending the St. Lawrence waterway from Lake Ontario to Ogdensburg, New York, to a depth of 27 feet.

He added the Canadian Government was "willing to go to any expense to deepen the channel to 27 feet on its part of the river.

GIRL IS KIDNAPPED

HAMILTON, Ont., March 19 (C.P.)—Police are conducting an extensive search for Betty Miller, aged five, adopted daughter of Llewellyn Dandie, who was kidnapped yesterday as she walked home from school.

When last seen, the child was talking to a middle aged man a few blocks from the school.

POPE PROTESTS PERSECUTION BY SOVIET RUSSIA

Large Choir Chanting Slavic Hymns Creates Impression of Throngs.

VATICAN CITY, March 19 (C.P.)—Pope Pius XI, entered St. Peter's Basilica, the largest church in Christendom, this forenoon and said a Mass of protest and expiation for the religious persecution and the anti-religious movements in Russia.

A great crowd heard him, and listened to a large choir of Russians, Orthodox Greeks and Lithuanians chant Slavic hymns. The unexpected presence of the Russian choir produced the most profound impression on the throng inside the Basilica. The regular choir, composed of Seminarians of many nations, first sang the "Miserere." Then, after a pause, the Russian choir chanted without accompaniment their hymns asking God for help after having been driven out of their own country.

The Pontiff entered St. Peter's shortly after ten a.m., and received a tremendous ovation. A score of Cardinals accompanied him.

Among the ecclesiatics present was the Archbishop William Forbes of Ottawa, Ont., accompanied by Father O'Toole. Many plain clothes men circulated around the cathedral to preclude any incident. The cathedral doors were closed after the Pope entered.

The ceremony, announced some six weeks ago, was attended by representatives of all the Slavonic races, and by people of every Catholic country. It evolved with all the elaborate ritual attendant upon a Papal Mass. The great crowd of worshippers, estimated at 70,000, gathered long before the hour set for the Pontiff's arrival, broke into frenzied cheering the minute he appeared.

TWO YOUNG BANK BANDITS CAUGHT

Eastview Police Nab One Youth Leaving City—Both Readily Confess.

LOOT RECOVERED.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 19.—(Canadian Press).—Two young men in their early twenties were arrested early this morning as the bandits who held up the Canadienne Nationale Banque in the suburb of Eastview last Saturday. The youths taken into custody gave their names as Henry Kipp, aged 21, no fixed abode and Charles Charlebois, 20, who was staying at a Cumberland street rooming house. Police said they recovered more than $6,000 of the approximate haul of $7,000.

Chief Robert Manion of the Eastview police, arrested one of the youths as he was attempting to leave town. The other was arrested at the rooming house at 3 o'clock this morning. Hidden under the bed, Chief Manion said, was a valise containing the money. The pair readily confessed to the hold-up the chief said.

WILLIAM STEWART FACES CHARGE OF ABDUCTION

Five-Year-Old Hamilton Girl Found By Police—Man Appears in Police Court.

HAMILTON, Ont., March 19 (C.P.).—William Stewart has been charged with abduction in connection with the disappearance yesterday of a five-year-old girl while she was on her way to school.

Llewellyn Dandie reported the child known as Betty Dandie, missing yesterday, and a search was made for her. To-day she was found at Stewart's home and the abduction charge against him followed.

Police state that the child is Mary E. Miller, whose father gave her into the keeping of Stewart after her mother's death, Stewart being her uncle by marriage. Some time later Stewart gave the child to Mr. Dandie. Her father, who was living in the States, recently learned of this and is said to have come here and remonstrated with Stewart, as a result of which he is alleged to have taken her to his home yesterday.

Unrepresented by counsel, Mr. Stewart entered a plea of guilty to the abduction charge when arraigned by Magistrate Burbidge to-day. He was remanded until Thursday.

British Are Dealing With French and Italian Delegates in London Only.

LONDON, March 19 (By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—France and Italy still remain deadlocked at the Naval Conference. Conversations and negotiatons so far, it is intimated, have definitely failed to produce any solution of their problem, and no real step towards agreement is now expected until the return to London on Saturday of M. Tardieu, French Premier and delegation chief.

Meanwhile the air is filled again with rumors of imminent breakdown.

Denies Statements

To-day's communications from the conference were largely concerned with denials. An official British spokesman qualified as "absolutely and gratuitously untrue," the story printed in London that Prime Minister Macdonald had taken Colonel Stimson, the American delegation head, to task for giving a misleading impression about the negotiations between the United States and Japan. The British also describe as incorrect a statement published in Paris today that Mr. Macdonald was using the British Ambassador at Rome as a medium of parley with Mussolini.

"We are dealing with the French and Italian delegations in London, and nowhere else," said the British spokesman.

The Franco-Italian deadlock arises from the Italian claim to naval parity with France and their refusal to submit the figures of Italy's program apart from parity figures.

Most of the overseas delegates are making tentative arrangements to sail about the middle of April.

BRITISH HOUSES RECESS IN HONOR TO LORD BALFOUR

Premier MacDonald Moves Adjournment When Commons Assembles For Day's Work.

LORDS ALSO ADJOURN.

Tributes Will Be Paid By Leaders of All Parties in House of Commons.

LONDON, March 19 (C.P.) — The House of Commons sat for two minute sto-day and then adjourned out of respect for the memory of Lord Balfour.

The adjournment was moved by Premier Macdonald.

The Premier said he was sure the whole House would grieve to know that Lord Balfour had died this morning.

"I feel certain the House will wish to pay its respect to him and to do homage to his memory by adjourning at once," said Mr. Macdonald. "Tomorrow I shall take steps to allow expression of the tributes we would like to pay from all side of the House to his memory."

Former Premier Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin said that he merely wished to say on this occasion: "I am convinced that the Prime Minister has moved a resolution which will be in accord with the sentiments and feelings of the whole House."

Sir Herbert Samuel, on behalf of the Liberals, expressed the desire to associate himself with Mr. Macdonald's motion.

The Speaker then put the motion which was carried and the House rose after sitting only two minutes. There was an unusually large attendance at the time.

The House of Lords also adjourned immediately after its assembly as a token of affection and respect for Lord Balfour.

Chamberlain Deeply Touched

Sir Austen Chamberlain said: "In Lord Balfour the nation lost the finest mind that has been given to politics in our generation. We shall not look upon his like again. To me he was ever the kindest of friends and the most delightful of companions. I owe him much."

Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill paid the following tribute: "I have sustained a very keen personal loss, because I have known Lord Balfour since I was a child and always have been treated by him, in thirty years of political life, with extereme kindness.

"Through all the vicissitudes of politics the friendship with which I was honored continued. My admiration for him and delight in his company cannot be expressed. This is no time to attempt any measurement of his great career. It is deeply imprinted in the vital inner history of the British Empire during the last fifty years.

Inspector Makes Discovery While Checking Returns

J. T. White, K.C., Bares Conditions Regarding Standard Stock and Mining Exchange Before Public Accounts Committee of Legislature.

CLAIMS IT WOULD TAKE 100,000 MEN TO AUDIT ALL RETURNS FROM EXCHANGE TRANSACTIONS

Forced to Rely Largely on Honesty of Brokers in the Matter—Sinclair Barred From Placing in the Records One of Weekly Returns Made.

TORONTO, March 19. (C.P.)—That some brokers on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange in Toronto have made imperfect transfer tax returns to the Ontario Government, was disclosed to-day before the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature. J. T. White, K.C., Controller of Revenue, said that such conditions had been disclosed through inspectors working under him. It would take 100,000 men to audit properly all the returns of every transaction on Ontario exchanges, he said, adding that he was forced to rely largely on the honesty of the brokers for the tax returns.

Sinclair's Request Barred.

W. E. N. Sinclair, K. C., Liberal leader, at whose instance the collection of the stock transfer tax was investigated by the committee, was barred from having Mr. White say when and what informatoin had been transferred to the Attorney-General's Departmnt of irregularities on the part of the brokers. On the ruling of Hon. W. D. Black, the chairman, the committee split on party lines. Mr. Sinclair also was barred from placing in the records one of the weekly returns made by the exchange.

The committee after hearing Mr. White's evidence, adjourned until Monday.

MEMBER ISSUES TAUNT TO FIGHT

W. Tremblay, in Quebec Legislature, Objects to Chairman's Ruling.

"ALL TOO COWARDLY."

QUEBEC, March 19. (C.P.)—Called to order in the Quebec Legislature last night, William Tremblay, Conservative member for Maisonneuve, objected to the chairman's ruling and challenged the members, any one or all, to come forward and fight him. When they ignored the challenge, he said they were too cowardly.

Chairman Vautin, presiding when the House was in committee of the whole, had asked Mr. Tremblay to keep the clause of the Government's co-operatives bill under discussion when the member for Maisonneuve was speaking. Previously he had been called to order twice for remarks considered objectionable by the chairman.

"For too long you have tried to crush us" Mr. Tremblay said, addressing the chairman, "because of your great majority in this House."

There were cries of "order, order."

Mr. Tremblay finally sat down and there was silence for a few minutes before the House resumed the discussion.

LONDON EX-MAYOR BEATEN IN $10,000 LIBEL ACTION

LONDON, March 19. (C.P.)—The Wenige-Judd libel action ended this afternoon with a unanimous verdict for the defendant which dismissed the action brought by George A. Wenige, ex-mayor of London against Crown Attorney Albert Judd of Middlesex. Mr. Wenige had asked $10,000 damages. Costs will go against the plaintiff. The jury considered its verdict for three hours.

This is the third trial of the action brought by George A. Wenige, ex-Mayor of London, against Crown Attorney Albert Judd of Middlesex.

The action arises from a report the Crown made on an investigation of charges made by Mr. Wenige concerning alleged irregularities on the L. and P. S. Railway.

TORIES DEFEATED ON TRADE TREATY

Sub-amendment Commits Administration to Make New Pact With New Zealand.

VOTE WAS 95 TO 57.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 19. (C.P.) — Culminating a day full of interesting action, the House of Commons last night carried the government New Zealand trade treaty sub-amendment by a vote of 95 to 57, and negatived the Conservative amendment which forthwith would have had Canada sever existing trade arrangements with New Zealand.

The Government's sub-amendment, as last night approved in the House, commits the administration to the abrogation as soon as possible of present trade arrangements with New Zealand, and also the negotiating of a new treaty. Communications to that end have already been made with the New Zealand government.

The main protest against the present trade arrangement as voiced by the Conservatives in this long-drawn-out debate, has been the alleged great influx of butter from the antipodes to the injury of the Canadian dairy industry.

Liberals and Conservatives massed solidly against each other in last night's division but the Progressives and Laborites with the exception of Herbert P. Adshead (Labor Calgary) did not vote. Robert Gardiner, their leader, gave as the group's reason that they had been previously informed that such a sub-amendment as Pierre J. Casgrain moved for the government was not in order.

DIVORCE BILL IS ENDANGERED AS BLOCKADE OPENS

Commons With Vote of 104 to 87 Reinstate Measure on Order Paper.

McMillan Opens Opposition.

Repeated "Talking Out" or Deluge of Anti-Divorce Opinion May Bring Failure.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 19 (Canadian Press). By a vote of 104 to 87, the House of Commons yesterday voted to reinstate on the order paper the once-defeated Ontario Divorce Court Bill. The measure takes its place at the foot of the list.

Quite unexpectedly, the Divorce Court Bill, thus reinstated, was called for second reading near the commencement of private bills hour last night. A move to kill it was instantly instituted by Thomas McMillan (Liberal, Huron South), who has consistently opposed the Ontario Divorce Court. His substitution motion, however, was talked out past 9 o'clock, but must first be disposed of before the original Bill, reposing at the foot of the list, can be voted upon.

Seconded by Dr. Walter A. Hall (Liberal, South Bruce), Mr. McMillan moved to strike out the resolution for second reading of the Woodsworth Bill and substitute the following: "That this House views with alarm the spread and increase of divorce and divorce applications in Canada, and, instead of providing additional means of obtaining divorce, the House should develop the encouragement and carrying on of a campaign of education for the purpose of impressing upon the hearts and the minds of the Canadian people the sacredness of the matrimonial tie and the permanent stability of the Canadian home."

Woodsworth Bill

The bill now reinstated is the Woodsworth Bill, which would take away from Parliament the handling of Ontario's divorce cases and send them instead, to a specially constituted Ontario divorce court. It was defeated 79 to 78, last week, when an error of one in the tally caused the speaker to cast a negative vote—the first vote cast by a Canadian Speaker in half a century.

Previous to yesterday's successful move to revivify a defeated measure, the advantage taken of House rules had been attempted since 1892. In that year Dalton McCarthy moved for the reinstatement of a measure and Sir John Thompson spoke vigorously against the practice. It was William Irvine (Labor, Wetaskiwin) who had moved for the reinstatement of the Woodsworth bill, which is now back before the House as a red-hot issue in the opinion of experienced parliamentary observers, there are only two things which at this stage can effect the Woodsworth Bill's defeat—a deluge of Ontario anti-divorce opinion or repeated "talking-out" of the measure during private members' hours. This last expedient would tie up all the private members' business.

DAY FELT URGE TO KILL BEFORE

Witness Stated Accused Complained of Desire While Suffering Head Pains.

WAS PERFECT HUSBAND.

THREE RIVERS, Que., March 19 (C.P.).—Andrew Day, on trial for the murder last December 16 of his wife and seven children, had been possessed some years ago of an urge to destroy his family, according to the evidence given yesterday by Alfred Cloutier, a fellow-worker of the accused in a local paper mill. Cloutier said that some time before the murders, Day had told him confidentially that when he lived in East Angus, Que., he had suffered from the homicidal obsession accompanied by violent pains in his head. He had expressed pleasure that these symptoms had disappeared, the witness testified.

Several witnesses were heard today and all were questioned as to Day's habits and mannerisms. The accused was described as a perfect husband and father, but numerous odd actions were described by his fellow-workers in the paper mill.

Lloyd George Urges Party Not to Embarrass MacDonald in Present Crisis.

HOLD BACK IN COAL BILL.

Liberals Make Reservation to Vote Way They Wish in Later Stages.

LONDON, Eng., March 19. (C.P.)—The MacDonald Labor Government is assured of a lease of life until the Naval Conference is finished at least. This is the interpretation by well-informed circles of the decision of the Liberal parliamentary party to-day to abstain from voting in the critical division over the coal bill Parliament on Thursday night.

Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George urged the members of his party not to embarrass the Government at the present critical stage of the Naval Conference and the members unanimously supported this. But the Liberals made the reservation that this decision does not prejudice their right to vote in whatever way they think best during the later stages of the bill.

JOHN FREEMAN IS SENT TO JAIL

Given Two Months For Assaulting Officer and Evading Arrest.

ARRESTED AT BOBCAYGEON.

LINDSAY, March 19.—John Freeman, 23, of Bobcaygeon, will not be able to get married next month as he had planned for some time, because he was sent to jail yesterday morning for two months for biting High County Constable Wetherall's leg in Bobcaygeon Monday night. The charge against him read, "assaulting an officer with itnent to evade arrest," and to this he pleaded guilty and asked to be tried by Magistrate G. A. Jordan.

Freeman has been convicted of reckless driving and fighting, and since December has evaded arrest on charges of causing a disturbance and refusing to pay his poll tax. He refused summonses and failed to appear in court.

Officers say that he has been boasting that the police could not "take" him and that that was likely the reason he tried to escape them. He is a heavily built young man, although he comes but little above Constable Wetherall's shoulder. When Constables Wetherall and Porter tried to arrest him Monday night, he tried to get away but succeeded only in causing them a little discomfort by scratching and biting. They put the handcuffs on him and put him in the car, and after they got away from Bobcaygeon he was quiet when they took the shackles off his wrists.

Freeman was arrested at a St. Patrick's dance half an hour after midnight.

BOSS RACKETEER STAYS IN HIDING

Rumors From Baltimore Claim He Was Seen Boarding Miami Ship.

MOTHER'S HOME WATCHED.

NEW YORK, March 19.— Despite the vigilance of many persons, including interested detectives, "Scarface" Al Capone, Chicago's boss racketeer, had succeeded up to last night in remaining hidden in the obscurity into which he vanished upon his release from prison Monday afternoon in Philadelphia.

There was one definite report of his whereabouts. Baltimore reported two men resembling Capone and his bodyguard, Frankie Cline, who was released from prison at the same time, boarded the steamship Dorchester, bound for Jacksonville and Miami, in that city this afternoon, but left the ship before sailing time.

The principal watch centred at the home of his mother, in Chicago, and in Dad county, Florida, in the vicinity of Capone's winter home, near Miami.

A reception committee consisting of ten detectives vainly awaited the underworld king in Chicago, but for their pains they had only the satisfaction of questioning a number of callers at Mrs. Capone's home.

Ralph Capone, brother of "Scarface" is in Cicero, the Chicago suburb, and is rumored to have provided a quiet hiding place there for the latter until interest in his whereabouts decreases.

The boys will be taken to Deseronto for trial and then turned over to Kingston authorities for car theft trial.

The boys also admitted in a statement to the Belleville police they stole a car on Saturday and for this offence they will be tried in Toronto

OMEMEE BRANCH HOLDS MEETING

Letter Regarding Erection of Amusements on School-House Grounds.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

OMEMEE, March 19.—(Examiner Correspondence)—The monthly meeting of the local branch of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. T. E. MacPherson on Wednesday evening with a splendid attendance of members and visitors. Mrs. Widdis, the president, conducted the meeting which opened with the Ode followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. The roll-call was answered by house cleaning hints and many new suggestions were exchanged.

Following the minutes of the previous meeting read by the secretary, Mrs. H. McGinness, several letters of appreciation were read from members who had been remembered with fruit or flowers during illness.

An invitation from the caretaker of the Omemee school, to the members to visit the school any time out of school hours was received and if the society saw fit to place any amusements on the school grounds, he would gladly give his services to erect same. Mrs. J. Palmer and Mrs. T. E. MacPherson were appointed a committee to interview the school board regarding this matter.

Miss Lila Parsons rendered a vocal solo entitled, "The Isle That's Crowned With Shamrock," in her usual good style.

Mrs. Walker of Coldwater, gave an address on the Institute motto "For Home and County", which was deeply appreciated.

A piano solo by Miss Lillian Race followed, after which a question drawer conducted by Mrs. J. Palmer was an interesting and educational feature on the program.

Community singing was indulged in after which much amusement resulted from a potato race, in which Mrs. Walker carried off the prize, a pair of salt and pepper shakers.

The president reminded all of the First Aid and Home Nursing courses which begins on Monday evening March 17th, and continues each evening for two weeks. The class is being held at the home of Mrs. Robert Wilson.

The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. C. Davis, Mrs. R. Wilson and Mrs. H. McPhee and a social hour was enjoyed.

The fire-engine and local brigade responded to a hurried call on Friday evening to the home of Mr. George English. On their arrival it was found to be a false alarm rung in by a neighbour who, it is reported, was misled by the reflection of the northern lights, which shone on the window panes.

The first thunder and lightning storm of the season occurred on Sunday evening. The storm was of some duration but was not severe in the early evening. A similar storm came up later but no damage resulted.

Mr. George Wilson has opened up a barber shop in the shop formerly occupied by Mr. D. Deyell, adjoining his residence.

AMENDMENT TO COME.

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 19. — (C.P.) — The Nolan Bill to create a national park of the Rainy Lake watershed, was sent to the House today with the approval of its public lands committee.

As it came to the House the measure was minus an amendment designed to protect developments proposed by the Minnesota Light and Power Company on Cabro and Bald Eagle Lakes. The measure purposes to preserve existing lake levels for scenic beauty.

Representative Nolan, Republican, Minnesota, author of the bill, made the report, recommending it to the House with endorsements from the State, Interior and Agricultural Departments, from Conservation Societies, and from world war veterans organizations of the United States and Canada.

NEW PORTFOLIO TO BE CREATED

Premier Believes Ross Commission May Mean Provincial Welfare Department.

ESTABLISHED THIS YEAR.

TORONTO, Ont., March 19 (C.P.). —Statements by Premier G. H. Ferguson during the budget debate in the Legislature yesterday in connection with the present Royal Commission enquiry, headed by P. D. Ross, Ottawa, are believed to foreshadow the establishment at the Parliament Buildings some time this year of an entirely new department of "Provincial Welfare."

The new portfolio is likely, it is understood, to be entrusted to a man at present outside the Cabinet ranks.

The Ross Commission, which is now making an exhaustive survey of hospitals and their administrative systems of welfare institutions, may, said Premier Ferguson in the House, extend its investigations to the British Isles. Their report, he stated, would not be immediately available but by the next session of the House the Government would be in a position, he hoped, to effect—either by legislation or regulation—a policy that would be of far-reaching benefit to welfare work and projects in general.

NATURAL RELIEF FOR MOST PREVALENT DISEASE

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Eaten by Millions Daily to Prevent Constipation and Anemia

Constipation has been truly described as the curse of modern life. Its poisons cause countless ills—headaches, listlessness, indigestion—often serious disease.

Yet it can be relieved and prevented in an easy, pleasant, natural way. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, eaten daily, is guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. It adds the roughage to your diet that sweeps the system clean of all waste and insures regular elimination.

This delicious ready-to-eat cereal also helps prevent and relieve anemia. Scientific research shows that it is rich in iron—nearly all of which is absorbed, building red blood and bringing the glorious color of health to the complexion.

Isn't it much wiser to relieve constipation with this healthful cereal than to take pills and drugs that only give temporary help and are often dangerous?

Be sure to add Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to any reducing diet. Doctors recommend it.

If you wish to bid goodbye forever to constipation and its companion physical troubles, just begin eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Your grocer has it. It is served everywhere—in restaurants, hotels and dining-cars. With cream or milk is one popular way to eat it. When sprinkled over cereals or soups, it adds flavor, as in cooked foods. Soak it in fruit juice. Whatever the style of eating, it is equally effective. In the red-and-green package—made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Needless Pain!

The man who wouldn't drive his motorcar half a mile when it's out of order, will often drive his brain all day with a head that's throbbing.

Such punishment isn't very good for one's nerves! It's unwise, and it's unnecessary. For a tablet or two of Aspirin will relieve a headache every time. So, remember this accepted antidote for pain, and spare yourself a lot of needless suffering. Read the proven directions and you'll discover many valuable uses for these tablets. For headaches; to check colds. To ease a sore throat and reduce the infection. For relieving neuralgic, neuritic, rheumatic pain.

People used to wonder if Aspirin might be harmful. The doctors answered that question years ago.

It is not. Some folks still wonder if it really does relieve pain. That's settled! For millions of men and women have found it does. To cure the cause of any pain you must consult your doctor; but you may always turn to Aspirin for immediate relief.

MINERAL PRODUCTION.

Cyril T. Young, director of development for the Canadian National Railways, in his address before the local Rotary Club on Monday stressed the importance of the mining industry as a contribution to Canada's national wealth, placing it next in importance to the water power possibilities of the Dominion.

In this connection it is interesting to note that for the fourth consecutive year Canada in 1929 established a new high record in the value of her mining production, the total of $307,146,494 being returned, which was a gain of nearly twelve per cent. over the production of 1928.

Not only was the aggregate higher, but, according to official figures, new records were also set in the production of asbestos, cement, clay products, copper, gold, lime, nickel, petroleum, salt, stone and zinc.

The greatest gain was registered in the metal group with a total value of $153,194,303, as compared with $132,012,464 the year before, but fuels, non-metallics and structural materials all showed a gratifying increase.

Other interesting figures are that in 1928, the latest year for which world statistics are available, Canada produced 94 per cent. of the world's nickel, 69 per cent. of the world's asbestos, 55 per cent. of the world's cobalt, 9.6 per cent. of the world's gold and 5 per cent. of the world's copper.

These encouraging figures are proof that Mr. Young was not indulging in any guess work when he predicted that mining would play a great part in Canada's future prosperity.

A GOOD CHOICE.

The general opinion will be that the directors of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce have made no mistake in electing James Dutton for the third year in succession as president of the organization.

From Mr. Dutton the Chamber of Commerce has had virile and effective leadership during the past two years, and to that leadership may be credited the very successful service rendered to the community during his term of office.

Mr. Dutton has ideas and the energy and ability to put them over, and he has thrown himself into the responsible duties of heading the Chamber of Commerce with an enthusiasm that would not be denied.

Particularly gratifying has been the entente established between the Chamber of Commerce and the City Council, the harmonious relationship established in recent years being a very satisfactory development that is bound to work for community betterment.

There is a definite place for both organizations, the Chamber to make recommendations which it considers of value in solving municipal problems and in effecting improvements, and the Council, which is the executive body, to decide what action shall be taken.

Under Mr. Dutton's leadership the local Chamber of Commerce should have a most successful and useful year.

OLD CITIZENS GONE.

One by one the old guard of Peterborough citizenship falls as death's call creates new gaps in the rapidly thinning ranks.

Within the past few days the community has suffered a double loss in the passing of two citizens whose names were household ones.

On Sunday Harry C. Stabler, widely known as a building contractor, a church worker, a humanitarian and a veteran member of the Central Charity Board, answered the summons, and yesterday K. Gustave Lech, one of the city's oldest business men and a resident of Peterborough for nearly seventy years, also joined the great majority.

Over a period of many years these useful citizens had played a prominent part on the stage of community activity and endeavor; their influence had been felt in many circles and always for the public good.

When such men who for a space of well over half a century have moved and had their being in the thick of the community life around them pass on their going leaves their home city the poorer and their fellow-citizens depressed with a deep sense of personal loss.

The world keeps moving, new citizens come in to fill the gaps, but the centre that has had the benefit of years of association with the old guard realizes that something fine, something valuable, has gone forever.

IT IS UP TO ONTARIO.

The attempt of William Irvine, U.F.A. member for Wetaskawin, to have the Woodsworth bill to provide a divorce court bill for Ontario put back on the order paper for another second reading succeeded yesterday, and by a vote of 104 to 87 the Commons paved the way for another discussion on this most controversial question, during the present session.

The question of whether or not Ontario will emerge from the argument with a divorce court depends almost entirely upon the Ontario members of Parliament and upon the people of Ontario.

The Western members, with divorce courts already functioning in their Provinces, will support the establishment of similar legal machinery in Ontario for the reason that Parliament would thereby be relieved of the work and inconvenience of deciding divorce applications; the Quebec members will just as surely oppose the Woodsworth proposal on religious grounds.

The members from Ontario will hold the balance of power between these two schools of opinion, and the issue will hinge upon how the representatives from this Province vote.

If the people of Ontario are opposed to making divorces easier to secure they had better lose no time in letting their parliamentary representatives know their views.

Unless public opinion in that regard makes itself heard with a vengeance in the near future there is grave danger that Ontario will find itself with a divorce court on its hands.

Mr. Ford says he will spend a hundred million dollars to fit students for life after they leave college. That will buy a lot of garters and hats.—Judge.

THE SAP IS RUNNING.

In the East they know that spring is here, because the sap is running in the maple trees. Quebec, Eastern Ontario, New Brunswick and the bordering States comprise the world's greatest maple sugar area. Last year the total value of maple sugar and maple syrup produced in Canada was over six millions of dollars, most of which went to increase the income of farmers who tap their trees as a side-line. The sugar output was 11,698,925 pounds, while over two million gallons of syrup was put on the market.

During the past few years there has been a great improvement in the process of making the sugar and syrup. The old open sugar kettle has been replaced by modern covered pails and rapid evaporators, and the quality of the product has been raised in consequence. Yet sugar making has not lost all its romance with the coming of modern methods. There is plenty of wholesome gaiety and fun, especially in French Canada, when young and old gather for the "sugaring off." The tramp in the woods through the glorious spring air, the tantalizing aroma from the boiling sap, and the tasting of the syrup at the point of solidification, all these still bring joy to the hearts of thousands. And Dan Cupid, we may suppose, is not entirely inactive as Pierre and Rose-Marie inexplicably become detached from the rest of the party on the homeward journey.

Before the coming of the white man, the Indians had discovered the secret of tapping the maple trees, so that the making of maple sugar and syrup is as old as the known history of the land. The excellence of these products from the point of view of their value as food is well known, but the average Canadian is not thinking of vitamins or proteins when he partakes of them. He is just having a good time.—Brantford Expositor.

THE PRODUCTION OF WHEAT.

Fair warning has been given American producers by Chairman Legge, of the United States Farm Board, that they must raise less wheat if they expect prices to be maintained at a profitable level. "No other industry in the world," he said in a message to George F. Shafer, Governor of North Dakota, "blindly produces without any attention to potential market possibilities," and he added:

"Your growers will ask how they are going to get along with a less production, but if they can get more money, and we believe they can, by raising four bushels where they are now raising five, why should they destroy the market by raising the extra bushel?"

Mr. Legge told the Governor that if American farmers went ahead with maximum production on the assumption that some way would be found to take care of it on a fair price level, they were going to find themselves mistaken. The Farm Board head seems to have gone to the root of a situation which must be giving anxious thought to officials of the Canadian wheat pools, who are holding—with financial backing of the three Prairie Governments—a huge carry-over from the 1929 crop, while prices hover around the dollar mark in Winnipeg and Chicago.

Apparently it has been demonstrated that in a year when conditions are favorable the wheat-growing countries are able to produce beyond the demands of the wheat-consuming countries. Over-production is a condition which hardly can be relieved by pooled marketing if it extends beyond one season, and in Western Canada the ordinary pool resources proved unequal to the strain of carrying the unsold portion of a single crop in a falling market. To an extent low prices prove an automatic regulator of wheat acreage, but the effect marches so far behind the cause that its usefulness largely is lost. Thus sowing in the fall of 1929 for the crop of 1930 was done before it became apparent the market was sliding down to the dollar, and if there is a big crop in Canada and the United States this year the difficulties of the situation obviously will be increased dangerously. Not until 1931 will the full effect on acreage be encountered of over-production in 1929.

Displacement of man-power by machines in Western Canada has been a factor in increasing production, and this influence is bound to grow in importance. Tractors break up new land at a rate of speed which would have amazed the pioneers who worked with a team of horses and a single-furrow plow. "Combines" which cut and thresh the grain in a single operation reduce the labor bill, but at the same time encourage production by developing a new independence of imported and seasonable workers.

The solution of this momentous problem is one for the experts, but Mr. Legge's open advocacy of reduced acreage no doubt is receiving serious study in pool quarters. The present situation also would seem to indicate the vital importance of an effort to extend the consumption of wheat, particularly in the Orient, where there is a potential market almost beyond limit; and the desirability of paying more attention to diversified production on Western farms. The farmer who raises a big crop of high-grade wheat when prices are good thinks he has a gold mine, but if he has on his hands the same production at prices which barely meet his costs he is reminded forcibly of the ancient maxim concerning putting all one's eggs in a single basket.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Parliament has been discussing the question of imported eggs, but, strange to say, nobody pointed out that that was a matter for Provincial Governments to worry about.

A Thought

HAPPINESS

"Many people marvel when I tell them that I am happy," says Helen Keller, the woman who has triumphed so wonderfully over blindness and deafness. "They imagine that my limitations weigh heavily upon my spirit and chain me to the rock of despair. Yet, it seems to me, happiness has very little to do with the senses."

Happiness is mainly a matter of the mind and heart. It we make up our minds that this is a drab and purposeless universe, it will be that, and nothing else, as Miss Keller points. But if we believe that the world is ours, we shall have joy. If we believe that we are born into this world for noble ends, life takes on a new dignity for us.

What To-day Means To You

PISCES."

If March 19th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 p.m. to 9:30 a.m., from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m., and from 10 p.m. to 11:15 p.m. The danger periods are from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m., and from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Astrologically, affairs appear to be in an unsettled condition on this date and little material progress is anticipated. Impulsive acts and impulsive words may cause future regret. Success for those interested in music and art.

Children born on this March 19th will be faithful to duty, adaptable to environment, loyal to friends and enthusiastic in their work. Their dispositions will be affectionate and their tastes domestic.

An exceptional memory, combined with a healthy appetite for work, and plenty of it, are the two principal factors that contribute to the success you have already attained. You are disposed to excessive energy and would be wise to seek not only physical, but mental, relaxation and rest. In this connection, you are a very severe critic of those who do not display the same untiring zeal in their work as you do in yours.

It would be a mistake for you to toil for others. If it has not already been, done, you should set out on your own where, untramelled by restrictions, you can work out your own salvation. Yours is rather a venturesome nature, and you are gifted with long vision. You alway feel, no matter what you may be doing, that you are fitted for better things, and are never satisfied with conditions as they are.

You are not lacking in self-confidence, but are not conceited — aggressive, but not pugnacious. You are not naturally affectionate, but when once you have surrendered, and given your love, you are more fervent in your attachment than those who fall easier. You could, with advantage be more considerate of others' feelings and more tolerant.

THE GREENE MURDER CASE

By S. S. VAN DINE

CHAPTER 24.

"It's a mistaken idea, don't y' know, to pretend that a murderer looks like a murderer. No murderer ever does," Vance was defending his theories to Markham. "The only people who really look like murderers are quite harmless. Do you recall the mild and handsome features of Richeson of Cambridge? Yet he gave his inamorata cyanide. The fact that Armstrong was a meek and gentlemanly looking chap did not deter him from feeding death to his wife.

"Doctor Lamson, with his philanthropic eyes and his benevolent beard, was highly regarded as a humanitarian; but he administered poison rather coldbloodedly to his crippled brother-in-law. Then there was Neil Cream, who night easily have been mistaken for a deacon; and the soft-spoken and amiable Waite. * * *

"And the women! Edith Thompson admitted putting powdered glass in her husband's gruel.

"Madeline Smith certainly had a most respectable countenance. And Constance Kent was rather a beauty—a nice girl with an engaging air; yet she cut her little brother's throat in a thoroughly brutal manner. Gabrielle Bompard and Marie Boyer were anything but typical of the donna delinquente; but the one strangled her lover with the cord of her dressing gown, and the other killed her mother with a cheese knife. And what of Madame Fenayrou—?"

"Enough!" protested Markham. "Your lecture on criminal physiognomy can go over a while. Just now I'm trying to adjust my mind to the staggering inferences to be drawn from your finding of those galoshes."

A sense of horror seemed to weigh him down. "There must be some way out of this nightmare you've propounded. What member of that household could possibly have walked in on Rex Greene and shot him down in broad daylight?"

"'Pon my soul, I don't know," Vance himself was deeply affected by the sinister aspects of the case. "But some one in that house did it—some one the others don't suspect."

"That look on Julia's face, and Chester's amazed expression—that's what you mean, isn't it? They didn't suspect either. And they were horrified at the revelation—when it was too late. Yes, all those things fit in with your theory."

"But there's one thing that doesn't fit in old man." Vance gazed at the table perplexedly. "Rex died peacefully, apparently unaware of his murderer. Why wasn't there also a look of horror on his face? His eyes couldn't have been shut when the revolver was leveled at him, for he was standing, facing the intruder. It's inexplicable—mad!"

He beat a nervous tattoo on the table, his brows contracted.

"And there's another thing, Markham, that's incomprehensible about Rex's death. His door into the hall was open; but nobody upstairs heard the shot—nobody upstairs. And yet Sproot—who was downstairs, in the butler's pantry behind the dining room—heard it distinctly."

"It probably just happened that way," Markham argued, almost automatically. "Sound acts fantastically sometimes."

Vance shook his head.

"Nothing has just happened in this case. There's a terrible logic about everything—a carefully planned reason behind each detail. Nothing has been left to chance. this very systematization of the crime will eventually prove the murderer's downfall. When we can find a key to any one of the anterooms, we'll know our way into the main chamber of horrors."

At that moment Markham was summoned to the telephone. When he returned his expression was puzzled and uneasy.

"It was Swacker. Von Bion is at my office now—he has something to tell me."

"Ah! Very interestin'," commented Vance.

We drove to the District Attorney's office, and Von Bion was shown in at once.

FARM LANDS CHANGE HANDS

Several Real Estate Deals Have Been Put Through in North Monaghan.

PRESTON FARM SOLD.

Farm lands along the Provincial highway west of the city have been attracting special investment attention of late. A number of real estate deals within sight of Peterborough indicate not only present interest in this property, but also suggest a future growth in that direction.

Some of the transfers that have been reported are as follows: The Spillsbury farm of fifty acres on the south side of the highway at the top of the water-trough hill, about two miles from the city, has been sold by the Spillsbury estate to G. Westman of Michigan.

R. Patton has sold fifty acres on the north side of the highway to W. E. Stewart of Tillsonburg.

Dr. Preston has disposed of his one hundred acre farm, known as the Dobbin property, to Norman Moncrief. This farm is on the south side of the highway, immediately west of the Spillsbury estate. It extends south from the highway to the concession line that runs easterly from Scott's corners past the old town hall.

Herb. S. Routley has bought a thirty-two acre property, including bungalow, on the north side of the highway and nearer the city, from A. Chaney, and it is understood he intends to join the suburban group that is forming in that part of North Monaghan.

Another purchase reported recently involves the twenty acres owned by Mrs. W. Blewett which has been sold to Hilliard Strong, 600 Harvey street.

All these properties are comparatively close to the city, and their turn over may be regarded as an evidence that the highway itself is an asset to the adjoining farm lands, especially in the suburban section.

ENLARGE SCHOOL AT HALL'S BRIDGE

Action Necessary Due to Overcrowding of Present Building.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HALL'S BRIDGE, Mar. 19. — A meeting of the ratepayers of the village of Hall's Bridge and vicinity was held in the school house, Hall's Bridge on Saturday evening last. There was a large attendance. After some discussion it was decided that owing to the overcrowded condition of the school at the present time and the likelihood that it will be crowded for some years to come, two new rooms shall be added to the school and two teachers engaged to carry on the educational work. Up to the present, one teacher has been obliged to teach more children than was really effectively possible.

"COMING TO TERMS WITH OURSELVES."
Wednesday.
"Bringing the Hidden Self to Light"

SCRIPTURE

Memory Verse: "I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto myself" (John 12:32).

Read: John 11:32-44.

MEDITATION

Jesus does not only draw men up, but He draws them out. Freudianism talks much about our buried selves. There are dark worlds within us; but there are also bright worlds there. Buried in every man is an artist and a hero, longing for self expression. The key to these hidden selves is the imagination. With unerring spiritual etiquette, the guest of our imagination calls forth to meet him that one of all our manifold selves that most corresponds to him in rank and splendour. Long John remembered who he was when he heard the sound of Robin Hood's horn. When Christ stands before us, the best that is in us rises and comes forth to meet him. Standing before the tomb of habit and convention in which our truest selves lie imprisoned, He calls as He did to Lazarus—"Come forth," and the best within us hears the call and answers it.

PRAYER

O Thou, who hast written Thy law in men's hearts, we thank Thee for the image of our better selves that sweetly haunts us. Stand before us that our truer, finer nature may see Thee and come forth to dwell among men. In Christ's name. Amen.

The Divorce Question.

By J. H. BURNHAM.

In my former article I stated that while I was opposed to re-marriage and therefore to divorce, it was infinitely better to have a divorce court than the present shambles of parliamentary divorce in which justice is rarely done to the wife, who, having no means, might as well give up at once. Therefore those who voted against the court or did not vote at all and did not say how they would have voted actually voted for divorce under present conditions, instead of under just and fair conditions.

But there is a question not yet referred to in parliament or the press which some of these days will require settling and why do not those opposed to divorce proceed to answer it? Marriage in Ontario is a contract arising under statue and therefore like all contracts of such a nature subject to cancellation or annulment or even rectification, by courts of law. I am not now referring to marriage under any other conditions than those of civil law. It is impossible as all statutory laws stand at present for any distinction to be made between civil laws themselves in that respect. A civil law is always open to revision by the courts or amendment by the legislature and so therefore in the civil law of marriage. The point I wish to make, then, is this: Since a civil contract is a civil contract it should be left to courts of law for treatment. Hence the propriety of a divorce court. Where people believe it necessary to receive some other sanction for marriage in addition to the civil sanction then the undoing or correction of it is another matter altogether. While marriage according to religious belief or conscience is binding so far as one's conscience binds them, no sanction is recognised, in fact no marriage is recognised by the statute or civil law but that performed by officials mentioned in that law. It is holy so far as our laws are concerned, therefore a question of civil law and what is the objection to having it and treating it so, so long as the sacramental rite is not interfered with? The present position taken by those opposed to divorce is therefore doubly illogical. Either wipe it out altogether or treat it as it should be treated, viz.: A question of law or a question of conscience whichever we choose. One or the other. But one anyhow. What is the answer to my question?

ROAD COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED

School Loan By-law Approved at Douro Council Meeting.

TAX TIME EXTENDED

DOURO, March 19.—At the meeting of Douro Council held in the Town Hall recently, when all members were present, the Reeve, R. Bolton, and Howard Quinn were appointed a committee to wait on the Minister of Highways with a view to getting fifty per cent on township road expenditure.

By-law No. 1005 was passed authorizing the reeve and treasurer to borrow $5,000 for school purposes and on motion of William Hayes and J. Maloney, the treasurer was allowed an increase in salary of $15 per year on account of extra work in payment of work done on township roads.

The collector's time for collecting balance of 1929 taxes was extended to April 1, when all unpaid taxes will be liable to collection by seizure.

The Reeve was appointed a representative from Douro Township to wait on the County Council, Suburban Area Commission and the Minister of Highways, with the object of soliciting grants towards the improvement of river road in Douro Township.

The council then adjourned to meet on Monday, May 26, at 10 a.m. as a court of revision of the assessment rolls.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

Canadian zinc producers are watching with interest the progress of the new German process for treatment of ores containing the metal. While it is understood the process has not been applied to the commercial treatment of ores in this country as yet, it has been used with success in treatment of dump rock in the United States. The new method is known as the Waelz process and is also intended for use in the extraction of lead, tin and other metals as well as zinc from ores, tailings, and especially from poor residue and slags which hitherto could not be treated to advantage. The Waelz volatilization process has been used with considerable success in Europe, it is said, with the present plants in operation treating about a million tons of raw material per year. It is claimed the actual zinc production of the Waelz plants amounts to at least 5% of the world's total production.

Granada Rouyn's new shares made their initial appearance on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange to-day, opening at $1.00 and selling up to $1.20. The old company was capitalized at $5,000,000, all of which was issued. Old shareholders were given one new share for ten old. The company is now constructing a 100 ton mill and while the treasury is understood to be exhausted, President R. G. Gamble is personally financing the work. Granada's new capital is 1,000,000 shares, with 500,000 shares remaining in the treasury.

Directors of the Metals Production Company are considering the advisability of making application to list the stock on the Standard Exchange. The company operates a producing mine in Boulder County, Colorado, about 45 miles northwest of Denver. A 150-ton capacity oil flotation mill is on the property and the mine is otherwise fully equipped. The company has already applied for listing its stock on the New York Stock Exchange.

Lowery Petroleum, one of Turner Valley's latest producers, has been producing steadily for some time, according to latest word, but Imperial Oil officials state that figures will not be made public until the end of the month. Early production always shows fluctuations and before official reports are made, a sufficient period is allowed during which more accurate results may be known. Unofficial reports of production have been running from 400 to almost 600 barrels per day. Either figure would mean a satisfactory output.

Baltac is now officially reported as being on a production test, but no official intimation of results has been made.

HUNTS LIMITED HE AD SEARCHING FOR CHOICE MON TREAL LOCATIONS

Firm Plans to Open New Chain Stores in Quebec City in Near Future.

MONT ROYAL MEETING.

TORONTO, Ont., March 19. (Special to Examiner) — President H. W. Hunt of Hunts Limited, was in Montreal this week looking over locations for the opening of new stores in that city in line with the policy announced at the annual general meeting of shareholders a few weeks ago. It is understood the company has decided to open several small stores rather than a few larger ones and that a number of favorable sites are under consideration on the main thoroughfares in the eastern metropolis. Opening of new stores in Montreal will be a new departure for Hunts, Limited, as in the past the chain has been confined to the province of Ontario where several units are in operation.

Canadian Brewery.

Profits of Canadian Brewing Corporation for the year 1929 were quite satisfactory in view of the condition of the industry in the province of Ontario, but the fact that the net was not sufficient to meet the $2 dividend should prepare shareholders for a reduction in rate as intimated by officials on the occasion of the declaration of the last quarterly payment. Breweries in this province are suffering from over-production due to loss of export business and this point was stressed by the presidents of Canadian Brewing and Carling in their remarks to shareholders. The remedy appears to lie in a consideration of interests that would permit of more economical operations by closing down of high cost plants and the switching of manufacturing to more modern and up to date plants. To-day negotiations are taking place for the merger of a number of breweries of this province and an announcement can be expected in the near future.

The common shares of Famous Players Canadian Corporation were again in the spotlight this morning on the local market with a gain of over two points. Rumblings are stillheard of the possibility of attention is being given to current earnings. Directors are slated to meet in a day or so when the earnings for the first six months of the fiscal year will be placed before them. It is stated unofficially that the second quarter was the best for this period in history and that the question of publishing quarterly figures will be given consideration bu the board.

Mount Royal Meeting.

It is not improbable that the annual meeting of Mount Royal Hotel in Montreal Thursday morning will develop into an interesting session. It is well known that W. A. Mackenzie took a very decided stand against United Hotels when that company sought to include Mount Royal in the proposed hotels merger. At that time he strongly advised preferred shareholders against turning in their holdings for exchange into common of the new company. It is expected that at the meeting to-morrow he will demand an explanation why such heavy charges were made for depreciation in the 1929 balance sheet with the result that, despite earnings, the highest in history, net profit was shown scarcely sufficient to meet preferred dividends and precluding any possibility of script payment.

STANDARD EXCHANGE FAILS TO FOLLOW STOCK ADVANCES

Noranda Off at $40 Offsets Advance in International Nickel.

GOLDS MIXED.

TORONTO, Ont., March 19. (C.P.)—The mining market, during the early session to-day, showed little response to the activity evident on the larger boards. The general trend remaining irregularly lower and the volume of turnover light.

International Nickel was stronger from the opening, but Noranda, at $40, was off a few cents from last night's close. The golds, which displayed late softness yesterday, were mixed. Dome recovering 10 to $9.15 and Hollinger 5 go $8.85. Lake Shore receded a quarter to $22.50, Telk Hughes 5 to $6.35 and Wright-Hargreaves a point to $1.85.

Ventures, whose annual statement will be in the hands of shareholders early next week, was up 4 to $1.89, but Sudbury Basin held unchanged while Falconbridge eased 10 to $4.70 and Sherritt Gordon 5 to $2.60.

The oils were listless and softer, Home Oil receding 15 to $8.75, Alberta Pacific 5 to $1.80, East Crest 4 to 58, Baltac 2½ to 49½ and Wainwell a half to 6.

GOLD STOCKS HOLD INTEREST

Doubt Expressed as to How Long Present Premier Gold Policy Will Continue.

TURNER DEVELOPMENT.

TORONTO, Mar. 19. (Special to Examiner.)—With uncertainty surrounding the Base Metal situation, considerable attention has been directed in mining circles to the gold stocks and the yield which they give under present market conditions, but even the most enthusiastic dividend seeker hardly visualized a gold stock selling at four times its annual dividend rate. Premier Gold, at 95 cents during the early session to-day, just recently declared its regular quarterly dividend of 6 cents, though the tone of the annual report would lead to some doubt as to how long the policy, called by the company a return of capital, will be continued. Another stock which has been suffering under some evident liquidation is Nipissing Mines, though directors are to-day reported to have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ cper cent payaile April 21 to shareholders of record March 31. The company's cash in hand, government bonds and investments, value of ore and bullion on hand and in process at the mine and mill is understood to total $3,241,320.

Arntfield Property.

At the annual meeting of Arntfield Mining Syndicate yesterday, it was stated that this Quebec Company, at least, was able to bolster up its treasury and expand its development operations in the face of the generally depressed conditions surrounding mining prospect financing. The Arntfield property is understood to be at an interesting stage and with the shaft down nearly 100 feet on the vein, the next two or three months will be of importance to this pioneer gold property in Boischatel township.

The Street hears that an announcement regarding the starting of eight new wells on promising structure in the Turner Valley is imminent. It is understood the new wells under consideration will not be offsets of present producers, but will test new areas believed to be promising but not yet proven. Such a program would constitute an important step forward in the history of the field.

A soft answer turneth away wrath and one reply of President R. C. Stanley at Nickels meeting was greeted by subdued mirth among the shareholders. Having been assured that the copper sales of the company had shown a good increase during the past few months, a shareholder asked what price was being secured for the metal. "The market price of refined copper is 18 cents a pound," was the ready answer of the chairman.

LIGHTS OUT OF ORDER

Motorists who drove through the downtown section of the city to-day found with glee that they did not have to obey the tyrannical red and green traffic lights at the Charlotte and Hunter corners of George street for on each one a sign "Out of Order" hung. Electricians were busy making adjustments to the intricate timing and contact apparatus. The lights at Charlotte however, began to function again this afternoon.

EIGHT MOTORISTS FINED IN COURT

Failing to Carry 1930 Markers Lands Motor Owners in Police Court.

RADIO DAY THURSDAY.

Eight motorists paid fines ranging from $1.00, without costs, to $5.00 with costs, in Police Court this morning for driving their motor vehicles on a public highway without having markers of the current year displayed. Many excuses were furnished. It was found that one Bethany motorist was stopped by the provincial traffic officer for displaying 1929 markers, and he had the 1930 ones in the car at the time. Having been warned to put on the new markers on the spot he complied by replacing the rear one. Further down the highway the officer nipped him again. His excuse that the road was too muddy to get under the car and replace the one in the front did not suffice, and he was fined $1.00.

Another man "was only taking the car out for a trial spin," but he paid out a fine of $3.00.

Magistrate Langley warned the motorists that they comply with the Government regulations as to markers and that in future the fines will be higher for the oversight.

To-morrow's program in Police Court calls for eleven local citizens to appear to face charges of not having radio licenses, and for Friday morning there will be more than ten dog owners up for allowing their canines to ramble contrary to proclamation of the city and neighboring townships.

TORONTO LIST CONTINUES ON UPWARD MOVE

Many Issues Reach New Levels for the Current Movement.

NICKEL LEADS.

Ford of Canada Also Among Stocks to Advance Under Heavy Demand.

TORONTO, Ont., March 19. (C.P.)—Continuing the advance which set in with the first of the week, stocks on Toronto stock exchange went higher this morning reaching new levels on the current movement, some of them new highs for the year. Leadership which had rested with the oil group in recent sessions switched to International Nickel as that old time favorite moved steadily upward backed by consistent demand to reach a high of 41 just after the noon hour.

Ford of Canada was taken in large quantities on the rise, breaking through its previous 1930 top when it rose fractionally above 34¼, the former high made just a short time ago. Famous Players again was active and scored a rise of more than two points. Selling up to nearly 57.

The oils showed little change. B.A. oil at noon was around 36 Imperial just under 26 and International Petroleum between 21¼ and 22.

Brother Takes Place

LONDON, March 19 (By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—With the death of the famous first Earl of Balfour to-day his brother, the Rt. Hon. Gerald Balfour, takes his place in the Peerage.

The new Earl is 77 years of age and has also been in politics. He held office for a long period in Conservative Ministries during the time when the Cecils, of whom his mother was one, so dominated Parliament that the House came to be dubbed the Hotel Cecil. He was Chief Secretary for Ireland from 1895 to 1900 and President of the Board of Trade from 1900 to 1905. He has been a chairman and member of many commissions.

The present Earl has the same amiable characteristics as his more famous brother, but a lack of ambition is generally held responsible for his failure to make any deep impression on the public life of the country.

He has been in retirement for years. His son, Robert Arthur Lytton Balfour, although only 28 years of age, was factor to his bachelor uncle, the late Earl.

CHICAGO GRAIN A DVANCES ON LIVERPOOL MARKET UPTURNS

Germany Buying Wheat at Rotterdam to Anticipate Increase of Import Duties.

RUSSIAN GRAIN BOYCOTTED.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 19. (C.P.)—Stimulated by a sharp upturn in Liverpool quotations and by scarcity of offerings here, Chicago wheat prices scored early gains to-day. It was reported Germany was buying wheat at Rotterdam to anticipate the increase of German import duties, and the Russian grain was boycotted. Starting ½ A 1 cent higher, Chicago wheat futures continued to advance. Corn, oats and provisions developed strength also, with corn opening 1-8 A 7-8 up, and subsequently rising further.

DELEGATION TO SEEK HIGHWAY

Minister Will Be Asked to Have Department Assume Peterboro-Lakefield Road.

PETITIONS SIGNED.

An unofficial delegation from Lakefield, Peterborough, and district will go to Toronto to-morrow to interview the Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways for Ontario, in an effort to have the Government take the Lakefield highway into the Ontario system. The party will be about 30 strong.

For some time petitions asking the Government to take over this road have been circulated in Lakefield and Peterborough, it is understood, and a large number of signatures have been secured. These petitions will be presented to the Minister to-morrow. The action has been sponsored by interested citizens of Lakefield, but it is planned to have a number of representative officials from the district in the party. J. F. Strickland, the Peterborough member, will introduce the delegation to the Hon. Mr. Henry.

The men will endeavor to show the Department that the importance of the Lakefield highway as a gateway to the Kawartha Lakes demands a better road than the county can afford to keep. The sponsors of the action believe that the type of road which the county has attempted to maintain between Peterborough and Lakefield is not suitable for the heavy traffic to which it is subjected during the year. They want the Government to virtually continue the Port Hope-Peterborough highway through to Lakefield.

At present the road is in very poor condition, although the Suburban Area Commission has endeavored to provide for the drainage of excess water in the worst spots. The greater part of the road is pitted with holes which make driving a difficult operation.

DOGS PROTECTION TO DEER HUNTERS SAYS TOM CURVIN

Noted Fisherman and Hunter Disagrees With Fish and Game Association.

NEVER CAUGHT BY DOGS.

Experienced Men Like to Hear Music of Dogs Whether They Get Shot or Not.

Commenting to-day upon the resolution of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association in which they declared their disapproval of the use of dogs in hunting deer, Tom Curvin of the Peterborough Raw Fur Company, Water street, said he emphatically disagreed with this action.

"The Fish and Game Protective Association," said Mr. Curvin, "is doing excellent work and is a great asset to this district, but I think that most of them are more ardent fishermen than they are deer hunters. From my experience I am convinced that dogs are a protection to the hunter. In Maine and Pennsylvania dogs are barred from hunting, and in those States many men have been killed while "still" hunting. If you canot use dogs, the only practical way to hunt is by "beating" the bush, sending your party out over a wide area and then working in toward a central point. That is how hunters have been killed, simply by moving in the bush or thick woods where they could not be plainly seen. They were mistaken for a deer by companions who in their excitement did not wait to make sure of what was moving ahead of them. On the other hand, if you have dogs and you are out on a runway or watch, you hear their tonguing, and you are forewarned that a deer is approaching. In fact hunting fatalities are rare in this part of the country.

Never Caught By Dogs.

It is also a fact that deer are never caught by dogs except when they are wounded, and that is when they should be caught. For still hunting you need snow so you can track deer, but in our season there is usually not more than two days of snow. And if the season were later then the water would be frozen. I believe ninety per cent. of the deer hunters of Peterborough will advocate the use of dogs. And all hunters are not game hogs. They would appreciate going back into the woods with dogs, whether or not they got a deer, far more than moping around "still" hunting that might give them their count. Experienced hunters love to hear the music of the dogs whether they get a shot or not. Any true sportsman will tell you that; of course it would be different with a game hog. I haven't missed a hunt in twenty-seven years, and have gone on hunts when I never got a deer, and sometimes not even a shot. But I enjoyed myself just as much as in other years when I got my allowance.

You hear it is said that deer are getting scare in the Kawartha district, but last Fall within thirty-five miles of Peterborough I saw more deer than in any other season since I started hunting. Our party did not get their full count but it was not because there wasn't plenty of deer. In regard to the doe law I have only shot two bucks that I recognized before I shot them, and I think that is the general experience."

Mr. Curvin said the meeting on Monday night contradicted itself in regard to the ravages of wolves. He contends that wolves are killers.

"I agree with one sentence from the report of the meeting—'One of the members said that he had learned from a Hudson Bay factor that a small pack of wolves was quite capable of cleaning up an entire section of deer in a very short time.'"

The other opinion expressed at the meeting was to the effect that most of the trouble was caused by unscrupulous persons killing game indiscriminately, in and out of season.

CALL MONEY RATE DROPS TO LOWEST LEVEL IN YEARS

Scores of Issues Whirled Up 6 to 16 Points in Early Trading.

2 MILLION SALE MARK.

Heavy Profit-taking Brings About Moderate Recessions in Afternoon.

By Stanley W. Prenosil (Associated Press Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 19.—Bullish forces continued to press their advantage in to-day's stock market as money rates dropped to the lowest levels in more than 5 years. Scores of active issues were marked whirled up 6 to 16, and with at least two score stocks elevated to new high levels for the year. Weakness of the tobacco and merchandising issues, coupled with heavy profit taking, brought about moderate recessions from the morning's high levels in the early afternoon.

Total sales in the first two hours ran close to 2,000,000 shares, or nearly 100,000 above those during the same period yesterday. But there were fewer large blocks to-day. The ticker ran half an hour or more behind the market.

Call money renewed at 3 per cent, the lowest initial change since February, 1925, and then dropped to 2 per cent. Outside money was again available at 1½ per cent, with a plentiful supply of funds available.

Renewals of selling pressure against Simmons Co., carried that issue down 4 points to 50¼, the lowest price in several years.

American Tobacco issues broke about 6 points, Liggett & Myers 2 3-8 and Reynolds and Lorillard about a point each. United States Industrial Alcohol and Patino Mines sank to new low levels for the year.

Peoples Gas was the outstanding individual feature, soaring 16¼ points to a new 1930 high at 304. Sloss Sheffield preferred scored an extreme gain of 10½ points by touching a new high at 80½, and National Biscuit (old) moved up 7½ to a new top.

VESSEL'S ENGINES BREAK LEFT AT OCEAN'S MERCY

U.S. Freighter Syros Is Asked to Lend Assistance.

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 19 (Canadian Press).—The Mackay radio station here to-day picked up an S.O.S. call from the Greek freighter Eugenie which listed her position as 200 miles north-east of Bermuda. The Eugenie said her engines had stopped and she was unable to steer.

The Eugenie's message was intercepted by the United States freighter Syros, the Mackay operator said, which is about 75 miles south of the Eugenie.

Reporting that she was drifting south-east, the Eugenie asked the Syros to come to her assistance.

The Eugenie, of 2,312 tons, is from Baltimore for Marseilles.

CANADA WIRE ANNUAL MEETING.

While no important new developments occurred at the annual meeting of Canada Wire and Cable Company held at Leaside to-day, shareholders were informed that sales of the company this year to date had compared favorably with the corresponding period last year. In fact, a slight increase in business was shown.

No action with regard to dividends on the Class "B" stock was taken by directors at their meeting. In view of the high earnings shown on the junior stock, there were expectations on the Street that dividends on the Class "B" stock would be initiated. Such action may be taken by directors at a later date.

The annual statement for 1929 was approved by shareholders and the same directors were elected for the ensuing year.

WOULD BE HUGE CONSOLIDATION.

Provided expectations in some quarters are realized, a $500,000,000 merger will evolve out of the negotiations claimed to be under way among Canadian power and paper companies, with a newsprint capacity of 6,000 tons daily. One argument put forth in favor of the ideal is that it would make conservation measures more capable of enforcement and prevent wastage through distress production of smaller and loss financially capable concerns.

It is stated that the merger will centre around Abitibi and the Canadian International Paper Co., and that Canada Power and Paper Co. might join. Another group of smaller companies, including Brompton, St. Lawrence and Lake St. John, may come together as a preliminary to joining the larger merger as a unit. In such an event, a $570,000,000 consolidation would result. The complete consolidation, if effected, would involve three fifths of Canada's output of newsprint and one quarter of the world's output.

$2,554,721,000 in Banks.

NEW YORK—The rebound in savings deposits from the low levels to which they were drawn down last Fall during the break in the stock market has carried the total of savings in banks in the New York Federal Reserve District back to new high levels, according to figures compiled by the local Federal Reserve Bank. While the volume of savings deposits still is below the levels which would have been reached had the pace of recent years continued without interruption, it has already surpassed the levels which obtained before the stock market crisis and appears to be turning sharply upward.

Deposits of thirty representative savings banks in the New York Federal Reserve District, fifteen in New York City and fifteen outside the city, totalled $2,554,721,000 on February 10 last. This compares with $2,531,037,000 a year ago and with $2,417,111,000 two years ago.

On October 10 of last year, just before the stock market decline the volume of deposits in these savings banks amounted to $2,549,265,000. In the succeeding month these savings were drawn down to $42,259,000 to a total of $2,507,106,000. The decline continued at a more moderate pace in the next month, a drop of $5,250,000 carrying the total to $2,500,851,000 on December 10, 1929. This was the lowest figure to which savings deposits in this area had dropped since December, 1928.

LENGTH OF TRADE REACTIONS.

NEW YORK.—Doubt over the predicted return of normal trade conditions with the Spring season has revived interest in the record of such other recent industrial setbacks. The general impression has been that all of them were exceedingly brief, lasting perhaps only a few months. This was true with some of them, notably that of 1927, when business reaction began late in the spring and ended in the following December. But the record of other reactionary years has varied considerably.

FISH AND GAME PARLEY IS OPENED IN OTTAWA

Clubs from All Dominion Send Representatives—Aid Provincial Associations.

OTTAWA, March 19. (C.P.) — With a view to organizing persons interested in the protection of fish and game on a Dominion-wide scale a conference is being held here to-day, attended by representatives of Fish and Game Clubs in every province. The new organization is to be called the Dominion of Canada Fish and game Protective association. Its purpose is to co-ordinate work being carried on by Provincial Associations, assist these Associations in getting on their feet, where they are encountering difficulties and do away with certain conflicts between the game laws of different provinces which now exist.

G. A. Haydon, of Calgary, Alta., presided at the organization meeting and is slated as first president of the new Association.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, March 19.— The local egg market appeared a little firmer yesterday, and though prices to shippers and retailers did not increase prospects were much brighter than previously due to an increased demand. As forecast a week or two ago a lower egg price to the consumer has resulted in greater consumption, and with the clean-up of American eggs on the local market things have taken a turn for the better. Country shippers were quoted for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, 26c to 27c for extras; 24c to 25c for firsts, and 22c for seconds. The prices to retailers were 34c for extras in cartons; 32c for extras, loose; 30c for firsts, loose, and 26c for seconds, loose.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 19.—Corn led all grain upward in price yesterday, and finished at virtually the top level reached. Indications were that the season's main movement of corn to market terminals has reached an end, with prospects of liberal out-shipments ahead at the opening of navigation on the Great Lakes, announcement of 1,245,000 bushel decrease of the world's wheat available supply tended further to strengthen wheat values, and so, too, did expectance of a cold wave Friday or before over domestic winter wheat States.

Closing quotations both on corn and wheat were firm, with corn ¾c to 1⅝c a bushel higher than Monday's latest figures. Wheat finished ⅛c to ⅝c up; oats, ⅛c to ¾c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, March 19. — Wheat prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday continued their labored climb up over the path down which they slid so recently. Absence of selling pressure on a friendly mart allowed values to move ⅜c to ½c ahead. Pit trade was not heavy and business was not of an important nature, however.

Dullness crept into the export trade following Monday's heavy export business, in which the wheat pool and a large independent trader were prominent. Buying was scattered and came under no particular head. Broomhall foresaw better demand and steadier markets unless Argentine and Canadian sellers press unduly.

Demand for various grades of cash wheat was moderate, but offerings were few and business light. Demand from the East for various grades of oats and low grades of barley continued fairly good on the coarse grain market.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, March 19.—Wholesale egg prices remained unchanged here yesterday at from 30c to 37c a dozen. Ontario fresh eggs were being offered at 32c. for extras, 30c. for firsts, and 27c. to 28c. for seconds, while British Columbia fresh eggs were offering in a limited quantity at 32½c to 33c for extras, delivered.

Firmness was noted in the local butter market, with dealers suggesting that prices had already reached their lowest levels, and were likely to become slightly higher. Wholesale levels were ¼c higher yesterday, with quotations ranging from 33½c to 34c for finest New Zealand. The cheese market continued dull, while the potato section was slightly firmer, with prices unchanged at Monday's levels.

Junior Auxiliary of Hastings Anglican Church Takes Part in Program.

HASTINGS, March 19.—(Examiner Correspondence.) — On Wednesday evening the Junior Auxilnary of St. George's Anglican church presented a pleasing little pageant, "We'll Have Katinka," depicting the reception of a little Russian by Canadian school children.

Although Jessie Kirk as 'Gladys,' the 'grand' school girl called Katinka, who was Margaret Braithwaite, a newcomer, a Bolshevist and a foreigner, Bernice Dainard as 'Nan,' Irene Jeffries as 'Lois,' Muriel Bimrose as 'Vera' and Helen Jeffries all received her with open arms and invited her to join in their games.

Gladys finally condescended to join them in singing, "We'll Have Katinka for Nuts in May."

As an encore the Juniors, accompanied by Muriel Bimrose, sang a suitable song, Jessie Kirk recited 'The Boyhood Home of Jesus.' Other recitations were given by Mrs. Hubbs and Helen Jeffries.

Very interesting slides on the work of the Columbia Coast Mission and a story, Rip Van Winkle, were also shown.

den upon the average citizen, and brought rounds of applause from the House when he, step by step, painted the picture of Ontario of the future which will arise from the benefits of "taxation of the individual or corporation that benefits most."

Three Departments Involved

The Liberal Leader's charges encompassed three departments and went far afield in the Province. He accused Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health and Labor, with seeking a widow's support during the recent election by suggesting that more time might be spent on her claim for a mother's allowance, and produced a letter signed by the Minister issuing these instructions. He demanded a probe of an affidavit in which two men stated they had worked as farm hands on the farm of a Government Inspector and been paid in Northern Development Department cheques, and he stated two definite cases of Magistrates in Port Credit and Picton having campaigned in the interest of Conservative members while they were drawing salaries as civil servants.

On conclusion of the debate, and amendment to the motion to adopt the budget, which the Premier declared could be challenged as the propriety and which denounced the Government for compelling municipalities to share in the cost of old age pensions, was defeated by a vote of 18 to 87. It was a straight party division. Earl Hutchinson was absent and Premier Ferguson was paired with Mr. Sinclair who had been called from the House.

Allowance Cut Off

Mr. Sinclair read a letter which had received from one of his supporters, written by Hon. Forbes Godfrey, minister of health and labor prior to the election to one, Allen. The letter dealt with the case of a Mrs. Callaghan of Long Branch, Ont., stating that her Mother's Allowance had been cut off in view of certain circumstances. A note asked, "See her before the 30th, and if you can get her support for Thursday we will be able to take more time with the case."

Hon. Dr. Godfrey was not in his seat when the letter was read, and to which Mr. Sinclair added it was further playing politics with the people's money.

British politics have lost more than a statesman in Arthur James Balfour, O.M.

A personality of peculiar aloofness and detachment, he had become an institution, though it is possible that the full story of his services to the Empire will never be written. The author of "A Defence of Philosophic Doubt," "The Foundations of Belief," "Theism and Humanism," was not a man who depended on publicity, transparent cleverness or political skill for his subtle hold on public. He was credited with never reading a newspaper, on the principle that if there is anything important doing someone will tell you about it, while if there is not a newspaper is a superfluity. Similarly, he cared nothing for the recording of his own doings and achievements. It is for this reason that many of his works may go unchronicled.

Few statesmen who have been Prime Minister and have suffered a crushing political defeat can re-appear casually—and Balfour was essentially casual—in the arena fifteen years later, and still draw a crowded House. Asquith, very much of the statesman, left office and was defeated in the last years of the European War, returning after only a short interval to find himself a political nonentity devoid of all influence in an assembly where for so long he had held a foremost place. Balfour, on the other hand, after representing East Manchester for 21 years, was caught in the Liberal avalanche of 1906, and had to find his way back to the Commons via a specially-vacated seat in the City of London. Despite this, whenever in 1921 he chose to give an account of his stewardship as the chief British representative on the League of Nations he was always listened to with close attention and real pleasure. There was a fascination about the lounging, languid figure sitting unperturbed through clashing attacks on the Government of which he was a member, a figure that finally rose slowly—as though unwillingly disturbed—to the height of its long legs, and in a few minutes was sitting gloriously on the political fence with expectant friends and foes alike confounded, as in the days of the Tariff Reform controversy, or was sticking darts of incisive eloquence into the sensitive skins of his challengers.

When Balfour was roused, it was a rash man who interrupted him. During one of the debates on the attitude of the British Government towards the League of Nations, he was defending the Government's policy with vigor and conviction when Lord Robert Cecil, who had recently left the Government for the Opposition benches, interjected one of his frequent and heated suggestions that the British Government was not in earnest in the matter. "There is no occasion for my noble friend to become so excited," came in calm and ironical tones from the Government spokesman. The House roared. Balfour was addressing his own cousin, whom he knew to be sensitive to ridicule. For the remainder of the evening Lord Robert Cecil, at that time a power with the Opposition, was silenced.

In his later years, Balfour held the office of Lord President of the Council, a post well fitted to a man of his eminence inasmuch as its occupant is expected to perform a variety of important duties. In the man, however, he was identified with foreign affairs, university life, and it must be added golf and tennis. Also, in his unobtrusive way he retained to the end a close regard for the interests of the Church in Scotland.

Balfour's first close association with foreign affairs was at the age of 30 when, after four years in Parliament, he became Lord Salisbury's private secretary. Then came office as President of the Local Government Board, seven years later, the Secretaryship for Scotland, Chief Secretaryship for Ireland—a landmark in his political history—followed by a double change as Leader of the Opposition and Prime Minister for three years before the debacle of 1906. During the European War he was First Lord of the Admiralty for twelve months, and then went to the Foreign Office for three years.

Except in its later portion, his career was filled with incident and controversy. Nevertheless, there were some things for which he found no time, or perhaps it was inclination. He remained a confirmed bachelor, and though in 1909 he produced an essay on "Criticism and Beauty," it is to be feared that he had the material and not the human in mind.

Balfour will be missed in British politics because he was a man that mattered—and the more because he did not think so.

Helpless With Pain In His Back

Vancouver man thinks Gin Pills wonderful

Right in the midst of the local Horse Show, Mr. J. S. Russell, of Vancouver, B.C., was completely laid up by severe pains in the small of his back. He could not sit on a chair, let alone on a horse. "I was compelled to go to bed," he says.

Here a most awkward and painful problem was solved by a friend who advised Gin Pills, which quickly corrected the trouble according to Mr. Russell, whose letter ends—"and I was able to ride again in 24 hours. Gin Pills are wonderful."

Gin Pills positively give relief, not only in cases of severe backache, but in even more acute kidney conditions. Gin Pills soothe the inflamed kidneys and end the misery. How much better to obtain a 50c. box from your druggist than to take chances. The symptoms of kidney trouble are unmistakable—backache, dizziness, headaches, swollen joints, brick dust in urine, spots before the eyes, a burning sensation attendant on scanty or too frequent urination. BIBLE CLASS HOSTS TO SUNDAY SCHOOL

Entertaining Program Enjoyed at Social Gathering Held in Fenella.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FENELLA, March 19. — Very pretty looked the interior of the town hall on Friday evening, March 14th, with its decorations of green and purple and with the shamrock much in evidence, when the young men's class of Fenella United Sunday School were hosts to the school.

During the first part of the evening progressive crokinole was played, the prizes going to Miss Jessie Waldie and Mr. Ellis Isaace. Tossing the bean bags was also indulged in and greatly enjoyed by those participating in this old fashioned game. Contests included a fish contest, and a vehicle contest, but the premier contest was named the "Fenella Gazette," the company being divided into groups, and each group contributing a write-up on editorial and current events, social and personal, lost and found, and for sale columns. The prize for this contest went to the group contributing to the editorial and current events column, although each column deserves special mention. Much original talent was displayed by the writers, and the reading of the "Fenella Gazette" proved to be one of the best items on the program.

Other items on the program were community singing, instrumental selections on the accordian and violin by C. McNaught and Gordon Sandercock. Jack Crank, president of the class had charge of the program throughout the entire evening. He welcomed the guests in a neat little speech and proved himself to be a very efficient chairman. The mothers of the boys were a capable committee, who prepared the weiner roast which was served hot to the guests by the class. Other commitees responsible for the evening's entertainment were crokinole, Floyd Murphy and Melvnie Macklin; fish contest, Harry Macklin and Jack Crank; vehicle contest, Alex Hodginson and Harry Sherwin; 'Fenella Gazette' contest, Frank Nill and Fred Murphy; game of bean bags, Donald George. These various committees have ever worked under the direction of their capable teacher, Mrs. John Herrington, and were accorded a hearty vote of thanks by the guests of the evening.

'Fraid I can't stop and talk very long just now. Mother told me to hurry back. You won't think badly of my manners, if I do?

Oh yes, we always get both kinds of Bon Ami. Mother tells me, Remember, Bonnie, get both the Powder and Cake. But she doesn't have to, 'cause I get so much fun in cleaning with both of them. Mother and I go round the house together, cleaning the white woodwork, windows and mirrors with the Cake; and the bathtub and all the have-to-be-shiny bathroom tiles with the nice, soft Powder. In the Legislature

The Ferguson Government was sustained in the adoption of its Budget by a vote of 87 to 18.

An amendment introduced by G. S. Tweed, Liberal, North Waterloo, which condemned the Government on the division of the contribution for Old Age Pensions, was defeated.

Premier Ferguson stated definitely that no portion of the gasoline tax would be given to municipalities.

W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, charged that suicides were occurring because of the uneasiness created by the Government delaying in setting a date for brokers to show their shortage sales.

Premier Ferguson introduced a bill to increase Cabinet Ministers' salaries from $8,000 to $10,000.

REMOVE FILM.. that's where decay, pyorrhea start

F M must be removed

Employ the scientific method dentists urge

WHAT causes decay? Germs. Germs, with tartar, are also held to be a chief cause of pyorrhea.

Germs on the teeth—and there are millions—are difficult to reach. A dingy, glue-like film holds them in contact with the tooth's enamel.

This film coat gets into crevices and stays. It clings so stubbornly that only a special film-removing tooth paste can remove it satisfactorily. That tooth paste is the scientific formula called Pepsodent. Utterly different from every other, as you notice instantly when it touches your teeth.

No pumice, no harmful grit. No crude abrasive, but a creamy paste so gentle that it is recommended for children's teeth and for tender gums.

Safeguard your teeth and give them the dazzling whiteness Pepsodent alone can bring. Write for free 10-day tube to The Pepsodent Co., Co., 191 George St., Toronto 2, Ont.

JESSIE ALEXANDER, ELOCUTIONIST, ENTERTAINS ST. PAUL'S AUDIENCE

Offerings Were Well Chosen and Delighted Her Hearers.

SPONSORED BY LADIES' AID.

The amazing versatility of Jessie Alexander which has brought her wide fame as an elocutionist in Canada once more held a Peterborough audience in fascination when she appeared in a recital before a large gathering at St. Paul's Church last night. The entertainment was sponsored by the Ladies' Aid of the church following a St. Patrick's dinner.

With two exceptions the offerings of Jessie Alexander were chosen with regard to the proximity of St. Patrick's day and they enhanced the Irish touch that permeated the program. The several Irish poems and a Scotch offering "The Courtship of the Widow" provided an excellent field for her well-known dialect abilities of which she took full advantage. In a convincing manner she readily reverted from pathos to the comic during the evening.

Dr. J. J. Craig acted as chairman on the occasion. He endorsed the Ladies Aid which provided the entertainment, as the most energetic and active organization in St. Paul's and commented on its material financial assistance to the church.

Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., opened the program with two organ presentations with an appropriate Irish flavor. The first was the Overture to "The Bohemian Girl" by Balfe and the other, "The Last Rose of Summer" (varied).

Interspaced between the recitals of Jessie Alexander were also offerings by Miss Daisy Davidson, soprano, accompanied by Miss Gwen Donley at the piano. She first gave "An Irish Love Song" by Margaret Lang and "Happy Song" by Teresa Del Riego. "Fairy's Lullaby" and "Shadow March" (Robert Louis Stevenson) were then presented and finally "Nightingale of June" a waltz song by Wilfred Sanderson and "The Lilac Tree". Hearty applause evidenced the appreciation of these artists' work.

Return of Irish Exile

Jessie Alexander first selected "Dawn on the Irish Coast" a poem by John Locke depicting the return home of an Irish exile to his home country after an absence of thirty years and his enjoyment once more of the sight of dawn breaking over his native land. The delicate manner in which speaker handled the poem evoked sincere applause.

"How the War was Settled" gave her a free rein to display the full powers of humorous expression which she possesses. It was a prose story which depended for its humor and color on the speaker's interpretation of the Irish brogue being a story of an Irishman giving a speech at a dinner and getting into serious difficulties through a faulty memory. Miss Alexander did it ample justice.

Reverting to a purely American theme of humor, she gave "Betty at the Ball Game" and was rewarded with the heaviest applause of the evening. "Mary Mahone" a poem by Wilson McDonald was of a more serious vein. It was a story of the dream of an Irish girl who aspired to become a poet. Artfully she presented Ruth Sawyer's story "The Turning Point" a touching story embellished with humor concerning an Irish boy in America who found difficulty in making his way but put aside temptations to take an easy way out by wrong doing. Miss Alexander's familiarity with broad Scotch enabled her hearers to fully appreciate "The Courting of the Widow" by Andrew Wanless.

Her concluding offering was one of the best received on her program. It was another story whose success depended on the Irish brogue of the teller, "Nora and the Twins" by Ben Hare.

OLD FRIENDSHIP AGAIN RENEWED

William Yelland and William Cathcart Meet After Interval of 52 Years.

ATTENDING FUNERAL.

An old friendship, the bonds of which were solidly cemented in their youthful days, was renewed yesterday, between William Cathcart of this city and William Yelland of Toronto, after a lengthy interval of 52 years.

Both gentlemen were mourners at the funeral of the late Mrs. W. G. Yelland. In conversation with Mr. Yelland this morning it was learned that this unique friendship between the two men was formed at the time they were attending Belleville Business College. They both graduated on the same day, April 5th, 1877, since which time Mr. Cathcart has travelled throughout the West. He was there at the time of the Reil Rebellion and was busily engaged in the transportation of supplies to the troops.

Mr. Yelland, an energetic and kindly type of man, reflecting on the days of his boyhood spent in Peterborough, said, "I used to live on the site where Comstock's business is now situated."

"That would be over fifty years ago," exclaimed John Comstock, in whose office the conversation took place.

"Yes," said Mr. Yelland adding wistfully, "you can make it sixty years; aye seventy years"

71 Years of Age

This statement drew forth exclamations of surprise and admiration for the speaker did not look anywhere near 71 years old, which age he proudly proclaimed he had passed and was rapidly approaching his 72nd birthday. His erect carriage and fresh youthful complexion, the merry twinkle in his clear eyes and his vivid memory for facts and figures all belied, what he proved to be a solemn truth.

He recalled the days when Peterborough was a small town. The day when he and another youthful playmate drove a bunch of cows up the then sleepy George street, free of street cars or automobiles. So quiet was the street in those days that the cows took a notion to stop in the middle of the street and survey the peaceful surroundings. The youthful driver having other intentions hurled a small stone at the flanks of one of the lazy beasts, but he added with a mischievous twinkle in his eyes, that stone went wide of the mark and hit a plate glass window, and broke it.

Mr. Yelland is still activly engaged in the Civil Service, having been in the Land Office in Toronto for 28 years.

The name Yelland is greatly respected here, and remembered with pride and affection. William Yelland's father was mayor of the town for two years and served as an Alderman for 14 years. He was engaged here in the carriage manufacturing business.

BRAVERY OF GIRL RETOLD TO BOARD

Presence of Mind of Young Girl Responsible For Saving Six Lives.

TRAPPED BY FLAMES.

The presence of mind of a young girl, whose quick thinking and action probably saved the lives of six children, was brought to the attention of the Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society at their regular meeting yesterday afternoon in the City Council Chamber.

Helen McIlmoyle of Clarina, a girl of sixteen years of age, was awakened about half-past ten o'clock one night by the sound of crackling flames. Her father, also awakened from his sleep, went down stairs with the oil lamp to investigate and did not return. The girl, realizing that fire was threatening the lives of herself and six small brothers and sisters, got them speedily to a rear window in the upper floor of the small frame house. Breaking the glass, she was able to lower the children to a snowbank below and then jumpp out. At present she is in Nicholls Hospital with a lingering illness.

The account of the girl's heroism was contained in the report of the agent of the society, J. Edgar, who also reported as follows for the past month: Applications for children, 3; children brought to Shelter (not wards), 2; children returned to parents (not wards), 3; children made wards, 1; complaints received and investigations made, 7; mail received, 28; mail sent out, 49; mileage covered (approximately), 475; places visited, Havelock, Hastings, Toronto, and Centre Dummer; Police Court attendance, 3; wards in foster homes heard from, 8; wards placed out, 1.

There were 17 children in the Shelter during the month of February and 14 at the end of the month.

Mr. Edgar read a postcard received from the president of the society, the Rev. Dr. Blagrave, from Phoenix, Arizona, and reference was also made to the illness of Mrs. James Fanning, a board member, and a resolution made to send flowers from the Board.

Donations and Accounts.

The following donations were received at the Shelter during the past month: Doughnuts from the Men's Club of George Street Church, 10 pails of jam from a Friend; bread, pies and potatoes from Mark Street Church, clothing from Mrs. Horn.

The accounts were passed as follows, after the report of the Purchasing Committee was read by Mrs. J. Welsh: Campbell's Dairy, $35.60; Miller & Powell, $3.00; W. J. Hopwood, $5.00; R. Denne, $6.00; Grafton & Company, $33.54; Bell Telephone Company, $3.95 and $4.10; Gordon Hudson, $36.31; Teco Store, $36.04; J. E. A. Fitzgerald, $9.00; McDonald Lumber Company, $4.44; F. C. Weber, $1.25; Adamson & Dobbin, 45 cents; John Edgar, $2.70; Darcy Foster, $6.40; R. Hall, Limited, $18.75; H. E. S. Clements, $7.50; Herb. Stinson, $4.50; Peterborough Examiner, $1.00; Total, $219.53.

At the meeting yesterday, the chair was taken by Mrs. W. H. Gibbs. Other Board members present were: Mrs. J. Welsh, Mrs. S. Newhall, Mrs. H. Nigh, Mrs. L. Yeotes, Mrs. J. J. Lynch, Mrs. C. Wiggins, Alderman Stocker, Alderman J. A. McNabb, J. Edgar, R. H. Parsons.

SOCIETY MEETS.

Mrs. A. Rosborough Hostess to Members of X. L. Mission Circle.

With a large membership present, the X. L. Mission Circle of St. James' United Church held their March meeting at the home of Mrs. A. Rosborough, 362 Simcoe street.

The President, Miss Jessie Martin, occupied the chair and an opening hymn was sung, followed by prayer offered by Mrs. Wesley Rose. A responsive service entitled "Youth in Scripture and Song, proved most interesting and helpful.

Preceding the Study Book, two of the members led in prayer for troubled Russia.

The second chapter of from Jerusalem to Jerusalem was excellently prepared and presented by Miss Mabel Dulmage, who told the story of the early expansion of Christianity, illustrating her talk with many old legends.

An encouraging report was received from the treasurer, and the Benediction was pronounced.

A social hour followed during which two lively Irish contests were entered into heartily.

Dainty refreshments were served by the joint hostesses, Mrs. Rosborough and Mrs. Ernest Kitney, to whom a vote of thanks was extended.

The next meeting will be in charge of Mrs. D. Sedgwick and Miss May Welch and will be held at the home of the latter.

NEW PLANT AFFORDS 45,000 SQUARE FEET OF FLOOR SPACE

The remarkable success achieved by Marconi Radio Receivers and Marconi Commercial Transmitting and Receiving Equipment in recent years, has resulted in present production facilities becoming entirely inadequate to care for the steadily growing demand for all Marconi products.

It has just been announced that the Canadian Marconi Company has purchased a site of 125,000 square feet of land in the Town of Mount Royal, P.Q., where work on the erection of a new Marconi manufacturing plant has already been started.

SECOND ARMOUR TROOP

The Second Armour Troop held its regular weekly meeting in the St. Luke's Parish Hall. The meeting opened with Patrol Corner until the Scout Master arrived. Flag break and patrol inspection followed. William Hepburn was also gladly taken into the Beaver Patrol. Patrol Corners were again assembled, followed by a game of Farm. This was followed by Patrol Corner and the Wolves passed their Morse Code and a Wolf and a Beaver tried for their first class signalling. Another game followed, this being "Grab the Stick" the Beavers easily winning this.

FIRST ST. JOHN'S TROOP

The weekly meeting of the First St. John's Troop was held on Friday last when there was the best turnout of the boys in the troop history.

The Scout Master opened the meeting with flag break and thus started a most successful meeting. The events of the evening took their usual course, except for an investiture ceremony.

When the evening was about half over preparations were made for an investiture. Then before those boys who had already been invested Ross Pulkinghorn and Norman Baxter took the Scout promise.

For the past few weeks the various patrols have been made responsible for a short "stunt" at the campfire and The Bulldogs under P.L. Charlie Crosgrey did their bit. Previously P.L. Millard's Buffaloes and P.L. Henry's Seals took a turn at theatrical producing without anything seriously happening.

This week also marked the "debut" of a news bulletin published by the Seals. This was quite good, containing news articles and friendly comments and criticism. Last week the Buffalos published a very useful bulletin, and next week we are looking forward to one from the Bulldogs. These are to be judged and points awarded to count in the interpatrol competition.

S. M. Garfield Johnson closed the meeting in the usual manner.

UNDER THE FLEUR-DE-LYS

This week I am including one of a series of episodes which will appear from time to time. While of course, I do not contend that these episodes are true in detail, yet they actually did happen. They make interesting reading, from several points of view.

Johnny Joins the Boy Scouts

The family roared with laughter, without malice, but just a little contemptuous. The cause was little Johnny's announcement, Johnny was one of the younger members of the family. He had no particular pride in his personal appearance, his clothes were not of the latest cut for his coat was ragged at the elbows and shiny where cuffs should be. Usually his face was not overclean, and his hair resembled a mop. In reply to his mother's question: "Where have you been " his reply, "I've joined the Boy Scouts" had caused the laughter.

There was very little difference in Johnny during the rest of the week, and the family had forgotten his important announcement.

When the meeting of the Boy Scouts took place the following week, the family were surprised to see Johnny making preparations for a wash, a thing previously unknown. But Johnny washed and attempted to comb his unruly hair, that wouldn't just stay "put." Off he went to meet with the Scouts.

Nothing great took place that week, except that Johnny asked his mother to mend his ragged coat. Then she began to take notice. A week later his mother agreed that Johnny did look "nicer." Then the rest of the family began to take notice. He became a ready servant and help to his mother; he became active and obedient. His father explained it as "Johnny was growing."

He appeared to be always handy when errands had to be done, and his ready service was often rewarded with coppers. These Johnny saved, had his hair cut, and prevailed upon his mother for a better suit and boots. Some weeks later he came home in triumph from the Scouts meeting with a parcel, which he proudly unfolded before the family gaze. It contained shirt, pants, cap, belt, and scarf, the uniform of the Boy Scouts, and to be worn on the coming Saturday.

It was a proud boy who went forth that day. The family verdict on the change was: "Our Johnny looks all right, doesn't he?" and they themselves felt elated that it was THEIR Johnny. Before Johnny joined the Scouts, the Scout movement was looked upon with something like derision. They would not go to the end of the street to see them, but now the Scout movement stands for something more than just "Playing at Soldiers." Little Johnny has taught them something of what it means.

Tramp Camps

There is no question as to the value of camp life, from a Scout training point of view, whether the camp be a standing one or a tramp camp. When the possibilities of the tramp camp are considered, its opportunities for practising pathfinding, nature study, mapping, tracking and woodcraft, it is really astonishing that so few troops or, at least, patrols undertake it. Here are a few useful hints for a tramp camp:

1.—Each boy should keep a diary of the whloe journey, day by day; this to be done properly will take at least an hour per day to write up. In the diary you should note the weather, compass directions, mileage, countryside features, animals and birds noticed and the trees and flowers.

2.—Rough maps showing the route taken should be made by each member.

3.—One member should make a collection of wild flowers, another leaves of trees, and others should note animals, birds, etc. The object of a tramp camp is to give opportunity for Scout training, and to pump health and enjoyment into the patrol.

On one of the days the patrol should be divided into two parties, and one should leave earlier than the other, leaving "signs" to show the route taken.

To prevent any mistake, each party leader woulld be give an envelope containing the place for the night's camp..

Here is a good routine for a tramp camp:—

6.00 a.m.—Turn out. Coffee and biscuits.
6.30 a.m.—Strike camp and en route.
8.30 a.m.—Breakfast.
9.00 a.m.—En route.
11.30 a.m. to 1.30 p.m.—Dinner and rest.
1.30 p.m.—En route.
4.30 p.m.—Tea.
6.00 p.m.—Prepare Camp.
7.30 p.m.—Write diary.
9.00 p.m.—Supper and turn in.

Now that the days are lengthening let us prepare and away to the country. Let us leave the smoky town behind us and get where the handywork of God is to be seen. Even if there be but two of you, make the most of the coming season and get away from the crowds. A "billy" bright and clean on the shelf is of little use, let it be hung over a pinewood fire. It is now close on midnight, and my imagination takes me back to a camp we once held on the seashore; I can hear the waves rolling over the pebbles, and the full moon lights up the tent sufficient to see the contentment and happiness on the faces of eight lads who have had a glorious day on the mountains, and have been nearer to the "Great Scout" than ever they have been in any church. When one remembers the experiences and the bewilderment of these lads on first viewing the wonders of nature, one cannot help but feel that Scouting is a game worth playing, be ye young or old.

I see by recent reports that the movement is growing locally. All troops are enrolling new members. So come along, boys, roll up in large numbers, and be in time for all the good things the organization is planning for the Summer.

Cheerio and Good Scouting is the wish of

FARMERS MUST DESTROY WEEDS

Notice of Responsibility Under Weed Control Act Mailed in District.

COVERS ALL LANDS.

CAVAN, March 19. — (Examiner Correspondence.) — Cavan farmers have very recently received their notice of responsibility in the carrying out of the Ontario Weed Control Act. They are notified that:

Every occupant of land, whether rentee or owner shall prevent the ripening of all noxious weeds. If the land is unoccupied the owner is responsible.

If an occupant neglects or refuses to do this after notice, an inspector may enter upon the land, destroy the weeds, and the cost, if not paid by the occupant may be added to taxes.

Any owner or occupant of land who contravenes any of the provisions of the Act, is liable to a fine of not less than $20 or more than $50 for each offense.

Responsibility of Municipal Councils:

Every Township and Urban Municipal Council must appoint an inspetoor or inspectors. They must also fix the amount of the remuneration and pay it.

Where a council neglects or refuses to appoint an inspector, the Minister of Agriculture may appoint an inspector for the municipality and fix the amount of remuneration which must be paid by the municipal council.

The council of a municipality shall cause to be inserted in a newspaper circulating in the municipality a notice of the appointment of the name to the provincial weed inspecweed inspector and shall forward the tor, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Ontario, before February 1st of each year. Members of municipal councils, township road superintendents or township road foremen are not eligible for appointment as weed inspectors.

It is the duty of the council to see that all weeds growing upon streets or highways are destroyed at the proper time to prevent the ripening of the seed. If the council neglects to have this done, the grant to which it may be entitled under the Highway Improvement Act, may be withdrawn.

The municipal weed inspector must see that the Act is enforced on all roads, public and private property within the confines of the municipality. This includes railways, provincial highways, county roads, township roads, cemeteries, school and church properties and all private property.

The inspector is not authorized to incur expense on roads. If roads are found to be neglected, he should consult with the road authority and if necessary, the reeve of the municipality. If the neglect is not remedied, he should then report to the provincial weed inspector. In the case of rialways, notice should be given to the station master of the company, resident in the municipality.

If weeds are neglected on resident land, the inspector should give notice to the occupant and allow a reasonable time for having weeds destroyed. If this is not done in the stated time, the inspector may cause weeds, coming under the Act, to be destroyed and may charge the cost of such work against the property.

To avoid the necessity of having growing crops destroyed at or near harvest time, all township inspectors should commence their work early in the season and advise farmers on the best methods of weed control.

Noxious weeds—White cockle, bladder campion, wild oats, ox-eye daisy, Canada thistle, sow thistle, blue weed, Chicory, dock, ragweed, ribgrass, stinkweed, tumbling mustard, wild carrot, burdock, hawkweeds, wild lettuces.

J. N. McGill, Millbrook, is weed inspector for Cavan.

J. A. Carrol, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, is in charge of administration.

EDISON RETURNED BACKERS' MONEY

Futile Project Cost Inventor Almost Entire Fortune of $7,000,000.

Story Told After 30 Years.

WINTER PARK, Florida, March 19—A hitherto unrelated story of Thomas A. Edison, which involved his voluntary return of $7,000,000 to those who had invested in one of his enterprises he deemed unsuccessful of achievement, has just been narrated by August Heckscher, New York capitalist. The following story was told before a special convocation of the faculty and students of Rollins College.

"In 1897 or 1899 Mr. Edison made up his mind that a very great deposit of iron ore, located between Hamburg and Sparta, in New Jersey, could be worked to advantage by means of a new and amazing process invented by him. Those men he induced to finance his ideas, spent $7,000,000. At that time this sum looked as large as $20,000,000 to-day.

At about the same time the immense deposits of iron ore now being mined in the vicinity of Lake Superior were discovered, making it impossible for Edison to continue successfully in this undertaking. When he made up his mind to that he went to his financiers, seven in all, most of them far wealthier than he, and said:

"'Gentlemen, I am sorry you are going to lose your money. Any of you or all of you who wish to send me your stock with a statement of its cost to you plus 6 per cent. added for the time you have held it will receive a cheque for that amount.'

"Although it was an unheard-of proposal, they accepted, and Mr. Edison paid each investor in full with interest, although it took practically his entire fortune."

CAFE LICENSE REFUSED

HAMILTON, March 18. (C.P.) — Charles E. Staunton, manager of the James Dwyer estate appeared with a deputation before the Property and License Committee last night, and charged that buildings near Cannon and James streets were a hotbed of vice, occupied by Chinese men, white girls and women, and were the haunt of narcotic drug peddlers. He and other deputants therefore opposed the application of a Chinese to establish a restaurant in that neighborhood. The committee refused the application.

Give Mother more time to live!

3 hours over the tub—only an hour with the Beatty. That's the difference between the old way and the new. The Beatty Electric washer gives mother time to live, time to spend with her children, time to enjoy herself. Time is life. The Beatty does the whole family washing in an hour from table cloths to dusters. It gets the clothes a lovely color, without the need of boiling or any rubbing at all. Even the deep-in dirt, embedded in wrist bands and neck bands, comes out quickly. Part of the secret is the laundry equipment we supply—6 extra pieces with each washer (3 for mother and 3 for the kids). Extra rinse tubs, a bench on wheels to carry them, drainer and hose, driers, iron and ironing table—whatever you need the most. These make a complete washing outfit which save time in rinsing, bluing, time in filling up tubs and emptying, time in drying and ironing and handling the clothes. They save as much time and work as the washer itself. They are free, with every Beatty washer.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

MANY HOUSEWIVES in Peterborough devote so much time to their household duties that they have very little to spend on their wardrobe and hence the responsibilities are shirked.

• • • • • • •

You will notice that gloves, a part of the wardrobe which is very important at this season, bring added responsibilities and must be carefully seen to if the emergencies of the social occasion are to be met in proper style.

• • • • • • •

You can make your gloves look just as fresh and attractive as you desire and if you are one of those women who desire to look well groomed on all occasions, you will spare no effort in making your gloves attractive.

• • • • • • •

In order to give washable kid gloves the more exquisite dry cleaned effect, have a supply of French chalk on hand. This chalk may be purchased in local drug stores and I believe it is very reasonably priced, too

• • • • • • •

The rather hard look given the surface by the application of soap and water is softened, if the gloves are laid in a box of French chalk and some of it is rubbed in by taking the gloves and treating them as if the chalk were soap suds and the process that of washing.

• • • • • • •

After wearing your gloves you will notice they look wrinkled and it is this you must look after. Do not allow the gloves to remain wrinkled and when you wear the gloves again, try to see that the folds with that wearing come different in place from the last.

• • • • • • •

A sprinkling of French chalk between the folds of tissue is a help except where a dark glove is likely to come in contact with it, and hence become marked.

• • • • • • •

Dark gloves are worn a great deal and their smartness appeals to the well dressed woman in this city. And, of course, you will want to keep them looking fresh at all times. A soft brush will aid in their care.

• • • • • • •

And I know you will want to keep your hats spic and span throughout the summer, so that I am going to give you a few hints on how to keep them that way.

• • • • • • •

A white felt hat can be kept fresh by inclosing in a large paper bag and dusting into the bag some powdered French chalk. Hold the bag firmly closed and shake vigorously.

• • • • • • •

After you have done this to your satisfaction, tie a string about the mouth of the bag and make a loop in the string, to hang the bag up by. Before wearing the heat, take it out, shaking it within the bag first.

• • • • • • •

Then put the hat into another paper bag and shake it to get as much of the chalk as possible from it while under cover. Lastly shake the hat out of doors, and brush it with a soft hat brush.

• • • • • • •

If a felt hat is colored, try to match the shade in powder and use this same formula for cleansing. If white French chalk must be used, brush it all out until the original color is restored after the treatment.

• • • • • • •

To restore straw hats with brims that have become mis-shapen steam the hat. Most hats have enough glue in them to stiffen again in the shape one gives them.

• • • • • • •

Brims can be ironed while damp from the steam and be made good as new, and to restore the faded colors, you might use some of the tinting agents which may be bought.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE HOLDS ANNUAL 'AT HOME' SOCIAL

Members Enjoy Jolly Social Evening—Good Musical Program.

DISTRICT NEWS

ROSENEATH, March 19. — (Examiner Correspondence.)— The annual open meeting of the Woman's Institute on Friday evening in the town hall, took the form of an "At Home" when the members and their personal invited friends enjoyed together a most delightful time. The program consisted of games, contests, readings, etc. Ten tables of progressive crokinole were played, the winners being: Lady, Miss McGee of Centenary, who received a silver jewel box, and gentleman's prize was won by George Mouncey, a silver cigarette case. Consolation prizes were given to Mrs. John Baxter and Albert Braithwaite. There were also three tables played by the children, when Lois Talling received a bracelet as first prize and Billy Halstead a Jack-knife. The music during the evening was piano selection, beautifully rendered by Mrs. C. W. Varcoe, Miss Doris Mouncey and Mrs. A. Comfort of Hamilton.

An apple guessing contest and a floral contest added a great deal of pleasure to the gathering.

Mrs. Orrie Varcoe was splendid in her humorous way in describing a few notes on St. Patrick.

The hall was very attractively arranged with green and white decorations and showed both fine art and interest of the committees in charge. Delicious refreshments were served, and the enjoyable evening was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem.

That Body of Yours

PAINFUL FEET.

In examining recruits for war service whose feet appeared to be somewhat flat we always had them show us their shoes.

If the shoes were worn on the outer side of the back of the heel, and the outer side of the sole, then we felt that there was really no flat feet.

In walking, the outer side of the back part of the heel strikes the ground first, the outer border of the sole follows, and then the bones in the sole of the foot spread like a fan toward the second joint of the big toe. If you take off your shoe and stocking and watch your foot as you make a step forward you will see that the foot seems to try to grasp hold of the ground.

Now there would be less trouble with the feet if there were fewer joints, but with 7 bones in the ankle, 5 in the soles, and 14 in the toes, with joints between all of them, you can readily see that it is not difficult to get a little strain or sprain of one or more of these joints.

Unfortunately many individuals get the idea at once that if the feet hurts them it must be due to flat feet and they proceed to buy arch supports.

Now pain may occur almost anywhere, in the arch, over the arch, under the arch, ball of the foot, surface of the heel, or outer border of the foot.

If your feet hurt you, before using arch supports try to remove the pain by getting off the feet as much as possible, and bath them in hot water for ten or fifteen minutes, three or four times a day. Follow the hot water with one or two minutes of cold. This increases the circulation, takes away wastes, and helps tone of muscles.

This should be followed by use of adhesive tape or bandage for a week or two. If the pain continues then you would be wise to consult a foot specialist—a real specialist.

If the pain is due to flat feet he may put you on exercises—walking on heels, walking on the toes, walking on the outer border of the feet with inner sides turned up, grasping articles with the toes, and so forth.

If these measures do not correct the condition and relieve pain, then, and not till then, should you get arch supports.

The usual method is to take a plaster cast of your feet, and have arch supports made from the cast.

So if you get to the point where arch supports must be worn, don't be afraid to wear them, as they take some of the jar off the spinal column and brain.

Uncommon Sense

TALK.

We hear much about "strong silent men", and they are greatly admired in fiction.

But most men great can talk on occasion, and often talk a great deal.

Nobody likes chatterboxes, but the person who can talk intelligently will be listened to, no matter if he talks a great deal.

It has been my good fortune to know a number of interesting persons and to have an opportunity to listen to them.

They talked intimately and at length about matters they understood, and if I did not learn a great deal from them it was my own fault.

Mark Twain, one of the wisest of Americans, used to talk a great deal to his intimates.

His biographer, Albert Bigelow Paine, told me that he was sorry he could not have included everything Mark Twain said in the book. It was most of it worth repeating, and it all would have greatly interested the general reader.

It has been my experience that the person who sits in a corner and makes no contribution to an intelligent conversation has nothing worth while to say.

Naturally one would not expect a Voltaire to take part in idle talk by chatterboxes, but when sensible conversation is going on, those who know how to talk interestingly almost invariably join in.

Do not be afraid to talk, provided you talk on some topic which you understand.

If you understand it better than others, they are always willing to listen to you.

We learn as much by our ears as we do by our eyes.

We are always glad to go to hear some celebrity, chiefly because by his talk he reveals himself.

His features are merely physical. His speech comes out of his mouth, yet it is from his brain, and through speech we get a better idea of what that brain contains than in any other possible way.

Learn to talk well and your talk will not bore people, and you will get no reputation for garrulity.

Refrain from talking much when other people want to talk. But if they show a disposition to listen, which they always will if they are interested, you can talk all you like without fear of making yourself ridiculous.

We are told that silence is golden and speech is silver, but without speech there would be no communication of thought, and without that there would be no civilization.

Soak the tapioca in water for two hours, then put it in a pan with the milk and butter and stir until boiling. Beat the eggs well, reserving the white. SPRING SUITS GET INTO STEP WITH THEIR MALE ESCORTS

NEW YORK, March 19 (U.P.) — The diversity in spring suits, ranging as they do from soft dressmaker types in three-piece versions, to the mannish tailored treatments, promises to put suits into high. The extent to which women will accept the extreme of the mannish idea for a spring when fashion has expressed herself as chiefly concerned with softer moods is questionable, but there seems to be little doubt that there are many smart women who understand the suit as a type to affect a business-like character entirely opposed to the clothes for the more formal hours.

However the masculine themes may be exploited, and they are scheduled to a fair share of spring business, it is logical to believe that distinguished tailoring will also have a full year.

It is the square and upstanding line of the military silhouette as adopted by English tailors and affected by smart English women which gives the newest phase to mannish tailoring for women this season. The padded shoulders are, of course, the most emphatic feature to promote as giving breadth above and accent to the slimness of waistline and hips.

In the strictly military version, the suit should, of course, have the several button closing, either single or double breasted, and should affect the strictly mannish fabrics in which London is emphasizing blues and black.

The padded shoulder idea, developed in a suit of men's wear worsted with a single button tuxedo silhouette, has created much discussion.

"Padded shoulders" suggest an exaggeration of the natural figure lines and some producers believe that if it becomes popular it may point to a revival of uniformity or a classic type in tailored fashions.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Strict Diets Often Unnecessary.

It is a well known fact that some foods have a strong tendency to produce excessive stomach acidity and consequently indigestion. By omitting from daily meals those foods that experience proves do not agree and limiting the diet to certain tasteless unappetizing foods, stomach troubles may in many instances, be slowly overcome. Nine times in ten, however, indigestion, gas, etc., are due to excessive acidity and the premature souring of food in the stomach. Keep the stomach clean and sweet by freeing it of this extra acid and then sufferers can eat the foods they like best and as much as they want in reason and have no stomach trouble at all. Thousands of people do this daily by merely taking after every meal a little Bisurated Magnesia, which can be had at any good drug store in either powder or tablet form. Bisurated Magnesia instantly neutralizes stomach acids, stops food fermentation and meals digest as naturally and painlessly as in the stomach of a healthy child. Stomach comforts means a lot and most folks like good things to eat. Enjoy them both by taking Bisurated Magnesia your daily alkaline protection.

Tigers Eliminate Irish in Allan Cup Play Downs

HAMILTON SEXTET DEFEATS SHAMROCKS ON THE ROUND 9-4; QUALIFIES FOR EASTERN FINAL

Ottawa Beaten in Second Game 6-2 Through Poor Goal-tending.

LAX HOCKEY IN FIRST.

M.A.A.A. and Bearcats Meet To-night to Decide Eastern Canada Champs.

TORONTO, Ont. March 19.—(C.P.)—Hamilton Tigers, Ontario Hockey Association senior champions, recorded another impressive conquest last night by eliminating Shamrocks, Ottawa and district titleholders, from the Allan Cup competition. The score was six to two, and nine to four on the round, as Tigers won the first game at Ottawa three to two. They will now meet either Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, Quebec champions, or Truro Bearcats, Maritime representatives, in the Eastern Canada final.

A burst of scoring broke out in the opening period of last night's game. Ottawa got the first goal and one which tied the teams on the round, less than two minues after the start. Tigers replied with a brace of markers in less than a minute to again take the lead and at the end of the session they had increased their margin five to one on the game. The middle frame was scoreless while each team tallied in the last 20 minutes.

The Shamrock's regular goalkeeper had a distinctly off-night and he was replaced by Jack Cameron starting the second frame. The former Olympic star gave a fine exhibition to hold the Hamilton marksmen to one goal.

To-night M.A.A.A. and Truro will decide which team will meet the Tigers in the final. Montreal won the first of their two game series, two to nothing but failed to establish a clear cut superiority over the Maritime champions, who are one of the strongest sextettes that ever represented the east.

Eastern Final To-night

At Ottawa, the juniors will hold the limelight when West Toronto, Ontario Hockey Association champions, meet Rideaus. Ottawa and district titleholders, in the first of a home and home series in the Eastern Canada final of the Memorial Cup competition. The return is slated for Toronto on Saturday night and the winner on the round will journey west after the Canadian Crown.

GALT BEATS GUELPH IN OVERTIME 6-5

Megaffin Tallies on "Fluke" Goal to Break Third Frame Deadlock.

TORONTO, Ont., March 19 (C.P.).—Galt Terriers, returning to the fine form they displayed earlier in the season, defeated Guelph Maple Leafs, six to five, at Kitchener last night in the first game of the Canadian Hockey League championship final. The second contest will be played at Galt on Thursday night and the third game here on Saturday night. The title goes to the team winning three games. Guelph are playing their home games here on account of poor ice conditions in their own rink.

Exciting hockey was played throughout the game. Both teams adopted the strenuous style, and although the opposing forwards were subjected to severe body-checking, they maintained a fast pace.

Galt scored two quick goals in the last half of the final period to deadlock the count at five-all after the Maple Leafs had the game apparently won. A "fluke" shot from Megaffin's stick which was deflected into the Guelph net, gave the Terriers victory late in the overtime period.

ANOTHER KNOCKOUT.

RINC SIDE ARENA, St. Louis, Mo., March 18.—(C.P.)—Primo Carnera, Italian giant, scored a knockout over Chuck Wiggins of Indianapolis in the second round of their scheduled 10 round bout here last night.

The game was clean from start to finish. The players on the home team were as follows: Edgar Carew, Hill Stevenson, Scriver, McMillan, Taylor, Ratter, and Cobert.

Russell Stewart, of Baltimore, acted as referee.

BAY OF QUINTE LEAGUE FORMED

R. A. Elliott Offers Cup For Competition in This Loop.

INTERMEDIATE BALL.

(Quinte Sun, Trenton)

Monday, Robert McKinley received a very interesting letter from R. A. Elliott of Deloro in connection with the baseball situation, and it is published herewith as being of general interest to fans of the game. It will be noticed that "a very fine cup" is available as a token of the Bay of Quinte championship.

The letter follows:

Deloro, Ont., March 12, 1930.

R. McKinley, Trenton.

Dear Sir: I have been absent from Deloro for the past week and am just in receipt of a copy of your letter to W. J. Smith and a copy of Mr. Synder's reply.

I shall indeed be very glad to be present at any organization meeting that you may have. I note the towns mentioned in your letter to Mr. Smith and might say that I think Picton would be interested and would suggest the names of Mr. Church and Mr. Welch, Point Anne (Canada Cement Company) would be interested and would suggest the name of J. H. Legate. Corbyville are also running a ball team and I had a long talk last Fall with George McCrann. Picton, Trenton, Point Anne and Corbyville would make a very nice league and very compact, so that travelling expense would be a minimum.

If a league such as this could be formed and called the Bay of Quinte League, we have at present in Deloro a very fine cup which was donated by Mr. Knox for the championship of the Bay of Quinte League and this trophy could be used.

Possibly from the above information you could start things moving and I will be glad to be present at your organization meeting.

You mentioned the towns of Campbellford, Brighton, Colborne, Warkworth, Hastings and Roseneath. These towns, I think, were in the old league called the Northumberland League.

If four of these towns could be interested, we might possibly operate it in a number of ways. For instance as a B series or as a distinct league, and any assistance that you could give would be very much appreciated.

In closing, may I again say that due to my location in Deloro it is difficult to keep in close contact with what is going on, but I am very interested and willing to do anything within my power to set a revival of Intermediate baseball in the districts you mention.

Yours very truly,
R. A. Elliott.

P.S.—The Alemite Club in Belleville have a very good team and I have tried several times to interest them in O.B.A.A. baseball. If a feeling in the district was to affiliate with the O.B.A.A. they might fall in line. Any correspondence with their club should be addressed to E. Rowsome, General Manager, Alemite Co., Belleville, or Art Young, Superintendent, Alemite Co., Belleville.

Pats Dim Calgary's Hopes of Honors

WINNIPEG, Man., March 19. (By drilled Patricias from Regina, perennial threat to Memorial Cup contenders, dimmed Calgary's hopes for the Canadian Press).—Fleet, high-a Canadian junior hockey championship here last night. In the first of a two-game series in the western semi-finals, Pats skated to a 2 to 0 triumph over the Canadians from the foothills and definitely marched into the limelight of Memorial Cup battle.

Pats will carry their lead into the second game to be played here Thursday night.

LEAFS DROP FINAL GAME

Chicago Black Hawks to Meet Canadiens in Stanley Cup Play-off Series.

COUGARS BEAT PIRATES.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 19. (C.P.) — The Chicago Black Hawks, playing brilliant hockey in the last period last night scored their first victory of the season over the Toronto Maple Leafs, in the closing game of the National Hockey League schedule. The triumph assured Chicago of second place in the American group and battle with the Les Canadiens of Montreal in the Stanley Cup play-off series.

COUGARS BEAT PIRATES.

FORT ERIE, Ont., March 19. (C.P.)—Detroit defeated Pittsburgh here last night in a National League hockey game 4 to 2. The contest was dull until the last three minutes of play, when the Cougars opened up with an attack that netted two goals.

COP PLAY-OFF PLACE.

MONTREAL, March 19. (C.P.) — Montreal Canadiens went into second place of the Canadian section of the National Hockey League here last night by defeating the New York Americans 8 to 3 here. Morens, flashy centre star of the Canucks, was the outstanding player of the game — equalling the record of five goals scored in one game.

WORLD'S RECORD.

BUENOS AIRES, March 18 (Canadian Press).—What was claimed to be the world's record for distance and permanency in water was established yesterday by the Argentine swimmer, Pedroa Candiotti, who in 65 hours and 54 minutes, swam down river 390 kilometres (about 240 miles).

That distance separates Coya and Santa Fe.

ARSENAL FAVORED TO BEAT HULL CITY

Gunners' Defense Surpasses Record of Opponents to Date.

TORONTO, March 19. — Next Saturday old England will be in the "throes"—meaning that a large percentage of the population will show more or less agitation. It will be English Cup semi-final day. The bare announcement stirs the emotions of soccer fans everywhere. The scenes of the struggles are at Manchester and Leeds for the football association decrees that semi-finals must be played on neutral territory. Three of the teams—Sheffield Wednesday, Huddersfield and Hull City—belong to the North. The other—Arsenal—is the hope of the South.

No one, of course, can say exactly just how many people in the world of sport take a real interest in the battles of next Saturday. Five to ten millions in the Old Land, it is estimated will eagerly await the results, and there must be hundreds of thousands overseas equally interested. The games are the last act in the wild scramble for the greatest of all soccer trophies before the trek to Wembley begins—"Wembley," the magic word that thrills the smallest English lad just learning to play the game. All the reserved seats were sold more than a month ago before the sixth round had been played. The sum of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars was returned by the Football Association to would be spectators at the final on April 26 because the ground is not big enough. Two hundred and fifty thousand spectators want to see the English Cup final with the minimum charge of one dollar. Old England is still the great sport-loving nation it is claimed to be.

The Glamor of Wembley.

It will be a great disappointment to Londoners if Arsenal fails at this crucial stage, but they will roll up in battalions whether or not. The glamour of Wembley has an appeal that cannot be resisted. It is the natural climax of the football season and it does not need a great amount of "ballyhooing."

Arsenal's opponents are Hull City, whose cup prowess has created a sensation. Little was heard about this humble Second Division team until they entered the competition. In two previous seasons they had been knocked out in the first round. In their own group they had done nothing startling. Only 11 games in 29 have been won for a total of 28 points. Their forwards have shown very ordinary form at the nets, for only 42 goals have been scored. Only one team in the league shows a smaller total.

Now comes the Cup and Hull City startles the soccer world by defeating Plymouth Argyle at Plymouth—a team that has fewer goals scored against it than any of 88 playing professional soccer. This was followed by a victory over Blackpool, leading the second division at Hull. Few conceded that Hull would have a chance with Manchester City at Maine Road, but the Second Leaguers astounded the populace with a victory. The sixth round decreed that Hull City must travel to Newcastle. Surely Newcastle would finish Hull's career, it was thought, but the Fishermen forced a draw, and all the world knows what happened in a re-play.

INTERESTING TUSSLE.

TORONTO, Ont., March 19 (C.P.)—Despite the fact it was the final scheduled game of the International Hockey League season, Windsor Bulldogs and Niagara Falls battled determinedly for victory at Niagara Falls last night. The fifth place Bulldogs won decisively by a seven to three count and finished the season within three points of Detroit and a play-off berth. The defeat left the Cataracts where they were, in the cellar.

Frank Carson, Windsor scoring ace, notched two goals and gave an assist to fatten his average and place him among the league's first five snipers in the official records.

RANGERS WILL MEET OTTAWA

While Chicago Black Hawks Tangle With Montreal Canadiens on Sunday.

CALDER STATEMENT.

FORUM, Montreal, March 19. — Montreal Canadiens, by defeating the New York Americans here last night, went into second place of the Canadian Section, and will play the Chicago Black Hawks, who finished second in the American Section, a series of home-and-home games, the first to be played at Chicago next Sunday night and the second in Montreal Wednesday, March 26, President Frank Calder announced here last night.

Rangers to Meet Ottawa

The New York Rangers, who finished in third place of the American Section, will play a home-and-home series with Ottawa, third in the Canadian Section, the first game at Ottawa on Thursday and the second at New York on Sunday, March 23, Mr. Calder stated.

Although Montreal Canadiens, by their win last night, tied in points scored with their intracity rivals, the Maroons, the Flying Frenchmen are forced to take second place.

National Hockey rules state that if two teams are tied in the number of points earned, whether for first, second or third place, the team which has won the greatest number of games during the season automatically leads the other. Each team has played 4 games, and out of these Maroons have won 23, lost 16, and drawn 5. Canadiens have won 21, lost 14, and drawn 9.

More Goals

That the clamor of the hockey fans for more goals was fully realized in the N.H.L. season, which ended last night, can be seen from the fact that during the campaign just ended the ten teams scored an even total of thirteen hundred tallies. This is more than double the number scored during the previous season, only 641 goals being counted then. During the season of 1927-28 the total goals scored in the Calder loop was 845.

Commission Approves New Foul Blow Rule

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 19. —(C.P.)— The New York State Athletic Commission turned loose a murderous body barrage to-day on the evil of fouls and foul fighters.

Beginning to-day, the commissioners decided that every puncher who losses here on a foul in the future will be automatically suspended for two months for his first offense, four months for the second and six for the third. A fourth offender will receive punishment analgous to the famous Baumes law for New York criminals—a life sentence.

Furthermore, gladiators who foul will be paid in the future only for the completed rounds before disqualification.

LOCAL DELEGATES TO O.B.A.A. MEETING.

Peterborough and district will be well represented at the 1930 annual meeting of the Ontario Baseball Association to be held in St. Catharines on Saturday, April 5. Delegates from the City League to the big pow-wow will be: Bill Prindible, Mike O'Brien and Alex. Kay. Charlie Curtiss, the energetic secretary of the East Peterborough League, will represent that flourishing loop.

The local delegates will bear an official invitation from the Peterborough City Council and every branch of sport here, to the provincial baseball organization to hold their 1931 annual meeting in Peterborough.

If the O.B.A.A. accept this courteous invitation to assemble here next year, then they will be graciously recognizing Peterborough's outstanding position in the amateur baseball world, and also the important role that Eastern Ontario plays in the association. It is no secret that this city is a baseball stronghold and that the game thrives here as it does in few cities in the province. Last year a similar invitation was conveyed to the O.B.A.A., but St. Catharines was chosen. It is more than likely that Peterborough will be the 1931 meeting place.

A message hot off the grapevine wireless has it that the C.G.E. Tool Room team, worthy champs of the City Hockey League, have a yearning to participate in faster company next winter, and they have gone so far as to discuss the ambitious project of placing their outfit in the Intermediate O.H.A. The Toolmakers have been prominent in City League hockey for many years, and in the past dozen seasons have earned the title about eight times. But the brand of hockey required in Intermediate O.H.A. circles is another thing. One Intermediate team here this winter did not set the province on fire and its financial worries were considerable.

LACROSSE POPULAR IN UNITED STATES.

While lacrosse is languishing in Canada and in some parts of the Dominion is almost extinct, it is annually attracting legions of fresh devotees in the United States and the British Isles. The American colleges have adopted this virile Canadian game with relish, and have raised it to a major sport. The game is sweeping through the schools of the whole Eastern States, and in some colleges as many as two hundred aspirants have turned out for the varsity team, and at least twenty-five universities will be represented in scheduled matches this spring. Oxford and Cambridge will again combine to send a lacrosse team against the best teams in the States.

Port Arthur and Trail play to-night and on Friday night at the head of the Great Lakes in the final round of the Western Canada play-downs for the Allan Cup and the Canadian championship. The Port Arthur team has figured most impressively in amateur hockey since the war and their record can not be approached by any other club. On three occassions, in 1925, '26 and '29, the Thunder Bay champions won the Allan Cup and Dominion title, and they are being picked to turn back the Trail Smoke-Eaters, British Columbia title-holders, as they defeated the same team last year.

Five clubs remain in the hunt for the Allan Cup, two in Western Canada and three in the east, and the latter trio will be reduced by one this evening. In Montreal to-night the M.A.A.A. team play their second game with the Truro Bearcats. The Winged Wheelers have a two-goal lead and in all probability will emerge into the Eastern Canada final against Hamilton, O.H.A. champs.

NATIONAL LEAGUE PLAY OFF SERIES.

The National Hockey League finished its regular schedule last night and six teams will now prepare for the post-season series for the championship. From a local standpoint the failure of the Leafs to play winning hockey was a big disappointment. Toronto hockey specialists have yet failed to put their finger on the weakness in the Leafs' machine but an effort will be made to eliminate the trouble, whatever it was, by replacing Connie Smythe as manager of the team next season.

The most remarkable thing to be recorded for posterity in the 1929-3 season is the remarkable winning record of the Boston Bruins. Last night the Bruins ended the season by trouncing the New York Rangers, 9-2, to make the world's champions' 38th victory in 44 games, the best record ever made in professional hockey.

SMELTERS NOT IN SENIOR RANKS THIS YEAR.

Due to the fact that baseball in Deloro in the past few years had ascended from intermediate to senior brand, it is naturally a keen disappointment to the fans of the Marmora-Deloro district that this summer the Smelters will not again be contenders for the highest baseball honors.

Why, then, asks a discerning Deloro fan, should not lovers of the game turn attention to the splendid young ball-playing material which cavorts in the Centre Hastings district? These lads have keenly observed the Elliott-Regan aggregations displaying their stuff. They have observed much inside knowledge of the game annually since Deloro snatched the Intermediate title from Bridgeburg at Oshawa in 1926.

Certainly in Marmora and Deloro there is much promising talent which, properly coached and given similar backing as their elders received, should make a name for Junior baseball in the Marmora district. Good opposition should be forthcoming from Tweed, Madoc, Belleville and other neighboring centres, and a healthy league might easily be established.

COTE AND BURKE SIGN CONTRACTS

Last of Toronto Leaf Baseball Holdouts Accept Terms.

NO SALARY CHANGES.

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., March 19 —All is serene in the camp of the Leafs. As expected, "Bucky" Burke and Pete Cote, last of the holdouts, gave up yesterday and were given back their uniforms. They took prominent parts in the morning's sparkling workout and yesterday afternoon signed their contracts. Jim Dunn, Vice-President of the Leafs, and Manager O'Neill loomed on and everybody appeared to be tickled pink when it was all over.

No change was made in the original contracts, so Jim Dunn said, the players accepting the club's terms, but nevertheless Burke and Cote seemed pleased with things in general and were as happy as a couple of school boys on a holiday as they hopped to the duties at hand this morning with bubbling enthusiasm. They were mighty glad to be back at work.

Now with Burke and Cote apparently pacified Steve O'Neil can begin developing an infield system, the absence of the two players from the practices the past week having retarded progress in that end of the team.

It will take some time for Burke to get down to playing weight, but even in present condition he is a lot better than some players who would take his job, as he quickly demonstrated to the doubting Thomasses to-day. Cote does not need quite as much work as his keystone pal to put him fit for the season's toiling.

The hitting of Joe Harris, Bob Petrie, Harry Davis, Fred Bedore and Art Ruble brought much favorable comment from Lol Solman, Jim Dunn and Harold Marriott as they watched for the first time their team work out. Harris rapped the ball far and on a line, and the others were not far behind the veteran in power shown. Altogether the Toronto owners were more or less surprised to find the players so far advanced in condition and warmly congratulated Manager O'Neill.

RED SOX MUST NOT BE TAKEN AS 1930 SET-UP

Boston Confident That Real Team Will Be Built on Foundation of Present Machine.

THIRTY-SEVEN PLAYERS.

President and Pilot Confident Reconstruction Program Safely Launched.

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 19.—(A.P.)—The Boston Red Sox may not win the American League championship in 1930, but they will win some games from the team that does capture the pennant and make themselves very disagreeable during the season.

The Sox have a long, hard baseball road to travel, but they may be said to be definitely on the way. President Bob Quinn and Manager Heine Wagner are convinced that the reconstruction program is finally launched. They believe that the comeback trail will have its start this year; that with a little luck the team in the making will annoy the other clubs no end, and an even more daring hope— that upon this foundation will be built a baseball machine capable of restoring to Boston the glory that was hers when the Red Sox not only dominated pennant races, but World Series as well.

Of thirty-seven players in the camp thirty-one are under thirty years of age. Eighteen are not yet twenty-five. The oldest player is Milton Gaston, a hard pitcher to beat, who is thirty-two, and the youngest Joe Cicero, a boy with a wallop in his bat, who is only nineteen. The club promises, however, to be well balanced, with a good mixture of the experience of age and the enthusiasm of youth. The pitchers have been around long enough to know what it is all about, and a raw youngster in the line-up will have an old head in baseball close beside him.

Six Ontario Cities In Pro Ball Loop

BRANTFORD, Ont., March 19. —(C.P.)— Formation of a provincial baseball league comprising teams from six Ontario cities was announced here yesterday following a meeting of interested parties.

Hamilton, London, Guelph, St. Catharines, Brantford and St. Thomas are the cities that will be represented. The league is scheduled to open its season May 15, and will be rated as Class "C" in the National Association of baseball leagues.

Walter McMullen, Hamilton, was elected president.

LEAFS CIRCLING FIELD IN DAILY TRAINING GRIND

These are times of stress and toil for baseball players, rookie and regular, and mightly little fun. The old timers find little novelty in the conditioning campaign, and the youngsters are usually so wrapped up in warty that they hardly know what it is all about. It is not all milk and honey, as is generally imagined, and it's a good bet that the athletes are tickling when unkinking time is over. Phil Edwards Again Leads 60-yard Sprint

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 19.—(C.P.)— Phil Edwards, running under the colors of the Hamilton (Ont.) Olympic Club, won the final of the 600-yard run in the National A.A.U., indoor title games at Madison Square Garden last night in 1.13 6-10 seconds. Eddie Roll of Newark A.C., was second and Eddie Blake of Boston A.A. was third.

O.B.A.A. BULLETIN.

The executive of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association will meet on Saturday afternoon, March 22, at 1.30 at the Carls Rite Hotel, Toronto.

One of the important amendments to the constitution to come before the annual meeting at St. Catharines, on April 5: That a new series be organized to be known as Intermediate Section B. This series will take care of all Intermediate Leagues in the smaller towns and rural districts who feel they are not quite strong enough to compete against the Intermediate League winners in the larger centres.

No doubt the organization of this series will creat greater interest and keen competition in the districts who have not the surplus of players to draw from that the cities and towns may have.

Keeping Air Cool On Trains In Summer

The Santa Fe Railway has been experimenting for several years with the problem of keeping the air cool in club, dining and sleeping cars, during the summer season.

W. J. Black, passenger traffic manager, states that at last the problem is solved. As a starter, contract has been closed for early installation of reconditioned air, cooled by a patented process, on dining cars of The Chief, the Santa Fe's extra fast and extra fare flyer.

This same process is successfully used at El Garces, one of the Fred Harvey station hotels, as well as in a number of large metropolitan hotels and theatres. Never before has it been adopted on transcontinental trains. There is absolutely no draft, the cool air being brought in overhead, with a resultant uniform temperature of 65 to 70 degrees Fahr. The Santa Fe slogan of "cool summer way" now takes on a new meaning, and this added comfort will appeal to extra fare travelers en route to or from California.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SNOW FLOWERS

"Don't forget what day this is," called Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy to Uncle Wiggily as the rabbit gentleman hopped down the front steps of his hollow stump bungalow one morning to go adventuring. "Don't forget!"

"No, I won't," answered Mr. Longears, hardly thinking of what he was saying because he was wondering, so hard, about what kind of an adventure he might have. "I'll remember!"

And it wasn't until some time after that, when the rabbit gentleman was in the middle of an adventure, that he thought of what Nurse Jane had called to him as he hopped away.

First I will tell you about Uncle Wiggily's adventure, then I will tell you what Nurse Jane didn't want him to forget and lastly I shall tell you about the snow flowers.

The rabbit gentleman was hopping along over the fields and through the woods, now and then skipping across patches of snow which, he hoped, were the last flakes of the winter storms.

"I knew you wouldn't forget."

And then, all of a sudden, just when Uncle Wiggily was whistling a jolly tune through his pink, twinkling nose, all of a sudden out from behind a mulberry bush withouth any leaves for the silk worms to eat, out jumped the fox.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the Fox. "You're early to-day, Mr. Longears!"

"I wish I had been late!" thought the rabbit gentleman when he saw who it was "I wish I hadn't met you for I know what is going to happen! I'll be nibbled, I'm afraid."

"Yes, you are early, but not too early," growled the Fox, "for I am very hungry!"

The Fox walked a little closer to the rabbit gentleman and Uncle Wiggly was wondering what he could do to get away, for he didn't dare run, knowing the moment he did that the Fox would leap on him and bite him when, all of a quickness, Mr. Longears saw a big, brown rough cone from a pine tree lying on the ground.

As quick as a wink Uncle Wiggily picked up the cone, which was as rough as a nutmeg grater and, holding it out to the Fox, the rabbit said:

"Smell that!"

"What is it, a snow flower?" asked the Fox, for there was some snow near that place. "Oh, I love flowers! I'll smell that one and then I'll nibble you!"

But before the Fox had a chance to smell the pine cone and find out that it wasn't a flower Uncle Wiggily rubbed the sharp, rough thing like a nutmeg grater on the nose of the Bad Chap.

"Oh, wow! Oh, jow! Oh, Station HOWL!" yelled the Fox and his nose hurt him so that tears came into his eyes. And when his eyes were filled with tears he couldn't see to bite Uncle Wiggily so away ran the rabbit gentleman as fast as he could.

"My! It's lucky I found the pine cone and scratched the nose of the Fox with it!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily when he was safe in the woods. "This was my lucky day—my lucky day—day—Ha! What was it Nurse Jane said to me as I left home? She told me not to forget what day this was. I'm not likely to. It's Tuesday—and yet she wouldn't have wanted me to remember just that. It must be something else. Oh, I know! It's my wife's birthday and Nurse Jane didn't want me to forget to bring Mrs. Longears some flowers! It's lucky I remembered!"

Uncle Wiggily started to look around for some blossoms, but none could be see. It was getting late and almost dark. And in this part of Woodland near the Orange Ice Mountains there were no stores where a rabbit could buy flowers for his wife's birthday.

"Dear me! What am I going to do?" thought Uncle Wiggily. "My wife will be so disappointed if I don't bring her some blossoms for her birthday. Yet where can I find any now? If it were nearer spring, or summer—Ha! Wait a moment! What was it the Fox said about snow flowers? I wonder if flowers ever grow under the snow?"

"Of course they do!" cried a voice behind the rabbit. It was the March Wind speaking out of the air like the radio. "Dig away that patch of snow," went on the wind. "Beneath it you will find some of the earliest flowers of the year—the trailing arbutus. It grows in the warm leaves under the snow!"

"Thanks!" said the rabbit. Quickly he dug with his paws and there, under the snow, were the tiny pink and white blossoms of the arbutus, their sweet, spicy perfume scenting the cold air. And when Uncle Wiggily took these snow flowers home to his wife she said:

"How kind you are! I knew you wouldn't forget my birthday!"

"Of course I wouldn't!" said Uncle Wiggily, winking at Nurse Jane. "But it's lucky I scratched the nose of that Fox! Ha! Ha!"

Home Has More Danger Than Savages of Brazil

John J. Whitehead, explorer and lecturer, with a Jungle Warrior

JOHN J. WHITEHEAD, explorer and lecturer, has just returned from eight months in the jungles of South America, where he was searching for traces of the lost Colonel Fawcett and his son.

Dangerous as he found the jungle, he encountered a worse danger at home. But let him tell it.

"One of the great problems of a trip of this kind is keeping in healthy condition. When we started, some of the members of the party had laxatives with them, but made wise by experience I carried Nujol. All too quickly my stock ran out. Soon I was in bad shape—what with a diet of rice and beans, lacking vitamins and green vegetables.

"When we finally got back to civilization, entertained first in Brazil and later in the United States, I became positively ill. Severe stomach pains and poor elimination made me realize that Nujol would again prove the reliable, trusty keeper of health. Sure enough, with the first bottle the trouble disappeared.

Don't think Nujol is a medicine. It is as tasteless and colorless as clear water. It brings you, however, what your body needs like any other machine—lubrication. Just as a good bath washes our bodies clean, Nujol sweeps away, easily and normally, those internal bodily poisons (we all have them) that make us feel dull and headachy and sick. Nujol cannot hurt even a little baby; it forms no habit; it contains not one single drug. Doctors and nurses use it themselves and tell you to use it, if you want to be well.

Take Nujol every night for two weeks and prove to yourself how happy and bright and full of pep you can be, if your body is internally clean. Get a bottle today at any drug store. It costs but a few cents, and makes you feel like a million dollars. Start traveling the health-road to success and happiness—this very day!

C.G.E. SOCIETY PLANS TO HOLD FLOWER SHOW

Resolution Unanimously Accepted By Directors at Recent Meeting.

AUGUST 14-15-16.

Huge Increase in Club Membership Develops During Past Year.

A three day flower show complete in every detail will be held this year by the C. G. E. Horticultural Society which will give the flower lovers throughout the city as well as the members of this organization an opportunity of exhibiting. This suggestion put forward at the regular meeting on Tuesday night was unanimously accepted by the executive who hope to make this show one of the highlights of a banner season.

Last year this society had a very successful season and staged a gladiolus growing contest among the members which created a great deal of interest as well as stimulating keen competition. The membership has increased this year to such an extent that the executive felt that the only practical means of accommodating all of the members would be an extensive flower show which would embody every feature of a major show of this type.

In August

Three hundred dollars will be given away in door prizes at this exhibition which will be held on August 14-15-16 while the prize list which is shown below has been arranged so that every person who is a member of the C. G. E. Social and Athletic Club will be permitted to exhibit while three open classes invite outsiders to prepare for the event. A package of Phlox Drummondi will be given to each member of the horticultural society with specified instructions regarding time of planting and other particulars regarding the competition for which these seeds are intended. These flowers when shown will constitute a special exhibit open only to the members.

Seeds From England

The order for seeds placed by the secretary of the club on the Ryder Seed Co. in England should arrive inside of ten days and members will be notified when they may obtain their order. Another feature which should interest society members is the fact that Mr. A. E. Prest and W. H. Young will be able to secure gladiola bulbs at a reduction of twenty per cent over the market price and at the present time have a list of the various varieties in their possession.

At a later date a complete prize list will be circulated and in the meantime C. G. E. employees who desire any information on the flower show may obtain it from any of the following members of the committee in charge: A. E. Prest, W. H. Young, A. L. Callander, N. E. Crowe, George East, Chris. Jay, George Land, H. Wilford, F. C. Roberts, Bruce Law, H. Darling or J. Pilling.

The following is a proposed list of the different classes:

THE FAMILY ALBUM—STUDS By GLUYAS WILLIAMS

(Copyright, 1930, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

H. C. STABLER IS LAID TO REST

LARGELY ATTENDED.

The funeral of the late H. C. Stabler, which was held yesterday, fittingly terminated a lifetime of worthwhile and honest endeavour, when a representative gathering of citizens with whom he had been associated in a business and social capacity, paid marked tribute to his memory, turning out in such large numbers that it was found impossible to accommodate them all at the service at the deceased's late residence.

The Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, who conducted the service spoke feelingly of his personal relations with Mr. Stabler, which had always been of the most friendly nature. The deceased gentleman, he said, was a man who had made a real success of life. He started out in a modest way and while prosperity is not always a true test of a man's value to society, still it possesses a certain significance. In Mr. Stabler's case no proper appraisal of is services to the community could be made without taking into consideration that he had made a success of life from a wordly standpoint.

Success had not spoiled him in any way. He was always possessed of a quiet, unassuming and humble nature—success had not tended to make him proud and ostentatious nor had it made him mean and miserly. His generous spirit and helpfulness and numerous worthwhile contributions to society were well remembered. He was a true Christian man, having experienced definite religious experiences which he never intruded on anybody but of which he was never ashamed.

He was not only a Christian, proceeded the reverend speaker, but was a churchman who sincerely believed that the church afforded a means of giving service to humanity. To church work he gave freely and his services to George street church in particular were numerous.

The preacher referred to the various offices which the late Mr. Stabler had held in this church in past years and at the time of his death, and added that as a mark of recognition the board called a special meeting and placed a resolution of appreciation on the church books also appointing four members of the board to represent George Street church at the funeral. The representatives thus chosen were: S. R. Armstrong, G. C. Carruthers, F. Brownscombe and F. McFadden.

The bearers were Messrs. S. R. Armstrong, F. Brownscombe, Alex. Stewart, H. G. Walters, Wm. J. Henry and T. M. McFadden.

The family mourners were the late Mr. Stabler's one surviving brother, William, of this city, and numerous nephews and nieces. Elizabeth Nicholls, who was the deceased's housekeeper for several years was also present at the funeral along with a countless host of other intimate friends.

Floral tributes were numerous and as the cortege moved off for Little Lake cemetery a long line of automobiles conveyed the large gathering to the graveside, where the assembly stood silently and reverently, bareheaded, under the grey March sky as the casket was lowered to its final resting place.

Restorative Treatment For Nervous Men

"Coming from a source of unquestioned authority on ailments of men, it is presumed to be infallible, while the profession generally endorse the ingredients and prescribe them. The following formula is highly efficient in loss of strength, nervous exhaustion, melancholia, anxiety, worry, dizziness, heart palpitation, trembling limbs, insomnia, thinness, cold extremities, tired "all in" feeling, and general inability to do normal everyday duties—upon which depend the success and happiness of every man's life. Instructions for obtaining and using this treatment are simple and definite. A physician's prescription is no longer necessary, because the tablets do not contain any dangerous or habit-forming drugs. Just ask Bond or your druggist for Double Strength Erbac Tablets in sealed packages, with full directions for home use. Each package contains a 30 day treatment—which in most instances, is more than enough to prove the value of a vigorously strong and healthy body, with abundant nerve force and vitality."—J. C. G.

ARRIVAL OF NEW AMBASSADOR IS DELAYED BY FOG

NOT A TEETOTALER.

NEW YORK N.Y., March 19. (By Ken Clark, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent). — Sir Ronald and Lady Lindsay left for Washington to-day. The New British Ambassador to the United States was delayed aboard the Aquitania at New York for a whole day because of a flitting heavy fog which filled the harbor and made it dangerous to move the bulk of the liner through the ferry lanes and shipping.

Sir Ronald underwent this first catechizing by the United States press while the Aquitania lay at anchor in the fog. Contrary to expectations he frankly exposed his views upon such weightly matters as disarmament and the unemployment situation in Great Britain and other matters, thus demonstrating what he claimed for himself in a prepared statement to know "something about United States' ways and United States' likes and dislikes."

This knowledge was most clearly shown forth in his candid admission that he was not a tee-totaler and had not yet decided what to do about continuing or discontinuing Sir Esme Howard's determination not to issue any further permits for his staff at the embassy to import liquor. Replying to questions on this point he said, "It's not fair to plunge right into it. Whatever I do I'll be criticized. I think it is only reasonable to be allowed to look around first."

JOHN IRELAND INJURES HAND

Hall's Bridge Resident Has Hand Badly Lacerated While Piling Wool.

JOSEPH HARRIS INJURED

HALL'S BRIDGE, March 19.—(Examiner Correspondence). — John Ireland, whilst engaged with Harry Shearer, sustained a severe injury to his left hand on Thursday last. His hand was badly crushed when some cord wood, which he was handling, fell on his hand. He was rushed to Dr. Willis' office and it was found to be a fracture of the main bone of the hand. It was treated and Mr. Ireland is now able to get about, but he will probably be disabled for a few weeks.

Also Injures Hand.

A second accident occurred on Tuesday to Joseph Harris whilst he was cutting cord wood for Benjamin Irwin. Mr. Harris sustained severe injuries to his right hand. Mr. Irwin brought him immediately to Dr. Willis' office, but the injuries being too severe to be treated locally, he was taken to Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, where he is now being treated by Dr. H. M. Yelland. This is the second injury which Mr. Harris has sustained to his right hand.

JESUIT MARTYRS TO BE CANONIZED

TORTURED BY IROQUOIS.

VATICAN CITY, March 19. (C.P.) The congregation of rites yesterday voted favorably on the merits of two miracles which had been proposed as part of the grounds for the canonization of the Canadian martyrs which is to be effected in June. It is necessary for canonizing that two major miracles be proved together with the quality of heroism in death.

With the canonization of eight Canadian martyrs in June, North America will have its first saints in the calendar of the church. All eight of the intrepid men who carried the gospel to the heathen suffered death by torture at the hands of the Iroquois, inveterate enemies of the early French in Canada. Jean de Brebeuf was the most prominent. The others were Isaac Joques, Gabriel Lalemant, Charles Garnier, Anthony Daniel Noel Chabnel, Rene Goupil and John de la Lalande.
